A Bible Message

And the Lord spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying, When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, Shew a miracle for you: then thou shalt say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent.

And Moses and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did so as the Lord had commanded: and Aaron cast down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his servants, and it became a serpent.

Then Pharaoh also called the wise men and the sorcerers: now the magicians of Egypt, they also did in like manner with their enchantments. For they cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods. (Ex. 7: 8-12.)

Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them. And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did. For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed....

But there was a certain man called Simon, which beforetime in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one: to whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God....

But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done. (Acts 8: 5-7, 9, 10, 12, 13.)

Letter To The Editor

REMOVE TRADE BARRIERS

Sir,—I see where your columnist Bruce Hutchison (Examiner of September 6) gives a scholarly summation of the foreign affairs platform of the Republican party in the United States. Your writer quotes liberally from "utterances of the last few weeks" by candidate Dewey. Among the principles laid down in the dewey "platform," this reader was particularly interested in this affirmation:

"(4)—Maintenance of future peace means an economic reorganization of the world, and it will be impossible without the removal of trade barriers and the maximum possible movement of goods throughout the world...."

As Mr. Hutchison properly reminds us, the above statement "is, of course, a direct repudiation of the high-tariff policy enforced by his (Dewey's) party throughout the inter-war period, with disastrous results to the United States and the whole world."

I do not think it can be successfully denied that there is a relationship between the high-tariff policy in the United States, the spread of economic nationalism throughout the nations, the depression decade, and the present war?

So far as Canada is concerned (and as the fourth greatest foreign trader among the nations, we certainly have a deep concern with the economic health of our customers, everywhere!) it is encouraging to see that opinion on Parliament Hill, divided and subdivided on so many matters, is united on this same aim at "the removal of trade barriers."

A beginning has to be made somewhere, Mr Editor, and I suggest that one of our objectives should be in the direction of getting Canada's famous cereal (raw material for "Our Daily Bread") moving freely into the ports around the seven seas?

"ONE WORLD."

Murder Trials Total 15 Across Ontario

TORONTO, Sept. 9—(CP)—Fifteen persons face trial on charges of murder in 11 cases at Fall Assize Court sessions in Ontario this year. Four persons are charged in one case—the torture death of Mrs. Viola Jamieson of Flanders in Northwestern Ontario. She died in hospital three weeks after three men placed her on a hot stove in an effort to make her tell where she had hidden her money. The four charged are George Skrynlk, Anthony Skrynyk, William Schmidt and Eino Tillonen.

Three of the murder trials are slated for Toronto. Allan Baldwin, formerly of Windsor, and W. J. O'Sullivan are charged with murder in the death of a Don jail guard during a prison break by Baldwin June 10. Mrs. Lucy Hawley of suburban York Township is charged with murder in the death of her seven-weeks-old daughter who was drowned. Joseph Moro, blind former construction worker, is charged in the death from knife wounds of his three-year-old daughter.

There is wide interest in the trial slated for Hamilton assizes of Douglas Dunsmoore, who is charged with murder in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Martin, one of 10 persons who died in a fire which swept the Moose Hall in Hamilton early May 24th.

Others facing murder charges are: Harold Ferguson, Hamilton; Bernard Lentz, North Bay; Alpha Proulx, Sudbury; Sam Michael, Whitby; Lois Bell, Milton; Charles Francis Davey, Cobourg.

Among manslaughter charges to be heard is that against Edward R. (Ted) Vining of London, Ont., who will be tried at St. Thomas. He is charged in connection with the partial capsizing of the pleasure boat Olga, of which he was part owner, in Port Stanley harbor June 4 with a loss of 17 lives.

BRITISH TROOPS OPEN THE ROAD TO AMIENS—British troops are hauling an assault boat through the town of Vernon, on the Seine River, during the operation that resulted in their forcing a crossing of the river for the breakthrough to Amiens. Tuberculosis Deaths Show Slight Gain

OTTAWA, Sept. 9 — (CP) — Deaths from tuberculosis increased slightly during 1943 with the rate rising from 51.5 in 1942 to 51.7 per 100,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said to-day in a report.

Deaths numbered 6,094 in 1943, an increase of 103.

All provinces, with the exception of New Brunswick and Ontario, reported increases in the tuberculosis toll. In New Brunswick a new low was established with a rate of 48.2 as compared with 70.9 in 1942. Ontario again displaced Saskatchewan in the race for national honors, with a rate of 26.4 compared to Saskatchewan's 29.7.

Ontario's is the lowest rate in her history. It compared with 28.9 in 1939.

Post-War Army

VANCOUVER, Sept. 9 — (CP) — The Vancouver Province in an Ottawa dispatch yesterday said "a military army of 100,000 men with camp training periods of a minimum of one month per year is forecast here as ranking officials of the Department of National Defence study post-war plans for the Canadian Army."

Industry Problem

OTTAWA, Sept. 9 — (CP) — The probable position of Canada's war industries after the collapse of Germany now is under review by the Munitions Department and on this depends the extent to which manpower controls in this country will be eased. A Washington dispatch said last night that most of the existing rigid controls over utilization of labor in the United States will be eliminated when Germany falls.

Pertinent Information Regarding

The Peterborough Memorial Community Centre

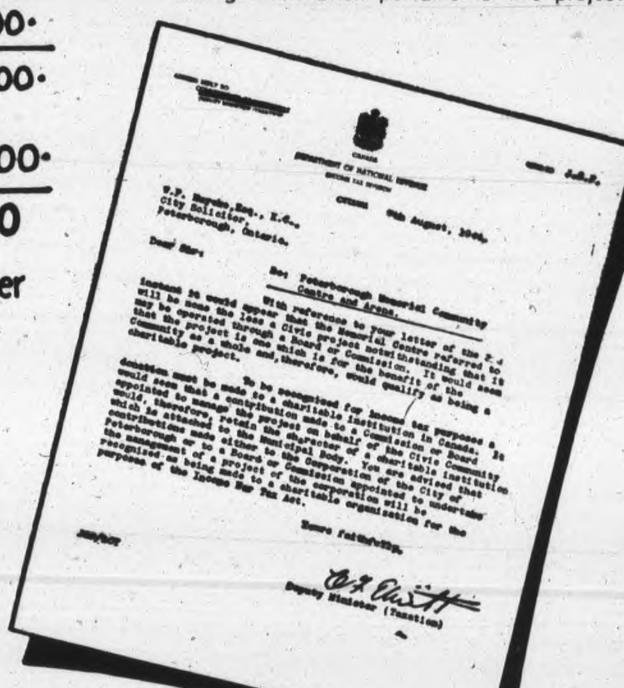
For Health • Culture and Recreation

The plan to establish a Memorial Health and Athletic Centre in Peterborough has been approved by the Citizens' Committee. The following information pertains to this project.

What it would cost each Wage-earner to build the Memorial Health Centre

Proposed cost	$275,000.
Grant from city	75,000.
Subscribed by Industries	100,000.
Subscribed by 10,000 Senior Wage earner	100,000.

$10.00 Average per wage earner



The approximate cost of the proposed Memorial Health Centre, is shown above on the left and the proposed method of obtaining this amount is also shown. This plan has worked very successfully in other cities the size of Peterborough. Just how this money will be obtained in Peterborough is in the hands of the Finance Committee. We draw your attention to the letter shown above at the right. It is self-explanatory and means that your donations to the Health Centre may be classified as a charitable donation, as regards Income Tax.

A Community Authorized Centre

As the building of a Health and Athletic Centre has been authorized by the Citizens of Peterborough, it is the aim of this and following advertisements to present information as to what this undertaking involves; what plans have been formulated; what form these plans will take and the approximate cost. This centre is going to be a Memorial to those Peterborough men who have made the supreme sacrifice. Thus, in doing honour to those who gave their lives, it will also help to bring about a better City for which they fought. It will be a memorial in which every citizen can take pride, and will be proud to say "I helped build it." As a health centre this memorial will embrace practically every competitive sport and will provide numerous outlets for boys and girls, both young and old.

The following are a List of Questions which may have occurred to you and their answers:

1. QUESTION: I can't afford it.
ANSWER: Sure you can. Fifty cents a week for twenty weeks means only ten cents a day, about the price of a bottle of pop. You will never miss it.

2. QUESTION: Why should I contribute? I'll never use it.
ANSWER: Every citizen in Peterborough will use it. This Memorial Centre will be yours, for the use of you and your children the year round.

3. QUESTION: Don't we need a Hospital first?
ANSWER: Yes, we do need a Hospital, but that problem is in the hands of another Committee. It will cost many times as much as the Memorial Community Centre, and is a matter that is likely to be long drawn out, as the Dominion and Provincial Government will have to be consulted. The citizens and youth of Peterborough need this Memorial Community Centre now.

4. QUESTION: I am not interested in hockey or skating.
ANSWER: Many people are just like you, but this Memorial Community Centre will be used for concerts, dancing, public meetings, service clubs, shows and carnivals, school pageants, and all indoor sports. You are bound to get your share of healthful enjoyment from it.

5. QUESTION: I am a property owner, will it increase my taxes?
ANSWER: Over 2-3 of the cost of this Memorial Community Centre is being donated by the manufacturers and the Citizens of Peterborough, so that any increase in taxes will be very slight. Surely you want to contribute your share towards a living Memorial as a tribute to our gallant fighting men who have made such sacrifices for you, and me

6. QUESTION: Who is getting the profit out of it?
ANSWER: The Memorial Community Centre will be owned by the City of Peterborough, for the people of Peterborough and all profits will be used for the maintenance of the Centre and for further developments of playgrounds throughout the City.

7. QUESTION: Who is going to run it?
ANSWER: The Centre will be managed by a Committee of six representatives citizens appointed by the City Council, for term of three years.

8. QUESTION: What use will the Centre be to a girl?
ANSWER: There will be many activities that will appeal to the ladies and young girls, such as dancing to famous name bands, style shows, roller and figure skating, concerts, badminton, basketball and indoor baseball.

9. QUESTION: Can I deduct my contribution from my Income Tax
ANSWER: Yes. Mr. C. Fraser Elliott, Commissioner of Income Tax has ruled, that as the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre is a charitable project, which is for the benefit of the community as a whole, contributions are deductable from Income Tax.

10. QUESTION: Why is it called a Memorial Centre?
ANSWER: Because that is exactly what it is. A living Memorial in memory of the fine Peterborough boys who fought and died for their country. Their sacrifice and shining example will be kept bright in the minds of Peterborough youth long after the significance of a cold stone monument is forgotten.

11. QUESTION: Where will the Arena of the Community Centre be located?
ANSWER: At the East end of Hunter Street Bridge on the North side.

Connie Smythe Offered Top N.H.L. Post

MONTREAL, Sept. 9—(CP). — Maj. Connie Smythe, who was wounded while serving in Normandy with his Sportsman's battery, yesterday was offered the presidency of the National Hockey League at a meeting of the governors here. It is understood Smythe's injuries will keep him on the invalid list for some time.

In the meantime, Mervyn (Red) Dutton will act as president with Lester Patrick of New York as general manager.

Among the rule changes adopted was one which would bar any player from the league who has been deferred under selective service regulations either in Canada or the United States for any reason other than physical disability. Thus, a player, who is in a callable class and deferred because of jobs in war industry would not be allowed to play in the league or affiliated bodies.

It was decided that teams be allowed to dress 14 players for each game, three forward lines, four defence men and a goaltender.

A slight change in the rules governing the red line drawn at centre ice last season provides that the puck may not be iced from anywhere behind the line. Last season, the players were allowed to shoot the puck forward from their blue line.

The governors drew up a schedule which opens Oct. 28 and continues ntil March 18, 1945. However, it is not yet ready to be released. Each team will play 50 games.

Bert Hedges of Toronto and Georges Gravel of Montreal were named referees to replace Norman Lamport who resigned, while Frank (King) Clancy and Bert Chadwick will continue as officials.

A committee composed of representatives of the N.H.L. and the American Hockey League was formed which has full powers to conclude any deals. The league also extended for a year the protection granted players of the disbanded American Hockey Association.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Westclox and York Brass, Toronto intermediate champs, were scheduled to meet this afternoon at Riverside Park in the second game of their provincial playdown series at 2:30 o'clock with the setup being that should the Toronto team win and tie up the round there will be a third game at 6 o'clock this evening. In any event there will be two interesting softball battles at Riverside this afternoon for immediately following the girls' game and starting at 4 o'clock the first fixture of a best-of-three for the military softball championship of No. 3 Military District will be staged between the Radar team of Barriefield Camp and the local Military Training Centre club. This should be a hot argument. The calibre of the local Soldier outfit is well-known to Peterborough softball fans and the visitors are also reported to be strong in every department so that the opening battle of the series, with both clubs seeking to get the jump on the opposition should be full of thrills. The second game is billed for the Military Training Centre diamond at the camp Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock with an invitation extended to the fans to attend A silver collection will be taken up in aid of the British War Victims' Fund. If the series should be tied up at the end of the second game, the Soldier teams will battle it out with a third tilt to be played at the Camp tomorrow evening.

* * * * * *

From Stratford Chick Appel, Beacon-Herald sports commentator, makes the admission that Kroehlers who defeated Westclox last season and won the Ontario intermediate title are not so strong this year. Says Chick who modestly refrains from mentioning the fact that the loss of his daughter Betty, star shortstop of the champs must have left a wide gap: "Stratford must now pin its hopes for softball laurels on Gar Landers' Kroehler girls, defending champions of the intermediate P.W.S.U., and here too, it must be admitted that the Stratford team doesn't measure up to that of last season. For one thing they are only blessed with one winning pitcher, Greta Harmer. Fern Pearson's control is shaky and unless she manages to improve, Greta Harmer may have to hurl all remaining games. Kroehler girls seem to have lost considerable of their punch at the platter, and they again showed Saturday afternoon, in the game here with Preston Rivulettes, that a pitcher who can mix a good slow ball with her fast one will give them plenty of trouble." Kroehlers by the way are playing off this week with Fergus who showed fighting ability in their series with Guelph, taking the second and third games from the Royal City girls, after dropping the first first one.

Here Is A Battle

Arrangements have been completed for the Scots-English soccer game bewteen veteran players representing the two countries in aid of the Norwegian Relief Fund and this unique struggle will be staged at Riverside Park a week from today. In the meanwhile it is being played verbally in a series of arguments wherever the contenders happen to meet. Ben Bolam has been appointed manager of the English team and Ned Hardie is the pilot of the Scots and as there is a minimum age limit of 40 years both these doughty leaders are in a quandry. They realize that considerable tuning up should be needed to put their teams on edge for the crucial struggle and they also realize that there is only about one game left in some of the players. The problem is whether to save that one game up for the battle at Riverside next Saturday or fritter it away before hand in preliminary drills. It is a tough decision to make and it is no wonder that the two pilots are wearing a worried look these days. The officials for this international clash will be Welsh and Irish.

* * * * * *

Tickets are already on sale and as the proceeds are all going to the Norwegian Relief Fund the pasteboards are meeting with a ready demand. The lineups of the rival squads given below contains a lot of well-known names. Players who used to star on the local football field have agreed to turn out for this benefit battle and followers of the game will be able to name plenty of them in both lists. They should stage quite an argument before a winner is decided and as plenty of alternatives have been selected the teams should be able to maintain a lively pace. There should be a real crowd on hand to see this interesting battle, the proceeds of which will help a worthwhile cause. The lineups: Scotch team—W. Rickard, goal; Ed Hardie, D. Grant, left and right backs; T. Craig, A. Jackson and A. Beggs, left, centre and right halfbacks; A. Burgess and P. Hutton, right wing; A. Mitchell, centre; Rob. Young and T. McPhate, left wing; W. Terrace, A. Munro, W. Young, J. Chalmers, B. Logan, G. Logan, B. Beggs, Tim McArthur, Adam Sands, Harry Taylor, J. Miller, P. Low Sr., D. Best, A. McCracken and Bruce Munro, subs. English team—S. Calladine, goal; D. Evans and W. Jones, left and right backs; A. Bishop, A. Pagett and A. Edwards, right, centre and left halfbacks; F. Hotston and S. Curtis, right wing; H. Turner, centre; T. Monks and E. Hotston, left wing; H. Watkins, B. Watkins, J. Wade, J. Conway, J. Yelland, J. Cooper, C. Griffin, W. Rankin, J. Bolton, J. McMaster, G. Clark, J. Chambers, H. Bestard and B. Take It Away, Ken

Mike Rodden sports commentator of the Kingston Whig-Standard thus pays his respects to Ken Colling Belleville scribe: "Ken Colling, sports editor of The Ontario Intelligencer, avers that six-man football made its inaugural Canadian appearance in Belleville seven years ago. Well! Well! Why, they have been playing the game in Hamilton for about 10 years and Hamilton, in so far as I know, is still in Canada. In this era of great debate about "who invented what and when?" and with nobody able to furnish ample proof in claiming priority recognition for anything, up steps Ken Colling to add to the turmoil. Well, if Ken demands this honor for Belleville I would not question his assertion. I would go even further than that and award six-man football to him in its entirety. He would then have the sport and the field to himself because it does appear that nobody else wants it under any consideration Six-man football is a fad—or perhaps a joke—and just as miniature golf did, it caught the passing fancy of sport followers. When it made its first appearance in this country the claim was made that it would eventually prove more popular than Canadian football and that all the youngsters in the land would be pursuing footballs in every corner lot. Efforts were made to popularize the new sport but these met dismal failure Claims made that it would produce more thrills than Canadian football ever did, soon vanished in smoke.... It was about as much like Canadian twelve-man football as Belleville is like New York or as Ken Colling is like Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis....So let us not deprive Belleville of this great honor but with this stipulation that the sport be confined to Belleville alone with Kenneth Colling its high commissioner."

New York Yanks are at the top of the heap in the hectic American League race today. The Young Men of Manhattan outfought the Boston Red Sox in a twelve inning game yesterday to win 7 to 6 and in the meantime the Chicago White Sox were belting two Brownie pitchers to beat St. Louis 9 to 5. The result is that the Yanks are again a game in front and they are playing with the old New York drive, in spite of the fact that they are facing the handicap of having to play nearly all their remaining games on the road. One contender for the pennant seems to be dropping out of the contention. Boston Red Sox apparently cannot overcome the double shock of losing their ace pitcher Tex Hughson to the Navy and their star second baseman Bobby Doerr, to the Army. Hughson was leading the loop pitchers and Doerr the hitters and you cannot lose a pair like that and stay in there.

4 Home Runs Feature Girls' Game

Peterborough Lock girls dropped the third and last game of the Junior semi-final playoffs to Quaker Oats Friday evening at Ashburnham Bowl, in a nip-and-tuck battle, highlighted by four clean homeruns, that ended by a Quaker run in the last half of the seventh inning to give the Porridge team a 12 to 11 victory. The Quakers now meet the Westclox Seconds team for the Junior title.

Friday evening's tussle was anything but a stable one; at the end of the fifth inning, Quaker was leading 5 to 3, then in the sixth, the Lock girls opened up with a terrific barrage of heavy hitting, including three homers by Audrey Stinson, Jane Succe and Myrtle Falls, that scored six players, shooting the Lock team out ahead with a 9 to 5 lead. All went well for Peterborough Lock until the last half of the same inning, when a homer by Carlotta Laing, that shot way out into the right field and rolled, brought in six Quakers, and shoved the Lock team back into second place again, this time two runs down. Nothing daunted, the Lock girls played smooth ball again, and chased in two more runs in the seventh to sew up the game 11-11. In the last of the seventh, Quakers' Helen White scored on Gertie Masters long drive into left field, that might have developed into another homer hadn't the tall Quaker pitcher stumbled at first base, and only managed to reach third safely. However, the first batter came home, and that was the run to win the game.

After losing the first two games of the semi-finals, the Lock team needed to win Friday night's battle to stay in the Junior play-offs.

Their most crucial period came in the sixth inning, when Quaker scored their six runs. Three hits by the Quakers, coupled with three expensive errors by the Lock girls decided the innings. Many errors on the part of both teams popped up during the seven innings; in the third frame, Marg. Duvall shot a light roller to first base, but was safe when it was fumbled, and dashed to second; a high pass to second sent her on the run to third base, where another error completed the run for the Quaker team. Both teams committed many errors, and undoubtably the count would have been much smaller if these had been in smaller numbers; several runs were scored on errors.

Beryl Lee, hurling for the Lock Company, pitched steady ball throughout most of the game; fanning six, walking five, and allowing seven hits. Gertie Masters pitched for the Quakers, striking-out one, walking four and allowing 10 blows.

For the Quaker team, Carlotta Laing and Gertie Master were ...rongest at bat; each with two ...y hits out of four times to the ... The Lock team stalwarts were ...yl Lee, Audrey Stinson, Myrtle ...ills and Mickey McFarland.

The teams:

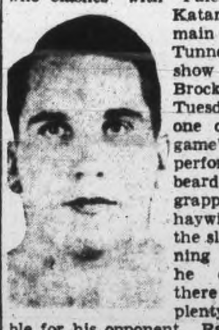
Bearded Russian Battles Katan



Ivan Rasputin, the Mad Russian, who clashes with Palermo John Katan in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock St. Arena Tuesday night is one of the mat game's wildest performers. The bearded Russian grappler goes haywire without the slighest warning and when he cuts loose there is usually plenty of trouble for his opponent. Rasputin has been a sensation for years and his return to the Canadian circuit is a big event for wrestling fans. Peterborough is specially favored in getting an early chance to see the wild man in action. John Katan doesn't seem worried about meeting the Mad Russian. "He can't scare me making faces or with a set of whiskers" says the Panther.

Mayo Smith Leads Batters

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—Mayo Smith, veteran outfielder of Buffalo, appears to have the International League batting championship sewed up.

After running neck and neck with teammate Eddie Kobesky for more than a month, Smith pulled away to a 13-point lead .334 to .321.

With only five games remaining, it is doubtful if Kobesky can overcome Smith's margin.

The other eight members of the Big 10, were barely over the .300 mark, with Syracuse's Chico Rodrigues third with .308, Stan Benjamin of Baltimore and Jim Tyack of Toronto tied for fourth with .306, Castano, sixth with .305, Howard Moss of Baltimore seventh with .302, and Bobby Maier of Buffalo, Blas Manaco of Baltimore and Al Lakeman of Syracuse tied for eighth with .301.

Maier, Moss and Kobesky are running one-two-three in total hits with 171, 170 and 169 respectively Monaco held a 10-run edge on Smith with 130 tallies to 120. Moss led Kobesky in runs batted in, 135 to 127, and was tied with his R.B.I. rival in home runs at 26.

Ken Brondell of Jersey City led the pitchers with a 13-and-5 won-and-lost record. Al Jarlett of Toronto and Walter Wilson of Buffalo have won the most games, 18.

SUMMER GARDENS

Closest Race Since 1928 In Ball Loop

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

A mathematical hairsbreadth separated the first place Baltimore Orioles and the second place Newark Bears today as the International League entered its final weekend in the closest race since 1928.

Both the Orioles and the Bears lost yesterday to leave the tense situation unchanged. As the clock runs out, the Orioles are in the better position, for should both contenders fare alike in the remaining three games, Baltimore will be the official champions.

Only one other time in the 61-year-old history of the league did a team win the championship by a single percentage point, when the Rochester Red Wings of 1928 won its first of four straight pennants, .549 to .548.

The bears came close to wresting the lead from Baltimore, yesterday, when they broke a tie with Syracuse, scoring once in the 13th, only to have the Chiefs tally twice in their half to win 4-3. A double by Chuck Fitzgerald with two out and two strikes on him scored runners from first and second to win the game for the Chiefs.

The Orioles couldn't take advantage of seven Jersey City errors and eight walks by Pitcher Ken Miller, as they dropped a 4-3 verdict to the Little Giants.

Toronto clinched a playoff berth and moved to within a half-game of the third place Bisons by defeating Buffalo 5-2. Woody Crowson won his 12th game, holding the Bisons to seven hits.

Jean Pierre Roy pitched and batted the Montreal Royals to a 3-2 victory over the Red Wings in 14 innings. Roy gave up only eight hits, striking out 12, and singled in Stan Andrews with the winning run in the 14th.

President Frank J. Shaughnessy announced that the 12th annual Governors' Cup series will open next Tuesday night, with the top team meeting number four and the second place team meeting number three. Each series winner must take four games of seven and the two winning teams meet to determine which will represent the league in the Junior World Series.

Jackie Hamilton Lost To Leafs

TORONTO, Sept. 9 — Now that the National Hockey League "Who's for President" campaign has been settled by pushing "Red" Dutton back into the big chair at Montreal headquarters, it's safe to announce Toronto Maple Leafs will start the annual pre-season training grind Tuesday, Oct. 10.

After several seasons at St. Catharines, the Toronto hockey colony is shifting training quarters, but the new location is pigeon-holed at Maple Leaf Gardens as a "secret move." Announcement of the location, one Garden official pointed out, will come from the community acting as host to the 1944-45 training squad.

If you want to guess Owen Sound, Midland, Barrie, Coboconk, Mimico, or Willowdale it's okay. But it won't be St. Catharines Varsity Rink or Ravina Gardens.

"At the moment," said Coach Hap Day last night, "only member of last year's club definitely lost to the Leafs is Jackie Hamilton."

The popular Jackie is now in the Canadian Navy.

Tommy O'Neill, successor to Wally Stanowski's "Joe College" locker in the Leaf dressing room, was recently rejected by army medical authorities.

Return of Dave (Sweeney) Schriner to the Toronto fold is one of several reasons why Coach Day is looking forward to a Leaf entry that will be considerably stronger than the 1943-44 crew.

Byron Nelson of Toledo wound up his 72-hole play yesterday with a 138 at the halfway stage of the Texas victory open golf tournament at Dallas to lead his nearest opponent, Harold McSpaden of Philadelphia, by six strokes for the third round to-day. McSpaden had an off-day, requiring 75 for a tour of the course, compared with Nelson's 69, and was only one-up on Sgt. E. J. Harrison of Dayton, O., and Ray Mangrum of California, tied for third with 145's.

Guaranty Guy, owned by Robert Rocco of Brooklyn, N.Y., yesterday paid the highest price of $112.70 for $2 of the Grand Circuit meet at Westbury, N.Y., in winning the mile pace in 2.13½. John Grattan was second. Best previous price was $109.10.

Noted as a rugby player, bicycle and automobile racer, as well as rower, early in the century, James Boswell, 70, died yesterday at his home in Winnipeg. He was credited with being the co-inventor of the tube skate.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 9—(CP)—Association football, or soccer, may be due for a new burst of popularity after the war if enthusiasm being whipped up by Britishers now in this country carries into the post war scene. Many former players in British professional leagues have sojourned in Canada long enough to organize soccer games in the different services and create new interest at many points where the game was at a low ebb.

One of them, Sgt. Bill Whitehead of the R.C.A.F. at Picton, Ont., thinks Canadians could develop into classy soccer players if they had the chance. Talking with Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon, the former Sunderland and Rotheran star said he had seen some "mighty promising young Canadian soccer players," but that expert instruction was needed to bring them to the top.

He suggested this could be remedied by bringing in younger soccer players from Britain after the war to coach the Canadians and act as referees so the game could be played with old country thoroughness. One thing wrong with the game in Canada now, he said, is that the old-timers would rather keep on playing themselves instead of taking the youngsters in hand and coaching them.

Was He Mad

International relations were slightly strained at Peterborough, Ont., in a recent "rasslin" match. Dr. Len Hall of San Francisco went away fuming after the referee disqualified him most unjustly during a bout with Killer Katan. The Killer cooled the ref with a snappy uppercut to the jaw, and when his nibs woke up a few second later he blamed Hall for the knuckle Mickey Finn and disqualified him.

Incidentally:

Officials of the Montreal Interscholastic football group plan to make several rule changes that will Americanize the game a bit more. They will introduce unlimited substitution, remove the 24-player limit and stiffen the penalties for rule infractions, clamping down especially on the dangerous "piling on" practice . . . Pte. Fred Metcalfe, former Regina hockey coach, is with the U.S. forces in the South Pacific now . . . Bunny Morganson of the Toronto Telegram says President Pete Campbell of the Toronto Maple Leaf baseballers has been thinking of introducing sandlot baseball games as a preliminary to regular International League games at Toronto. It might be a project for next season.

Yanks Regain Game Lead Over St. Louis

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Yankee bats, copping 10 of their last 11 games, boosted the New Yorkers into undisputed possession of first place in the American League today, r full game on top of St. Louis and a game and a half ahead of idle Detroit.

Week-end action, involving three road games for the Yanks at Boston, while the Browns and Tigers engage in three game sets with the White Sox and Indians, may alter the situation, but the 1944 version of famed murderer's row was busting the league open.

When the McCarthy clan collected 13 safeties in easing out a 7-6 victory over the Red Sox in 12 innings yesterday, the totals for the last 11 games went to 132 hits in 403 at bats, producing 91 runs, better than eight a game. Twenty-one doubles, 11 triples and 12 homers during that stretch upped the "slugging" average to a robust .524.

St. Louis' hopes soared when Bob Muncrief went to the firing line after passing up his starting turn for 12 days due to elbow trouble, but Chicago spurted in the late innings to knock the Browns out of a tie for the lead, 9-5.

Mickey Haefner shut out Philadelphia's A's with five hits, 4-0, last night in earning his 10th for Washington with the help of Gil Torres, who drove in two runs and scored another on Russ Christopher.

Brooklyn won the only tilt listed in the National by a 4-3 margin over the Phillies despite Buster Adams' 15th homer. Les Webber was the relief winner over Ken Raffensberger.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 —(AP) — This corner can't produce any proof that Detroit will win that American League pennant tussle, but at this stage the Tigers seem to rate the pick (and whose neck is sticking, out, anyway?)....The schedule favors the western clubs over the Yanks and Red Sox; the Browns don't seem to be in any shape to take advantage of that edge; the Tigers have more real Major Leaguers than any of their rivals in Doc Cramer, Dick Wakefield, Pinky Higgins, Rudy York, etc .... And there is no use trying to laugh off those two 20-game pitchers when other clubs don't even have one.

Slick scouting.

When Lieut. Joe Verducci, coach of the coast guard Sea Lions in California was discussing prospects with a rival football tutor, Lieut. Jules Sikes of St. Mary's pre-flight, the latter remarked: "You've got a mighty good boy in this kid Nelson,".... Verducci didn't admit he never had heard of the kid, but when he returned to his post he instituted a search that turned up Tiny Nelson, 20-pound tackle who played a year at Georgia when Sikes coached there.

When Leading Aircraftsman George Hall, who'll play here tomorrow with the R. F. Navigation school soccer team from Hamilton, Ont., was a member of the Sheffield United team in England, the club insured his feet against injury for $125,000.

Gallant Flier Wins 100th Victoria Cross

LONDON, Sept. 9—(CP-Reuter)—The Victoria Cross was today awarded to Wing Cmdr. Geoffrey Leonard Cheshire, D.S.O. and two bars, D.F.C., 27-year-old R.A.F. officer, who becomes the 100th man to receive the empire's highest award for gallantry in this war.

Wing Cmdr. Cheshire has made four operational tours as a heavy bomber pilot and completed more than 100 missions.

Known as "Chesh" throughout the Allied air forces, he has been called by some high-ranking air officers "probably the greatest bomber pilot of any air force in the world."

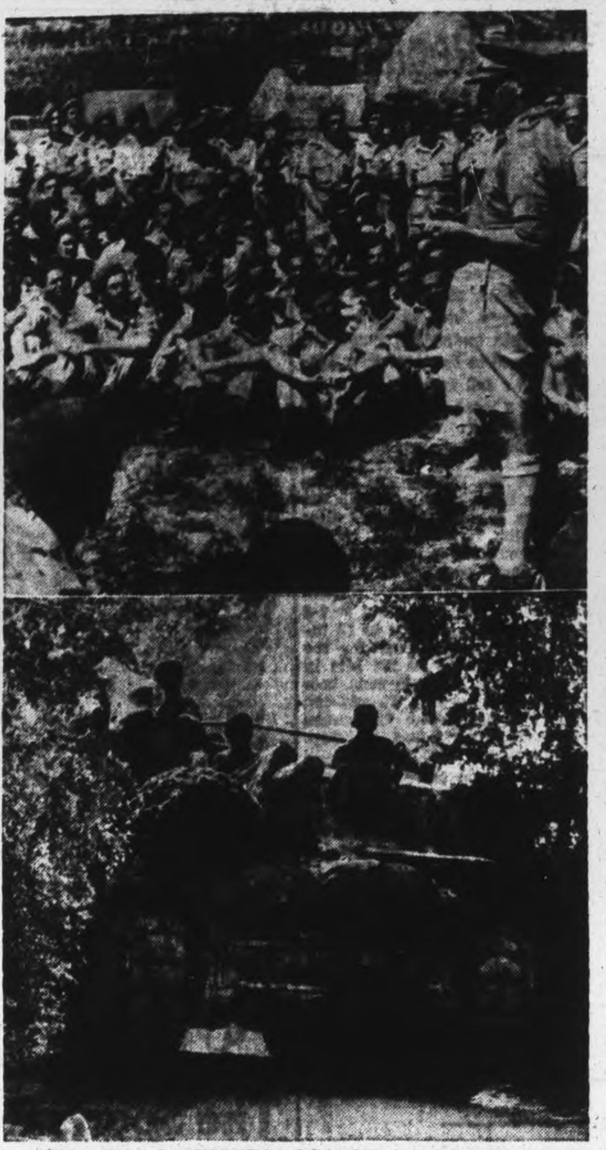
At the end of his first tour of operational duty in January, 1941, he immediately volunteered for a second. "Again, he pressed home his attacks with the utmost gallantry," said an announcement today.

Berlin, Bremen, Cologne, Duisberg, Essen and Kiel were among the heavily defended targets which he attacked.

Wing Cmdr. Cheshire started a third operational tour in August, 1942 when he was given command of a squadron. "He led the squadron with outstanding skill on a number of missions before being appointed in March, 1943 as a station commander," it was said.

In October, 1943, he undertook a four operational tour, relinquishing the rank of group captain at his own request so he could again take part in operations. He immediately became the pioneer of a new method of marking enemy targets involving very low flying.

"During his fourth tour, which ended July, 1944, Wing Cmdr. Cheshire led his squadron personally on every occasion, always undertaking the most dangerous and difficult tasks of marking the target alone from a low level in the face of strong defences," said the announcement.



8TH ARMY LAUNCHES ASSAULT ON GOTHIC LINE—The 8th Army in Italy, with Canadian units taking a prominent part, launched its attack on the Gothic line which the Germans have set up to defend northern Italy, after weeks of careful preparation. Early reports indicate that the drive has smashed breaches into the line. At Top Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese who commands the 8th Army, briefs officers and men of the Canadian units before the attack opened. Below some of the highly mobile artillery climbs a road to heights overlooking the Gothic line from which a heavy barrage was laid down to open the attack. This road was constructed for the advance out of sight of the Germans to add to the element of surprise.

Ottawa Lights Still Dim To Save Power

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 8—(CP)—Although Ottawa is far from scenes of Derring-do in war it read with a touch of envy the news that the lights are going on again in the United Kingdom.

The capital has been under a dim-out for nearly two years, with no more street lights than are essential, the main purpose being power conservation rather than the fear of enemy attack. There is little prospect of the restrictions being lifted soon.

The city had prided itself on the standards and searchlights which made the best of its tower and monuments, but at one dismal stage, when there were suggestions hostile aircraft might try suicide raids on Canada, even the lights on Parliament Hill were blacked out.

On wintry evenings Members of Parliament made their hesitant way down the long icy steps leading to the main entrance of the buildings. They did not like it, and soon some of the lighting standards and the face of the clock on the Peace Tower came back to life after dark.

Ducky-wucky—A mayor lunching in an Ottawa restaurant lost a trace of his army calm when he was served with a restaurant cup of coffee bearing the rhyme: "Little Bo Peep has lost her sheep and doesn't know where to find them."

The restaurant explained that a shortage of cups made it neccessary to use those usually reserved for children, and they couldn't do a thing about it.

Nobody's fault: The expert gardeners and farmers at the Dominion government's experimental farm cannot speak of the lawns there without blushes. Usually they are an example for all the world to see, green and rich. This year they are a tired brown and the imposing array of flowers sometimes looks wilted.

In January the 25,000-gallon water tower at the farm was destroyed by fire and normal water services have been insufficient to maintain the pressure required to cover all the farm. But now money has been voted for a 100,000 gallon tank.

NAZI COMMANDER SURRENDERS PARIS—Gen. Dietrich Von Choltitz, commander of Nazi forces in Paris, sits at a desk in the Montparnasse station as he signs the terms for surrender of Paris with 10,000 German troops on Aug. 25, 1944.

Two Army Girls Arrested By Police

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 9—(CP)—One person is dead and two injured as a result of an accident near Tillsonburg, Ont., last night when a truck in which they were riding was demolished when struck by two United States Army vehicles. The U.S. trucks were driven by women.

Fifteen-year-old Gordon Marshall of London, died in hospital early today. Clifford Moore, 33, of London, suffered broken back and hospital authorities said his condition was fair. The third person, Fred Carnrite of Toronto, is in hospital with concussion.

Crown Attorney W. E. Kelly of Simcoe ordered the women drivers detained pending investigation. They are Oeneriere Koslowski of Elmira, N.Y. and Wanda Wielass of Buffalo, N.Y.

Police said the truck, driven by Moore, turned to pass a disabled car on the highway when one of the army trucks travelling in the opposite direction swerved and hit the back of Moore's vehicle. Moore's truck then swung into the path of the second army truck.

The Marshall boy was riding as a "helper" in Moore's vehicle, police said, while Carnrite was described as a hitch hiker.

Dad Was Lonely

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 9—(AP).—Arthur Ray Warnock, Penn State dean of men, thought he'd heard every excuse for cutting classes until a freshman asked permission to spend a week-end at home thus: "Mother is in the WACS and dad gets lonely."

Liberal Choice

TORONTO, Sept. 9 (CP)—Flt. Lt. Don Morrison, D.F.C., D.F.M., of the R.C.A.F., who lost a leg in Germany and was repatriated last October after several months in a prisoner-of-war camp, last night was chosen Liberal candidate in the next Federal election for York East riding.

Happy Paradol Girls
Have a tip for you

If you don't know about Paradol you really should.
For PARADOL can help you to get more pleasure out of life. You don't need to be saying "Oh dear, I can't go at that time, you know why."
Life is very different for many girls and women who have proven for themselves that PARADOL makes quick work with headaches and other discomforts which bother them at times. They can now take a Paradol and go off to the dance, the theatre, or the athletic event, feeling fine and forgetting the pains and aches which threatened to mar their pleasures.
Why not do as so many girls are doing these days—carry PARADOL in your handbag so as to be protected at all times against headaches, colds and jittery nerves.
Paradol does not disappoint.

PROLIFIC RUINS

Ruins of the French city of Arles have yielded a statue of Venus, a bust of Marcellus, and a head of Augustus, who visited the city in 43 B.C.

Havelock News

Mrs. Charles Baker and daughter, Mrs. J. Hunter of Marmora, and Mrs. S. Whitney and family of Indian River were the holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Derrett.

Miss Thirza Hicks was the week-end and holiday guest of Miss Katie McCutcheon at Round Lake.

Sgt. Foy Wright of Kingston spent the week-end and holiday with his mother, Mrs. W. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Hodgson of Oshawa, Mr. and Mrs. John Storey of Campbellford and Mr. and Mrs. R. Kerr and Mr. George Lewis of Toronto were holiday visitors at Round Lake.

Mr. A. Derrett visited his brother, Mr. George Derrett, in Toronto recently.

A False Alarm

TORONTO, Sept. 9—(CP).—A visitor from Montreal—Canada's 80-ounce-a-month liquor zone—called on Toronto police last night to send out a squad of armed men to destroy a "snake" he saw on the porch of an old house in High Park in the west end of the city. The visitor said the reptile was writhing and was of monster proportions. However, the constable who took the call was able to calm the visitor by explaining that the snake was merely a decorative part of the verandah and had been there for many years.

'Make Your Wartime Dollar Work Two Ways!'

If you're investing all your spare dollars in victory bonds then your wartime dollar is doing just that! It's backing up the boys in the armed forces and getting ready to provide the wherewithal for that post war home you're planning to have. Keep on buying bonds so that you can have that new home or major improvements on your present home when peace comes!
Be patriotic and plan ahead! Save your money for something worthwhile. By buying bonds now you're investing in something invaluable . . . a home of your own!

TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR TAXES

COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH

TO WIT:

BY VIRTUE OF A WARRANT made under the hand of the Warden and Seal of the County of Peterborough and to me directed bearing date the 8th Day of June, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-four, I am commanded under the authority of the Statutes in that behalf, to levy on the land hereinafter mentioned and described for the arrears of taxes due thereon with the costs as hereinafter directed by the said Act. Therefore I give notice that unless the said arrears and costs are sooner paid I will proceed to Sell, by Public Auction at the Court House, in the City of Peterborough, on the Third Day of October, 1944, at the hour of Ten o'clock (D.S.T.) in the Forenoon, the said Lands or so much thereof as may be necessary for the Taxes, and all lawful charges incurred, in and about such Sales, and the collection of the Taxes.

A List of the Lands for Sale for Arrears of Taxes will be published in The Ontario Gazette on Saturday, July 1st, 1944. Copies of the List of Lands for Sale may be had in my Office.

Main Street Topics

GRADUATE

Sgt. J. S. Blewett, 717 Elcombe Crescent graduated Friday as an air bomber from No. 4 school at London and Sgt. W. Walsh, 705 Water street graduated as a wireless air gunner from R.C.A.F. station at Mountain View.

SEVERELY WOUNDED

Sgt. E. C. "Bud" White, previously reported wounded in France, August 22, is now revealed to be suffering from severe shrapnel wounds in the head. The son of Mr. and Mrs. David White, 319 Burnham street, he formerly worked in the wire department of the C.G.E.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY

Howard Beattie, recently appointed director of guidance for Ontario by the Department of Education, is scheduled to address the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon on Monday. Mr. Beattie, before accepting the Ontario post, pioneered the guidance of vocations among students of secondary schools in Hamilton.

CAR DAMAGED

An automobile driven by Sgt. Stewart Saunders, R.C.A.F. was damaged to the extent of around $40 Friday when it collided with the rear end of a truck owned by K. and Roy Johnston of North Monaghan. The Saunders car was following the truck and when the latter stopped suddenly there was a collision.

DOING NICELY

Mrs. M. Pakenham, 737 Water street, has received further word about her son, Pte. Wallace Pakenham, who was reported wounded a week ago. He is still in hospital suffering from lacerations to the right wrist and is in the same ward as Jack Perry, another Peterborough boy, who was wounded in Italy some time ago.

15 WERE VOTERS.

Those attending the meeting of the site committee of the Memorial Centre Friday afternoon were: R. H. Parsons, Paige Rowell, Lou Ingram, G. A. Macdonald, Herbert Bradburn, Adam Sands, C. B. Neal, J. E. Girven, Frank Buckland, C. S. Cummer, Wm. S. Johnson, Vern Selkirk, J. E. Keyes, J. A. Jebson, James Dutton, J. J. Dorris, Sam Whitehouse and Ed Riley, chairman.

NOT FAIR TO LABOR.

Afternoon meetings may be all very well for main streeters, business and professional men and others who can get away from their affairs conveniently, but Wm. J. Johnson protested to the site committee of the Community Centre project that afternoon meetings were not fair to a representative of labor for the simple reason that he had to lose half a day's pay.

TO HEAR ADDRESS.

Members of the committee projecting the Memorial Health and Recreation Centre are planning to attend the address at the Y.W.C.A. Monday night by Major Ian Eisenhardt, national director of physical fitness, who is coming to Peterborough under the auspices of the Local Council of Women. The committee believed that Major Eisenhardt will have something interesting to say in advocacy of greater recreational and health facilities, and generally endorsing new undertakings designed toward those ends.

ASSESSMENT EVIDENCE.

W. J. Henry, city assessor, might have remarked last night "A Daniel has come to judgment" when Ross Dobbin at the Town Planning Committee meeting, in a discussion of assessments of properties proposed for the city hall site, said: "That's all very well for assessment, but you can just about double that to get the sale value, what you'd have to pay." Some mention has been made of late in the city council and also out of it about certain assessment increases this year, but the assessment department would probably be inclined to call Mr. Dobbin as an independent witness to support the departmental contention, presumably that assessments in Peterborough are not too high.

WOUNDED OVERSEAS — Pte. Roy Leslie Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mitchell, 6 Wallace street, Burnham's Point, has been wounded in Italy. He was with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He is 22 years of age.

Fred C. Miller Dies After Day's Illness

Friends of Frederick Charles Miller, son of the late Colonel J. W. Miller, were deeply shocked today by the report of his sudden death during the night after an illness of only one day from a heart attack. He had been about his business throughout most of the week and in usual associations and friendships that were almost completely unprepared for the announcement by his family this morning.

Mr. Miller was in his seventy-fourth year. He was born in Peterborough, and his parents were Colonel J. W. Miller and his wife Elizabeth Lilly.

He received his education at the old Union or Central School and subsequently at the Collegiate Institute on Murray street. For years he was associated with his father in a retail shoe business on George street, north of Hunter street, and since then has been engaged with the insurance firm of Hill, Weddell and Hills.

Mr. Miller is survived by his two sons, Frederick Courland Miller of Belleville, and William Grant Miller of this city; also by four sisters, Misses Ada and Ethel Miller, Mrs. H. O. Fiske and Mrs. F. S. Schneider of Peterborough, and three brothers, William and Norman of Toronto and Gordon of this city. He was predeceased by his wife twelve years ago.

Interested In Band

One of Mr. Miller's interests in years gone by was the band of the 57th Regiment of which he was a member for quite a span of its most successful period. Otherwise he was attached to his home and family and also to the many friends of his life time. He was also a member of George Street United Church.

Fred Miller was richly endowed with the qualities of character and personality that won him not only esteem but also the warm sympathy of friendship. He was one of the older "main streeters," that thinning group of citizens whose business affairs were long conducted in the central part of Peterborough. And those associations of Mr. Miller remained with him as one of the little rewards of life, a fine sentiment for him, reflecting his own friendliness. He will be greatly missed about the city, and not only by his contemporaries.

The funeral will take place Monday at 3:30 p.m. from the home of the late Colonel Miller at 212 McDonnel street to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe will conduct the service.

11,100 Cigaretes To Be Sent Overseas

REDS RUSH TO TRAP NAZIS — Hard-driving Russian units after pushing rapidly across Romania and crossing the Yugoslav border, are reported to be about to form a junction with Marshal Tito's Patriots. This joining of forces would accomplish two important military aims at one stroke. It would quickly end the difficult isolation of the Yugoslav fighters and trap an estimated 25 Nazi divisions—250,000 to 375,000 men—struggling to withdraw from the Aegean Islands, the Greek mainland, Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. Springing of the trap, military analysts predict, would bring a quick end to Nazi rule in the Balkans.

Memorial Centre Is Planned As A Citizens' Meeting Place

That the coming Peterborough Memorial Community Centre must be more than just an arena, that it must be a meeting place for 101 different activities for every man, woman, and child in the city . . . was the message brought by Joe Jebson, chairman of the Memorial Community Centre Committee, who was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, held Friday afternoon in the Empress Hotel.

"There should be no one in Peterborough, no matter how young or how old, that will not be able to take advantage of the uses this arena will afford us", he declared.

Mr. Jebson said he had been hurt when a comment some time ago was made to the effect this arena is only one man's vision, and pointed out that if he is guilty of the vision, he is not sorry for it. He said everyone connected in any way with the arena must get rid of the thought that it is a vision, and become determined Peterborough shall have the arena.

"And there is another idea that might be termed by some a vision", Mr. Jebson stated, "and that is that the arena have one room set aside to be called the Memorial Chamber, in which the various club could hold their meeting, and in which there will be a placque, containing the names of every Peterborough boy who gave his life in the present struggle. There will be a space large enough for a picture under each name, and all pictures will be the same size," he suggested.

Living Memorial

"To demonstrate something," he said, "like cooking, or fishing is quite simple; to demonstrate good citizenship presents a formidable challenge. In this project, we are attempting to demonstrate as human beings, that we can do something for the people of Peterborough, not only for today, but for generations and generations to come. The men around me are doing hard work . . . not just talk, but real work, and with no thought of material gain for themselves. They are thinking only of a living memorial . . . not a cold stone monument, but a living memorial that will be used all year 'round, and will be viewed proudly for more than 50 years in the future.

This centre will enable everyone to enjoy themselves under healthful conditions every month in the year. Children will be able to skate and dance there for a very nominal charge; famous orchestras and bands will play there, and sports of all kinds carried out. All money and profits made on the arena, will go back into the building, to find new uses, and improve existing ones.

It will be owned by the City of Peterborough, operated for the people of Peterborough."

Committee of Six

Mr. Jebson said a committee of six men would be appointed by the city council to operate and manage the arena; one may be a business man, who would contact manufacturers, and other representatives of various phases of business necessary. This committee, Mr. Jebson stated, should be made up of young men, who have the ambition, energy, and desire to make the operation of the centre a huge success. It would be appointed for a period of three years, and in addition to the six men the city clerk would act as secretary, and the city treasurer would act as treasurer.

Mr. Jebson told the Kiwanis members that his committee has on file actual records of community centres in other cities about the size of Peterborough, and that from these records, the greatest attempt could be made to erect a building suitable to the needs of the city. He said that as of the present, the general seating capacity had been thought of as approximately 2,700 with several additional hundred standing room. Mr. Jebson also suggested that as an opening gesture for the arena, a pageant be presented, starring school children of Peterborough, based on "Our Old Home Town", the collections of stories written by Frank Dobbin, and compiled by Ross Dobbin. An invitation to Sir Ernest McMillan and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra to be present would also be a suggestion.

Mr. Jebson disclosed that the committee for the arena had asked the City of Peterborough for $75,000, and a request to manufacturing concerns for $100,000 had been made. He told the gathering that pledges for $80,000 had already been assured. Then a contribution of $10 per wage earner would be deducted from one's income tax.

Make Money

Another interesting observation Mr. Jebson made is that profits from community centres throughout Canada had been shown to be greater before the war than during the war, so that we are not merely going through a wartime boom. He said any additional profits that were not re-invested in the centre, could be used to further the building of more playgrounds throughout Peterborough.

"I doubt if any one group of men could satisfy each and every one of us in choosing a location for the building", Mr. Jebson said. "I would hate to disturb Riverside Park, or the Bowl there in which we had an extremely successful Sports Day last Monday. Our arena should conform to the Park, and not disturb it. As my own personal opinion, the north side of the street would be the most suitable; then baseball and other sports could be played in the Bowl, and there could be dressing rooms and showers in the arena for the players.

"In conclusion", he said, "I would like to ask the men here to stress around your own meal tables, the necessity for a building of this type. It's true, we need a hospital just as much as we need a community centre; but another committee is looking after that. The arena is our job, and when we have finished it, you can be sure everyone will put just as much energy into the building of a hospital. The Memorial Centre is a living monument, and one of which we can be proud, and succeeding generations can be proud, for many years".

After Mr. Jebson's address, John Troke, ex-lieutenant-governor of the Kiwanis, pledged the whole-hearted support of the Kiwanis Club to the planning and building of the Community Centre. He said that the building would be a memorial worthy of our gallant fighting men, and urged Mr. Jebson to plan for a seating capacity of at least 3,500 as an increasing population in Peterborough might make it necessary.

"The Kiwanis are behind you and the committee", he said, "and we will do everything to make the project a success".

John Lewis, first vice-president, told the members he would give them the names of 20 Kiwanians who would assist in canvassing for the arena, at next week's meeting.

Many of the helpers at the recent Kiwanis Carnival, one of their most successful, were present, and each was thanked for the assistance given.

Fall Assizes Court To Open

Mr. Justice Plaxton will preside at the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court, opening at the court house here at 1 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

There are two criminal cases on the docket. In one, Charles Ward is charged with attempted murder and in the other Fred Smith has been committed for trial on a charge of stealing a quantity of wool tops and burlapping from the possession of G. Whitaker and Company by which he was employed.

Several civil cases are also listed for the Assize Court.

Coffee trees take seven years to begin producing.

Postage Stamp Lots Are Not Regarded Highly

Frowning on those 30-foot lots which are coming into the city with the annexation of North Monaghan acres south of Edison avenue and between Park street and Monaghan road, the Town Planning Committee suggested in a resolution to the council Friday night that the Ontario Municipal Board be approached for authority to bring about a revision of those subdivisions.

Those postage stamp lots, as they have been dubbed uptown, are regarded by the council itself as a debit to the future of that part of the city, mainly because they prevent the building of houses of ordinary accommodation, unless the investor buys two of the lots. The committee commented that action should be taken as soon as possible before annexation and also to head off any more purchase of single lots.

Favor New Site

The Town Planners, with Alderman Dutton presiding, commended the action of the Memorial Centre site committee in selecting as its location the north side of Hunter street at Driscoll Terrace. In that connection the committee recommended several details of traffic changes to facilitate movement at that corner,—the widening of Driscoll Terrace as broadly as available frontage permits; opening of Cricket Place through to Mark street, eliminating a dead end, and creating a traffic channel to the east; extending and widening the road under the bridge, even up to Hazlitt street; and to cut a roadway curving toward Burnham street leaving a pedestrian island in the centre.

Other proposals were included in this resolution, which in other words revives the Stuart Drive project which the late Roland Denne advocated as Mayor.

In fairness to the vision of Mr. Denne it may be recalled that he used to lament the indifference of the citizens to the opportunity of beautifying the east side of the river north of the Hunter street bridge, and actually extending the park development south of the bridge upstream on property which he had been assured by George A. Macdonald, now of Chicago, would be made available by the Quaker Oats Company if the citizens wanted it for that purpose.

Mr. Denne was largely instrumental in the purchase of the old Calcutt brewery property for the enlargement of Riverside Park, and he used to predict that some day the people would turn to the Quaker Oats Company and ask for the land overlooking the river in order that park and playground areas could be cultivated in that direction balancing it with Riverside south of the bridge.

Housing Enquiry

R. L. Dobbin suggested to his associate Town Planners that many citizens might be interested in the federal Housing Plan. He proposed that an enquiry be conducted through the Examiner by which people interested in this next housing scheme might signify their desire in a confidential response to the committee.

Demand is going to grow in Peterborough for houses in the rental brackets of $35 to $50 a month, a comment seemed to arise from some special information, and if individuals did not wish to enter upon the scheme themselves they might acquire houses through the initiative of a syndicate that would undertake to build a hundred or more.

"We ought to begin now in looking for sites for the new housing developments which are going to come," Mr. Dobbin said.

99 Dogs Picked Up By Humane Inspector

Inspector Gerald Dunford at this week's meeting of the Humane Society reported that during the past three months he had picked up 99 dogs of which 71 were destroyed, 17 returned to owners, seven given to homes and four remain in the kennels. One hundred and ninety-five cats were picked up and destroyed, ducks, goats, squirrels and a porcupine also given attention. Several lame delivery horses were ordered from the streets and one case in Port Hope where girls were prodding horses with a pitch fork was dealt with. Trips were made to Port Hope, Selwyn, Manvers, Bridgenorth and surrounding country.

Mr. Dunford also reported several cases of cattle suffering were attended to. Several drivers were warned not to continue driving horses with nose bags on as they were liable to draw some of the grain up their nostrils and cause lung trouble.

Owners of several cats and dogs had gone on holiday without providing for their pets and these were looked after by the Humane Society.

Complaints have been received by the Society that people are droppings cats and kittens by the roadside. This course is against the law and the society advises people to bring the cats and kittens to the inspector and he will see that they are destroyed. A warning was also issued about dogs running at large even though they wear a tag.

OWEN SOUND, Sept. 9—(CP)—The National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs will conduct their pre-season workouts at Owen Sound, it was learned here today. The annual fall training schedule will start Oct. 10.

KILLED IN ACTION—Pte. Wilfred York, son of Mrs. E. York, 100 London street, has been reported killed in France, according to information received by his mother. He went overseas in February of this year.

Pte. Wilf York Killed Overseas

The youngest of two brothers serving in Canada's armed forces, Pte. Wilfred York, 26-year-old son of Mrs. E. York, 100 London Street has been reported killed in action in France, August 1, according to official information reaching his mother. Two weeks ago, Pte. York was announced as missing in action, but a telegram to the effect he was killed followed recently.

He enlisted in the R. C. O. C. in March, 1943, and after training in Dundern, Sask., went overseas in February of this year. Later, he was attached to the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, and was serving with that regiment when killed, it is believed.

Born and brought up in Peterborough, Pte. York as educated at King Edward School here, and prior to his enlistment, worked in the gun carriage department of the Canadian General Electric Company. His favorite pastime was fishing. His father, the late Herbert York, was shell-shocked while serving with the 93rd Battalion in France in World War I, and died shortly after.

Pte. York leaves his wife, who lives at 100 London street, four children, twins, Sandra and Sharon, Wayne, and the youngest, who was born Monday, his mother, Mrs. E. York, a brother Cecil, with R. C. N. V. R., and a sister, Mrs. J. Feeley, of Bailieboro.

Report Melons Market Favorite

Watermelons, cantaloupes and tomatoes were features at the Saturday market, and Peterborough buyers were eager to take them home. Watermelons went anywhere from 15 cents to $1.25 each, cantaloupes sold for 15 cents, or two for 25 cents, and tomatoes were dealt with mostly by the bushel, selling at $1 or 40 cents an 11 quart basket. Some were also sold at 25 cents a 6 quart basket.

Eggs went from 35 to 45 cents a dozen, hens sold at 28 cents a pound, and young chickens went for 35 cents. Cauliflower started at 15 cents and ran up to 25 cents.

Peppers were two for 5 cents, carrots at $1.25 a bushel, onions at 75 cents a peck, and beets at 40 cents a 6 quart basket. Apples were in quantity, and most varieties sold for 50 cents a peck; others at 40 cents and 70 cents. Pears were 75 cents a six quart basket, and Lombard plums were 75 cents a 6 quart basket. Crabapples started at 35 cents a basket.

Corn faded at 20 cents a dozen, cabbage was 10 cents a head, and beans sold at 10 cents a quart. Potatoes sold generally for 40 cents a peck, or 25 cents a basket. Elderberries were there for 10 cents a quart, but lowered to 5 cents during the morning.

Cucumbers sold for 35 cents a basket, or 75 cents an 11 quart basket. Some were still selling at 3 for 10 cents.

Pumpkins started at 20 cents each, but the price varied according to size. Dill was 10 cents a bunch.

FIERY CUSTOM

Suttee, abolished by the British in 1829, was an Indian custom of a widow burning herself on the funeral pyre of her husband.

One CGE Group Gives $20 To Robot Victims

The employees in the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. and Genelco Ltd. plants, presided over by Ian F. McRae as works manager, have played a considerable part in assisting along the good work which the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund carries on in the name of the residents of this city and district, to aid the victims of air raid attacks and robot bombs in Britain.

During the period of close to four years that the fund has been in operation there has been a steady stream of donations from various groups within the two plants, their combined operations on its behalf raising a total of $7,295.42 to this date with latest gift which comes from one of these groups today.

This particular instance varies somewhat in character from most of those heretofore reported, for it came about through Walter Suddards, who is an employee in the meter department, presided over by C. Lasenby as foreman, who bought and donated prizes for a draw to aid the fund, which was then sponsored by his fellow employees in that department.

This realized the nice sum of $20.50 which is recorded in their name today, and looking back over the records, it is noted that previous gifts have been recorded in their name. The fund management has suggested on previous occasions that there might seem a possibility of the employees of these two plants attaining a total of $10,000 for this one particular war assist, for they are now almost three-quarters of the way towards that amount.

Yesterday's report in this column told of a gift from a group of ladies in Cavan Township, and this is now followed by another from the surrounding district, when the ladies of Coldsprings, Otonabee Township, make a similar gift of $5.00 through Mrs. Thomas Rose.

William A. Taylor, of Crawford's Grove, has all along the line made his garden in its productive season the means of giving aid to the fund for the years that the fund has been in operation, a further of these assists amounting this time to $3.00 is also credited to him today.

Fair and Dance at Millbrook

What promises to be the biggest effort of its kind ever staged in the interests of the fund is to take place at Millbrook next Wednesday afternoon and evening, September 13, commencing at 2 o'clock, which is being supported by the township of Cavan in a large way.

A mammoth auction sale for which donations of almost inconceivable proportions have been given by the residents in that district, including a calf, lamb, pig, ducks, chickens, grain, furniture, potatoes, etc. etc., will form one of its many features, which also will include bingo games in the Armouries and a street dance, for which music will be supplied by Sheldon's orchestra.

By kind arrangement of Lieut.-Col. A. H. Bounsell, the band of the Midland Regiment will be in attendance and add materially to the enjoyment that the whole event promises to give to all who attend, let alone the good cause for which it has all been arranged to support.

A committee of well-known Cavan citizens have been laying the foundation for this for some time, and already a good start has been made with some fine cash donations to help their effort along. The fund representative, Ivan L. H. Gray, of Millbrook, has been taking an active part in leadership in planning this event, and it should be recalled that an event of a similar nature held some time ago for the same purpose raised close to $700 for the fund.

Previously acknowledged	$79,905.86
Proceeds draw in meter dept., C.G.E., on prizes donated by Walter Suddards, C. Lasenby foreman	20.50

SELFISH MOTHER FETTERS BOY.

World Full of Lonely Bachelors, Spinsters, Victims of Heavy Demands on Filial Duty

I have a letter from a woman whose husband died when their only child was five years old. The husband left no estate and the mother bravely went to work support the little lad. During all the weary years in which the boy was growing up she solaced herself with a dream. It was that when he was a man that they would establish a home together and that she would keep house for him and they would live happily ever afterwards. He was never to love any woman but her, never to marry.

The boy had his dream, too, which was to make life easy for his mother, and as soon as he began to earn money he made her Castle in Spain turn into a reality and she was blissfully happy for a year or two. Then Fate dealt her what she regards as its cruelest blow. Her son fell in love with a girl and married her.

Now the mother is the most miserable of women because she feels that her son has betrayed her.

"I gave up everything for him," she moans, "and he would not give up a silly, little, fluffy-haired girl for me."

She harps upon the debt he owes her and will not see that she is a female Shylock who is demanding to be paid with the pound of flesh nearest his heart. For what is life to the man who is forced to forego all thoughts of love and all hope of a wife and children?

World Full of Lonely Bachelors.

This mother is not alone in her insistence that her son should give up thirty or forty years of his life to her because she gave up ten or fifteen years of her life to him. The world is full of honely old bachelors and old maids who have let selfish mothers drive such unequal bargains with them in the name of filial duty.

It is sadly true that many parents run a sentimental debt account with their children which they are continually presenting for payment. They are hard and ruthless collectors. Because Mother took care of them when they were babies she often demands that her sons and daughters devote their whole lives to coddling her.

Because she stayed at home with her youngsters she feels that they are in duty bound to be fettered to her chair for life, and that they have no right to marry or leave her to go where fortune calls them. And if they balk at paying so high a price for being reared, she backs up her bill with tears and gets it with compound interest.

I am not arguing that children do not owe anything to their parents. Far from it. If they have had good and kind and tender fathers and mothers, they owe them love and respect and appreciation, and every consideration. They owe them support, if they are poor. They owe them companionship and little attentions so they may not feel themselves neglected. But they do not owe them the sacrifice of their whole lives.

Parents should not be usurers. They should not ask of their children more than they have given them.

Lt. D. Metheral Weds D. Agnes Pogue

The marriage took place in Trinity United church to-day of Anges Doreen Pogue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Pogue, to Lieut. Donald M. Metheral, R.C.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Metheral, London street, Rev. Fred Horton officiating. The church was charmingly decorated with fern and gladioli, and the music was played by Miss Mabel Clarry.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white faconne crepe, with full gathered skirt and square neckline. Her halo-shaped veil was of white silk net, and she carried a bouquet of white bouvardia and pink roses.

The wedding attendants were Miss Isabel Pogue, sister of the bride, and Miss Audrey Metheral, sister of the groom. They were gowned in matching floor-length frocks of mauve and green respectively, in brocaded faconne crepe, with long torso lines. They wore flowered half-hats, and matching veils, and carried ring bouquets of piecardya gladioli.

The best man was Lieut. J. W. McClelland, R.C., of Toronto, and the usher, Lieut. W. Mortlock, R. C.A., of Peterborough.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Hooper's Palm Rooms, where the bride's mother received, wearing a two-piece gown of black and rose crepe. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of beige crepe with black accessories. For travelling the bride wore a rose suit with navy accessories. On their return, the bride will live in Pembroke.

Ivey-Northey Vows Pledged

The marriage was solemnized recently in Lakefield United Church of Velma Ada Victoria Northey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Northey of R.R. 4, Peterborough, to Ernest Ralph Ivey, son of Mrs. Earl Ivey and the late Mr. Ivey of R.R. 2, Lakefield. Rev. G. F. Kelly of Lakefield officiated. The church was decorated with gladioli and other late summer flowers and the music was played by Mrs. G. F. Kelly. During the signing of the register, Mrs. G. Marshall of Peterborough sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and she wore a gown of marqua sheer over satin with inserts of lace in the full skirt. The dress was made on long torso lines, buttoned down the back with tiny self covered buttons. It had a sweetheart neckline, and the sleeves came to a point over the wrists. She wore a veil of English net, halo shaped caught with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. A pearl necklace of three strands completed her outfit.

Miss Hilda Northey, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and she was frocked in pink sheer. Her veil was blue net, caught with flowers, and she wore a pearl necklace of two strands. Her bouquet was of gladioli.

Mr. Percy Ivey, brother of the groom was best man, and the ushers were Melvin Northey, brother of the bride, and Alvin Northey, cousin of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held on the lawn of the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received wearing a gown of navy sheer with a navy felt hat and matching accessories. She wore a corsage of Bettertime roses. The groom's mother who also received, wore a gown of French blue, with a navy felt hat and matching accessories. She too wore a corsage of Bettertime roses.

Girls who served at the reception were the Misses Verna Northey, Hazel Northey, Doreen Northey, Shirley McKee, Elda Bulmer, Marguerite Gilmore, Janet McIntosh and Frances Towns.

Later the couple left for a trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls. For travelling the bride wore a moss green wool dress, with a loganberry red coat and brown accessories. They will live at R.R. 2, Lakefield.

LCW President Made Life Member

The home of Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Fraser was a lovely setting for the fall meeting of the Local Council of Women, held on Friday afternoon on the spacious porch, with an excellent number in attendance.

The meeting opened with an inspirational poem, read by Mrs. W. H. Morton. The members voted that a letter be sent to Ken Currie and his committee, who managed the Labour Day event, congratulating them upon the success of their efforts. It was also announced that a new committee had been formed in the Local Council, named Rural Recreation, Mrs. A. B. Mann being the chairman. Major Eisenhardt's visit was stressed, and each one urged to attend the meeting on Monday at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A.

The fall tea was discussed, and Mrs. D. A. Loomis was named chairman, assisted by the other vice-president. A tea for the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was announced for September 20, at the home of Mrs. Leach, 140 Stanley avenue.

The meeting broke up into committee groups, for the discussion and promotion of the individual departments. At the close of this, findings were presented to the executive. These discussions are to continue at the next meeting. The feature of the afternoon was the announcement that Mrs. W. H. Morton is being made a Provincial Life Member.

A delightful buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. J. K. Hughes and Mrs. C. L. Upper. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess, and those who helped in any way, was extended by Mrs. D. A. Loomis, after which the members were free to wander around and view the beautiful grounds.

Draped Hairdo New Fall Style

Beautiful hair, luxuriant hair — that's the desire of every woman! And often they have beautiful hair, just naturally beautiful, but it must be properly cared for; shampooed, cut, shaped and styled.

The draped coiffures for fall, new and attractive, require flawlessly clean hair, easily acquired with a liquid shampoo, with hair conditioner added. For the perfect home shampoo, add one teaspoonful of shampoo to one-quarter cup of water. Apply in two applications, then rinse the hair in clear, cold water.

For the "draped" look, set the hair in page boy style in back, a soft pompadour roll in front. Then take about three inches of hair from one side and swirl it neatly to the other side. Fasten it in place with a small comb. Combs are taking the place of feathers and ribbons.

If you are planning an early fall permanent, treat your hair with hot oil applications. Good results are obtained if the oil is applied before your shampoo. Heat the oil and apply to the soap with small bits of cotton. Part the hair into sections so that you get the oil right on the scalp. Hot oil treatments, done faithfully for about four weeks before the permanent, give wonderful results.

The draped upsweep, a high-style fall coiffure and extremely smart and becoming to the short woman, is easily done. Draw the hair to one side, catch it up in a vertical roll. The top hair, worn in soft curls, gives a touch of softness to the otherwise streamlined effect.

VICTORIAN PORTRAIT HAT — Satin ribbon plays a gleaming, spot-lighted rôle in millinery this season, with pastel tones hitherto unknown to Jack Frost's season used as much as is black. Bowknots, choux, drapes, loops, whole models covered flat, are various means of using ribbon now, besides many an Oriental draped turban of satin.

Leaving School Hampers Student

One of the most important upheavals wrought by the war, is the mounting urge among high school students to leave school before they complete their courses, to take jobs in industry. It not only contributes to juvenile delinquency but puts two strikes against them in the scramble for post war jobs.

Some of those students who left school to go to work have already managed to get into enough trouble to be listed as juvenile delinquents. Others, because they have more money in their pockets than children their age should have, and because they think they needn't listen to parental advice if they are independent wage earners, will probably get into difficulties of one kind or another.

But others won't find out that leaving school before they received high school diplomas was a mistake until the war boom is over and they find themselves unable, because of their lack of education, to compete successfully for jobs.

Parents owe it to their high school children to do everything possible to keep them in the classroom during the school months. The country needs their part-time help—their working after school, on Saturdays and during vacation, if they can manage it without neglecting their health or their studies. But first of all it needs them in the classroom, where they are being prepared for adult life.

The high school student who won't listen to his parents' "stay in school" advice should be taken to talk to an understanding educator, to a successful man in the field he plans to enter, and to some man or woman who has learned the value of an education by having had to make his way without one.

10 Lbs. Of Paper Expected From Everyone

Although today, the war in Europe appears brighter than at any other time in five years of continuous strife, it is singularly important that we at home not cease the tasks that are necessary to bring victory closer. That is the thought that should be kept in mind when on September 21, the big Peterborough and district one-day waste paper drive gets under way. Even though the allies are battling ahead over the fields of France, and are about to enter Germany itself, there will be many more casualtise among our soldiers, and vital blood plasma, food, equipment and medical supplies for the troops overseas must be transported in paper containers, of which there exists an acute shortage in Canada today.

In hundreds of homes in Peterborough, there are undoubtedly stacks of old paper hidden away in attics and cellars; old letters of no value, outdated documents, empty cardboard cartons, and many other paper articles...worthless to the owner, but all-important to Canada's war effort.

Local industrial firms are lending trucks and men to pick up this waste paper, and although it is a one-day drive...that is the paper will all be collected on the one day, starting at 6 o'clock in the evening, 10 pounds of paper from each man, woman and child in Peterborough will be necesary, in order to put the drive over the top. "A pound a day keeps the Nazis away" is the slogan, although "a pound a day keeps the Nazis running the other way" is also appropriate.

Paper should be tied in bundles to facilitate the job of collecting; boxes should be flattened and tied in bundles, and letters, documents and other smaller items should also be bundled.

The Pterborough Emergency One-Day Paper Drive will include districts bounded by Millbrook, Norwood, Omemee and Lakefield, and will be in lieu of the regular monthly campaign to collect waste paper. Mrs. R Whalen is the chairman of the drive, and in a telegram received from James C. Gray, provincial supervisor of the National Salvage Division, it was stated that Peterborough has never failed to make a success of salvage drives. It must be so September 21 also; as thousands of tons of paper are needed daily to ship supplies to soldiers on every allied war front.

Peterborough citizens are reminded that paper is a fighting weapon; put your waste paper on active service, by collecting it, bundling it, and welcoming the men who will come to pick it up, Thursday evening, September 21.

Allies Warned Nazis Live On

CANBERRA, Sept. 9—(CP-Reuter)—H. V. Evatt, Minister for External Affairs, gave warning today that after defeat the Nazi organization will be continued not only by underground activity but also by the control of patent rights of vital materials, particularly chemicals.

He advocated rigid control of these materials by international authority as a post-war necessity.

Similar warning that Germany might lose the war but win the peace through her "monopolistic industrial firms" which before the war had cartel agreements with British and American industry as given in Washington yesterday by Wendell Berge, United States Assistant Attorney General.

POSTWAR FIGURE—The State Department has appointed Robert D. Murphy, veteran American diplomatic trouble shooter, as political adviser to Gen. Eisenhower for the military occupation of Germany. Murphy will return to Washington for consultation before proceeding to his new post in London.

New Site For Health Centre On North Side Of Hunter Street

Contemplated location of the Memorial and Health Centre was shifted a stone's throw from the south to the north side of Hunter street, at the east end of the bridge, by the site planning committee Friday afternoon. The vote by ballot for the change was unanimous. Only two of the original seventeen members were absent, both out of the city on personal business.

"A grand chance to clear up that north side corner," was the comment of Sam Whitehouse before Ed Riley, chairman, called for a decision on the proposed transfer of location.

The Memorial Centre will front on Hunter street, with a frontage depth of approximately forty feet, as recommended by Walter Blackwell, and will extend northerly along Driscoll Terrace which will be substantially widened.

In obtaining possession of the new property, the present corner building, an old Ashburnham store property, once the premises of a grocery conducted by the late William Collins, and more recently the Choate hardware store, will have to be bought from Percy Edwards. The remaining land is expected to be a gift from the Quaker Oats Company.

Smaller Ball Park

Actuated by the desire to avoid expense of buying any additional property for the Memorial Centre, the committee chose the south side of Hunter street a few days ago. At that session Mr. Blackwell explained the alternatives of location of the building, and difficulties which were then only lightly noted acquired more serious aspect in the afterthought. He explained that if the Memorial Centre building faced on Burnham street, generally on the land bought from the Calcutt estate, and now developed with lawn and young trees, its rear end would encroach into the main Riverside Park baseball area to a depth of 35 to 40 feet. Extending down the slope from the east, the building would involve extra constructional cost because its western part would have to allow in footings for a drop of 17 to 20 feet.

Mr. Blackwell indicated the alternative, setting the building sideways to Burnham street, with the front facing the north and looking over the softball diamond. To avoid extension upon this diamond, the project seemed bound to necessitate the purchase of two or three houses on the west side of Burnham street, and immediately south of the park, and possibly the other properties up to the Engleburn corner. At any rate the buying of three houses was spoken of as a necessary additional expense.

This prospect of expense placed the general location on the south side of Hunter street in much the same position financially as that on the north side, with the possibility that the cost of the properties to the south might exceed the amount required to buy the Edwards interests on the north side.

Other factors and reasons were also cited. It was felt that the south side site would spoil the present general appearance of the whole park property; that from the standpoint of architectural advantage the Memorial Centre would be set down below the view from Hunter street, with a rear prominence, as compared with the higher position on the north side; and finally residents of Asburnham were threatening a position against that site.

Many Opposed

"I have had perhaps fifty telephone calls," J. A. Jebson, general chairman, told the committee, "opposing the south side, but they all seemed to be satisfied with the north side."

Before the final vote was taken on the two Ashburnham properties, the committee decided by 8-7 against reconsidering the two others, the Exhibition Park and the Townsend-George-Rink area.

One Man's Opinion

Frank Buckland opposed both Ashburnham locations, contending that they were too far removed from the main centre of the city's population, and would cost the Centre at least 25 per cent of prospective revenue.

Mr. Jebson closed the site question, after the vote had been taken, with an expression that in years to cpme everybody would be happy with the results which would accrue from Community Centre in its Hunter street position.

Keen Competition In Newspapers

LONDON, Sept. 9 (CP)—There are signs of keen competition for circulation developing in Britain between the national (London) dailies after the war.

The trade publication, "The Newspaper World," suggested recently that Lord Beaverbrook's Express group likely is going to launch new evening papers.

The Daily Express has disclosed its hopes to reach a post-war circulation of 5,000,000. At present it is 3,000,000.

Hannen Swaffer, writing in "The Leader" said Lord Rothermere is determined that the Daily Mail's circulation should rival that of the Express.

Already the Daily Express has made plans to add to printing plants established in London, Manchester and Glasgow so that every corner of the British Isles will be better served by the Daily Express and Sunday Express.

Swaffer, discussing recent Daily Mail changes, said they marked "the beginning of a battle in which Rothermere is determined to win back from the Daily Express a lot of the lead in circulation and prestige which the Daily Mail has lost since Northcliffe died."

Bancroft News

Mr. Jack Anderson, son of Dr. and Mrs. O. W. Anderson, of Bancroft, returned home from Toronto Thursday evening preparatory to attending school in the village for the present term.

Miss Marie Moxam left Friday morning for Oshawa where she will spend a few days visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Wiggins and Mr. W. E. Wiggins returned from Toronto Wednesday evening accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. S. Proudman and Mr. Jack Proudman, of Ottawa, who will spend a visit at the home of Mr. R. Wiggins.

The Public and Continuation Schools at Bancroft have a problem this year as every room is reported to be far in excess of its normal complement, teachers having as high as 45 pupils in one room.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Reid are spending a holiday with relatives in Toronto.

Have Annual Bazaar

BANCROFT, Sept. 9 (ENS) — The annual supper, bazaar and bingo, held in the Community Hall, Bancroft, under the auspices of Our Lady of Mercy Roman Catholic church Wednesday afternoon and evening was a success according to the parish priest, Rev. J. L. Kennedy, who mentioned that 216 people were served supper. In the evening the drawing for a cedar chest and contents and also an afghan donated by Paul Kavanagh, took place, with Manley Jones of Belleville winning the chest and Miss Marie McAlpine of Bancroft the afghan.

Fairview W.A. Has Grandmothers Day

FAIRVIEW, Sept. 9.—(ENS). — The annual grandmothers' meeting of the Fairview Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. W. A. Rosborough. This event is looked forward to every year and thirty-five women were present to enjoy an afternoon of quilting.

During the afternoon a short program was given under the leadership of Mrs. Cephas Heard, convener of group 3. Mrs. Stanley Boyce read the scripture and Rev. H. H. Mutton led in prayer. Mrs. C. Ball gave a report on the W.A. convention, which stressed the need of help for the Victor Home in Toronto, to which fund Fairview W.A. contributed $10. Mrs. Fred Bell sang a solo and Mrs. W. Rosborough gave a reading from the "Upper Room."

The president, Mrs. William Fowler, took charge of the short business session. The members will send Christmas boxes to the soldiers again this year. It was also decided to unveil the honor roll on rally Sunday. The treasurer reported $70 on hand.

2 Women Chaplains Receive Their Call

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 9—(CP)—The first two women to be appointed to the chaplaincy service of the Protestant church have received their call and will begin training at C.W.A.C. officers' school at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., on Monday, it was announced Friday at the General Council of the United Church of Canada here.

The women—Madeline Hawkins, of Clinton, Ont., and Wilma Thomas, of Victoria, B.C.—will be attached to the C.W.A.C. for their training and will later serve in Kitchener and Ottawa.

Politics Mixed With Beer Clergyman Says

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 9—(CP)—Rev. Dr. J. R. Mutchmor of Toronto, secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada, Friday introduced to the General Council in session here a series of recommendations touching on various phases of Canadian political, social and economic life.

Urging Canadians to carry over into the reconstruction period the discipline imposed by war-time conditions, Dr. Muchmor asked: "Can we do for love and goodwill what we have done under fear amid the hates of war? That is an economic and financial question, it is also a moral one."

Dr. Mutchmor suggested energetic action in favor of national health insurance and deplored in particular Quebec's infant mortality rate which he said was the highest in the British Empire.

Demand Rights

Turning to political issues, Dr. Mutchmor said this seems to be becoming a "right-demand" age, and the church must insist that duties come before rights.

"We must stand by Donald Gordon (chairman of the Prices Board) in his call for post-war sacrifices," he said.

Politics were mixed with beer, he said. Referring to recently relaxed brewing restriction he declared: "If this failure in a politically-imposed restraint is a measure of our ability to discipline ourselves in war-time, we cannot expect much help from today's politicians once peace comes insofar as a strong and disciplined national life is concerned."

Dr. Mutchmor referred to the "truculent attack" by Premier Drew of Ontario which led Prime Minister King "to pull out the beer peg."

The issue of private enterprise and planned economy was touched on when he said: "Discipline is needed on the industrial front if we are to cast out the demon of cut-throat competition, to restrain over-reaching and powerful monopolies, and to challenge labor to respond to higher duties for the common good."

He urged decentralization of industries to give smaller communities a larger share in the country's industrial life and avoid further population congestion in large cities.

'Quake Insurance

HARTFORD, Con., Sept. 9 — (AP). — Executives of surety companies in this insurance centre said yesterday that only a mild flurry of inquiries about earthquake insurance followed the 'quake that shook parts of Canada and the northeastern United States early Tuesday.

Most of the insurance of this type in force in the United States, they said, is held on the Pacific coast where the destruction caused by the 1906 earthquake is still remembered. In 1943, earthquake insurance premiums amounted to $1,900,000, and only $54,000 was paid in losses.

Inquest To Be Held

BANCROFT, Sept. 9.—(ENS). — As the result of the death of Sanford Woodcock, who was instantly killed when he became entangled with a shaft at the Mica and Stone Products mill at Bancroft Wednesday morning, a jury was empanelled Thursday evening at the request of a representative of the Department of Mines, Toronto, who was in Bancroft Thursday to investigate the accident. An inquest will be held in Bancroft a week from Wednesday at 3 p.m.

Reporter Kills Nazi Officer On D-Day

LONDON, Sept. 9—(CP Cable)—The first Canadian army public relations man to fight as a combatant in this war was Sgt. Dave Reynolds, Toronto Cameraman who led five men into a German officers' billet and wiped it out a few hours after parachuting into France on D-day, it was disclosed today.

The enemy billet was a French cottage and Reynolds himself killed a German officer as the Nazi came downstairs with a pistol in his hand.

Throughout the action Reynolds had his cameras slung over his back and carried all his regulation kit as well as a pistol and a Sten gun.

"It was either the Nazi or myself," he said when asked to comment on his combatant role. Today Reynolds is still in action—but with his cameras only.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Below we print the draw for this extra series games. Play commences Monday night at 7 sharp. As each rink will play two 12-end games — win or lose—it is important that all players be out on time. There will be absolutely no deviation from the rules as set down by the games committee:

H. Martin vs. K. Sloane.
R. Hendry vs. J. Fitzpatrick.
P. Moore vs. B. Chesler.
N. Routley vs. F. Dearborn.
W. Ashby vs. C. Williamson.
G. Gimblett vs. G. Coleman, Sr.
W. Jeffries vs. H. Coleman.
R. Hutchinson vs. W. Jeffries or H. Coleman.
H. Northrop vs. H. Clegg.
H. Freeman vs. R. Burns.
T. McMillan vs. G. Coleman, Jr.
C. Lawrence vs. R. Payne.

On Wednesday, Sept. 13, we are having a tournament, all our own. It's men's doubles; choose your own partner; 3 15-end games; $2 per pair. All of the entry fee goes back to the players in prizes.

If the weather is good, we'll have our usual week-end mixed tonight at 7.30.

Maybe it was the cool weather, or maybe it was something else, but whatever it was, the Friday night attendance slipped a bit last night. However, the boys played the usual 3 7-end games and all seemed satisfied.

Our club is represented by six pairs playing in the Loblaw doubles up in Toronto today.

Winners last night were rinks skipped by Cecil Williamson, James Macdonald and George Coleman, Jr. All received groceries.

Life Theme Used At WMS Meeting

FAIRMOUNT, Sept. 9—(ENS).—The September meeting of the Fairmount W.M.S. was held this week at the home of Mrs. James Seymour. The devotional exercises were taken by Miss Helen Earle, commencing with a poem, "Three Little Rules," and Scripture reading from the 22nd chapter of Revelations. The roll call was answered by an article on Life, which was the theme of the following program, in charge of Mrs. R. H. McArthur: Mrs. J. F. Everson read two poems, "Life" and "Compensation." Mrs. E. Downes read a paper on "Life"; Mrs. R. F. McIndoo and Mrs. H. M. McBain sang a duet, "Saved by Grace"; Miss Jean Hanbidge read another poem, and Mrs. R. H. McArthur gave an article, "A Purpose in Life." Mrs. R. K. Earle sang the solo, "If Your Heart Keeps Right," and Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge, "Too Close Life Crowds." Mrs. J. F. Everson led in prayer.

Personals.

Mr. Norman Earle has left for the West to help with the harvest.

Mrs. E. Downes and daughter Eleanor, has returned home after spending a few days near Bowmanville.

Miss Mabel Dunlop has returned home after spending the summer months at Chemong.

Miss Ada Earle is holidaying at Mattawa.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. McIndoo called on Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunlop Sunday evening.

CANADIANS ADEPT AT WASHING MACHINE—These three Canadian soldiers use an old-fashioned washing machine to launder their clothes in a Normandy village.

Blood Plasma Used In Italy Shows Surprising Results

Doctors are getting amazing results with blood plasma used in Italy, a Toronto soldier serving with the 2nd Canadian Field Ambulance with the 8th Army, writes.

"My section is doing mostly blood transfusions, and it is interesting work. It is wonderful to see what it does in saving lives. The people who donate the blood would be thrilled if they could only see the good it is doing.

"When we are rushed we have two tables going. Sometimes the drivers and even the cooks help us. Everyone works like a real good team should work. Last week the M.O. and I had only three hours' sleep in 72 hours, but we drank tea and kept going."

The ledger of a blood donor is never evenly balanced. The results achieved by the blood he gives for plasma far outweigh the actual act of giving blood, which is done with a minimum of fuss and inconvenience.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

A COSTLY LUXURY

AN EFFORT to gain one more trick than you need, by a finesse or other device which decreases your chance of making your contract, is a luxury which no sound rubber player can afford. If it fails and thus destroys your timing, or causes a suit to be blocked, you take a heavy loss as the price of your effort to make an insignificant gain. Nobody can call that good business.

That second bid by South seems kind of funny—No Trump with both of the non-bid suits completely unstopped. South reckoned, however, that his own major tenace in diamonds made it pretty sure that North had honor strength elsewhere, and it would have to be in clubs or hearts, or both. He took a smart gamble, and would have won if he had also played his cards as brightly. But he did not.

He let the club K lead go by and won the second club with the A, then finessed the diamond Q. That beat him. West won with the K, scored his last two clubs, and led the heart 5. Now taking his licking, South won with the A, scored the diamond A and the two spade tops, then gave up the other tricks, going down four. He thought that was really hard luck. But it wasn't.

The important thing for South was to get the diamond suit set up and unblocked before the heart A was out of the dummy. His best chance, after winning a club, was to lead to the diamond A, disdaining the finesse, and then lead the diamond Q, hoping the K would take it. West could not have helped himself in this case. He then could have got two clubs, but his return could have been won and the diamond suit would have been run.

Your Week-End Question

What principle of play by the defense is sound for match-point duplicate play, which would be completely unpardonable in rubber bridge?

Gap In Vosges Mountains To See Battle

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 7TH ARMY, Sept. 9—(AP).—In the chilly heights of these Alpine hills of France, the inevitable battle of the Belfort gap is approaching rapidly.

Both sides are using divisions in flanking attacks. They are like prize-fighters throwing alternate right and left hooks.

Lt.-Gen. Patch is seeking to cut off completely-disorganized remnants of the German 19th Army.

Between spasmodic fire and fights of terrific intensity, when caught in the 7th Army traps, enemy forces are withdrawing and converging toward the mountain pass near the junction of the French, German and Swiss borders.

When the Germans start pouring through the pass in major proportions, the battle of the Belfort gap will be under way. Only the next few hours and the ever-changing September weather will determine whether it will be only a harassing chase or a bloody struggle, mass surrenders and slaughter.

(The Swiss radio said Allied planes flew over the west Swiss border and that bombs fell on several rail stations, causing casualties. This suggested that some of the bombers were giving tactical support to the 7th Army pursuing the Germans into the Belfort gap.

(A dispatch from Rome said American troops of the 7th Army, which have occupied Besancon, were engaged in heavy fighting with German forces attempting to cover the retreat of the German 19th Army toward the Belfort gap 50 miles to the northeast).

The gap is in the Vosges and Jura mountains on an open route between Germany and France at the Burgundian gate and Rhine valley. The fortress city of Belfort has been a traditional show-down spot in many European wars.

St. Andrew's Group Plans For Ditty Bags

MARMORA, Sept. 9—(ENS)—St. Andrew's Women's Association held their monthly meeting this week at the home of Mrs. Charles Airhart in Deloro. The attendance was somewhat smaller than usual.

The president, Mrs. E. C. Prentice, occupied the chair and in the absence of Miss M. Brown, Mrs. H. W. Sabine acted as secretary. Mrs. H. R. Haacke took charge of the devotional period, assisted by Mrs. T. Cousins and Mrs. H. C. Barlow. The theme was along temperance and missionary lines. The roll call was "A sea or river mentioned in the Bible."

A committee made up of Mrs. T. Dickson and Mrs. F. R. Wells was appointed to interview the Board about purchasing a number of articles for the church when it will be ready for use again.

It was decided to ask each Circle to be responsible for the filling of one ditty bag to be donated to Marmora War Workers as the Association's contribution to this cause. It was also decided to furnish enough paint to paint the woodwork in the dining room at the parsonage, two members offering to do the work.

The hostess served lunch, assisted by Mrs. T. Cousins.

Nazi Manners Changed With Invasion Of Europe

TRELLEBORG, Sweden, Sept. 9—(CP Reuter) —The first train carrying the latest contingents of British, American and Dominion repatriates steamed into Trelleborg railway station to-day and a Swedish army band played them in with "Home Sweet Home" and "Swanee River."

Many of the exiles on their way home after years in German prison camps and were visibly moved as they sang the old familiar tunes.

This contingent, nearly all servicemen, is expected to leave Goteborg for Britain Sunday. Their number approximated 1,700.

(In London, the Foreign Office said the number of British Empire repatriates being exchanged at Goteborg was not yet known).

All of the men had been warned to be discreet in what they told reporters, for fear of reprisals, and were not allowed to disclose their names. Many said they noticed a definite softening in the attitude of the German guards after the invasion of Normandy.

An American lieutenant said: "Up to the second invasion week the guards were maliciously telling us how our troops would be thrown into the sea.

Admit Defeat.

Since then, and in increasing tempo, their attitude changed. Some became ingratiating, a very few were depressed and more brutal than before, but the majority were more apathetic and sheepish than ever."

A British Sergeant added: "The only difference between any of the Jerries I talked to in the course of the past two months was that some frankly said "we are beaten and had better put down our arms," while others said "We have lost the war but are not beaten yet."

Most of the men, however, were not optimistic regarding the prospects of a speedy German collapse.

A cautious note was sounded by a British Major who said :" As far as I can judge the Nazis are completely determined to fight to the finish and they seem to have the army sufficiently well in hand to control it to keep on fighting."

The general impression gained from conversations with officers and men was that the treatment of prisoners in the different camps, although dependent on the personality of the German commander and personnel was "decent."

All agreed that apart from the isolation and sometimes the bad sanitary conditions the greatest deficiency was food. "We would be dead without the Red Cross parcels," they said.

NAZI IS DROPPED — A Nazi soldier, in uniform, is shown just as he was dropped to the pavement by a shot from a F.F.I. gun in Paris. He looks in the direction of the shot, then drops flat to the pavement as an F.F.I. girl, wearing identifying armband, dashes to his side, searches him and divests him of his arms. He writhes in agony as the search goes on. The third and last picture of this series shows the girl handing the Nazi's gun—a prized possession, to a French fighter in civilian clothes, who runs to her aid.

Canadian-Born Hun Doctor Says War Lost

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 9—(CP)—Henry Meffert is a doctor in the German 7th Army. He is a tall, thin, bespectacled officer and 30 years ago he was born on a farm near Calgary.

When he was eight he went to Germany with his German parents. He became a doctor one year ago and was pressed into the German Army Medical Corps. He was captured by a group of Canadian soldiers from his native area.

Meffert has been through the terrible retreat of the 7th Army which now no longer exists as an army. He was with a field ambulance in the Caen sector and handled hundreds of casualties among the thousands the Germans suffered there.

He was at Falaise and fell back steadily with the German forces, escaping to the Seine where he was taken prisoner. He has seen the German army meet disaster at Allied hands and speaking careful English he said "the war can only last two more months at the most."

"We stand on one line after another and are beaten each time," he said. "Our soldiers are asking questions now — serious questions. They are realizing that they cannot make any more stands worthwhile unless they have a new weapon, a new arm.

"There are V1 and V2, but they don't see them; they only hear about them. They need something they can see.

"They are hoping there is some truth in the story they are being told of a new German bomb—a liquid air bomb which will paralyze the enemy with cold when it is dropped among them.

"I do not know. I am just a doctor of one year in the army. But I have seen Germans suffer more than most. It is a terrible war."

SINKS U-BOAT—The Victoria Cross has been awarded to FO. John A. Cruickshank, R.A.F.V.R., pictured here, for conspicuous bravery while he was captain and pilot of a Catalina flying boat engaged in attacking a German U-boat in northern waters. He was wounded 72 times.

Italy Will Need New Generators

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—(AP)—Noting that much of Italy had been devastated by war, President Roosevelt said today her 45,000,000 people will need additional assistance from the Allies if she is to stand on her own feet.

He told his news conference that Brig.-Gen. William O'Dwyer, American economic officer in Italy, has returned to the United States and will talk with him at the White House today about plans for this new aid.

The President said the Germans destroyed many utilities and that north of Rome alone they had wiped out 90 per cent of the electric power plants.

He said military authorities were moving in vital medical supplies and so far Great Britain and the United States had sent in more than $100,000,000 worth of all kinds of supplies.

He said these supplies are being placed in the ordinary channels of trade and are being sold for Italian lira with a view to eventual repayment by Italy to the Allies.

It's always dependable!

IN THE QUIET of a little Canadian town a Ford "Red Cross" truck pulls up in front of a hall, school or church. Trained technicians hurry sterile equipment into the building, and soon the townspeople and folks from the surrounding farms are giving blood to save the lives of the boys overseas. Then, right on schedule, the truck is on the way to the next town or village. This is the Mobile Blood Donor Service of the Canadian Red Cross, which collects the blood of thousands of eager donors living far from the permanent clinics in the big cities.

To the deafening roar of our artillery, our men advance behind a protecting wall of fire. Close behind them come Ford military ambulances, pushing forward along shell-torn roads on their missions of mercy.

Swiftly the wounded are given first aid, or snatched from the jaws of death with life-saving blood serum from Canada.

Whether on the battlefront or on the home front, these trucks must get through on time. Their drivers have complete confidence in the famous Ford V-8 engine. It's the engine proved by millions in peacetime . . . tried and proved again by war's cruel tests on the frozen fronts of Russia, in the swirling sandstorms of North Africa, in the mud and mountains of Italy and the battlefields of France. More than 300,000 Ford military vehicles, serving under every Allied flag, have told the same wonderful story of the Ford V-8 Engine . . . "It's always dependable!"

Red Patrols Drive Into Prussia

Russians Reported Deep In Alps At Hungarian Border

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 —(AP) — The BBC reported to-day that "front-line dispatches say that the Red Army has already smashed the German fortifications on the East Prussian border, which include everything from flooding to electrified wire entanglements."

The broadcast was recorded by the Office of War Information.

The BBC said earlier "it is reported that in the last 24 hours more than 100 Soviet formations have taken positions at the East Prussian border" and that patrols "have been operating on German soil for the past 36 hours."

Enter Carpathians.

MOSCOW, Sept. 11.—(AP). — The Red army by frontal and flank assaults was driving German and Hungarian troops to-day from their strongholds in the eastern Carpathians, after crushing enemy resistance in the Transsylvania Alps.

Armored columns under command of Russia's newest marshal, Rodion Y. Malinofsky, were less than 30 miles from the Transylvania capital of Cluj. His forces, advancing steadily from the northeast and southeast, were rapidly seizing control of the entire mountain block that had protected Hungary from invasion.

The Soviet radio increased intensity of Russian appeals to the peoples of Hungary and Austria to throw off their Nazi yoke as the Red army rolled closer to them.

In Danube River.

Front dispatches said a Red army river flotilla, steaming up the Danube toward the Iron Gate, was expected to assist in crossing into north-eastern Serbia from Romania bases near Turnu-Severin.

The forces of Gen. Feodor Tolbukhin were reported approaching the Yugoslav frontier as well as fanning southward close to the Aegean Sea.

A junction between the Red Army and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans will prepare the way for a double sweep into the Hungarian plains from the east and south, it was believed in Moscow.

Says Conference To Be Military

QUEBEC, Sept. 11 —(CP) —The 11th War Conference between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt opened here to-day, will be "almost exclusively a military conference," a Presidential spokesman announced soon after the principals arrived.

The spokesman was Stephen Early, press secretary to Mr Roosevelt. He said also that the recent visit by the President to the Hawaiian Islands and the Aleutians was "but a neccessary preliminary to the Conference beginning here to-day."

This part of Mr. Early's statement to the press was taken by some as an answer to Republican charges that Mr. Roosevelt's Pacific tour was a political jaunt— an answer that could not be made until security permitted discussion of the Conference here.

Mr. Early came to the Chateau Frontenac press headquarters immediately after ceremonies at citadel hill where Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt were received by a guard of honor.

Ganaraska Job To Employ Over 600 Men

PORT HOPE, Sept. 11 (CP)—Extensive scope of the Ganaraska watershed project was revealed by the Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian in addressing the week-end banquet of Port Hope Board of Trade here.

Dr. Vivian went into the Ganaraska project with particular reference to the part it would play in post-war reconstruction. He forecast that over a period of two years it would provide employment for 600 men and would afford 2,136,111 man-hours at living wages.

Ronald Baxter was chairman of the meeting. Other speakers were Captain Herbert Long, of Port Hope, recently-returned from overseas; C. S. Matthews, Toronto, and J. Sheridan, Montreal.

Sound plans must be laid if chaos is to be averted, declared Dr. Vivian in speaking of post-war reconstruction.

"We are reaching the end of a destructive war, which was the result of a bad peace. A new start must be made if communities are to survive and the temper of the people is such that, if we do not lay sound plans, we know we will have utter chaos," Dr. Vivian said.

"We have a class of workers, which we may term new workers, because they came into existence as workers in war production, and they have become accustom to good wages. They have enjoyed a high standard of living as a result of their good pay and we must, in the post-war period see to it that everyone will have every chance of employment and satisfactory living conditions," the speaker added.

Speaking of the Ganaraska survey, he said that it would provide much employment and over a period of time there would be available, woodlots, free planting, arrest of erosion, farm improvement, reforestation, highway improvement, and other sub-projects. Of interest to Port Hope was the flood control aspect of the project as the town has lost several hundred thousand dollars in flood damage in years past.

Board Rescinds Metals Controls

OTTAWA, Sept. 11.—(CP).—Removal of restrictive and standardization orders imposed by the Prices Board on a wide range of metal articles and some other products was announced to-day by H. H. Foreman, co-ordinator of capital equipment and durable goods.

Mr. Foreman's announcement came simultaneously with a statement by Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, who said in a Toronto address that the Board proposed removing restrictions as rapidly as conditions allow.

Orders which prohibited or restricted manufacture and which have been lifted apply to: Steel drums, silver plated holoware, steel shaft sports goods, humidifiers, small electrical appliances, identification tags, elevators, incandescent lighting fixtures, wheelbarrows, bathtubs, upholstered bedding, metal furniture, and eavestrough.

Orders which standardized and simplified manufacturing processes

Hun Prisoners Join Canadians

TORONTO, Sept. 11—(CP).—War Correspondent Peter Stursberg told Saturday in a cable dispatch to the CBC how two Ontario soldiers captured 11 enemy soldiers fully armed and got themselves into a tangle of nationalities by doing so.

Stursberg is with the Canadians in Italy.

Pte. Jack Gardiner and Cpl. Ralph Peters, both of Stratford, are scouts with an Eastern Canada regiment. They were searching a brickyard near Riccione when they met 11 fully armed soldiers in German uniforms.

The two Canadians knew the German word for "hands up," and on the command the enemy promptly obliged, but started speaking Italian. The Canadians understood them to say that they would surrender only if they could retain their arms.

Gardiner and Peters agreed and marched off with their prisoners who were carrying not only rifles, pistols and hand grenades, but machine guns as well.

In this way they reached their very surprised headquarters, where there was more discussion carried on in Italian. The Italian-speaking Germans turned out to be Russians whom the Germans had forced into the Turkoman division.

They said they had been fighting their way to Canadian lines so that they could join the Canadians in fighting the Germans.

Germans Stall British 8th At Gothic Line

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 11—(AP). — Fierce German resistance is holding the British 8th Army offensive against the Gothic line to a standstill, Allied Headquarters said today.

Taking advantage of the enemy's preoccupation with large-scale, bloody fighting to stem the 8th Army's drive for Rimini and the avenue into the Po Valley, Allied 5th Army forces followed a German withdrawal north and northwest of Florence and reached the Gothic line farther west.

On the five-mile front between Coriano and Gemmano, a short distance inland from the coast, the fighting in which the 8th is engaged is still "heavy and bitter, with casualties on both sides heavy," a headquarters statement said.

Field Marshal Kesselring was still striking back with frequent counter-attacks, but failed to knock the British or Canadian forces off any of the ground won at so great a cost in the past weeks.

South of Gemmano the British drove the Nazis from a 600-foot peak and Indian troops captured other high ground 1,000 yards north of

Quarter Million Germans Face Disaster In Balkans

LONDON, Sept. 11 —(CP) — The anti-German tide in the Balkans has swept another Hitler puppet out of office, it was reported today, making more precarious the predicament of estimated 250,000 Nazi troops in once German-occupied territory in Southeastern Europe.

The United Nations radio at Algiers said Ante Pavelic, Quisling dictator of Croatia, had been arrested and delivered to Marshal Tito's Partisans. There was no confirmation.

Tito's troops captured Wjjkar, only five miles from the Bulgarian frontier, in their drive to join the Russians sweeping through Romania and Bulgaria, a Free Yugoslav radio broadcast said. Other Partisans were reported fighting only 50 miles south of Zagreb, seat of Pavelic's rule.

Pavelic was an exile in Italy, under death sentence for the assassination in 1934 of King Alexander of Yugoslavia at Marseille when Hitler and Mussolini in 1941 made him dictator of Croatia. His regime was one of terror, Partisans reports said.

No Allied Troops.

The Russians, cleaning up scattered German remnants in Bulgaria and ferreting pocketed enemy troops in Greece, and Yugoslavia, stepped up efforts to get Hungary out of the war.

The Moscow radio again called on the Hungarians to overthrow their Nazi-dominated Government. Red Army forces are driving into Transylvania toward Hungary.

In a broadcast last night, Marshal Tito's headquarters declared no Allied troops wer operating on Yugoslav territory.

"The struggle is being conducted only by the National Liberation Army of Yugoslavia with the co-operation of the Allied air forces," said the statement.

Allied headquarters in Rome announced Thursday a general offensive had started in Yugoslavia with "land forces of the Adriatic" participating.

Last night, however, Allied military authorities in Rome confirmed Tito's statement by explaining that commando units belonging to land forces based in Allied Adriatic territory had raided on Yugoslav soil and then withdrawn.

British Army Bursts Into Holland

Great Allied Guns Drop Shells Into Aachen City

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP)—British troops were reported striking into Holland today in a sweep toward the north end of the Siegfried Line after a mass slaughter of Germans. The United States 1st Army punched to less than 10 miles from the German border at two places, and captured the capital of the tiny Duchy of Luxembourg.

Back along the Channel Coast, British troops of the 1st Canadian Army opened an all-out assault on the great port of Le Havre late yesterday, and by this morning had seized high ground northeast and north of the port in heavy fighting, a front dispatch said.

The British troops under Lt.-Gen. Crerar ran into heavy minefields and were under shellfire from coastal emplacements north of the port. A heavy bombardment by R.A.F. planes preceded the attack.

10 Miles to Go.

The Americans were less than 10 miles from the German frontier at two points 70 miles apart. They capturned Luxembourg, the capital of the pocket Duchy bordering the Rhineland and Saarland, in one thrust and reportedly threw shells into Aachen, German border city, in the other forward movement.

From Nancy to Metz—the United States 3rd Army sector—north through Luxembourg to Limburg, just south of the Netherlands appendix, the Americans were running into the outer defences of the Siegfried line.

They were under the fire of German heavy guns along the Moselle. Around Limbrug, beyond the captured fortress city of Liege, they were encountering the heaviest minefields seen since they cracked through Normandy.

Here the Americans were only 8½ miles from the border.

Near Eindhoven.

The Americans, hurling shells into German soil for the first time, were reported bombarding Aachen, German border city guarded by Siegfried Line forts.

Radio broadcasts from Brussels said the British 2nd Army had crossed the Netherlands frontier for the first time "although earlier reports put them there last week."

The crossing apparently was on the road to Eindenhoven from one of the British bridgeheads 25 to 35 miles east of Antwerp.

An Associated Press dispatch said British troops had stormed across

Both Look Fit and Cheerful 2nd War Conference Starts

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Sept. 11.—(CP).—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met on a station platform at historic Wolfe's Cove today as their staffs made ready for the second Quebec war conference.

Both looked fit and cheerful as they chatted enthusiastically about the trend of war events, Mr. Roosevelt sitting in an open car and Mr. Churchill leaning in the door, foot on the running board and cigar in hand.

After a short informal chat they drove off to the Citadel where they will live and work for the duration of the conference. The Earl of Athlone drove with the President and the British Prime Minister and Prime Minister Mackenzie King followed in another car.

Mr. Churchill looked fit and cheerful despite a few days' sickness crossing the Atlantic.

Arrive Together.

Mr. Roosevelt disembarked from his special train—which had spent a few hours waiting on the siding—a few minutes before Mr. Churchill's train pulled in. During their conversation Mr. Churchill was heard to mention "France" and to remark that things were "lovely."

It was a hearty and informal welcome the two leaders received from Quebec City and Canadian officialdom at Wolfe's Cove as bright sunshine bathed the overhanging cliffs which Wolfe's British soldiers climbed by night to fight and win Canada in the morning.

Chiefs of staff of the Canadian armed services, representatives of the King, Cabinet Ministers and newspapermen mingled in a crowd on the station platform Sir Eugene Fiset, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, and Premier Maurice Duplessis were there. So were Air Minister Power and Justice Minister St. Laurent, Quebec City's two representatives in the Federal Cabinet.

Roosevelt Cheered.

Mr. King, with the Governor-General and Princess Alice, went aboard the presidential train. Shortly after they came out and Mr. Roosevelt emerged to enter his automobile which was waiting on a specially-built ramp. A cheer went up.

As Mr. Roosevelt took his seat in the automobile a second long train steamed slowly in and Mr. King hurried over to enter Mr. Churchill's car at the rear. He came out with Mr. and Mrs. Churchill and another cheer broke out.

Mr. Churchill wore a blue pea-jacket, peaked cap and bow tie. Mrs. Churchill wore a dark grey suit. A freshly-lighted cigar was in Mr. Churchill's mouth and he puffed hard to keep it going while giving a "V" sign with his hand.

Greeted President

Then he strolled across a couple of railway tracks, stepping carefully on the rough ballast to the President's automobile.

The Earl of Athlone came up and shook hands and the Prime Minister interrupted his talk with the Presi-

Winchell Demands Secret Files Be Opened So That British Heroism Be Recognized

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (CP)—In an "open letter to Winston Churchill" Walter Winchell, news and radio commentator, appealed last night to the prime minister to force Brendan Bracken, British Minister of Information, to "open his secret files" and tell the full story of British heroism in the war.

The commentator asserted in his regular weekly broadcast that owing to what he termed Mr. Bracken's policy of secrecy the heroic story of the part Britons are playing in the war is not being made public.

Winchell cited stories of Royal Navy crews being forced to serve six months without relief on Arctic convoy routes, of rear gunners in bombers "freezing to their guns in the stratosphere" and an invention by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, now Allied commander in Southeast Asia, that obviated the need of an Allied port in France during and after the invasion.

130 Hun Planes Destroyed In Air Battle Over Germany

By HOWARD COWAN—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 11—(AP).—United States fighters escorting 1,000 heavy bombers attacking oil plants in Germany today shot down 130 enemy planes in the greatest air battle ever fought over Germany between American fighters and the Luftwaffe. Only yesterday, the American fighters destroyed 125 German planes but 119 were caught on the ground in Western Germany. Today's bag made the two-day total 255.

It was the fourth consecutive day in which 1,000 or more American bombers had attacked Germany. The continental skies were saturated by R.A.F. and United States planes rising from bases in England, Italy, North and South France.

A great fleet of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers smashed at Le Havre, just before that vital Channel port came under assault by British troops of the 1st Canadian Army. It was the second straight day in which Canadian bombers had joined the aerial pounding of Le Havre, and all of them returned safely.

American losses were not immediately tabulated. A spokesman of the United States 8th Air Force said the 130 planes destroyed still was an incomplete count, but already a record bag for fighters. German planes destroyed by the bombers still were to be added.

French Troops Penetrate Dijon

By SID FEDER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 11 —(AP)—French troops penetrated the outskirts of Dijon, an important communications centre 150 miles southeast of Paris, while other French units of the 7th Army met bitter opposition in the battle of the Belfort Gap, Allied headquarters said today.

American units advanced to Rougemont, 25 miles southwest of the historic gateway into southwest Germany, but French troops, inching their way through the Jura mountains along the Swiss frontier, met desperate German rear-guard resistance.

An Allied headquarters announcement last night said the French were fighting near the village of Blamont, 16 miles south of Belfort and 36 airline miles from the German frontier.

The Nazis, making a desperate stand to keep the Belfort Gap lifeline open, found themselves in a narrowing bottleneck with the French to the south and the Ameri-

Another Tremor Shakes Cornwall

CORNWALL, Sept. 11 —(CP) —A moderately severe earth tremor rocked this industrial city Saturday and added to the extensive damage caused last Tuesday by a quake which was felt in various parts of Canada and the Untied States.

The tremor, felt at 7:27, shook plaster from walls and widened the cracks that appeared in buildings following the previous quake, which caused more than $1,000,000 damage in Cornwall alone.

(In Ottawa, Dominion Observatory officials said their instruments showed tremors started at 7:25:04 and lasted for about eight minutes).

The quake came when Pitt street, in Cornwall's main business district, was crowded with shopper. There were mild rushes from crowded stores. Many people hurried home to find out if any additional damage had been caused their houses.

Early theatre goers left their seats but many returned after a brief stay outside. Children playing in the streets were frightened and rushed to their homes.

The Cornwall Collegiate and Vocational School, one of the most seriously damaged buildings in the city following the earlier quake, will remain closed indefintely. The fresh tremor caused more plaster to fall and opened up new cracks in the building.

Residents said the latest tremor was much more severe than others which have been felt since the original one shook the city.

Stalin Sends Regrets Because Of Absence

QUEBEC, Sept. 11 —(CP) — A cable from Marshal Stalin expressing his regrets that military developments made it impossible to accept an invitation to join the Roosevelt-Churchill conference here was made public shortly after 1 p.m. E.D.T. to-day.

In making the message public, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill said they would have been delighted to have Stalin nere but realized he was "properly absent on the field of duty."

Nazis Evacuate Krosno City

LONDON, Sept. 11—(CP). — The South Poland fortress town of Krosno, 17 miles from Czechoslovakia, has been evacuated by the Germans, the Berlin radio announced late today.

Krosno lies in the Carapathian foothills 83 miles southeast of the great Polish city of Krakow, key to the war industries of German Silesia. Other troops across the Vistula were reported within 3[illegible] miles of Krakow last month and 7[illegible] from Silesia.

German broadcasts for several days have told of a massive new Russian offensive toward Krakow but the Russians, as is their custom, have remained quiet during early stages of the drive.

Opens Embassy In Belgium

Carnival Spirit Still Runs High

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 11 (CP Cable)—When Pierre Dupuy, Canadian Charge d'Affaires, arrived here with a mission to open the Canadian Embassy in Belgium's liberated capital, he found the spirit of carnival still high in the streets.

Mr. Dupuy flew here from London Friday with diplomatic representatives of France and the Netherlands, in an R.C.A.F. bomber travelling with three R.A.F. aircraft bearing members of the Belgian government. The four bombers were escorted by Spitfires of a Canadian fighter squadron.

In Brussels Mr. Dupuy got in touch with Lt.-Col. Charles Hebert of Montreal, who will be military attache at the Canadian Embassy and who will also look after Canadian prisoners released from German prisoner of war camps and escaped military personnel sheltered by the civilians of all European countries except France. This duty as far as France is concerned will be assumed by Lt.-Col. Unwin Simpson.

Mr. Dupuy has been succeeded in London as Charge d'Affaires accredited to the Allied European governments established there by T. A. Stone of the Canadian High Commissioner's office in London.

Huns Trapped In Dunkerque

Came 4 Years Ago Last June

POLINCOVE, France, Sept. 11—(CP Cable). — The first time the people of this village near the Channel coast saw the Germans in 1940 they were headed in the direction of Dunkerque. When they saw the Germans the other night for the last time the Germans were going in the same direction, because there was nowhere else to go.

The middle-aged proprietor of the Estaminet Du Fort Saint Jean, a wayside tavern in the flooded lowlands through which forces of the 1st Canadian Army are passing, described both scenes.

He stood with his wife in the doorway where a German soldier came and asked for water in June four years ago. The proprietor's wife brought in a container in which her toddling daughter h[illegible] tossed a dirty rag.

But the family wasn't bother[illegible] much after that. The estaminet [illegible] modest and most Germans in t[illegible] area drove past without stoppin[illegible]

Then last Tuesday morning [illegible] 1:30 a.m. the French family w[illegible] roused by a knock at the door. T[illegible] proprietor opened the door and [illegible] German stuck a machine-gun [illegible] his ribs and told him to produc[illegible] drink and be quick about it.

Flat local beer was the only dr[illegible] left in the establishment. The G[illegible] man gulped down a glass of it.

Then the proprietor closed [illegible] door with relief when that [illegible] German disappeared down the r[illegible] —the road leading back to D[illegible] kerque.

Good Neighbors Total $1,033 For War Victims

No finer story of the devotion of women to a cause that has behind it a love for a suffering humanity, is to be found in a comparative sense anywhere in the whole wide world, than that afforded by the work of a relatively small group of women, for a long time now known locally under the name of "The Good Neighbor Group" of this city.

Starting from scratch some two and a half years ago, through a desire on the part of two excellent good neighbors living beside each other on Ware St., whose inspiration led to others joining them in the work for the very worthy cause, represented by the work the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund carries on, to aid the victims of air raid attacks and robot bombs over Britain, these very loyal ladies through the holding of Euchre parties accompanied sometimes by a small raffle, have now raised with to-day's contribution of $32.00, the splendid total of $1,033.05 for the fund.

This has involved the holding of weekly house parties in the homes of those associated with the group, almost without interruption except for small holiday periods in the summer, their continuity of effort and purpose being a really outstanding credit to them all.

This latest contribution was made possible as a result of parties in the homes of Mrs. S. Smith of Gladstone Ave. Mrs. V. Hill of Gladstone Ave., Mrs. Thompson of Aylmer St.. and Mrs. W. Reynolds of Albert St., all of whom add a little extra share by reason of this, for they provide the first essential part to make the efforts possible.

Accompanying their gift on this particular day comes a contribution from "Two north-end friends" for $2.50, which represents a share from a small neighborhood tea in that vicinity, thus providing almost an affinity of effort from the opposite end of the city, and links the two together in a cause which breathes real neighborliness across the far expanse of ocean.

A penny box collection from the W. H. Hamilton Grocery Store is also included in to-day's list, the whole bringing the fund within a little over $30.00 of reaching the $80,000 mark.

Donnybrook Fair and Dance

All aboard for Millbrook next Wednesday afternoon, where piles of fun coupled with a good work to assist the fun is being sponsored by Millbrook, Cavan Township and surrounding districts. Starting at 2 p.m. in the Fair grounds, a mammoth auction sale where Jack Reid of Clarke P.O. and James Roddy of Bailleboro are giving their services to dispose of donations of lambs, pigs, poultry of all kinds, a man's bicycle with good tires, a radio (battery), democrat, potatoes, cords of wood, an extension table, dishes, honey, and umpteen articles too numerous to mention, the fair will get under way at that time.

There will be a refreshment booth on the grounds, and this is to be followed by a monster street dance both round and square dancing, with bingo games, wheels of fortune and other attractions for those whose fancy turns that way.

Already a nice sum is on hand through gifts of cash towards this community effort, which bids fair to outstrip the one of a similar nature held for the same purpose two years ago.

SGT. ROBERT HENDRY.

Sgt. Robert Hendry Is Believed Dead

The International Red Cross quoting German information, through the Chief Casualty Officer at Ottawa has informed Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hendry, 37 Armour road that their son, Sgt. Robert Elliott Hendry lost his life. However, no additional information has been given and pending further confirmation Sgt. Hendry is now considered missing, believed dead.

Bob Hendry has been missing since April 29. He trained as an air gunner and arrived overseas just a little over one year ago. He was a former Examiner carrier and at the time of his enlisting he was employed in the Pratten Harware Store.

A graduate of the Collegiate Institute, he attended St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. He played for several years in the Church Hockey League.

OBITUARIES

MRS. HANNAH BATTERS

Widow of the late Charles Batters, who died 40 years ago, Hannah Batters, 88, passed away Sunday afternoon after a brief illness, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Walter M. Robinson, 447 George street North, where she had been living.

Born in Gloucester, England, Mrs. Batters came to Peterborough from Winnipeg five years ago. She was a member of St. John's Anglican Church while here.

She leaves to mourn her loss a daughter, Mrs. W. M. Robinson, 447 George street North, and a grandson, Flying Officer Gordon Robinson, who is serving overseas.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2.30, from D. Belleghem and Sons Funeral Home, 190 Hunter street, to interment in Little Lake Cemetery. Canon W. P. Robertson, of St. John's Anglican Church will be in charge of the services.

MRS. WM. OXLEY.

STRATFORD, Sept. 11—(CP). — Ill for five weeks, Mrs. William Oxley, former Genevieve Gorman, died here late Saturday. She was a native of Peterborough. She lived in Detroit for 14 years, and had since resided here. Surviving, besides her husband, are one son, Robert, at home; one sister, Miss Florence Gorman, Peterborough, and two brothers, Austin of Peterborough and James of Detroit.

THOMAS EGBERT RITCHIE.

Thomas Egbert Ritchie, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ritchie, 441 Georgle street south, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 12.30 midnight due to injuries received in a motorcycle crash Sunday evening.

Born in Peterborough, the 21-year-old man was the son of Thomas Ritchie and Gertrude Pagett. For the past three years and eight months he had been a fitter in the Canadian General Electric Company. He was a member of the Sacred Heart Church and had attended Sacred Heart school.

Surviving besides his parents are three sisters: Mrs. Mary Taylor, of Lindsay; Mrs. Gertrude Endicott and Marcelle of Peterborough; and one brother, Lorne Ritchie, of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held from the family residence Wednesday morning at 8.45 a.m. to the Church of the Sacred Heart for Requiem Mass at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

JOHN SIMSON.

After only a few days' illness, John Simson, who has been living with his niece, Mrs. Charles Brackenridge, 166 Edinburgh street, passed away Sunday morning in Nicholls Hospital, in his 83rd year.

For many years, he farmed in Smith township, and for a time, resided in Westwood. He is the son of the late William Simson and Jane Darling, and during his life, was an ardent supporters of the Liberal party, and took a keen interest in politics. For some time he attended Lakevale Presbyterian church.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 o'clock, from the Belleghem Funeral Home, 190 Hunter street, to burial in Little Lake cemetery. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, of Murray Street Baptist church, will officiate.

Robert Abbott Captures Golf Title

Bob Abbott, the perennial champion at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, came through once again to win the club championship by defeating last year's champion, Stan Payne, four up and three to go. In an interesting 33-hole match which came to a conclusion on the 15th green during the final round in the afternoon, some very excellent golf was exhibited and many exciting holes delighted a large and appreciative gallery.

The match and handicap committee who had long planned a championship day during which the finals of many tournaments could be played, were rewarded with ideal weather, and the contestants, too, enjoyed playing in the warm sunshine as compared to closing matches other years, which have ofttimes been played in freezing temperatures.

In the morning round Bob Abbott played a very steady game turning in a 76 to Stan Payne's 78, putting Abbott two holes up to start the afternoon.

After lunch Stan Payne started off as if he intended to square match and go to win by snaring a birdie three on the first hole, a long par four. The second hole was tied but on the third hole Payne got into trouble and dropped another hole to Abbott.

In playing the second nine of the afternoon round, last year's champion developed trouble with his drives and consequently was forced to play many sensational iron shots in an extremely steady down-the-centre game with tremedous drives off the tee and accurate irons to the pin.

On the 12th hole Mr. Abbott's drive was 20 feet from the pin and here again Mr. Payne's drive was not up to his usual and he was forced to call upon a long seven iron shot to place him three feet from the pin for a sure par 3. However, Mr. Abbott once again pulled a professional shot from his bag by holding his putt for a birdie two.

Going down the 13th Mr. Payne's drive again wandered up the left bank, giving him a bad lie for his approach to the green. As excellent chip shot place him within scoring distance, only to have the putt stop on the rim of the cup while Bob Abbott sank his for another win.

Two long drives on the 14th, followed by two masterful shots to the pin, found Mr. Abbott's ball three feet from the hole while Mr. Payne was left with a 20 feet putt for a half. Mr. Payne's putt missed the cup to go three feet past and it looked like the match would be closed off if Mr. Abbott could sink. However, his ball came to rest on the very lip of the cup and refused to drop, although Mr. Payne gave it every chance nonchalantly smacking his ball into the cup for a half.

Again Had Trouble.

On the 15th hole Mr. Payne's drive again caused him trouble by screaming into the rough to the left of the fairway but with a long wood and another beautiful iron, Stan found himself once again three feet from the cup, trying for a par the hard way.

Mr. Abbott's drive was a tremendous effort, 270 yards right down the middle, but his attempt for the green ended almost directly behind a group of trees to the left of the 15th green, necessitating a low trick shot which was professionally executed to land 12 feet from the pin. Mr. Abbott's putt failed to drop, giving Payne another chance to hold the match, but here Stan's luck failed him and the short putt rimmed the cup, stayed out, and the match was over.

In the mixed two-ball foursome tournament for the C. G. Graham Trophy, Mr. and Mrs. John McKerchar of Lakefield defeated Mr. Stan McBride and Mrs. J. M. Watson. In the consolation round for the R. R. Faryon prize, Mr. H. Thompson and Miss Isabel Bullock defeated Mr. and Mrs. O. A. DeGraw.

Mr. G. Watman defeated Dr. C. C. Cragg for the Stratton Trophy, and Hec Thompson defeated Milf Hardill for the Westclox Trophy.

Playing Saturday afternoon, Rev. George Kelly turned back W. E. Lloyd in a hard fought battle for the G. A. Macdonald Trophy, symbolic of the club championship for second flight players.

After all matches were completed Sunday afternoon, tea was served in the club house and mixed two-ball foursome prizes were presented by Mrs. C. G. Graham, who recalled that the closing of the women's section of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club will take place on Tuesday, September 26, weather permitting, and activities would commence at 10 a.m. with lunucheon at 12.30, followed by bridge, golf competions, and afternoon tea. The annual meeting and the presentation of prizes would take up the rest of the afternoon. It was suggested that members contact Mrs. Devall as soon as possible to make the necessary reservations.

In the sweepstakes held Saturday afternoon, the following net scores were posted to take home the prizes: Stan Payne 66; H. Bradburn 69; H. Thompson 67; Leo Ackford 67; W. Robinson 68; C. S. Cummer 69.

The closing field day and annual dinner of the men's section will be held next Saturday, September 16 weather permitting, and an excellent card has been arranged for the day's activities.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—(CP). — The provincial executive of the Labor-Progressive party decided yesterday to "campaign and work for a democratic coalition on the basis of an electoral agreement" with the C.C.F. and Liberal parties in the event of an Ontario election being called by the Drew government.

HAND WOUNDED—L.-Cpl. Martin Gahagan has a bullet wound in his hand, according to word received by his mother, Mrs. G. Gahagan, 494 Sherbrooke street. He is with the S.D. and H. Highlanders in France.

L-Cpl. Martin Gahagan Wounded 2nd Time

For the second time since the end of July, L/Cpl Martin Gahagan, with the S.D. and G. Highlanders in France, has been wounded, according to a letter received by his mother, Mrs. G. Gahagan, 494 Sherbrooke street.

He wrote that the Germans had been moving so fast that it was difficult to find time to write. At present he is behind the lines with a bullet wound in his hand, which he says is coming along fine. When he was wounded at the end of July, he had leg injuries from shrapnel.

Two brothers are in Italy, Sgt. Michael Gahagan with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and Pat Gahagan, who was wounded in May and still in hospital, and will soon be invalided home.

Approximately 800 fighters formed the escort. Between 200 and 300 fighters previously had been used in Rhineland attacks.

The United States heavy bombers attacked Merseburg, Lutzkendorf and Misburg a few hours after R.A.F. Mosquitos had created fresh havoc in Berlin.

Berlin Smashed.

A great fleet of R.A.F. heavy bombers pounded Le Havre, under attack by British forces of the 1st Canadian Army.

It appeared likely that more than 5,000 tons of bombs would be cast on the Germans during the day, as on Sunday.

Weather permitted visual bombing at the cities named. Other heavy bombers struck at unidentified objectives hidden by cloud banks.

Mosquitos bombed Berlin before dawn.

Reports of short and long-range destruction of German installations came in almost faster than tabulations could be made.

British bombers rained tons of explosive on Le Havre, which was shelled yesterday by 300 rounds of 15-inch shells from the guns of the Royal Navy battleship Warspite and the monitor Erebus.

Smoke already was leaping from the 16th-century city of 164,000, France's second largest port, when the Halifaxes and the Lancasters bombed without opposition. Up to 5,000 Germans are besieged there by the 1st Canadian Army.

A direct hit from the Warspite sent smoke several thousand feet into the air. The immediate resumption of the attack on the much-needed supply port indicated Gen. Eisenhower had ordered Le Havre taken to spark the push into Germany.

Large formations of Allied heavies were heading for Europe today only a few hours after R.A.F. Mosquitos returned from a night assault on Berlin.

Eleven hundred American heavy bombers from Britain attacked five targets in South-western Germany on Sunday, while 500 or more from Italy struck oil refineries in the Vienna area. Still others hammered the harbor at Trieste.

A thousand R.A.F. heavies pounded Le Havre with 5,000 tons of bombs, touching off rumbling explosions audible in London.

The 2nd Tactical Air Force of the R.A.F. and the U.S. 9th Tactical Air Force were skimming trees all over Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, and Western Germany.

dent. He was heard to say there were three beautiful days on board the troopship which carried him to Halifax but that he had been "frightfully sick".

The Governor-General told him the sun would do him good and he agreed. Despite his illness Mr. Churchill seemed healthy and appeared stronger than when he met with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other Commonwealth prime ministers in London last May.

Mr. Roosevelt wore a soft Panama hat, a dark blue suit, and a bow tie. Both he and the British Prime Minister smiled, joked and readily complied with the shouted instructions of press photographers who crowded around.

Members of Mr. Churchill's staff said the Prime Minister remained in his statereoom practically all the way across the Atlantic and spent much time working. He saw little of the few civilian passengers and the servicemen who travelled with him.

Intervened for Servicemen.

He made himself popular with American servicemen, however, by intervening with the President to get them an extension of leave. The ship was held up for a few days for Mr. Churchill. Soldiers returning from overseas count their allotted leaves from the date of their departure, and normally would have had a few days less with their families.

But Mr. Churchill heard of this and cabled the President. Mr. Roosevelt replied that all men involved would get an appropriate extension of leave, subject of course to the necessities of the war effort.

On the trip from Halifax to Quebec crowds turned up at every station to see the Churchill train. The railway officials who were aboard said Mr. Churchill received a welcome everwhere and that his response delighted the Canadians who turned out to see and cheer him.

The trip on Canadian soil was made un[illegible] ideal weather conditions.

Mr. Roosevelt's train arrived unexpectedly early and it had been stopped for some time on a siding at Wolfe's Cove on the St. Lawrence River before the British prime minister arrived at 10:05 a.m. EDT.

Within five minutes of Mr. Churchill's arrival escort cars were beginning to line up for the drive to the Citadel, summer residence of the governor-general, where the war leaders will stay while in Quebec.

Wives Come Along

Mrs. Churchill and Mrs. Roosevelt travelled with their husbands; and both the prime minister and the president brought official parties to assist them in their deliberations.

Mrs. Roosevelt received a welcome from Princess Alice and exchanged warm greetings with Mrs. Churchill. The three women entered a closed car and drove along to the Citadel in the procession which formed up quickly as the leading car carrying the president and the governor-general moved off.

With the arrival of the prime minister and president, Quebec became for the second time in 13 months a virtual capital of the United Nations.

To many associated with it, the Churchill-Roosevelt meeting, their 11th since the war began, is a "victory conference." Awaiting them and filling the Chateau Frontenac were military, naval and air experts, ready to pool their brains and information in the fashioning of plans for total victory and the first stages of peace.

Premier King Arrives.

Their conferenec host, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, arrived from Ottawa by train last night.

Mr. King said he plans to play the same part in this year's conference as in the last one—"I shall be in the background." But he was obviously pleased that Canada was chosen again as conference locale and told reporters at the station that he took it as a sign of Canada's growing importance among the nations.

"When you think," he said, "that this is the second time in two years that these two world leaders meet here, and that next week in Montreal we will have the representatives of 44 nations meeting. (The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration), it shows that we have come a long way."

In August, 1943, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt met in Quebec supported by similar parties of experts and advisers. The new meeting like the last, is essenitally a military conference and the decisions taken will be matters of high secrecy.

That they relate to victory is certain. The two leaders are expected to settle many military questions arising from the changed war situation, for instance, there is the question of "unconditional surrender," the formula adopted at the Casablanca Conference early in 1943. Now that the end of the war approaches it may be necessary to review that, not with a view to making things easier for a beaten enemy but to define its meaning in more detail so hostilities can be ended with the least sacrifice of life.

Discuss Armistice

There is the question of the armistice period in Europe and the military disposition to be made while it lasts, armies of occupation, destruction of the enemy's war potential, the policing of Europe.

Broken Glass Causes Bad Throat Wound

Samuel J. McGlennon, 309 McDonnel street, had a narrow escape from bleeding to death Saturday evening as the result of an unusual accident when a piece of glass from a shattered door in his car struck him in the throat. Only the arrival on the scene of two motorists who rushed him to hospital saved his life.

McGlennon was on his way to the home of Fred Steinkrauss in Smith township. He had occasion to stop his car on the second line and when he banged the door in closing it the glass broke and a piece struck him in the neck. The wound started to bleed freely and McGlennon had collapsed beside his car when Constable Lumley of the Toronto police force and C. P. Chapman, Fairburn street, arrived on the scene.

They drove McGlennon to St. Joseph's Hospital where the bleeding was stopped. Today the report from the hospital is that the injured man is making a quick recovery and will soon be released.

96,000 Population

The French advance to the outskirts of Dijon, a town of 96,000, virtually sewed up the escape corridor for the German 19th Army in that sector. Seizure of Dijon would not only seal off at least two main highways to the Germans, but push the enemy to within 55 miles of where the American forces in northern France were last reported.

Fanning out west of the Saone, the French also reached the road junction of Saulieu, 40 miles west of Dijon, and about 35 miles north of Autun, which they took 48 hours ago.

Cleaning out all the Hill country to the Saone, the French troops also captured Arnay le Duc, 30 miles southwest of Dijon.

As the American advance approached Belfort it veered north as well as east, moving above the line of the Doubs River-Rhone Canal toward the Ognon river, thus taking command of the entire valley.

Churchill Gets Great Reception

HALIFAX, Sept. 11.— (CP). — Prime Minister Winston Churchill sped toward Quebec and his conference with President Roosevelt to-day, after receiving a Halifax welcome that outdid anything seen here since the royal visit five years ago.

Hundreds of Haligonians cheered and serenaded a happy Prime Minister and his wife for an hour yesterday afternoon as they waited at the dockside for a special train to pull out after arriving here from Britain aboard a big troop-laden transport.

Puffing away at the inevitable big cigar, wise-cracking with the crowd, leading it in one song after another, Churchill apparently enjoyed himself thoroughly in the welcome after waving aside the scores of guards who were on hand to keep the throngs away.

The sea-loving war leader, looking pink-cheeked and fit after his ocean voyage, grinned with pleasure through the reception, acknowledging salvos of cheers with wide smiles and a continuous series of V-signs or waves from a cigar-laden fist.

In response to a call for a speech, he talked briefly to the gathering saying that he had been here before but never "when the skies were brighter or when the invincible march of our forces has been more swiftly and inevitably directed toward its goal."

The crowd delighted in it. They even cheered the bulky Prime Minister when he sat down on a train step, pulled out his horn-rimmed spectacles and read the first newspaper he had seen since leaving Britain.

Some 5th Army units, headquarters said, reached Uselle, 17 miles northwest of Florence and only 35 miles south of the great Po Valley, industrial city and communications centre of Bologna.

Further west American troops pushed well into the outskirts of Pistolia and occupied high ground dominating the town from the northeast, while other elements reached the Gothic line defences at Zazzera, 6½ miles northeast of Lucca.

Presumably content to wait until they get back into the Northern Apennines, where the terrain is ideal for defence, the Nazis offered scant opposition to the 5th Army although some enemy shells fell on patrol which took Monte Mignano, [illegible] miles due north of Florence.

Stiffer resistance was met near Italy's west coast where the Americans made more crossings of the Serchio River and Vecchiano, five miles north of Pisa, was occupied. The river crossings brought U.S. infantry into extensive minefields and mortar fire. The enemy air force also was active in that area, dropping a number of bombs Saturday night.

Kallio obtained his discharge from the U.S. forces in order to enlist in the R.C.A.F. at the outbreak of the European war, as an AC2 aero-engine mechanic, later remustering to aircrew. Before succeeding to his present command, he led an R.A.F. squadron of the Desert Air Force.

Goerdeler Former Leipzig Mayor Charged As Traitor By Germans

By JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(AP).— Dr. Karl Friedrich Goerdeler, 60-year-old former mayor of Leipzig, was identified by the Nazis to-day as a ring-leader in the plot to assassinate Hitler last July and the man selected by the plotters to become Chancellor fo a new German government.

The announcement of Goerdeler's alleged part in the plot was made in a Berlin broadcast disclosing that he and six other "politicians" have been convicted by a people's court and sentenced to death. An idefinite number of alleged conspirators—including some high-ranking military men — already have been executed.

The six convicted with Goerdeler were named as Ulrich Von Hassell, former Nazi ambassador to Rome; Count Wolf Hendrick Von Helldorf, former police chief in Berlin; Trott Zu Solz, former secretary in the Ministry of Foreign Affaiars; Paul Lejeune-Jung, a former deputy; Wilhelm Leuschner, former Hessian Minister of the Interior; Josef Wirmer, an attorney.

A Huge Reward.

Goerdeler, former German Minister of Economics, "worked out the plans of treason and it was he who formed the bridge between the militarist traitors and political conspirators," the German news agency Transocean said.

Goerdeler was captured after a price of 1,000,000 marks (about $400,000) had been placed on his head.

The conspirators intended immediately after the assassination to set up a dictatorship "which would have immediately capitulated to the enemies of Germany," the agency said.

Leuschner played with the idea of overthrowing Goerdeler and making himself Reichschancellor," the agency said.

Von Hassell was reported to have confessed that he knew since the spring of 1943 that an attempt was to be made on Hitler's life.

Wirmer was "violently opposed to Hitler and National Socialist Germany and continually pressed Goerdeler to speed up the action," Transocean asserted.

Zu Stolz was said to have made frequent trips to Germany "for the purpose of discussing German military secrets with enemies of Germany," and all seven of the accused were declared to have had "connections with foreign powers since 1942."

Count Helldorf was described as a liaison man between Goerdeler's political group and the military faction led by Col.-Gen. Ludwig Beck, one of the generals reported to have paid the death penalty for complicity in the plot. Helldorf as head of the Berlin police directed many of the repressive actions against the Jews in the early days of the Hitler regime.

about the things you buy in wartime

When you go to a store to buy and can't get the things you want, remember that war upsets the whole machinery of production and supply. This is true not only in Canada but throughout the whole world.

As Canada is devoting over half her production making things for war it is inevitable that civilian supply must be reduced.

We just can't produce all the things required to fill the greatly increased civilian demands, but production efforts are being directed to see that the best use is made of materials and labour that are available for the production of civilian goods.

Remember these facts when you have difficulties in your shopping.

Chairman
Wartime Prices & Trade Board

THE STORY OF CHILDREN'S UNDERWEAR

OBVIOUSLY babies and children must have underwear. So—the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has given special attention to the production of these garments.

The problem has not been so much one of a lack of raw materials, but of getting the raw materials (wool, cotton, rayon), spun into yarns—and then knit into garments. Canada has never produced all the wool, cotton and rayon yarn she requires. We have always had to get a substantial part of our requirements from other countries, even in peacetime. But since the war, there has been an acute shortage of underwear yarns everywhere.

There has been a greatly increased demand in addition to production difficulties. The efforts of the Board to meet the problem are given below.

THE INCREASED DEMAND RESULTED FROM:

More babies . . . It's apparently always the way in wartime.

Reduced use of second-hand or "hand-me-down" garments.

Extra buying . . . Perhaps too many people wanted to be "on the safe side."

Increased consumer buying . . . More people with more money.

Less home sewing . . . Mothers have been working outside the home.

Huge demand for underwear by Armed Forces.

MORE UNDERWEAR: but still not enough!

The reason is that it just has not been possible to produce with the skilled workers and machines available to the United Nations enough yarn and garments to meet the increased demands all over the world.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE ABOUT IT

✓First of all the Board found out the kind and quantity of garments Canadian children must have.

✓This showed that the public is asking for more than is actually needed.

✓So plans were made to see, by directing production all down the line, if we could meet the swollen demand as nearly as possible.

✓Each manufacturer was told to produce an increased number of garments.

✓Manufacturers not previously making children's underwear were induced to go into its production. An additional 600,000 garments will be provided this year from these sources.

✓Negotiations were conducted with production authorities in other countries for supplies of yarn to Canadian knitters for use in children's underwear.

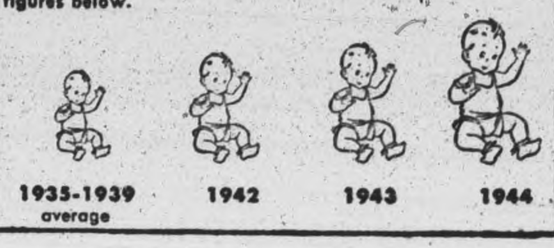
✓Primary cotton mills were required to divert spinning facilities from fabric manufacture to the spinning of underwear yarns.

✓Arrangements were made through National Selective Service to direct more labour to the underwear mills.

✓A special campaign was launched to enlist part time workers.

✓Distribution to retail stores was organized to ensure equitable supply to all areas.

The greatly increased supply of children's underwear resulting from these efforts is shown by the relative sizes of the figures below.



You can't get all you want in wartime

Humanity has but three great enemies: fever, famine and war; of these by far the greatest, by far the most terrible, is fever. —SIR WILLIAM OSLER.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1944

The Propaganda War

Although it is much less effective than it used to be, Germany is still waging her propaganda war against us. That war now takes the form of a confusing mass of rumours, peace feelers, reports of German capitulation and talk of negotiations. If this mass of material were made public it would only serve to confuse newspaper readers and radio listeners. The Germans would like to create confusion among the Allies, as there would be certain small but definite advantages to themselves in so doing; they cannot escape defeat now, but it is possible for them to cushion the shock of their defeat, and the dispersal of misleading information is one way of doing so.

On September 5 a rumour spread quickly through the Allied world that a Brussels broadcast had told of German surrender. That was false, but if it had been greeted with a hullabaloo in the press it might have caused some confusion and aroused false hopes. As it was presented by the press, however, it was stripped of all its inflammatory details and speculations and it passed for what it was—a rumour which might contain a grain of truth, but which had not been substantiated.

Many readers will recall that there was a false report of the armistice of the First Great War, which was a result of the over-enthusiasm and under-responsibility of Roy Howard. Every care is being taken to prevent anything of the sort happening this time. It is not impossible that the first news which you hear of German capitulation will be very quietly phrased, for if it is not corroborated by the Allied Supreme Headquarters or some other indisputable authority it will not given prominence or full credence. Every effort is being made to guard against disleading speculations or false alarms. If we are premature in our assurances that the European war is over we may play into the German hands.

Dr. Frigon's Promotion

Dr. Augustin Frigon has been appointed General Manager of the CBC, a post which he has earned and which he is well qualified to fill. Dr. Frigon's approach to radio is technical rather than artistic, and it is owing to his distinguished work in his special field that Canadian radio is in its present state of technical efficiency. Dr. Frigon is an able administrator, and he has shown on many occasions that he is strictly impartial in racial matters, and that his concern for the CBC is truly Canadian, and cannot be labelled as either 'English' or 'French'. We congratulate him on his appointment, and we are sure that he is more than equal to the heavy responsibility which has been laid upon him.

Dr. Frigon's appointment will give the CBC strong business direction, but as his training and interest is primarily technical we may be excused for expressing some concern here for the artistic direction of Canadian radio. The two gentlemen who were promoted at the same time as Dr. Frigon have both been with the CBC for several years, and during that time they have shown us little that was new, or distinctively Canadian, or of undisputed artistic merit in radio. They have now taken an upward step in the organization, and thereby the CBC has firmly fixed its artistic status quo. Is that condition good enough for a national broadcasting corporation? We do not think that it is.

Technical efficiency is an admirable thing in radio. So is sound business administration. But both these characteristics are just as common in commercial radio as they are in the CBC. We expect something better from a nationally owned corporation than we get from broadcasters whose primary aim is to make money. That is why Canada decided to support the CBC from public funds. If we are to get nothing better from CBC under Dr. Frigon than we got under Mr. Murray or Mr. Thompson, why keep up that expensive institution?

What the CBC desperately needs is new blood in its artistic departments, and until it gets it it will continue to be dull and second-rate.

The Case Of Finland

In the years to come few nations will look back upon this war with such bitterness as the Finns. Other nations—Poland and Greece, for instance—have suffered more severely, but Poland and Greece will share in the eventual triumph. Finland has made a mess of its affairs, and will be out of favour with both victors and vanquished.

The old feud with Russia appears to have been at the bottom of Finland's trouble. The ramifications of this feud are too many and too extensive for anyone to offer a simple opinion on it. Finland undoubtedly has her grievance, but Russia has her grievance too, and although our sympathies were all with the Finns in 1939-40 it is much harder for us to make up our minds now. For years we had cherished the vision of Finland as a clean, progressive, admirable state, fundamentally democratic and decent in its attitude toward the rest of the world. Undoubtedly that Finland existed, but there was also a Fascist Finland and an Imperialist Finland which we did not know about, and both these aspects of the little country have shown themselves during the past four years. The Fascist Finns wanted to aid the cause of Hitler; the Imperialist Finns wanted to grab what they could from Russia. The democratic Finns were sadly puzzled, and like all indecisive peoples in this war they soon found themselves in an intolerable situation.

For old time's sake we think that most of the democracies will want to see Finland quickly restored to health and strength. But we do not imagine that they will forget that Finland did not know which side she was on when the test came.

The Cat Torturers

The case of two Hamilton boys who soaked a cat in gasoline and set it on fire has caused some stir, and the magistrate of the Juvenile Court in that city has said that he did not believe that Himmler would commit such a crime; a member of the Big Brother organization has gained an adjournment in order that the boys may be mentally examined; they are 15 and 14 years of age.

Cruelty to animals, and even to other children, is not at all uncommon among adolescents. Boys and girls between 12 and 20 commonly show 'difficult' tendencies, and may be moody, procrastinating, irresponsible, cruel, pugnacious, unwisely daring or foolishly romantic—and many other things as well, which cause worry and alarm to their parents and teachers. The development of sexual feeling sometimes finds very strange outlets, and if this development is not accompanied by any sort of wise and full instruction about sex matters real trouble may come of it. Most sex instruction is given too late; children need it before they face the development, and not when it has been in progress for three or four years.

Torturing cats is bad: torturing children is far worse. To neglect to give children instruction in sex matters may cause them many hours, months and years of frustration, unsavoury speculation and experiment, and mental distress. Juvenile crime might best be fought by the careful encouragement of healthy-mindedness among adolescents, and the substitution of full and correct knowledge for an 'innocence' which is merely ignorance.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A biologist says that man's jaw is receding. In this respect some people are away ahead of others.

School children have their troubles too, what with geography changing even more rapidly than women's fashions.

One of the things we shall find out after the war is over is where everybody lived before the war brought us a housing shortage.

The Hamilton Spectator points out that Napoleon admired men with long noses, and the British sent him Wellington. And to keep up the tradition they have sent Montgomery to Hitler.

Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan is reported to have said that he does not want any more capital in his province. He need worry no longer; nothing is so quick to take a hint as capital.

When the Germans made their hasty farewells in France they neglected to take any stocks of French wine with them. Their national drink being fermented cabbage juice, they probably did not know what the stuff was.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

I WAS very pleased to learn that the cattle raisers on Manitoulin Island had organized an auction sale of stockers and feeder cattle to be held on the 27th of this month. Public auction is the best method of disposing of farm livestock. For many years, this has been the established method in England and Scotland and it has been eminently satisfactory. Beef cattle ready for slaughter are sold in the same way and it ensures competition, something the farmer finds it very difficult to get by any other method of sale. Cattle in the Old Country are usually sold in groups of three or five and butchers come in from country towns to bid on them.

We have had annual auction sales of feeder cattle in Moose Jaw and Saskatoon for some years and these have been very beneficial to the cattle trade in the West. Ontario cattle feeders have gone West and made purchases at these sales and have helped to set a price for such cattle. At these Western sales, prizes have been offered for carload lots and in every case the good beasts have brought the top figures. Lamb sales in England and Scotland have been carried on in the same way and bidders go to these sales to buy. Often as many as 25,000 or 30,000 sheep and lambs are offered at a single sale; they are sold in lots and disposed of very quickly.

Pure bred cattle sales in Ontario have proved to be a very satisfactory way of selling good beasts, and are carried on from year to year. This auction on the Manitoulin is new there as far as I know and I hope it will prove a success. It is expected that over 1,000 head will be offered and farmers who need cattle to feed would do well to visit it. They may get there what they want and they will have a good object lesson on values, or what purchasers are willing to pay.

I hope the cattle will be sorted up into groups of even lots, because they will sell better. If any culls come to the sale they should be sold in groups of their kind. Often a buyer would take a group of cattle if they were even in size and sorted as to quality and colour. This is always done in the Old Country sale rings. On the other hand, a breeder may have half a dozen good beasts and one a sort of piner. He makes a mistake if he insists on a buyer taking the lot as any good cattle man will only take them at a price that gives him the poor one almost as a gift. He knows that when he gets them home he has to cut out the cull and market him at what he can get as feed will only be wasted on such an animal. If the breeder, when he offered his cattle, had the cull by himself or away, he could ask and get a good stiff price as he would be offering a group of cattle, every one of which would make a profit for the buyer.

I NOTICED in an article in a Farm Journal the following sentence: "In peace time it was never thought feasible for us to compete with the Argentine in beef in the British market." As a matter of fact, we were always able to outsell the Argentine beef on the British market. Beef that crosses the Equator to get to Britain has to be either frozen or very effectively chilled. It is a long journey, and Canadian beef has beaten the Argentine in two ways. The first was by shipping cattle over alive and slaughtering them at Glasgow or Birkenhead. Cattle well cared for on a steamship will land in Britain without any deterioration and with no shrink. In fact, it was a shipment of cattle made from one of his own ranches, by the late Senator Pat Burns, and killed at Birkenhead, that first made a price at Smithfield above that of Scotch beef and it was a good way above Argentine, about sixpence per pound.

Later shipments were made from Canada of Fed Yearling Beef, that also sold for more than Scotch beef, and much more than Argentine. The South American beef was never able to be a real competitor for Canadian beef. The reason Britain buys Argentine beef is because she has always found it difficult to get a large enough supply from any other country. Before the war the British people, like those of Canada and United States, preferred smaller cuts and joints and were eager to get our fed yearlings instead of the heavy beef from the Argentine. We need not let Argentine worry us as a competitor because our fresh beef is preferred at a higher price.

We have a second market in the United States, where at times they want our beef at a good price and of course price will be the determining factor as to where it will go when we return to normal conditions again. That may be some time, however, as the end of the war with Germany does not mean the end of very careful planning and some considerable control of our foodstuffs.

SOME pastures suffered from the dry weather and quite a few cattle went on the market as a result. The early autumn is when a field of second growth alfalfa seems to fit in as nothing else will. There has been a good deal of enthusiasm spent on boosting alfalfa as the greatest of all forage plants. That may not all be justified but there is no doubt it has been a valuable hay and forage plant, and if you are in a district where it does well a field or two of alfalfa is a fine anchor to windward, as the old sea captain will say.

A Norfolk woman farmer in England was driving her cows home when a motorist injured two of them in passing. She claimed damages amounting to $100 she lost on the sale of each of the cows which were injured and the value of their milk, 100 lbs. per day until they were sold. An R.A.F. officer was driving the car and his only defence was that the cows "were all over the road. The court awarded the woman $310 damages. You must behave on the highway in England.

I NOTICED it urged that the rough handling of potatoes with digging machinery is causing a good deal of rot in the tubers after lifting. The disease is present in the soil and wherever the skin of the potato is broken it gives the microbes a chance to get to work. If possible, it would be well to throw out any potatoes that are injured with a machine in digging. This would be some trouble for anyone having a large acreage, but its another case of "an ounce of preventing, etc." and it might be profitable to go to this trouble.

Alsike clover seed does not appear to be offering much of a yield in the York Peel districts. It has been grown for several years successfully here but the dry weather hit it at a time when the heads should be filling. In fact, most small seeds will not offer a heavy yield here this year. The Western part of the province has been better.

THE rapidity with which things change in times like these is shown in the reduction of the demand for fresh pork in England as a result of the movement of troops to the continent. Bacon, beef and tinned meats are easier to transfer to the troops than fresh pork and so the supply of the latter is not so urgent as it was, and rationing does not permit of an increase of meat for civil population.

SOME remarkable observations are made by Old Country people visiting this continent. A Mr. M. Phillips Price, M.P., writing of his visit to the United States says: "I was much impressed by the way they bred dairy cattle by selecting two main qualities; physique and milk records. The colour of the hair and shape of the horns were not considered. Looking over a famous herd of very high performance in Massachusetts, I could see crosses between Jerseys and Friesans. But nobody worried about that. What they wanted was results and they got them."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CELEBRATION

Sir—Thank you for the splendid editorial "Prepare for V-Day."

I wonder if the Citizen's Committee realize this should be a job for them. Just as playgrounds, organized and supervised play make for good children, so will well planned and organized celebration for V-Day do away with confusion, hysteria and pointless forms of celebration. Let us rejoice and give thanks for victory in a way that victorious people should—not the way the Nazis feted, feasted and drank in Paris.

When the radio flashes the glad news, let all the bells, whistles etc. ring. Then let us all forget our petty feelings of jealousy, selfishness, greed, snobbery and rejoice with our fellow citizens and give thanks that the world soon may be rid of war forever.

Would the radio be given the opportunity to tell us the time and place when each event is to take place, such as church services, choirs of school children, community singing and dancing, beacon light parade, bands, etc.

It might be the radio could help by telling at what hour the housekeeper could get that extra egg or bottle of milk or Bromo-seltzer.

Will the school children, the factory worker, the office worker, the clerk be told in advance what time he can have to take part in these celebrations, and not have the feeling he is doing something wrong in just staying away.

So when victory is established let us be ready to rejoice, give thanks, think of those "over there" who will come back and those who will only in spirit and if in this vein, it shall surely be a day for all Peterborough citizens to remember to their dying day and the story to go down from son to son, "The V-Day for Peterborough."

"CITIZEN."

ELECTRIC HEATING

Sir,—So much is being said these days about postwar planning I think home heating could stand a radical change, that is heating by electricity. Every winter we are faced with a squabble between hard coal miners and the mine operators, which leaves Canadians with visions of frozen plumbing, plants and colds. As the writer sees it, electric units could be designed and built into the base boards similar to hot air furnace outlets in all rooms of a house. These could be made automatic or thermostatically controlled. No smoke, gas, dust or ashes should make this a perfect heating system. Even fuel oil has its faults (when you can get it). After the war the surplus electricities generated at Ship Shaw and other large projects could be absorbed this way. If the plan became popular, and I'm sure it would, more plants could be built creating plenty of postwar work building generators, switch gear, transformers etc., for the electric companies. If something isn't already being planned along this line I think it worthy of consideration before the postwar homes are built. Yours truly,

JOHN MEEHAN.

Belated Bellicosity

(R. M. HARRISON in the WINDSOR STAR)

REFERRING to Prime Minister King's much-discussed visit to Hitler in 1937, a C.C.F. mouthpiece says:

"But what can neither be explained nor excused is the subsequent action or rather inaction of Mr. King. He had issued a warning to the most fantastic war-monger in the world, the head of a powerful and ruthless war machine, and then proceeded to carry on in the old way as if nothing had happened. He didn't raise a finger to prepare Canada for the time when that warning would have to be backed up by force. Indeed, he acted as if there was no possibility of war in Europe or, if there was, that it would be none of Canada's business."

Coming from the C.C.F., this is the season's outstanding example of the pot calling the kettle black.

On February 15, 1937, the fire-eating C. Grant McNeil, British Columbia C.C.F.-er moved in the House of Commons: "This House views with grave concern the startling increase of expenditures for purposes of national armament in contrast with inadequate provisions for social security for all sections of the Canadian people."

Rev. T. C. Douglas, now Premier of Saskatchewan, chimed in on February 19, 1937, with his two-bits' worth. Said he in the House of Commons:

"Against whom are we arming? What potential aggressor is more aggressive today? Oh, I know that bogeymen have been trotted out in this chamber. It has been suggested that it might by Italy, it might be Germany, it might be Japan.

"The second reason why I cannot support these increased expenditures," continued the C.C.F. spokesman, "is that I am convinced they will not be used purely for national defence, but will inevitably lead us to participation in war.

"The third reason why I cannot support these increased estimates," expounded the reverend, "is that I feel they are the price the Canadian people are being called upon to pay for the weakness and spinelessness of those who have been responsible for Canada's foreign policy, particularly during the past 18 months."

As it turned out, Canada was woefully unprepared when war came. Picayune increases in defence estimates were totally inadequate. But for this regrettable fact the C.C.F. must shoulder a major share of the blame. The party's pronounced pacifism set the style for public thinking in those ring-around-a-rosy days.

And if Mr. King, even after bearding the lion in his Whilhelmstrasse den, failed to see what was coming, certainly the presently bellicose Co-operative Commonwealth Federation did nothing to open his eyes.

Unconsidered Trifles

The raw recruits were more raw than ever that morning and so was the sergeant-major. He decided to make an example of Pte. Brown.

"Brown!" he bawled. "Take two paces to the rear!"

Two men took two paces to the front.

The sergeant-major glowered at the second man.

"Hey! You!" he shouted, "is your name Brown, too?"

"No. Green, sir."

"Then, are you deaf, daft, or what?"

"No. Colour-blind, sir!"

Antwerp

Antwerp is one of the shining Allied prizes of the war. The Belgian port on the Scheldt is worth more in terms of supply for the assault on Germany than perhaps any other city we have taken. It is some 200 miles nearer the German frontier than Cherbourg, the one open port on which we have chiefly depended in the Battle of France, and ten times as large. In the years before the war only 6,500,000 tons of shipping entered Cherbourg, as against more than 25,000,000 tons that docked at Antwerp.

All reports indicate that the harbor, with its twenty-eight miles of quays and huge docks, is practically undamaged. Even the bridges and rail system which lead into the city are intact. As soon as the German batteries at Flushing and Zeebrugge are reduced, the port, one of the finest in northwest Europe, can be put to immediate use. Evidently the Germans, caught completely by surprise by the long loop of Allied troops swinging up behind the coast into Antwerp, got away in a great hurry. It is clear from the desperate defense of Brest, Le Havre and the other French ports that the German High Command had issued orders to hold them to the last gasp. In case of a forced retreat, this the double purpose of complicating Allied ply problems and gaining time to mass rese on the Siegfried Line. But at Antwerp, at l the High Command lost control of the situa

Magnificient as our service of supply has in moving, feeding and munitioning four sp ing armies, it must have been sorely hampere lack of port facilities. As our armies conv on the Rhine, these difficulties are bound t crease. Antwerp will be of vast help in so them.—New York Times.

A Bible Message

But in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it. And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem....

Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion: for I will make thine horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs brass: and thou shalt beat in pieces many people: and I will consecrate their gain unto the Lord, and their substance unto the Lord of the whole earth. (Mic. 4: 1, 2, 13.)

Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of hosts. (Mal. 3: 10-12.)

ELECTION IN THE U.S.A.

Quite a rumpus has been stirred up to the south of us over something that William Phillips, former U.S. Minister to Canada, is alleged to have written President Roosevelt about India (Mr. Phillips was the President's special ambassador to India), plus something that Sir Olaf Caroe, of the British Department of External Affairs in New Delhi, is alleged to have written the Secretary of State for India in London about Mr. Phillips. Senator A. B. ("Happy") Chandler something of a twister of the British lion's tail has made public the documents, real or forged (how does a U.S. Senator come by secret coded messages between British officials?), and the papers are full of them, with repercussions even in India.

Here is a case, we think, where silence by most of us is golden. Within a few days Mr. Churchill will be meeting President Roosevelt and our own Prime Minister King, meeting them to discuss common ends and loyalties, and that is far more important than some molehill of difference which some Anglophobe senator is trying to make into a mountain.

Moreover, this is a time for all of us to remember that there's an election on in the United States, with all the foolish things and sayings and other penalties that such things bring to democratic countries, including our own.—Ottawa Journal.

LAW OF ADMIRALTY

A German torpedo struck the British sh Lavington Court when she was in convoy in t Atlantic in June 1942, carrying supplies for t Ministry of War Transport to the Middle Ea The after part of the ship was left hanging the water and the crew had to abandon the ve sel. Later government tugs towed the ship f six days before she sank, 13 days after bei struck.

Yesterday, before Mr. Justice Tucker, in t King's Bench Division, Court Line Ltd., of Lea enhallstreet, E.C., claimed that the Crown shou pay hire of the ship from the torpedoing un she sank. The sum at stake was agreed £1,267.

It was contended by the Crown that no h was payable after the ship was torpedoed, she could no longer perform the services co tracted for.

Mr. Justice Tucker held that there was nei er a constructive total loss nor an actual to loss of the ship on July 18 or 19, 1942.

In all the circumstances the master had no ternative but to take off his crew and leave question of the recovery of the vessel and ca to the apropriate naval authorities, who wo make the decisions normally made by the ma or owners in peace time.

150 Young Women Have Played Big Part At Recreation Centre

When the new Servicemen's Recreation Centre opens at the end of September, there will be no bouquets or places on the honor roll for 150 young women on the hostess staff at the Uptown Recreation Centre. Yet their faithful and untiring efforts since its first opened are largely responsible for the new building. When services have been needed, they have never failed and without their ground work a new building would not have been necesray.

Their names never reach the public, yet many a soldier who dropped in at the Centre, homesick and discouraged, has gone away with a new purpose and outlook on life, after a happy afternoon or evening spent in playing games or just talking. They consider that all the payment needed. It is this inner satisfaction which brings them out every week end to work a shift, in spite of aching backs and feet.

Many organizations have contributed money and given their services, but none have been more active than these business girls. Much of the credit goes to Miss Helen Lytle, who formed the nucleus of the hostess organization and gradually built it up to the present 150. In the beginning, a small group was carefully selected from many of the industries. Because it was important to have "the right kind of girl," their records were carefully checked both at the places they worked and in any organizations of which they were a member. If a girl didn't measure up, her name was left off the list. Names are occasionally added on the recommendation of churches or auxiliaries.

From Saturday afternoon until the canteen closes Sunday night, some of the hostess group are on duty. No matter what the weather or how heavy the week's schedule you'll see the same faces week after week. There is no glamor in their minds. They recognize the importance of the job and are only too glad to be playing their part.

Buy Refressmments.

Some time ago, the hosesses decided they would like to serve refreshments every Sunday afternoon, so set up their own financial pool. Each girl contributes 25 cents regularly and in this way, they can buy cake, cookies, or the material for sandwiches. Many a hungry soldier, broke between paydays, has blessed this service.

Adjutant Velma Graham, in charge of the Centre, says it is a delight to see how the girls help the men adapt themselves. When they first come to Peterborough for their basic training, many of them are new to the Army and hardly know what to do when they wander into the George Street Centre. But the girls bring them out of their shells. With good humor and courtesy they invite the boys to play cards, checkers, ping pong or join in a sing song, and before they know it, they are quite at home in the group, she declared.

"It is grand to see these quiet boys relaxing and joking. Even though they are away from home, we make them have a good time. This is largely due to the competent way the girls handle themselves. There is never any cheapness, and men respect them. On the odd night when a crowd is not expected and there are not hostesses, the first thing the man ask wistfully is 'where are the girls?'"

Supervisory Work.

On Saturdays and Sundays there are senior canteen hostesses, older women who act in a supervisory capacity. They see that everything runs smoothly and that the men and women conduct themselves as they should. Mrs. E. Young does this job Saturday afternoon; Mrs. Wilfred Jones, Saturday night, and Mrs. Sarah Deymon on Sunday.

"If there is Bingo on a Saturday night, we have about 75 girls on duty. Sunday from the time we open at 1 o'clock until we close, about 100 will have been in. Usually there are about 50 between noon and supper time; 25 will carry on for the supper hour and another 25 will be on duty for the evening.

"Other organizations do their part too. Monday night the canteen is staffed by women from the Salvation Army; Tuesday by the P. W. S. C. Band; Wednesday, the W. V. S.; Thursday: I. O. D. E.; and Friday night has been open. The older women in the I. O. D. E. Chapters give a motherly touch, which many of the servicemen appreciate. You often see a mother with a son or sons in the services having a great old chin with the boys," Adjutant Graham declared.

Gains Fame

The reputation of the Peterborough Centre has spread a good deal further than people have realized. Many of the men who take their basic training here from the Western and Eastern parts of Canada, who are too far away to get home on leaves, come back to Peterborough and the Centre, which has never failed to provide for them.

Two weeks ago, 25 men arrived from Camp Borden, and had to be taken care of. Adjutant Graham has a list of about 25 homes, where the people have expressed their willingness to entertain the boys for week-ends, and every week she has some call to use it.

A short time ago several R.A.F. boys from Picton arrived. They were not familiar with the city, but had heard about the grand work being done at the Centre and came up to have a look around. Letters come back from many of the boys after they go overseas and from their families, thanking the Adjutant and her canteen workers for the grand care they gave them.

Help Returned Men.

Perhaps the thing of which the head of the canteen is proudest, is the way the men who go overseas remember them. In recent days, three men, returned from overseas and discharged, all from out of town, came to Peterborough to see Adjutant Graham.

Two men from Toronto had taken their basic training here and they had such a favorable impression of Peterborough that they wanted to come back. One lad was in bad shape, nerves shot and couldn't bear the bustle of life in a large city. With no connections or prospects of a job, they came to the Centre. Homes were found for them, and they are now settled here, and have become a part of the community.

At the suggestion of Chief Gimblett, president of the Legion, an ex-soldier is on floor duty every night. This is under the supervision of Albert Hope. They help smooth over any difficulties which may arise and are accustomed to act in an advisory capacity when requested.

Excellent leadership at the top from Adjutant Graham, has done much to bring forth the best efforts from all the workers. She is extremely popular with the service men, who have been delighted with the announcement of her recent promotion, and accepting her as a real friend, they have nicknamed her "Aj."

To all the women who help man the Centre during the week, the city and the troops owe an unpayable debt. It is one of the most important of the many war efforts operating here, and the city can be proud of the job they have done.

CHILDREN ASSISTED MAKING PARIS BARRICADES—Men and women of the French forces of the interior ripped up the paving blocks from the streets of Paris to build the barricades behind which they fought for liberation of their capital before Allied forces entered the city to help them. Scenes like this were common in the battle of Paris.

Westclox Eliminate Toronto In Second Round Of Softball

Westclox took another hurdle in their stride in their quest for the Ontario Intermediate Championship at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon when they turned back York Brass, Toronto intermediate champs 9 to 5 and took the series in two straight games. The Big Bens playing steady ball outhit and outplayed the Olympic Leaguers, got effective pitching from Isobel Bullock and showed power enough at the plate to win handily.

The hitting of Nona Whetung and Joyce Withers was a big factor in the victory. The first base player of the local crew drove in four runs with a triple, a homer and an infield out while the right fielder had three hits in four trips to the plate, batted in one counter and scored two herself.

York Brass who had been shut out 3 to 0 in the first game of the series in Toronto momentarily threw a scare into the crowd when they combined two hits with a walk for a pair of runs in the first half of the opening frame but the first four batters in Westclox's half of the inning put together three runs and after that the Big Bens were never headed.

Isobel Bullock for the Westclox and Vera King, ace pitcher of York Brass, faced each other for the second game in succession and while neither pitcher kept the lid down on the batters so tightly as in the first tussle, the Peterborough hurler had a big edge on the Brassers' red head. She held the Toronto girls to seven hits, walked only one and fanned eight while Vera King was belted a dozen hits, issued two walks and did not blow a third strike past a single batter.

The Feature Play.

Mary Lawrence, tall first base player for York Brass had the feature play of the game when she robbed Nona Whetung of a hit in the eighth inning. The Big Ben's first sacker drilled one a mile a minute down the first base line that struck Mary Lawrence's glove and bounded out again. However, the Toronto girls caught up with the ball before it could fall to the ground and completed a sensational catch.

The Toronto girls held scoreless in Sunnyside game broke through for two runs in the first inning. Marg Schram drew a walk and advanced on a passed ball. Alice Whalley was thrown out by Viola McLean and Mary Lawrence popped to the same player. Marg. Robetrson, however, singled between short and third to score Marg. Schram. She stole second and dashed home when Jaye Smerdon singled on the ground into right. The batter took third when Joyce Withers threw high to the plate. Moss Doane flied to Vi McLean.

Big Ben Tie It Up.

The first four batters of Westclox wiped that lead out in a hurry in the homesters half. Aggie Anderson beat out a bunt, for a hit. Vila McLean singled through short. Aggie Anderson going to third and the batter taking second on the throw. Nona Whetung rifled a triple to right centre scoring Aggie Anderson and Vi McLean and the score was tied. A moment later, Big Bens were in front. Nona Whetung scoring as Marg. Hawthorne was being thrown out by Alice Whalley, Isobel Bullock fouled to Mary Lawrence. Beryl Dobbin singled to centre and stole second but was left there when Barbara Rome flied to third.

The Big Bens increased their lead with a run in the second. With one out Joyce Withers dropped a single into right. Aggie Anderson sacrificed her to second and she scored when Vi McLean was safe at first on an error but was out trying to go to second on the play. The out was not registered until the run had scored.

An unearned marker closed the gap in the first of third. With one away, Alice Whalley was safe on Vi McLean's low throw to first. A wild pitch put her on second and she ran to third when Mary Lawrence rolled to Nona Whetung. Marg. Robertson singled to centre to send the run it. "Tommy" Bullock's nice running catch of Jaye Smerdon's pop near the first base line ended the inning.

Nona Whetung first up in the Westclox half got that one back in jig time by lining a clean homer in the hole between left and centre. Marg. Hawthorne walked but was retired when Isobel Bullock hit into a fast double play. The twin killing averted trouble for Beryl Dobbin was safe on Marg. Robertson's fumble and Barbara Rome got an infield single. Verna Patterson rolled to first.

A Toronto Threat.

That was all the scoring until the sixth when York Brass staged a threat that petered out in some bad base-running. Mary Lawrence opened up with a triple to right centre and scored when Marg. Robertson got her third hit, a single to left. Jaye Smerdon cracked a single to centre. Moss Doane raised a fly to Vi McLean and was out on an infield fly. When the Westclox shortstop dropped the ball Marg Robertston broke for third and was an easy out. Ruth Gartshore struck out to retire the side.

That made it 5 to 4 but Westclox increased the margin in the last of the seventh. Joyce Withers singled to right and advanced on a wild pitch. Aggie Anderson walked. Vi McLean flied to right but a passed ball moved up the base runners and Joyce Withers scored when Nona Whetung was thrown out at first on a hard smash to Alice Whalley. Marg. Hawthorne beat out a roller to short, scoring Aggie Anderson and going to second on Marg Robertson's bad throw. Isobel Bullock rolled out.

York Brass got their last run in the eighth tto make it 7 to 5. Alice Whalley started with a double to left, went to third while Mary Lawrance was being thrown out by Verna Patterson and scored when Babara Rome dropped Marg. Robertson's fly on the left field foul line after a run. Jaye Smerdon flied to Nona Whetung and Moss Doane was tossed out by "Tommy" Bullock.

The Big Bens made it sure in their half. Beryl Dobbin singled into left and went to second on Barbara Rome's sacrifice. Verna Patterson singled to right and stole second. Joyce Withers singled on a slow tap to short, scoring Beryl Dobbin. Aggie Anderson rolled out but Vi. McLean was safe on Marg. Robertson's error. Verna Patterson scoring. Mary Lawrance made a sensational catch of Nona Whetung's vicious drive down the first base line to retire the side.

By FRED D. CRAIG

Westclox girls moved another step along the championship trail here Saturday afternoon when they knocked off York Brass, Toronto intermediate champions 9 to 5 and cleaned up the series with the Queen City team in two straight games. The Big Bens left little doubt as to their superiority for they shut the Brassers out at Sunnyside and cleaned up the second game in convincing style. In the two fixtures they outscored the Toronto girls 12 to 5, outhit them 20 to 11 and made only three errors as against seven misplays for the Brassers. And if that were not enougn Isobel Bullock fanned 19 of the Toronto team in the two games while Vera King, leading pitcher for York Brass only succeeded in striking out one of the Big Bens in the series. The visitors started off Saturday's game as if they were going to make it decidedly interesting for they pushed two runs over in the opening frame. But the Big Bens' attack took care of that situation in the second half of the same innings by chasing in three markers and the Peterborough champs made every post a winning one after that. Westclockers played steady ball behind Isobel Bullock's good pitching and their victory was earned.

Now the Peterborough girls are ready for the next round. Left in the running are the Brantford girls who disposed of the smart St. Catharines Tee Pees Saturday, winning in two straight games and the winners of the Stratford Kroehlers-Fergus round. Fergus, a new entry this season, surprised a lot of folk by knocking off the Guelph Coronettes. Kroehlers are the team who eliminated the Big Bens last season but since then they have lost their crack battery and also their star shortstop Betty Appel whose hitting and fielding were a big factor in the defeat of the Westclox a year ago. Greta Harmer, their second string pitcher of 1943 is now the team's ace. She is the girl who pitched the second game of the series last year and Wesctlox had her all ready for the cleaners in the closing stages and she had to be yanked. The Big Bens are playing good ball and should give anything they are called upon to face a real argument. In beating York Brass they eliminated the best intermediate team in Toronto—and they made a real job in doing it.

Local Soldiers Win

Military Training Centre won the series from Kingston Radar over the week-end but it was a real argument. The Peterborough Soldiers won the first game on Saturday 8 to 3 and hadn't much trouble turning the trick, thanks to the wildness of Pitcher Low who passed ten men. In the first game at the Military Training Centre Sunday, incidentally the first Sunday ball game to which the public were admitted in local history, the Kingston team tied up the series by pounding out a 10 to 4 win at the expense of Pete Procyk. The third game played immediately after was a see-saw affair with the result always in doubt and the batters a jump up on the pitchers most of the way. The score was tied three times before the Peterborough team finally pushed the winning run over in the last of the eighth to win 11 to 10. A big crowd saw the Sunday twin bill and they witnessed a lot of hard hitting and some circus fielding. McDiarmid, left fielder of the Radar team starred with some beautiful catches and his grab of Huck Herrick's hard smash to deep left in the first game, with the bases loaded was nothing short of robbery. Harry Morgan also had a great catch in the second game for a game-saving double-killing unassisted.

* * * * * *

The infield fly rule made two ball clubs, York Brass and Peterborough Soldiers look bad in Saturday's doubleheader at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon. It came up in both games and in both cases a base runner ran into a double play because the rule was forgotten. The infield fly rule simply says that when first and second, or first, second and third bases are occupied, before two are out, the batter is out if he hits a fly that can be handled by an infielder, whether the ball is caught or not. The runners are not forced to run if the ball should happen to be dropped, although they may do so at their own risk. The rule was put in to prevent an infielder from purposely dropping a fly and getting a double killing. However Saturday in the girls' game Jaye Smerdon of York Brass was on first and Marg Robertson on second when Moss Doane raised a fly to short and was called out Vi McLean dropped the ball and Marg Robertson immediately moved toward third and was an easy out for a double play. And the very same play came up in the Soldier game. Huck Herrick was on second and Pete Procyk on first with nobody out when Junkin popped to short, and was out on the infield fly rule. Shortstop McVey, however muffed the ball and immediately both Soldier runners took off for the next base and Herrick was doubled out. It is a play that does not eventuate very often and to have it bob up twice in one afternoon is an unusual coincidence.

Play Softball Too

The Montreal Canadiens, who won hockey's Stanley Cup last season, are better than average softball players, says Dan Odette in the Ottawa Journal. The Canadiens, up until they played an Ottawa-Hull all-star team Monday afternoon, had won 29 games, lost only three and tied one in a series of exhibition matches that has carried them to every part of the Province of Quebec this summer. And all the players are getting a kick out of it. They understand that the people who watch them play, and they have played to thousands, are the same ones who have never seen them on ice, but have heard and read all kinds of stories about their hockey fame. "We get just as much fun playing for the fans as the fans do watching us," remarked the sturdy-built Leo Lamoureux, ace defenceman. "And don't think we don't try and win. Each one of us wants to win every softball game. We play as if were playing for the Stanley Cup. Dick Irvin will be glad to hear that for he is a stickler for training, and these games are doing the world of good for us." Lamoureux, who was born in Windsor and formerly starred with the Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, said he has never seen such harmony as that existing between the Canadiens. "The boys are full of jokes, but are pulling for each other at all times. There never has been one bit of jealousy, either on ice or on the softball field," he said. Mike McMahon, who formerly played with Cornwall and Quebec Aces in the Quebec League, Toe Blake and Murph Chamberlain, a product of Shawville, are the butt of most of the jokes.

The Amercian League race is getting hotter all the time and it promises to be a dogfight all the way down the stretch. So close is the struggle at the present moment that the leadership changed twice on Sunday, Detroit Tigers taking over the top shelf early in the day by winning the first half of a double-header from Cleveland on Hal Newhouser's four hit pitching while the Boston Red Sox were knocking off the Yanks 3 to 2 in the opening end of a twin bill. However the results were reversed in both cases in the second half of the double-headers and as a result New York again went back in front. Meanwhile the St. Louis Browns were also splitting two games with the Chicago White Sox and as a result are in third place However only a game separate the first three clubs. In the National League the only events of much interest were the fact that Chicago Cubs finally succeeded in winning a game from the St. Louis Cards and that Mort Cooper of the champs became the first National League pitcher to win 21 games this season when he pitched a six-hitter against the Cubs in the other end of the bargain bill.

Picton R.A.F. Wins At Cricket

The Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club travelled to Picton on Saturday to play a return match with the R.A.F. and lost by five wickets, the final score being P.W. 63, R.A.F. 78 for five wickets. They had won the previous match by 114 to 87.

The losers batted first and thanks to a fine partnership by Roberts (18) and Capt. Ketchum (25) and a steady eight by Wild the total reached 59 for four wickets, but the last six wickets only added four and the innings closed for 63. The three players contributed 51 out of 55 scored by the bat. Cox was the best bowler with five for 16.

The R.A.F. had no difficulty in making the runs, thanks chiefly to Coe who followed up his fine bowling with a good innings of 35, not out, and received good assistance from Forbes 19, and Perks 11 and at call of time the total was 78 for five wickets. Dyer had two wickets for 35, Colbran two for 34 and Ketchum one for nine.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP). — Strategy Dept.: In a recent ball game between the Parris Island Marnies and the Daniel Field Fliers, it was Gene Desautels' turn at bat for the Marines against his ex-major league teammate, Chubby Dean.... The Marines had the tying run on second and two were out in the ninth.... Capt. Roy Randall of the Marines decided to do a little master-minding and sent in utility man Mike McNamara as pinch hitter, explaining: "Dean knows Desautels, but he doesn't know a thing about you. Go up there and win the game." .... McNamara whiffed on three pitches and as he strolled back to the bench, Mike commented: "Dean may not have known anything about me, but it didn't take him long to learn."

DURABLE DUBIEL — By Jack Sords

Military Training Centre 32 Wins 2 From Kingston Radar

Pitcher Earl Revoir's single in the eighth inning of the second game of the double-header at the Military Training Centre Sunday afternoon drove in the run that won the ball game for the Peterborough Soldiers 11 to 10, and enabled them to take the series from the Kingston Radar team two games to one.

The local team won the opening fixture of the round 8 to 3 at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon, and the Kingston team grabbed off the first end of Sunday's twin bill, played on the Training Centre diamond, just as easily 10 to 4.

That made a third game necessary and it was a dog fight all the way. Military Training Centre had to come from behind a couple of times, once from five runs back, and it was anybody's ball game until the last man was retired.

Lack of control on the part of Pitcher Doug. Low, who was the starting pitcher for the Radar team in Saturday's game, was the difference between the two outfits in that tussle which was eventually won by the Peterborough Soldiers 8 to 3.

Low issued no fewer than ten bases on balls and his generosity in that respect kept him in hot water. In the early innings he got away with it for the Peterborough team could not come through with hits with men on bases and they left nine runners stranded in the first four frames.

Meanwhile Vollick's single, an infield out and Welch's one-baser to right had given the Radar team a run off big Earl Revoir in the second.

Finally Break Through

Military Training Centre finally broke through with a run in the fifth, and that was the beginning of the end. Procyk singled to short, went to second on Junkin's sacrifice and ran home when Morgan cut a single past short.

Peterborough Soldiers won out when they chased three runs in in the sixth. Revoir started by beating out a bunt and Anderson sacrificed. Low lost control at this stage and walked Mortimer, Herrick and Procyk in a row, forcing in Revoir. Junkin hit to McLeod who tossed Mortimer out at the plate, but Morgan again came through by slashing a single over second, scoring Herrick and Procyk. Chambers rolled out.

The winners made sure of it in the seventh. Tomlison singled to right to open the frame, Revoir again bunted safely. Anderson forced Tomlison at third but Mortimer drew a walk, his fourth of the game, to fill the bases. Herrick popped to first but Procyk cleared the sacks with a long double and came home on a wild pitch. When Morgan walked, Low was yanked and Holder got the side out and blanked the winners in the eighth.

Radar picked up a run in the eighth on Lacroix's double and a couple of infield outs, and another in the ninth on singles by Coker and McDiarmid and Junkins' bad throw.

Revoir went the route for the winners and although he yielded 13 hits, he did not issue a base on balls and was steady in the pinches. Morgan with three hits in four trips led Peterborough Soldiers at the bat. Edge, McVey, Vollick and Welch each had two for Radar.

The teams:

Peterborough Saldiers — Anderson ss, Mortimer cf, Herrick rf, Procyk lf, Junkin 3b, Morgan 1b, Chambers 2b Tomlison c, Revoir p.

Kingston Radar—Edge rf, McDiarmid lf, McVey ss, Vollick 2b, Lacroix c, Welch 1b, McLeod 3b, Coker cf, Low p, Holder p.

By Innings—		R	H	E
Peterborough	000 013 40x—	8	14	1
Radar	010 000 011—	3	13	1

Umpires—Calladine at the plate; Dormer on the bases.

Radar Evens It Up

Radar belted Pete Procyk for 14 hits and played sensational ball in the field behind steady pitching by Keith Holder to take the first Sunday game at the Military Training Centre Camp before a big crowd, 10 to 4. Proceeds of the silver collection were turned over to the British War Victims' Fund.

Left fielder McDiarmid and centre fielder Coker were in the limelight with a series of fine running catches and the former, who is a member of the Radar track team, and is very fast, had the feature play of the whole series in the seventh, when with two out and the bases loaded Huck Herrick got hold of one of Holder's choice pitches and drove it a mile into deep left. It looked like a sure four-run homer but McDiarmid dashed back and took the hard smash on the dead run for a circus grab.

Procyk was hit hard throughout, Radar's 14 hits including three doubles and triples by McVey and Coker.

Holder kept the Training Centre's eleven hits fairly well scattered and he was steady under fire.

Radar Score First

Radar opened the scoring in the third when with one out McDiarmid singled through short and McVey tripled down the left field line, scoring McDiarmid and going home himself on a high throw to the plate.

Nelson Takes Texas Open

By HAROLD V. RATCLIFF
Associated Press Sport Writer.

DALLAS, Sept. 11 — (AP) — Men who made the weary trek along golf's summer trail were on their way home to-day—all except the gold-dust twins of the fairways, Byron Nelson and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who have earnings of more than $60,000 in War Bonds to show for participation in 20 tournaments.

Nelson ran his winnings to $39,334—the all-time high for one year —by grabbing off first place here yesterday in the second annual Texas victory open. McSpaden was runner-up to make his total $25,200.

The next tournament for the professionals will be at Portland, Ore., on November 23-26.

Fred Corcoran, P.G.A. tournament manager, said all tournaments this year had been for the benefit of wounded war veterans.

Nelson became the year's top tournament winner by taking the victory open with an eight-under par 276 for 72 holes. Yesterday's triumph was his third straight tournament championship. He has been 53 under par in the three. For the summer Nelson won seven titles, McSpaden six, and they teamed to win another.

Yesterday Nelson went out for the final 18 holes with a four-stroke lead over McSpaden, both were two over for the first nine but while McSpaden got no better coming in, Nelson racked five birdies to finish the second nine in five-under-par 31. His four rounds were: 69-69-70-68—276.

McSpaden has 286, while tied for third were Ray Mangrum of Beverley Hills, Calif., and Ben Hogan of Fort Worth Army Air Field with 288s.

Clem Dreisewerd, Red Sox, and Oscar Grimes, Yankees — Driesewerd held the Yankees to seven hits and scored winning run after doubling in seventh of opener; Grimes smashed double with bases full to clear bases and give Yankees 4-3 decision over Red Sox in finale.

Hal Newhouser, Tigers, and Lou Boudreau, Indians—Newhouser won 24th game, pitching his second successive shutout as Tigers won the opener; Boudreau drove in two runs with double and scored twice as Indians on nightcap 7-4.

Paul Erickson, Cubs, and Morton Cooper, Cardinals— Erickson held National League champs to three hits and shut them out in opener 9-0; Cooper became first National League hurler to win 21 games as Cards won nightcap 4-2.

Orioles Capture International Baseball Title

(By The Associated Press)

The closest pennant race in the International League's 61-year history ended yesterday with Baltimore Orioles emerging as champions by .0007 of a percentage point over Newark. The Orioles won 84 and lost 68 for .5526 and Newark's record was 85 and 69 for .5519.

An even break with Jersey City Giants, coupled with Newark's double loss to Syracuse Chiefs gave the Orioles their first pennant in 19 years.

Only once before—in 1918 — was the International race so close. Then Rochester nosed out Buffalo .5487 to .5467, a margin of .0011. Baltimore's league-leading percentage is the lowest ever to top the circuit in a 154-game schedule. The lowest all-time mark is Rochester's 1928 figure when 168 games were played.

Red Embree, Baltimore's ace right-hander and league-leading strike-out pitcher, pitched his winning game for the Orioles, holding the Giants to three hits in the 5-0 opener for his 19th victory, tops in the league. The Giants won the second 6-2.

The tail-end Chiefs, behind ancient Hod Lisenbee, won the opener from Newark, 4-1, routing Dutch Hiller in the eighth. The Bears started Lefty Joe Page in the nightcap, but the Chiefs fell on him for four runs in the first frame and the Bears never caught up.

Toronto Third

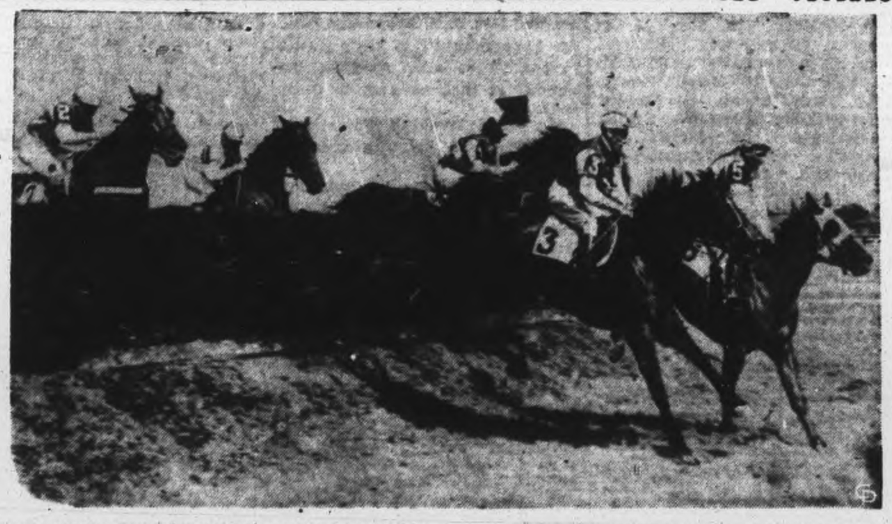
Toronto split with Montreal winning the opener 12-8, but losing the nightcap 7-6. The first game win clinched third place for the Leafs as Buffalo lost twice to Rochester, 3-2 and 4-3, to finish fourth.

The Leafs opened each game with five-run sprees in the opening innings. The first game lead held up, but Montreal countered in the first frame of the nightcap with five tallies of their own and went on to win on Ed Stevens' 14th homer of the season.

Veteran Bill Trotter won his 14th game for the Wings in the opener and Young Bill Emmerich gained his 13th in the nightcap as Rochester took those two one-run games from the Bisons.

Governor's cup play-off schedule: Baltimore vs. Buffalo (four out of seven) first game at Baltimore Tuesday (night).

Newark vs. Toronto (four out of seven) first game at Newark Tuesday (night).



TAKING THE HURDLES AT AQUEDUCT TRACK—Up and over the hurdles in the Harbor Hill steeplechase (fifth race) at Aqueduct, N.Y., go "Good Chance" (3) and "Greek Flag" (5) as they lead the pack. But it's anybody's race yet as was attested by Ahmisk, who with Jockey Walker in the saddle, took the contest and paid a fair $9.75 to win. Burma Road and Invader finished in just that order behind the winner.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 11 —(CP) — To all intents and purposes the much-mooted East-West High School football play-off is still up in the air. Montreal promoters won't touch the idea, the Toronto School Board isn't in favor of the idea, and apparently the Winnipeg promoters haven't sounded out other cities about the matter.

There's a possibility St. Michael's in Toronto may meet the Westerners, about the middle of October, but even that isn't definite. Whoever plays, if at all, some other centres probably will be a trifle provoked about the thing being called an East-West championship.

The idea would be much better if arrangements were made to get several cities into a play-off and get a real Canadian champion when the thing is finished.

Baseball Boosters, Inc.

Enthusiasts of the great American pastime around Hamilton, Ont., have made arrangements for St. Louis Cardinals to operate a tryout camp in their city next training season. Besides boosting interest in the game the move will give young players an unequalled chance to try out under the eagle eye of experienced ball men, and some may get a chance to enter the minor loops.

Incidentally:

Sportsmen all over Canada and the United States have been sending condolences to the family of the late Bill O'Brien, Montreal Canadiens' popular trainer. Bill for years had been on the most popular figures around N. H. L. puck circles .... Even Though Winnipeg won't have a civilian football team this fall, Regina Rough Riders are determined to carry on, playing with University of Saskatchewan Huskies to keep in shape for whatever is in store in Grey Cup circles this Fall .... Jimmy Burns, popular sports editor of the London (Ont): Free Press, has left his desk because of ill health, and Harry Eisen has taken over the editorship .... For the next three weeks Sports Snaps will do a little cross-country travelling. Canadian Press staff men from Halifax to Vancouver will act as guest columnists, giving you sport gossip right from the horse's mouth.

Belleville Wins At Toronto In Softball

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—(CP). — Sixteen year old Don Boyle's superb pitching, coupled with fine fielding and batting, guided the Belleville St. Michael's Squirers to a five-three victory over Toronto Carltons here Saturday, to win the first of a best-of-three semi-final series in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association playdowns.

Winner of this current series will play off with the victors of a similar best-of-three series between two teams from Hamilton and Windsor, Ont., for the junior championship of the Association.

Sports Writers Enjoy Golf

OSHAWA, Sept. 11.—(CP).—Ivan Miller of the Hamilton Spectator yesterday won the Toronto St. Andrew's Golf and Country Club trophy with the low gross score at the ninth annual golf tournament of the Ontario Sports Writers' Association. Miller had a gross of 97 on the Oshawa golf club 18-hole course.

Fred Thompson of the Kitchener Record won the Canadian Pacific Railway officials' prize for low net score with 74. Bob Garden of the Toronto Star won the Hamilton Spectator trophy with the second gross score of 92, and the Hamilton Spectator Reserve trophy was won by Tommy Moore of the Spectator with the second net score. Moore's 74 put him in a tie with Thompson on the score, but the latter was awarded the prize because of a one-stroke advantage on the last hole.

Major C. W. McQueen, on leave of absence from the Toronto Globe and Mail, won the prize for low net on the first nine holes with 35, and Vic McKenty, formerly of the Kitchener Record, won the prize for the net on the second nine holes with 40.

Following the golf tournament, the sports writers were guests of R. S. McLaughlin for dinner.

Yankees Retain Top Spot Tigers Second

By JOE RICHELER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Winning the close ones has enabled New York Yankees to take possession of the top rung in the hot American League scramble. Including yesterday's night-cap 4-3 victory over Boston Red Sox, the McCarthymen boast a record of 33 one-run decisions against 18 such defeats.

The Yanks temporarily lost their first-place hold to Detroit Tigers when they dropped the opener to rookie Clem Dreisewerd and the Red Sox, 3-2. By winning the second game, the Yankees regained the lead as both the Tigers and St. Louis Browns divided their twin-bills, leaving the Bengals still a half-game behind and the Browns in third place, one game away. The Red Sox are three lengths off the pace.

But for the poor showing in long games, the Browns would still be leading the league. Yesterday's 3-2, 11-inning defeat by the White Sox in the night-cap after having won the opener, 6-2, kept the Brownies from deadlocking the lead. It marked their 12th extra-inning loss this year compared to six won.

Dreisewerd gained his second victory of the year, both against the Yankees, holding the league leaders to seven hits. Clem won his own game by doubling in the seventh and scoring the deciding run.

Another rookie, Mel Queen of the Yanks, won his fifth of the season, limiting the Sox to seven blows in the nightcap, one of which was George Metkovich's single that extended his batting streak through 25 games.

Newhouser Wins 24th

Hal Newhouser spun a four-hitter against Cleveland Indians for his 24th triumph, as Detroit won, 5-0, but the Tribe shelled Paul (Dizzy) Trout from the mound to win the aftermath, 7-4.

Nelson Potter became the first Brownie hurler to win 15 games when he held the White Sox to six hits in the opener, winning 6-2. In the nightcap, a single by Jimmy Webb and Relief Pitcher Orval Grove's triple won for Chicago 3-2.

In the other American League twin-bill Washington Senators twice defeated Philadelphia Athletics, 2-1 and 8-2. Emile Leonard outpitched Jess Flores in the opener and Alex Carrasquel hung up his seventh win in the afterpiece.

Mort Cooper became the first pitcher to win 21 games in the National League as he hurled St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-2 win after Chicago Cubs, behind Paul Erickson's three-hit pitching, shut out the Red Birds, 9-0.

Cincinnati ended its home season dividing a pair of games with Pittsburgh. The Pirates thwarted Bucky Walters' bid for his 21st victory by winning, 7-5. The Reds took the second, 2-0 behind Arnold Carter. Brooklyn and Philadelphia split, the Dodgers winning the opener, 8-4, and the Phils taking the second, 3-2. New York Giants defeated Boston Braves, 10-4, in the day's only single contest.

Omemee Takes Second In Series

OMEMEE, Sept. 11 — (ENS). — Omemee Creamery nosed out the Lindsay Livewires in a keenly-fough game over the week-end, with a final score of 6-5. This win for Omemee gives them 2 straight games in the best three out of five series for the league championship.

Hattie Eakins pitched for the Lindsay team, and yielded eleven safeties, every man on the Omemee team getting a hit. He struck out three, and issued no passes. Stephenson for Omemee treated the Livewires to five hits, struck out three, and walked four.

Williamson, first man up in the seventh, drove a triple, after which the game was called owing to the darkness, the score reverting to the end of the sixth inning.

For Lindsay, Parish and Deyell gathered two hits each, and Green knocked a homer with two on. For Omemee, Williamson and Weir each had two hits, and each of the other players were credited with one. Crawford's hit was a home run with two men on bases.

Students Elect Year's Officers

OMEMEE, Sept. 11 —(ENS) — Omemee Public and High School has opened for the Fall term with three changes in the teaching staff, and with a large enrolment of pupils.

A. D. Campbell is entering his second year as Principal of the High School, and Mr. Williams is Assistant for the first time. In grade nine there are 20 pupils, in grade ten, 15, in grade eleven, 10, and in grade twelve, 6.

In the Public School, the Principal is L. M. Curtis, a former Principal who until recently discharged on medical grounds, was a Captain in the Midland Regiment. Mr. Curtis teaches the 23 pupils in the Senior room, grades seven and eight. Miss Doris Jones is new on the staff this year and teaches the Intermediate room with a total of 29 boys and girls in grades four, five, and six. Miss Bernice Smith is again teaching the Junior room and this year 31 members of grades one, two and three.

Miss Smith has twelve six-year-olds, who are going to school for the first time, namely: Bobby Byers, Teddy Coons, June Crawford, Jean Deyell, Marilynne Green, Marilyn Hart, Beverley Linsdell, Ruth Morrison, Joan Pooley, Herbert Robertson, Bobby Smith and Gary Whitney.

The High School Student body elected their officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Harold Brooks; vice-president, Elva Boate; secretary, Barbara Wier; treasurer, Roy Downing; form representatives: Grade nine, Phyliss Mills; grade ten, Georgette Hedge; grade eleven, Jean Rowan, grade twelve, Donald Grady.

The most important business on hand at present is planning the annual field day which will be held soon.

Soldiers Send Thanks For Overseas Boxes

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 11.—(ENS).—The September meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Gainer with fifteen members present. Mrs. George Fletcher presided and plans were made to send 20 boxes to boys overseas by the last of September. Letters of appreciation for boxes sent at Easter and recently received were read from Kenneth McMahon and Keith Barnard. Following the business session community singing was led by Miss Ferne Gainer and a lunch served by the hostess.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thompson spent a week visiting friends at Hamilton and Niagara.

Miss Agnes Stark of Toronto, spent a week with her sister, Mrs Harry Gainer.

Friends will be sorry to learn that James Gainer is ill in Port Hope hospital.

Robert Montgomery of Chicago, is spending a few weeks at the home of his sister, Mrs. T. A. Skitch, who has been quite ill in Peterborough hospital.

The boys' baseball team plan to hold a dance in Cavan Community Hall Friday, September 22. Proceeds for war work.

Omemee News

Mrs. Ernest Ireland entertained at a trousseau tea at her home six miles east of Omemee, in honor of her daughter, Mrs. William D. Fisher, Omemee, who was married recently. Over fifty friends of the bride were present to see the lovely trousseau and the many wedding gifts, which were displayed by Miss Gertrude Forsyth, Miss Lena Pritchard of Peterborough and Mrs. Thomas J. Pogue of Omemee. A buffet lunch was served, with Mrs. Arthur Beardsmore of Peterborough pouring tea.

Guests at the Fisher-Ireland nuptials held recently in All Saints' Church, Peterborough were: Misses Gala and Evelyn Rogers of Minden; Mr. and Mrs. L. Austin, Mrs. C. J. Austin and Miss Irene McElwain of Kinmount; Mrs. Donald Ovey of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Fisher, Mrs. Grace Wallace, Mrs. P. D. Legeir, Mrs. Norman Spence, all of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fisher, Mrs. Thomas J. Pogue, Miss Marie Ches[illegible] Miss Velma Preston, Miss Isobel Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Smithson Nurse, and Messrs. Edgar Fisher, Vincent Cornwall, Charles Brooks, and Jack Williamson, all of Omemee; and the following from Peterborough: Honorary Captain and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beardsmore, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ireland, Mr. and Mrs. J. Godfrey, Mr. and Mrs. William McQuade, Jr.; Mrs. M. D. Sullivan, Misses Jean McElwain, Lena Pritchard, Jean O'Donnell, Gertrude Forsyth, Isobel Beardsmore, Gladys Young, May Prophet, Susie Dickson, Margaret Robson, Melba Magee, and Messrs Jack McQuade, Clifford Prophet and Arthur Bell.

MAQUI HEROINE — Isabel Townsend Pell, 43-year-old New York society woman, has been revealed as an almost legendary heroine of the French resistance movement on the Riviera. On August 15, an American parachute sergeant and his 16 men dropped 10 miles from their landing zone. Landing in the little town of Tanaron, they fought a battle with the Nazis, captured several, and with three of their own number wounded, were surrounded by an overwhelming number of Nazis. Their rescue was directed by Miss Pell as commander of the Maquis group which came to their aid. The rescue and subsequent post D-Day activities culminated her four year-long saga as a heroine of the underground.

Lakefield News

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Grylls, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Erskine and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Brown and family, have returned to their homes in the village after spending the summer at their cottages on Clear Lake.

Mr. Allen Dawe of Toronto, is holidaying with his wife and son in the village.

Miss Elsie Waldon has returned home after spending the summer at Rice Lake, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. Cheney.

Mrs. H. D. Wilford and Ricky spent Thursday in Toronto.

FIRE REPORT

A small rubbish fire smouldering on Barnardo avenue brought out a fire engine early Sunday morning, but outside of that, the fire department had an uneventful week-end. The little blaze was extinguished immediately, and there was no damage.

REPORTED MISSING

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heasman of Stirling have received word that their son William F. Heasman with the 48th Highlanders in Italy, has beeen reported missing. Mrs. Heasman is a sister of Dave White, 319 Burnham street, and she and her husband formerly operated a store at the corner of Patterson street and Rutherford avenue.

COMPASSIONATE LEAVE.

Wren Marcelle Courneya, daughter of Felix Courneya and the late Mrs. Courneya, who is serving in Newfoundland, was able to reach Peterborough before her mother, killed in a car crash last Monday, was buried. By special arrangement, interment was delayed until Sunday afternoon, although the funeral was on Friday. Wren Courneya reached home Saturday night after travelling since Tuesday.

A POLICE WARNING

There has been so many thefts of boxes used for collecting money by various charitable organizations and service clubs, that Police Chief John Thompson states any person caught will be severely dealt with. Special precautions are being taken in the banks and stores where these boxes are located, to keep close watch on the money, and police have made arrangements so that anyone spotted taking a box will have slim chance of getting away.

D.F.C. WINNER HOME

A winner of the Distinguished Flying Cross, H. K. Stinson, formerly of Lindsay, has returned to Canada for a furlough. His parents, formerly lived at 80 Cambridge street.

PLOWMEN TO MEET

Directors of the Peterborough Plowmen's Association are meeting tonight in the office of F. C. Paterson to discuss the holding of a plowing match this season.

WANT MEDICINE BOTTLES

The Training Centre is making an appeal to the people of Peterborough once more for medicine bottles. Those donating bottles are asked to wash them out before sending them in, and they may phone 3896 or leave them at 272 Lansdowne street.

GETS THREE POUNDER

Carl Corkery, 257 Stewart street, had a lively battle with a denizen of the Otonabee River on Sunday night when a three pound small mouth black bass took the frog he was using as bait at the C.P.R. bridge. In the darkness, Corkery thought he had hooked a small muskie, the bass gave him such a battle.

RETURNS TO CANADA

Severely wounded while on active duty as a dispatch rider in France, Wallace G. Simpkins, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ryall, well known Ops Township residents, has returned home from overseas. In France, two blood transfusions were necessary to save his life, after a sniper's bullet severed an artery in his arm.

1,000 AT SALE

Top prices for cows was $190, yearlings more than $60, horses $90, new oats 61 cents a bushel at an auction sale Wednesday on the farm of Maitland Gardner, Norwood RR 1. A seven-year-old tractor sold for $685. Golden Andrews conducted the sale, attended by more than one thousand men. It began at 1 p.m. and the last "gone" was declared shortly after 6 o'clock.

ARRIVE IN KINGSTON

Five district soldiers arrived in Kingston over the week-end from the European battlefronts. All returning men were given wallets, chocolate bars and oranges as they got off the train. The five were Pte. A. William, R.R. No. 4, Madoc; Gnr. G. Robertson, 127 Green Street, Cobourg; Cpl. G. E. Weese, Brighton; Pte. J. M Fox, Thomasburg and Pte. E. C. Moon of Tweed.

Cyclist Dies Following Crash In City

Fatally injured when the motor cycle on which he was riding crashed into an automobile at Park street and Braidwood avenue Sunday night, Thomas E. Ritchie, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Ritchie, 441 George street south, died in St. Joseph's early today.

A passenger on the motor cycle Marjorie Miles, Parnell street, received serious injuries and is in the same hospital.

The accident happened around 9 o'clock as Maurice Lafave, 300 Braidwood avenue, who had been driving his car south on Park street made a left turn into Braidwood to his home.

Ritchie, with Marjorie Miles as a passenger, was riding his motor cycle north on Park street and as Lafave made the turn at the intersection the cycle collided with the side of his car and the two riders were thrown to the pavement.

It was obvious at once that Ritchie in particular had been injured seriously. The two were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by ambulance, and the boy died three hours after the crash.

The right side of Lafave's car was badly damaged by the impact and the motor cycle was also crumpled.

Pte. C. Downer Italy Casualty

Mr. and Mrs. William Downer, 172 Lake street, who were notified Sunday, that their son, Pte. Clarence W. Downer, suffered severe lacerations to the left arm in the fighting in Italy, to-day received a letter from the young soldier and from his doctor, giving details about the injury.

"Your son was admitted here about 8 o'clock and an hour later was on the operating table. He has a fairly bad broken elbow of the left arm which may end up as a disability, though he shouldn't lose the arm, if all goes well. At the moment it is in A-1 shape and he will be evacuated to a base hospital within the next four days. The wound is good for a trip home, and he may be home for Christmas. He is a darned good soldier and really tough.

Pte. Downer, who has been overseas more than two years, has been given the 1939-43 Star and the Canadian Voluntary Service Medal. He told his father, who will soon be making his ninth donation at the Blood Donors' Clinic, to keep up the good work because he had been given plasma.

WOUNDED SECOND TIME — Pte. Clarence W. Downer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Downer, 172 Lake street, has been wounded in Italy for the second time. He is suffering from severe lacerations to the left arm which he received while serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

BROTHERS IN ITALY — Two Havelock brothers are serving with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy. Pte. Carl Edwards (Left) was reported slightly wounded in action August 27. Pte. Jack Edwards (Right), who served for two years in Newfoundland, was one of the first men to break through the Hitler Line.

Battery Begins Fall Training

The first parade of the 4th (R) Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery for the fall and winter training period will be held to-day at 7.45 hours at the Armouries, and the members are reminded that they should dress in full battle dress, and bring overalls.

It is requested, in view of the fine showing the members of the Battery made at the summer camp held at Pointe Petre, that every effort will be made this fall and winter to make the best possible showing in the training. It is important that all members of the unit be present for all parades.

For the coming season, a syllabus covering every phase of heavy anti-aircraft training has been prepared, and instruction will be carried out in both elementary and advanced training for all ranks.

Members are asked, because of the desire to bring the Battery up in strength, to bring a friend along for Monday's parade, and it is certain that many will be proud to join the unit.

Many promotions became effective September 1. They are: to Sergeant:— —L-Sgt. T. A. Busby, 217 Braidwood avenue; L-Sgt. R. E. Dixon, 367 Armstrong drive; L-Sgt. R. O. Dixon, 25 Kenneth avenue; L-Sgt. G. W. Webb, 698 Charlottee street.

To L-Bdr.: Gnr. G. A. Baker, Parkhill road; Gnr. E. R. Bestard, 267 Charlotte street; Gnr. W. T. C Heard, 146 Park street; Gnr. K. W. Hotrum, 533 Sherbrooke street.

Substance Is Subject Of Lesson Sermon

"Substance" was the subject of the Lesson Sermon which was read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ Scientist in Peterborough on Sunday. The Golden Text, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold" (Proverbs 22: 1). Selections from the Bible included the following from Psalms 104: 31: "The glory of the Lord shall endure for ever: the Lord shall rejoice in his works." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook by Mary Baker Eddy included the following: "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. Truth, Life and Love are substance, as the Scriptures use this word in Hebrews: 'The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.' Spirit, the synonym of Mind, Soul, or God, is the only real substance."

Centralia Bomber Makes Crash Landing

LINDSAY, Sept. 11 (ENS)—A R.C. A.F. Anson bomber from Centralia, Ont., suffered considerable damage when the pilot was forced to make a landing due to engine trouble six miles south of Lindsay, Saturday. The plane struck a wire fence smashing both propellers and ploughed into the field. The pilot was uninjured.

More Girl Students

Girl students at the Lindsay Collegiate are 65 per cent in excess of boys, Principal Keith disclosed Saturday. In other Lindsay schools, it was learned that as the age is lowered, the boys grow larger in numbers, until in the early grades, there are as many boys as girls attending. The large margin of girls over boys in the Collegiate can be attributed to the fact many boys have either gone to work in industries, or joined the armed forces.

SUIT STOLEN

A sneak thief got away with a suit belonging to Thomas Cavanagh, George street on Saturday. The clothing had just come back from the cleaners and Mr. Cavanagh had left it in the back room of his store for a short time. The thief entered the place by the rear door and stole the suit.

War—4 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press)

Sept. 11, 1940—One hundred and ten killed in Nazi raid on London. R.A.F. attacked Berlin and other objectives in Germany. Allied airmen destroyed 177 Italian aircraft in three months' operations in the Near East.

Millbrook Man Given 7 Days

George Harkness, Millbrook, was sentenced to seven days imprisonment in the county jail by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of drunken driving.

As the automobile he had been driving at the time was not his property there was no court order for impounding.

"I think it is a case for the minimum penalty" said Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., explaining that Harkness had been the driver of an automobile which had struck the rear of a parked car on Highway 28 near the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. "No one was hurt and the damage to the other car was trifling, said Mr. McElderry.

Harkness told the court that he had only recently been discharged from the army and that he had been in hospital for a long time. It was only a short time ago that he had recovered sufficiently to be able to work.

Swine Breeders Plan Field Day At Oval

District farmers of the Quinte-Kawartha Yorkshire Breeders Association are holding a field day at Nicholls Oval Tuesday beginning at 10 a.m. With Gordon Stalker president, they have arranged for an exhibit of animals that will be judged in the morning, and will be seen late in the afternoon as carcasses for inspection at Canada Packers.

The speaker for this outing, the first field day of the new organization of swine breeders, will be W. P. Watson of Toronto, of the livestock branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

SLIGHTLY WOUNDED — Pte. Ivan McIlmoyle of Young's Point, who has been overseas almost a year with the Lincoln and Welland Regiment, has been slightly wounded in France. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John McIlmoyle, Young's Point.

Bishop Makes Contribution To New Centre

The first contribution to the Peterborough Memorial and Health Centre, through its general canvass committee, is a personal cheque from Bishop J. R. MasDonald.

In making the announcement today Paige Rowell said that His Excellency expected to be out of the city during the time of the general canvass of the city but did not wish to let the appeal go by without expressing his interest in the success of the campaign for a Memorial and Recreational Centre.

Comments on the selection of the Ashburnham site, on the north side of Hunter street at Driscoll Terrace, by several elders of the city recalled that it is close by the old grounds of the (P.A.A.A.) Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, now occupied by the houses on Cricket Place, the centre of athletic sports in this city for many years. Prior to that it was the playing pitch of the Peterborough Cricket Club, at least sixty to seventy-five years ago. The original cricket teams are more or less forgotten, but later teams included among other deceased, J. H. Burnham, Sam Ray, Dr. George Burnham, W. A. Stratton, Tom Rutherford, Miles Hamilton and others.

The Peterborough baseball team that is still a bright memory with its starring battery of Dan McCabe pitching and Chris Graham behind the bat, won many an engagement at the P.A.A.A. grounds. Other players on that team were Bill Grady, Andy Scott, Jack Sheridan, Art Thompson, Bert Dolan, Wally, Parnell, Jack Conners, Jack Mulhall.

Made City Famous

Several generations of lacrosse players made Peterborough famous throughout the country. One of the earlier teams included such men as Mick Halpin, Joe Begley, Joe Joyal, Frank Packenham, Billy Rudkins, Jumbo Henderson, Dick Kelly who afterwards starred in Montreal, Dr. Yelland, an uncle of Dr. H. M. Yelland, Joe Phelan (the late Father Phelan), Harry Phelan, Harry Neill, Dod Fortye. Officers of that club included as moving spirits Harry LeBrun, W. E. Lech and W. A. Sanderson.

And on a later team were: Dot Brown, Fred Lynch, Bill Borland, Jim and Jack McCabe, Rollie Glover George Lipsett, Bill Galley, Jack Mein, Walter Phelan, Lionel King, Fred Dobbin, Ernie Wasson, the famous Don Hogarth.

Those are incomplete rosters of the athletic teams which made the P. A. A. A. grounds Peterborough's sports centre virtually until the decline of lacrosse set in. The citizens thought nothing then of walking from all parts of the town across the bridge and up the slope to Driscoll Terrace. There was also a bicycle track around the field and races were feature events, recalling such names as Alex Gibson and Bob Fife.

Even Vince Eastwood recalls those days when he used to play lacrosse at the P.A.A.A., but he frankly admits that he did not rate in the company of the stars. It was an exceedingly strenuous game, required a lot of practice to acquire the skill of fast passing and top condition, and Mr. Eastwood remarked today that he was content to string along as a lesser light and supporter.

Peterborough Soldier Wounded Second Time

For the second time in less than a year, Pte. Gerald Turner (better known as Jimmy Higgins) has been wounded while fighting with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy.

Pte. Turner is the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. John Higgins, 247 Hunter street, and he enlisted in March 1940, going overseas shortly afterwards. Before enlisting he drove a taxi for Fawcett, Howell and Stinson. His father, Mr. Higgins, was overseas with the 93rd Battalion in the last war.

No details were contained in the telegram, other than that he was wounded August 28.

Pte. Sidney Luther Writes From Hospital

Two letters from her son in successive hospitals in France and England were received at the week-end by Mrs. Sidney Luther, 57 St. James street.

Private Sidney Luther was injured August 26 in the Canadian advance through France, but the official notification did not mention the details of the casualty. Private Luther suffered wounds chest, leg and arm, but was able to write from a hospital in France, and subsequently from England cheerfully assuring that he was getting along well. He was in action with the Calgary Highlanders, and was hit by shrapnel from a Hun bomb.

REPORTED WOUNDED — Pte. Gerald Turner, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. John Higgins, 247 Hunter street, who is better known as Jimmy Higgins, has been wounded in Italy while fighting with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Auxiliary Wants Soldiers' Names

So that no Peterborough man or woman serving in Canada's Active Army goes without a special Christmas box this year, the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary is requesting the names and addresses of all Peterborough men and women in the Active Army, either in Canada or overseas. Since all parcels for the men and women of the Army must be mailed three weeks earlier this year, it is imperative that all names be submitted to the Auxiliary before October 1.

Last year's lists are of little value now because many of the addresses have been changed.

However, the Auxiliary is determined that no man or woman from here shall be forgotten this Christmas, so it is appealing to friends and relatives of the soldiers to send in the necessary information such as number, rank, name, unit etc. The parcels are ready to be mailed; all that is lacking is the correct names and addresses.

All branches of the Canadian Active Army are included in this Auxiliary work, and anyone wishing to submit the needed information can get in touch with Auxiliary officials by phoning the following numbers: 5551, 4416 or 7152.

The need for these details is plain; the Auxiliary is carrying on a noble work in providing Christmas cheer for Peterborough Active Army boys. No man or woman from this city will be forgotten by the Auxiliary at Christmas time if the correct names and addresses are submitted before October.

Farmers Make Plans For Annual Meeting

Plans for the annual meeting of the Chamber of Agriculture were discussed by its directors last week. It will probably be held during the last week of November. Some advancement was reported in the spade work for a county committee of agriculture as designed by Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture.

Co-operative Services have already appointed a representative to this committee; the county council is authorized to appoint one, and H. R. Scott, M.P.P., also nominates one, but not more than that number. Total membership may be fifteen.

204 Men Left For Western Harvest Fields

Peterborough's contribution of man power for the harvesting of Western Canada's grain crop of more than 400,000,000 bushels of wheat was 204 men up to Saturday at noon, with 46 others leaving in the next few days to complete the local quota of 250.

W. H. L. Mellis, director of Selective Service, said this morning he expected to have the remaining forty-six under way to the west early this week.

According to the C.N.R. weekly report from Winnipeg, Saturday, "binding, swathing, combining and threshing are in various stages of completion, and if the weather holds good for another ten days all grain will be cut, even in district where only about 50 per cent of the cutting has now been done. Yields are turning out well, although there is some bleaching, lodging by rains and bran frost in the north. Some of the district in southern Manitoba report excellent yields, while in other areas of the province the output is less than was expected.

Returns are heavy in the Prince Albert district of Saskatchewan, but frost is lowering grades here and there. Most of the threshing so far has averaged No. 2 Northern. Average yield in the Gravelbourg-Bengough division of Saskatchewan has been around 25 bushels.

Girl Bicvlist Is Forced Off Road

Police are looking for the occupants of a car which on Saturday night forced Doris Cockerill, a bicyclist, into the ditch on Park street north and drove off.

The girl sustained bruises on her legs as the result of this smart-aleck action on the part of the motorist.

According to the girl the car was driven directly at her and when she swerved to avoid being hit, the occupants laughed derisively when she fell from her bicycle on the side of the road. She said that they were still laughing as the car drove off and left her there.

WOUNDED IN FRANCE—A former employee of the Canada Packers Company, Pte. Edward O'Connor, whose wife lives at 591 Payne avenue, has been wounded in action in France August 27, while serving with the Toronto Scottish. He has been overseas since December of last year, enlisting in May, 1943.

Soldiers Know Value Of India Hospitals

The September meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was held in the Guild Room. The financial statement was satisfactory and it was decided to send a generous donation towards the support of a home for 'teen age delinquent girls being opened in Toronto this autumn. Mrs. E. Howson voiced regret at the coming departure from Peterborough of Mrs. W. L. Ferguson, one of the society's most faithful members. Mrs. L. Mitchell sang a solo "Just For Today".

"India" was the topic for discussion and Mrs. M. Chenall dealt thoroughly with its many phases. With a population of over 400,000,000 she said, only about 12 out of every 100 can read and illiteracy goes hand in hand with poverty. Education then seems to be the cure for many of the ills of life and the missionary efforts strive to get in contact with as many groups of people as possible. They endeavor to arouse interest and curiosity among the people so that they may seek information on the Christian religion and ask questions. The sick and the poor are the most easily contacted, she explained.

A nurse, working in a hospital in Eastern Bengal says that malaria is a very serious ailment there as well as small pox. Then too "leeches" are a real problem in this campaign as there does not seem to be any way of escaping them in jungle warfare. They cannot be separated from the body as the sucker is then left behind and a sore forms, theremany of the patients are anaemic because of the blood they have lost. In the surgical section of the hospital most of the patients are men who have been wounded in this campaign and brought to the hospital by convoy.

They are enthusiastic about the arrangements for their welfare, especially when isolated or surrounded by the Japanese. They tell how food was dropped to them in sacks by parachute and how they received their rations of rice, wheat biscuits and meat, no matter how hard-pressed they were by the enemy. The Japanese in this area had poor rations.

The climate of East Bengal is supposed to be the worst of all India, because the humidity is so great, she said. About every 12 years a Hindu festival is held on the banks of the Ganges River, conducted like a huge fair. As many as 3,000,000 pilgrims attend and have with them vessels in which they carry home some of the supposedly sacred water from the river.

Rev. Mr. Newton closed the meeting with the benediction.

Peoples-Keene Vows Pledged

HAVELOCK, Sept. 11 —(ENS)— The home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Keene, Belmont Township, decorated with flowers and pink and white streamers, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when their daughter, Alma Pearl Keene was united in marriage to Robert J. Peoples, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Peoples of Belmont Township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson of Havelock United Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length gown of white silk jersey with corsage of American Beauty roses and white accessories.

Miss Lottie Keene, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a gown of flowered sheer with corsage of American Beauty roses and white accessories. William Peoples brother of the groom was best man. The wedding music was played by Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson who also sang "Oh Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held and buffet luncheon served, the bride's mother receiving in a black gown with white trimmings. She was assisted by the groom's sister, Mrs. M. Dunlop, attired in a black silk costume.

Later the couple left on a short honeymoon trip and on their return will reside on the groom's farm in Belmont Township.

Among the guests were: Mrs. B. Shortely, and Miss Dorothy Smith of Peterborough: Mr. and Mrs. H. Leavitt, of Belleville; Miss Reta Gardiner of Norwood: Mrs. Fletcher Wildman of Trent River and Misses Helen Smith and Fern McArthur of Havelock.

PARIS SHOES — Although governmental regulations have forbidden the manufacture of multi-tone footwear in Canada and the United States for some time, Paris, under the heel of the Nazis, managed to keep its ultra-smart footwear for ladies as topnotch as it was in the pre-war days. Above are examples of Parisian footwear found by the liberators. Top, a pair of high court shoes of suede with patent leather toe piece studded with pearls and brilliants which form a crown at the instep. Centre, a smart show in red, white and blue patent leather, trimmed with gold piping. Lower, blue suede evening shoes with red and white trimming simulating the Union Jack, with aigrette feathers for decoration.

Corona Hanbidge Honored With Showers

Prior to her marriage to Kenneth Savigny, which takes place on September 16 at her home in Otonabee, Miss Corona Hanbidge, popular young teacher, has been entertained on several occasions by friends and neighbors.

About 50 friends from Bailieboro gathered at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. W. Dawson, for a miscellaneous shower in her honor, and after she had been presented with an address and had opened her gifts, refreshments were served.

A number of her former pupils from Confederation school gathered at the home of Miss Rosemarie McCall, Park street, to honor her at a miscellaneous shower. Novel decorations were carried out in pink and white, and after the bride-elect had opened her gifts, the group adjourned for refreshments, which took the form of a weiner roast. Those present included Misses June Bullied, Rosaline Flynn, Lois Scrace, Noreen Delong, Dorothy Hotston, Patricia Nixon, Joan Monks, Beverly Watkiss, Jean Green, Carolee Ferguson, Donna Bristoe and Margaret Freeman.

Mrs. T. Sargent, aunt of the bride-elect, was hostess recently for a crystal shower at her home, Sherbrooke street. During a social evening, Miss Hanbidge was presented with half a dozen goblets, plates and sherbets, and refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughters, Misses Grace and Mrytle Sargent. Those who contributed toward the gift included Misses Edith Preston, Rene Ruth, L. Deyell, Myrtle Sargent, Jean Hanbidge, Olive Marshall, Dorothy Harrison, Grace Sargent. Mesdames G. McGregor, J. Finnie, H. Taylor, M. Woods, E. McCulloch, E. Hubel, H. Rehill, E. Hanbidge, S. Harrison, G. Carson, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Hanbidge.

Miss Laura Whittington of Stewart Hall, entertained at a shower in honor of the bride-elect, and all her girl friends in her neighborhood were present. Miss Hanbidge was presented with a set of flame ware on behalf of the group. Following an evening spent in contests, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. S. Whittington. Those present included Misses Elaine Savigny, Lillian Patterson, Joan Sutton, Doreen Hutchinson, Marion Patterson, Mina Stewart, Mary Matchett, Edith Thorn, Arlene Morrison, Phyllis Hutchison, Shirley Hutchison, Addie Johnston, Glenn Hutchison, Betty Stewart, Doris Savigny, Mary Morrison and Mesdames J. Dawson, A. Thorn, W. Lee, M. Hutchison, M. Deyell, D. Stewart, H. Chambers, M. Harper, M. Johnston, F. Whittington, R. Dawson, A. Thompson, J. Deyell, C. Whittington and W. Beaith.

Mrs. George Hanbidge entertained at a trousseau tea for her daughter at her home Saturday afternoon and evening. Receiving with the hostess and bride-elect was the groom's mother, Mrs. Gordon Savigny. Miss Rosemarie McCall was at the door, and Mrs. H. Dawson directed the guests to the tea room. Mrs. Ernest Thompson was in charge of arrangements, and she and Miss Helen Savigny supervised the floral decorations for the various rooms.

The tea table was centred with a bouquet of pink and white larkspur flanked with matching tapers, and the room was also decorated in pink and white larkspur. Pouring tea in the afternoon were Mrs. D. Hutchinson, grandmother of the groom, Mrs. W. Dawson, grandmother of the bride-elect, Mrs. T. Sargent, aunt of the bride-elect, and Mrs. A. Weames. In the evening, Miss E. Garbutt and Miss Margaret White presided at the tea table. Tea room assistants in the afternoon were Mesdames R. Stewart, D. Deyell, and S. Dawson and Misses Pauline O'Donnell, Mina Stewart and Grace Sargent. Assisting in the evening were Misses Doris Savigny, Beth Stewart, Laura Whittington, Dorthy Harrison and Mesdames S. Whittington and F. Deyell.

Miss Helen Savigny showed the bride's linen in the afternoon, and Miss Betty Beer showed the linen in the evening. The bride's clothes were displayed by Mrs. J. Lee during the afternoon, and Miss Pauline O'Donnell was in charge in the evening.

DAY DREAMS CAUSE NAGGING
Women's Fatal Passion Makes Disagreeable Wives When Husbands' Means Are Small

DEAR MISS DIX: Why are so many wives naggers Do you think that the reason is that they are disillusioned and resentful about marriage because it doesn't come up to their expectations of luxury and ease? Do you think it is because, even though they knew they were marrying $25-a-week-men, they somehow deceived themselves into believing they would be able to wear mink coats and spend their time at the movies ever afterwards?

A DISGUSTED HUSBAND

Girls Can't Stand Reality

ANSWER: Undoubtedly women's fatal passion for living in their day dreams is largely responsible for their making disagreeable wives. They had pictured themselves as marrying Fairy Princes who would spend their time making passionate love to them in the lap of luxury, and when they found they had to live in a four-room apartment instead of an ivory tower and had husbands who took them for granted, they couldn't take it. And they visited their disappointment on the unfortunate men who were married to them by nagging the life out of them.

But not all the naggers are the frustrated wives. There are women who are just born to rule, or ruin. They were tyrants in the cradle and their last word will be telling everybody about what to do about the funeral. The men who are married to them either have to give in and submit to being henpecked, or else live in a perpetual fight. And for the sake of piece in the family, many a man who is an unsung hero, runs up the white flag.

If there were any way in which men could get a tip on a girl's disposition before marriage and tell whether she would be a nagger or not, there would be fewer marriages, but happier ones.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: We are five girls who are very close friends and now we all face the same difficulty. Just beore Pearl Harbor we met five army officers with whom we fell in love and married. Because of parental objection we kept this a secret.

Now our husbands are insisting that we reveal our marriages and come to them, but the trouble is that one of our group is going to have a baby who is not the child of her husband, and if we go back to our husbands it will expose our double lives to our parents. Also, our husbands will know that we have been untrue to them. We had planned to go to a distant city and get work. There the baby would be born and could be given for adoption and neither our parents or the husband would be the wiser. And if we refuse to go to our husbands, they will suspect that we have been untrue and demand to know why we do not come to them. What would be the best thing to do?

FIVE DESPERATE GIRLS

Wives Must Admit Deception

ANSWER: "Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive." It pays a girl to go straight just for her peace of mind, if for nothing else. The wear and tear of lying and deceiving those whotrusted and loved her gives her wrinkles before her time.

The only way out of you delemma is to make a clean brest of the whole affair to your parents and to your husbands. There is no possible way that you can keep up your deception. A baby wouldn't be taken in by the tissue of falsehoods that you have concocted. Throw yourselves on their mercy and may God help you. You'll need it.

DEAR MISS DIX: My best friend has a little girl who simply leaves my house a wreck every time she comes in it. She is ruining all my furniture. She not only scratches and bangs up the furniture, but goes into the bedrooms, takes all the things out of the dresser drawers and puts them in the drawers in another room so that they can't be found. She stands in the white chairs in the breakfast room and plays leapfrog over the piano bench.

The mother sees all of this and all she says is: "Honey, don't damage the pretty things." But she lets her do it. What can I do about the situation?

ANSWER: You will have to decide which you perfer, your furniture or your friend. The mother will never make the child behave and she will never forgive you for telling her that you don't wish her to bring her little brat to your house.

CHATEAU FRONTENAC AGAIN WORLD WAR CENTRE —Within the massive walls of the Chateau Frontenac and nearby Quebec Citadel, plans were laid over a year ago for the events which this year resulted in the invasion of Europe and its subsequent sweeping victory of France. Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt, along with their chiefs of staff, conferred with such success in Canada's oldest city that now they are to meet again, just a little over a year later. Today's plans have to do with final crushing of Nazi Europe, and the stepping-up of the next great task, elimination of the Japanese Empire as a world force.

Military Training

Peterborough Soldiers got one in the fourth when Mortimer bunted safely, Herrick popped in trying to bunt, Procyk walked and Lacroix singled to centre.

Radar got enough to win the game in the fifth when Edge's double, a pass to McDiarmid, McVey's infield out, Vollick's single and Welch's double chased three runs over to make it 5 to 1.

The winners made it sure with three more in the sixth on Coker's triple, Holder's safe bunt, a pass to McDiarmid, McVey's roller to first and Vollick's double. They added single runs in the seventh and eighth to run their lead up to 10 to 1.

Peterborough Soldiers filled the bases in the seventh and again in the eighth without scoring but they finally shoved three runs over in the ninth. Anderson's single, Mortimer's safe bunt, his third of the game, and an error by Vollick on Procyk's fly, paved the way and a wild pitch and a couple of infield outs sent the runs in.

Vollick with a double and two singles in four official trips to the plate led the visiting hitters, while Doug. Mortimer had three safe bunts to head the losers.

Centre Wins Out

Sunday afternoon's second game, the third of the series, was the only real battle of the three, and it was a fight all the way with the result in doubt until the final out.

Earl Revoir for Military Training Centre and Doug. Low for Radar, who were the starting pitchers in the opening fixture Saturday, battled it out again and once more Low failed to go the route.

This time he was blasted out in the fifth when Peterborough Soldiers hammered him for five runs to tie up the ball game, after Radar had set up an 8 to 3 lead. Holder finished for the visitors, and eventually got credit for the loss, but at that it looked as if he might have hung up his second win of the afternoon if Radar had elected to send him back at the homesters at the beginning of the game.

Revoir took quite a lacing in the early stages but stuck to his guns and eventually emerged a winner, with the distinction of batting in the winning marker himself.

Harry Morgan, Soldier first baseman, had the four-star fielding play of the rubber game when he made a circus grab of McVey's torrid smash down the first baseline for an unassisted double killing in the eighth. Had that one got away it might have meant the ball game for the bases were loaded at the time.

Huck Herrick drove in four runs for the winners, three of them with a long homer and Doug. Mortimer and Junkin each had a double and two singles. Vollick with a triple and two singles was tops for the Radar team, while Lacroix had a home run.

Radar gave Revoir a hot reception with two out in the first, when they came through with five singles in a row by McVey, Vollick, Lacroix, Welch and McLeod, the barrage, with an error sending four runs across.

Military Training Centre got three of them back in the second on one hit. Holder walked O'Reilly and Morgan to start with, and after Chambers fanned Junkin singled to left to score O'Reilly, Revoir's roller was fielded to the plate too late to get Morgan, and Junkin scored on an infield out.

Radar came back with another bombardment. McVey opened with a single through short to start the third, Vollick tripled to left to send the run in and Lacroix doubled to score Vollick. Welch was safe when his third strike was missed, Lacroix scoring. After McLeod had flied out to Anderson, Coker singled to centre to score another run but was out at second trying to stretch his hit. Low also singled and was forced by Edge to end the big inning.

Big Peterborough Frame

That made it 8 to 3 but Military Training Centre fought back to tie it up in the fourth. Junkin opened with a double and Revoir singled to score him. Anderson doubled to left. Mortimer flied out but Herrick came through with a homer to deep left centre scoring three. Procyk singled to left, advanced on a passed ball and scored on a bad throw to tie the score. O'Reilly walked and Low was yanked. Holder came in and put the brakes on for the time being.

Lacroix first up for Radar in the fifth put the visitors ahead again 9 to 8 in the fifth when he got hold of one of Revoir's slow balls and drove it a mile to deep left for a homer.

Holder held the Training Centre off the score sheet in the fifth and sixth, but in the seventh they came through with two runs to take the lead. With one away Anderson walked and sped around to third on Mortimer's single. Herrick's long fly scored Anderson, and when Lacroix tried to get Mortimer at third the throw hit the runner and Mortimer scored, making it 10 to 9.

Radar tied it up in the first of the eighth and would have gone ahead had it not been for Morgan's unassisted double play. Coker was safe on O'Reilly's error with one out and Low singled to score him after he had advanced on a passed ball. Holder bunted safely and McDiarmid walked filling the bases. Then came McVey's bullet drive at Morgan and the inning was over.

Peterborough Soldiers won out with two away in the eighth. Chambers drew a pass, Junkin singled through short and Revoir won his own game by a single on the ground into right scoring Chambers. Anderson rolled out.

The visitors still had a chance when Vollick opened the ninth with a single to centre. He was, however, forced at second by Lacroix, and the latter was an easy out when he tried to steal second. Welch fanned to end the game and the series.

Lacrosse Game Keen Battle

A keenly-contested lacrosse game was played Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park, resulting in a 6 to 0 victory for a north end team under the direction of Ira Dundas, over a team made up of boys from the southern districts guided by "Tiger" Hewitt. A return game is slated for next Saturday, and it is expected a large crowd of lacrosse fans will be on hand to see the tilt. Vert Reynolds of the Lions' Club, main spark-plug in the recent successful lacrosse revival reported Saturday's game to be an exciting battle, and though the south end boys put up a good fight for the honors, the fast north team coasted easily to the 6 to 0 wash-out.

The teams:

Tiger Hewitt: Bill McMahon, rover; Harold Payne, right wing; B. Gardino, defence; J. Byers, left wing; H. MacDonald, defence; B. Lucano, c; N. Carravaggie, B. Aitkens, fowrad. Sub: E. Murdock.

To-night at the Park, a Bantam game between a team from East City and the South districts will be played.

Church Parade Held By Black Knights

The annual church parade of the Weir Royal Black Preceptory of the Royal Black Knights of Ireland was held Sunday evening from the Orange Hall, Brock street, to Mark Street United church. More than 150 members of the order walked in the parade, which was headed by the Omemee Girls' and Boys' Band. Chrystal Chapter, L.O.L., was the women's lodge that joined in the service, meeting the others at the church.

During the service, Rev. E. W. Rowland spoke on the theme, "Hold Fast to Cherished Possessions; Religious Freedom, Justice, and Order."

Representatives from Omemee, Norwood, Millbrook, Lakefield and Blackstock were present, and the Marshal of the parade was Archie MacDonald of Peterborough. Others who took part in the parade were: Mel Holden, Peterborough, Preceptor; H. A. Graham, who headed the parade, of Kingston, Past Master of the Grand Black Chapter of British America; Robert Ritchie, present Associate Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter of British America; J. A. Holden, of Peterborough, Deputy Grand Master of Ontario East; Roland Darling, of Lakefield, Grand Censor of Ontario East, and many others from various districts.

91 Pupils Register At Lakefield School

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 11 —(ENS) — The September meeting of the High School Board was held in the Council Chamber with chairman J. W. Ridpath and trustees A. H. Clark and F. S. Coyle present.

The newly appointed Principal, H. E. Fawcett, was present and reported attendance at the opening of school on Tuesday as being 91 students. Engages Swiss Plane

BERN, Sept. 11.—(CP-Reuters)— An American fighter plane yesterday attacked a Swiss air patrol in the Bernese Jura, it was stated officially here yesterday. The announcement added: "A Swiss machine was obliged to break off combat and make a forced landing. No one was injured."

Greeks At Naples

CAIRO, Sept. 6.—(Delayed). — The Greek government headed by Premier George Papandreou to-day transferred its temporary seat from Cairo to Naples in anticipation of its entry into Athens. Prince Paul, serving as regent in the absence of King George II in London, accompanied the government.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly, wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday

by Martha Logan

Kidney Stew

Savoury, appetizing and, of course, nutritionally tops

Eat liver, heart or kidneys once a week, say Canada's official food rules, and for a very good reason! These meats are particularly rich in iron as well as important vitamins.

Now, many people in the past have enjoyed lamb's kidneys but have never yet tried the equally nutritious and — properly cooked — equally delicious beef or pork kidneys.

EAT THESE FOODS!

MEAT—One serving a day of meat, fish, poultry, or alternates, liver, heart or kidney once a week. Eggs: at least three or four a week.

MILK—Adults ½ pint. More than a pint for children. Some cheese as available.

FRUITS—One serving of tomatoes or citrus fruit or their juices; plus one other fruit, fresh, canned or dried.

VEGETABLES—One serving of potatoes plus two servings of other vegetables, preferably leafy green or yellow. Frequently raw.

BREAD AND CEREALS—One serving of whole grain cereal. Four to six slices of Canada Approved bread, brown or white.

This week's recipe for a family of six is really something. Try it soon!

- 2 beef kidneys
- Flour
- 4 tablespoons lard
- 1 onion, sliced
- 2 to 3 cups diced carrots
- 2 cups tomatoes
- 1 to 2 cups diced potatoes
- 1 teaspoon Worcester sauce

Soak kidneys in salted cold water ½ hour, then drain and pour boiling water over them. Cut in ½ inch slices crosswise, removing tubes and membranes. Dredge slices in seasoned flour. Melt lard in heavy pan and brown kidneys, sliced onion in it. Add tomatoes, carrots and seasoning. Simmer ½ hour. Add potatoes and continue cooking ½ hour. Taste and season as required.

IN MEMORIAM

FLEETWOOD—In loving memory of our dear sister, Helen, who passed away Sept. 11th, 1919.

You are not forgotten Helen,
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory lasts,
We will remember thee.
—Ever remembered by her family.

MILLAR—In loving memory of Arthur Henderson Millar, who was accidentally killed September 11, 1935.

Not forgotten by those who love him,
Not dead, but gone before,
To the beautiful Isle of Somewhere
Where parting is no more.
No length of time, no lapse of years,
Can dim our loved one's past,
For treasured memories hold him dear,
And will while memory lasts.
—Ever remembered by wife and family.

London Majors Take Series From Windsor

By The Canadian Press

London Majors defeated Ford Local 200 Saturday at Windsor by 5-2 to take the best-of-three series of the O.B.A. Senior "A" playdowns in two straight games and by identical scores. Windsor went into a 2-0 lead in the fourth innings when Tommy White was touched for three extra-base hits but Majors turned the tables in the sixth with a four-run blast.

In the Senior "B" series of the O.B.A., Windsor's Amalgamated Local 195, last year's champions, blanked the Terriers at Galt 4-0 in their first playdown fixture, with Gord Wright earning credit for the shutout.

The O.B.A. Intermediate "A" playdown duel between Chatham and Tecumseh became tied up at one game apiece when, at Chatham, the locals swamped the Tecs 16-3, Bill Wagner fanning eight of the visitors.

At Maidstone on Sunday, the local Shamrocks, 1943 Intermediate "B" champions of the O.B.A., eliminated Dresden in the first round of this series with a 6-1 victory after coming out on top 4-3 in the initial argument at Dresden last Friday.

St. Catharines Lincolns walloped Kitchener Rangers 10-2 at Kitchener Saturday to square their O.B.A. Junior "B" duel at one decision each, Pitcher George Garner allowing only three hits.

In the first of the Midget playdowns at Labatt Park, London turned back Windsor Cardinals 11-2.

Guelph scored an easy 18-6 victory in the O.B.A. Minor-Bantam engagements Saturday over London at Guelph.

Welland Atlas walked off with the initial encounter of the Niagara District Senior finals Saturday when Sal Maglie twirled his third shutout game in a row to blank Hamilton 7-0 at Welland.

In the start of the semi-finals of the Nickel Belt Senior Baseball League at Sudbury yesterday, Creighton Mine walked off with a 4-1 victory over Coniston, the winners gathering all their runs in the first innings.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

We have a heavy week coming up, as far as our local bowling activities are concerned. Following is the week's schedule—Monday (tonight). We start the extra series games at 7.00 o'clock. All skips have been notified and there should be no delay.

Tuesday night—Club singles at 7 o'clock. All players are requested to be on hand and play one round. At 8 o'clock, same evening, groups 3 and 4 of the schedule will play postponed games.

Wednesday — Men's doubles tournament choose your own partner—three 15 end games—2.00 per pair 1.30 p.m., with all the entry fee being returned to lucky winners.

Thursday — Continuing of extra series games.

Friday—Big mixed rink tournament with draw from the board.

Saturday — Men's open trebles tournament, commencing at 1.30 p.m.

With six pair from our club playing in the Loblaw doubles, up in Toronto, on Saturday, Geo. Gimblett and S. Williams were the only ones to come home with the money.

They made a remarkable showing in the tournament winning their three games with a score of 60 plus 7 and were placed fourth out of a total entry of nearly 600 bowlers. The pair that won the trophy had 64 plus 2 or four points ahead of our local entry.

Our boys are to be congratulated, they were pitted against the best bowlers of the province. They each received a merchandise credit slip valued at 6.00.

The Saturday night tournaments continued to be well patronized, and we suppose as long as we have bowling it will be that way. It was a nice crowd that came out and they enjoyed the usual three 7 end games.

The winners were—

First: C. Wasson, C. Mowry, Mrs. J. Kingsbury, W. Ashby—skip.

Second: R. Fulford, A. Gibbs, R. French, J. Bennett—skip.

Third: Mrs. Nicholson, G. Tremain, G. Snowden, Dr. C. Fulford—skip. All received war saving stamps.

The playoffs in the American Association open tomorrow night in Milwaukee and Toledo to determine the loop's representative in the "Little World Series." The league title has been clinched by Milwaukee Brewers for the second straight year.

A soccer team of the R.A.F. Navigation School at Hamilton, Ont., went down to a 3-1 defeat yesterday at New York before the American-Brookhattan combined eleven. On Saturday at Philadelphia the Flyers were defeated 6-5 by the Philadelphia Nationals.

One-time pitcher for Detroit Tigers, Toronto Leafs and Montreal Royals, Orlin E. Collier, 37, died at a Memphis, Tenn., hospital Saturday from a heart attack while on a visit there from his home in Arkansas.

Andy Seminick of the Buffalo Bisons in the International League is one of 11 players in minor loops recalled by the Philadelphia Nationals. They will report after participating in post-season playoffs.

A fire which destroyed 13 race horses and a stable at Belmont Park track, Long Island, Saturday night, was estimated to have caused a loss of $230,000. Among the horses which perished was Arnold Hanger's Dit, seven-year-old gelding which had won $87,956 since 1939.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 12

THE SIDEREAL operations for this day indicate quite lively conditions, with much promise for the attainment of worth while objectives. These concern promotion, increased prestige and credit, and many phases of business and professional progress and production, yet the emphasis seems to be on personality, charm, social, domestic and affectional relationships. There may be decisive initiative on these, possibly to offset the antagonism or want of approval from elders or family relations. With discretion and tact there should be definite benefits, with personal satisfactions and happiness. Use finesse.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of progress, promotion, the eventual fulfilment of aspirations and ambitions, after several annoying and frustrating situations, probably from elderly relatives or other family interference, although employers and supervisors are friendly disposed and cooperative. While business and professional interests are under flourishing signs, yet the main activities are focused on purely personal desires, with social, domestic or romantic objectives. These may be happily attained by prudent, tactful manipulation and the safe and sane maintenance of emotional balance. Be circumspect.

A child born on this day may have many diversified talents in business and professional channels, as well as in art, literature an other creative expression.

TWO WAYS TO DEFEND

JUST AS there is a difference in play by a declarer in match point play as against rubber contract or total point duplicate, so is there a difference in that by able defensive players. In rubbers or total point contests, the job of the declarer is to concentrate his efforts upon making the contract, almost without regard to extra tricks, and by the same token the defenders should bend every effort to set it a single trick, forgetting extras. Seldom is there an exception to those except with doubled or redoubled contracts, when the value of one more trick can be very great.

George W. Beynon, editor of the American Contract Bridge League's Bulletin and a famous tournament director, has just brought out a book called "Tournament and Duplicate Bridge," which is definitely the most comprehensive text book on the conduct of such contests, as an aid to those arranging and directing them. In 270 pages, he gives all up-to-date movements, scoring methods and laws for all sizes and kinds of real competitions, without once suggesting what you should bid or play in a given spot.

The book is for the official, not the player, and makes clear the differences between the two basic kinds of scoring—cumulative, in which you add your contract points on all hands and then subtract those of opponents to get the net, and match point, in which you are merely trying to win a deal, a small margin being as good as a large one.

The hand above illustrates the difference. South won the spade K lead, ruffed the 6 with the dummy's club Q and led the heart 6. East won with the K and switched to the spade 4. South ruffed, took the club A and K, led to the diamond A and offered the diamond K. East slipped again, discarding a spade. When the Q was led, he ruffed with his club J, but the heart 9 was discarded on this, making the contract safe. East explained that his purpose in not following his heart K with the A, and in not ruffing the second diamond, was to try to set the contract more than one. But it was total point play, and he should have made sure of setting it at all, without regard to how much.

Canada Sends Christmas Boxes

OTTAWA, Sept. 11 — Canadian prisoners of war in German hands will be gladdened this year by thousands of Christmas parcels leaving Ottawa shortly for Overseas. Details of the shipments have been released at Ottawa this week by the Committee for the Protection and Welfare of Canadian Prisoners of War in Enemy Hands.

This will be the second year Canada's three Armed Services have sent Christmas cheer to captives in Germany, augmenting those of the Canadian Red Cross and other sources. Honorary Colonel F. W. Clarke, Quebec City, chairman of the prisoner of war welfare committee stated that communal and individual parcels reached their destination Overseas last Christmas and were gratefully acknowledged by senior officers in the various interment camps.

Individual parcels contain enamel dishes, cutlery, face and dish clothes, soap, shaving stick, tooth brush and powder, and a Christmas dinner of canned chicken, maple butter and plum pudding.

C.W.A.C. Chooses Gifts

Gifts for the individual parcels were chosen by Lieutenant Eva Cossman (C. W. A. C. of Montreal, secretary to the Welfare Committee "Cheerful colors were selected for the dishes, plate, cup saucer and bowl for p-ychological reasons" she explained. "The dishes and cutlery not only brighten meals for the Canadians but in many cases replace articles they have had to improvise due to shortages in Germany. The tin of maple butter was chosen for its "Canadian atmosphere".

A Christmas card bearing the signature of Prime Minister Mackenzie King precedes the parcels. Its message reads: 'Canadians everywhere join me in sencing to you heartiest Christmas greetings and the best

Name Of Canada To Live Forever In Arielli Area

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

PESCARA, Italy, Sept. 11 (CP)— For a long, long time, last December and early this year, this town of Pescara was "on the books" of the Canadians. Until German parachutists threw a wrench into their plans at Ortona it was part of the plan that they be here sometime in January. That done, Rome was expected to fall quickly because the highway between Pescara and Rome would be available for exploitation.

But the fates ruled otherwise. The front bogged down for the winter for months on end until there was scarcely a Canadian in the area who didn't know the Arielli features like the back of his hand, and Miglianico, Orsogna and Guardiagrele, sent patrols into Crecchio, they did everything but move into those places for keeps.

That job was left for the Poles, who took over from the Indian formations which relieved the Canadians in the spring.

It has been an uncanny experience to go over a land saturated with Canadian interest, yet for the liberation of which, men of another land are credited.

Bridges and diversions built by Canadian engineers between San Vito Chietino and Ortona are nearly all in the process of being replaced by permanent structures. Across the River Moro other Canadian engineers and members of a Canadian graves registration, unit have surveyed out the Canadian military cemetery and already bodies of men who fell in the battles of the Sangro, the Moro and Ortona are being interred in the burial ground.

Rebuild Ortona

Ortona houses inn her ruins 18,000 people, more than she ever did in peacetime. Shell-torn homes are being made habitable, rubble continues to disappear, but it will take years for the rebuilding program now under way to be completed.

A few weeks ago the name of Canada was woven into an Ortona tradition. Every year in mid-July the town recalls that its great cathedral of St. Thomas commemorates the doubting disciple. A silver casket containing relics and a silver replica of the saint's head is carried in procession. While Germans were mining the cathedral last December on the feast day of the saint, the parish priest made his way to the chapel and rescued the relics. Canadian soldiers meanwhile carried on the fight with the Nazis, eventually clearing them from the town.

This year special prayers for the Canadians who died in the liberation of Ortona were included in ceremonies in the badly-damaged church and they will be repeated annually in the future.

From the heavily-mined farmlands of the Arielli Valley, last winter's No Man's Land, casualties are flowing into Ortona at the rate of seven a day—more civilians today than there were battle casualties during the months in which the war settled down there temporarily. In the little civilian hospital of Dr. Mario Tortura, former professor of surgery at Naples University, beds are at a premium.

Only Civilian Doctor

The doctor, sole civilian practitioner in the town, carries on from daylight till dark assisted by a little group of nuns who nurse his wounded and help at his operations—which number as many as 10 and once, even 15, a day. Once in a while an army doctor, Polish or British, as the case may be, with time on his hands, drops in to see what he can do to help. But in the main the professor is alone.

The bulk of the casualties are farmers who have returned to their fields. But infesting their lands are mines by the thousand. Though warned, the peasant doesn't want to, or can't wait for the leisurely-moving Italian army to clear his land for him. Polish and British troops are too busy operationally to help.

A farmer may plow one, two or three furrows and get away with it, But, inevitably he hits a poisoned area and before he realizes it, his oxen and plow have been blown up and he is hurt, more or less seriously. Italian women working in the fields with their men, number evenly with the menfolk among the casualties.

Ortona may not be shelled today, but war in passing on has left a sting that is proving more costly in Italian life now than when it raged in her streets.

Bodies Await Burial

The Valley of the Arielli recalls that here and there, spread over this area of the Jan. 17th attack by the Perth Regiment and the Cape Breton Highlanders are still the bodies of many Canadian boys. The district is heavily mined and for the moment, anyway, impossible of access.

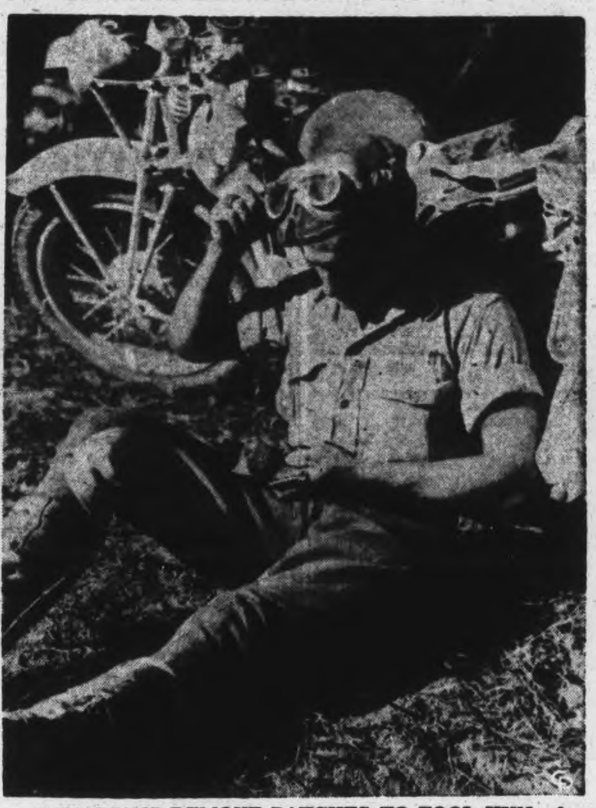
Francaville along the road a bit, has obviously been touched by war, but many towns have been worse violated. Pescara is virtually intact. Her little port instalations are out, of course, as are the station, marshalling yards, water and light plants. But the homes, schools and public buildings still stand.

Well, that's one road the Canadians were going to take to Pescara, the coast road. They were going to use another, too. It runs inland by way of Villa Grande, San Nicola, Tollo, Miglianico and Chieti. Villa Grande had "had it" long ago. Canadians who left it last spring, remembering its destruction, would find it even less distinct a town now.

But worse than Villa Grande is Tollo. Tollo is Italy's unsung Cassino. Tollo tells that Canada, too, knows how to wage total war. Perhaps every type of gun ever manned by a Canadian, or ever under Canadian command, has been fired at Tolo. A whole ack-ack regiment, a whole regiment of tanks, had go's at this little hilltop town with the rest. One memorable day last February the 8th Princess Louise's New Brunswick Hussars, an armored unit, wheeled every tank in the regiment up to a ridge overlooking the town and in a concentrated barrage, threw more than 1,700 shells into it within two minutes. On another day an entire ack-ack regiment shot it up with air-burst shells.

Chieti is dramatic in contrast. If Tollo is the Adriatic's Cassino Chieti, a cathedral town, is the Adriatic's Rome. Capital of Chieti province, seat of the Chieti Archdiocese, this hill-top city has been absolutely spared the carnage of war. Its cathedral is perhaps the only one on the Adriatic side north of Bari, to escape.

And so the road winds down the hill to join up with the Via Tiburtina, the link-up between Pescara and Rome, where but for a lot of bad luck mixed up with some German parachutists, the Canadians in Itay might have been able to make possible the fall of Rome last winter.



CANADIANS REMOVE PATCHES TO FOOL HUN—As a measure of security before the attack on Ancona in Italy, Canadians removed all identifying marks from vehicles and clothing to maintain the German belief that the Canadian Corps was still in the vicinity of Florence. Here on the eve of going into battle, Dispatch Rider Gnr. M. Bahalek, Rainy River, Ont., sews on removed flashes again.

Italy Veteran Pays Bancroft Visit

BANCROFT, Sept. 11 — (ENS) — Private Archie LaBarge, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank LaBarge of Faraday township, spent a few days this week with relatives in Bancroft. Private LaBarge enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in the Spring of 1940, going overseas in September, 1941.

He trained in England up until the time of the Sicilian invasion when he was attached to the vehicle Transport of the regiment. From Sicily he went into action in Italy on September 3, 1943, and was in action on the Italian front until June 24, 1944.

During his term of action in Italy he particularly recalls the battle of the Moro River, in which many of the Bancroft boys took a part. It was in this skirmish that he slid down an embankment from his motorcycle in order to miss enemy shell fire, and as a result was laid up in hospital with torn ligaments in his legs. Private LaBarge now makes his home in Toronto with his wife and two children.

Jack amazed technicians and engineers by assembling the injection carburetor in 90 minutes. Jack was selected about a year ago as a "guinea pig" to work after school hours.

Dorcas Lodge At Havelock Honors Member

HAVELOCK, Sept. 11— (ENS)— The Dorcas Rebekah Lodge, No. 98, commenced the fall activities with a pot-luck supper Thursday evening, with a good attendance, when the officers for the ensuing year were elected.

During the evening the members took the opportunity to honor Mrs. James Diaper in recognition of seventeen years of faithful membership in the organization by presenting her with a fancy pansy quilt and oval mirror as momentos for her new home on Ontario street to which she has recently moved.

The address was read by the noble grand, Mrs. R. McCutcheon, and the gifts were presented by Mrs. W. Woodbeck and Mrs. W. Copp.

Arrangements were also made to hold a card party in the lodge rooms on Friday, September 15, the proceeds to be used for war work.

Canada Sends Christmas Boxes

OTTAWA, Sept. 11 — Canadian prisoners of war in German hands will be gladdened this year by thousands of Christmas parcels leaving Ottawa shortly for Overseas. Details of the shipments have been released at Ottawa this week by the Committee for the Protection and Welfare of Canadian Prisoners of War in Enemy Hands.

This will be the second year Canada's three Armed Services have sent Christmas cheer to captives in Germany, augmenting those of the Canadian Red Cross and other sources. Honorary Colonel F. W. Clarke, Quebec City, chairman of the prisoner of war welfare committee stated that communal and individual parcels reached their destination Overseas last Christmas and were gratefully acknowledged by senior officers in the various internment camps.

Individual parcels contain enamel dishes, cutlery, face and dish clothes, soap, shaving stick, tooth brush and powder, and a Christmas dinner of canned chicken, maple butter and plum pudding.

C.W.A.C. Chooses Gifts

Gifts for the individual parcels were chosen by Lieutenant Eva Cossman (C. W. A. C. of Montreal, secretary to the Welfare Committee "Cheerful colors were selected for the dishes, plate, cup saucer and bowl for psychological reasons" she explained. "The dishes and cutlery not only brighten meals for the Canadians but in many cases replace articles they have had to improvise due to shortages in Germany. The tin of maple butter was chosen for its "Canadian atmosphere".

A Christmas card bearing the signature of Prime Minister Mackenzie King precedes the parcels. Its message reads: 'Canadians everywhere join me in sending to you heartiest Christmas greetings and the best

Name Of Canada To Live Forever In Arielli Area

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

PESCARA, Italy, Sept. 11 (CP)—For a long, long time, last December and early this year, this town of Pescara was "on the books" of the Canadians. Until German parachutists threw a wrench into their plans at Ortona it was part of the plan that they be here sometime in January. That done, Rome was expected to fall quickly because the highway between Pescara and Rome would be available for exploitation.

But the fates ruled otherwise. The front bogged down for the winter for months on end until there was scarcely a Canadian in the area who didn't know the Arielli features like the back of his hand. and Miglianico, Orsogna and Guardiagrele, sent patrols into Crecchio, they did everything but move into those places for keeps.

That job was left for the Poles, who took over from the Indian formations which relieved the Canadians in the spring.

It has been an uncanny experience to go over a land saturated with Canadian interest, yet for the liberation of which, men of another land are credited.

Bridges and diversions built by Canadian engineers between San Vito Chietino and Ortona are nearly all in the process of being replaced by permanent structures. Across the River Moro other Canadian engineers and members of a Canadian graves registration unit have surveyed out the Canadian military cemetery and already bodies of men who fell in the battles of the Sangro, the Moro and Ortona are being interred in the burial ground.

Rebuild Ortona

Ortona houses inn her ruins 18,000 people, more than she ever did in peacetime. Shell-torn homes are being made habitable, rubble continues to disappear, but it will take years for the rebuilding program now under way to be completed.

A few weeks ago the name of Canada was woven into an Ortona tradition. Every year in mid-July the town recalls that its great cathedral of St. Thomas commemorates the doubting disciple. A silver casket containing relics and a silver replica of the saint's head is carried in procession. While Germans were mining the cathedral last December on the feast day of the saint, the parish priest made his way to the chapel and rescued the relics. Canadian soldiers meanwhile carried on the fight with the Nazis, eventually clearing them from the town.

This year special prayers for the Canadians who died in the liberation of Ortona were included in ceremonies in the badly-damaged church and they will be repeated annually in the future.

CANADIAN ARMY CAPTURES LE HAVRE

89 Jap Ships 68 Planes One Day Toll

Sea-Borne Attack On Philippines Costly To Japanese

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 12 (AP)—In the first Allied sea-borne blow against the Philippines, a United States carrier force struck Mindanao Friday, destroyed or damaged 89 Japanese ships, wiped out 68 planes and laid waste to five airfields and other installations vital to Japan's defence of the conquered island.

The attack—announced late yesterday from fleet headquarters here—blanketed important known enemy bases on the island from Sarangani Bay on the south to Surigao at the extreme north. It was about 500 miles westward of any previous carrier strike in the Southwest Pacific.

The action was notable not only for destruction inflicted but for the absence of real surface or aerial opposition.

A 90th enemy ship was blasted off Iwo Jima, in the volcanic islands south of Japan.

Most spectacular of the action was the complete destruction of a 52-ship convoy discovered off Hinatuan Bay on the eastern side of Mindanao, most southerly of the Philippines. In the convoy were 32 loaded coastal cargo ships and 20 sampans. Cruisers, destroyers and carrier aircraft destroyed every ship.

Rake Airfields

The size of the attacking air fleet was secret but a Berlin broadcast earlier said 300 fighters and bombers swarmed over Mindanao.

"The airfields at Del Monte, Valencia, Cagayan, Buayan and Davao were bombed and strafed," Admiral Nimitz' communique said. Eight enemy planes rose to contest these attacks and all were shot down.

Approximately 60 aircraft caught on the ground were destroyed.

Aside from obliterating the convoy, the task force—part of the 3rd fleet—pounced on enemy shipping in Sarangani Bay, Davao Gulf and near Cagayan and Surigao. Their blows resulted in "the sinking or probable sinking of 16 small cargo ships, one medium cargo ship, one patrol craft and many sampans, and setting fire to two small cargo ships and at least 17 sampans."

U.S. plane losses "were very light," and there was no damage to American surface ships, the navy said.

Detroit Woman Murder Victim

PORT FRANKS, Ont., Sept. 12—(CP)—The possibility that Mrs. Austin Smith, 45-year-old Detroit resident, may have been shot with a high-powered .303 rifle by a prowler was advanced today as police continued their investigation of the case.

Mrs. Smith's body was found yesterday on the floor of the bedroom of her summer cottage at this Lake Huron resort 35 miles northwest of London by her husband, a Detroit service station operator. There were two bullet wounds in her back.

Police said that a ring possibly had been taken from Mrs. Smith's finger and that her purse and automobile were missing.

Police throughout Western Ontario are watching for the car, a green Buick coupe bearing Michigan license number HL7973 (HL 7973). Her husband said the purse may have contained from $40 to $45.

There was no sign of a struggle in the cottage and the official theory was that Mrs. Smith was shot as she got out of bed. Time of death was placed at about one p.m. Sunday. She was apparently killed instantly.

Legally Impossible

NEW YORK, Sept. 12—(AP)—It's legally impossible to commit disorderly conduct in a police station, Magistrate Charles Solomon ruled in Coney Island court. Patrolman Henry R. Griffith accused Marjorie Passeau, 35, of Brooklyn, of entering the Fort Hamilton police station in a boisterous manner, refusing to leave, and trying to heave a bucket of sand at him. Solomon said no breach of public peace was involved since the only persons affected were police officers whose duty it was to preserve peace.

Canadians Use Air Bases Across Belgium

WITH R.C.A.F. IN BELGIUM, Sept. 12 (CP Cable)—At least three Canadian fighter squadrons — the Wildcat, Nomad and City of Ottawa—now are flying from mobile bases in Belgium and taking a heavy toll of enemy Rhine shipping and road traffic, it was permitted to disclose today.

They are under command of Group Capt. G. R. McGregor, D.F.C., of Montreal, a veteran of the Battle of Britain.

The Canadians are flying rocket-firing Typhoons and won the honor of being the first to plaster German territory with their rockets when engaged in shooting up German shipping on the Rhine while flying from Belgian bases.

A few days ago the base where the Canadians are stationed was the landing point for members of the Belgian air force based in Britain, who were permitted to fly to their homeland and visit their families for the first time in four years.

The people in the neighborhood can't do enough for the Canadians, many of whom, since being based here, have tasted for the first time in four years ice cream and raisin pie.

Many Refugees

The Nomads, commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Jack Berines of Tothill Alta., reported after their first attack on German targets last Thursday streams of refugees marching toward the Netherlands border from Germany.

The first Canadian Typhoon flight against Germany was led by FO Royce Johns of Saskatoon. The operation left two tugs smoking on the Rhine when they were hit by cannon-fire.

"Everything looked peaceful until we opened up," said Johns. "We had to fly through a curtain of flak, and then we left in a hurry."

"There were a lot of refugees trudging along the road towards Holland with some horse-drawn vehicles," FO. John Roberts reported. "There was light but concentrated flak."

Gunfire Increases Along French Coast

FOLKSTONE, England, Sept. 12—(CP).—Heavy salvos of gunfire along the French coast indicated the battle for French Channel ports reached a new fury shortly after noon today.

Perhaps the Allies were even storming the German "suicide strongholds" in the Calais, Cap Gris Nez and Boulogne areas.

All morning gunfire had rumbled from the French coast. Soon after noon the explosions increased to great rolls of sound, as if ships were firing broadsides or Allied planes were dropping immense loads of bombs.

Unions Out To Beat Drew

C. H. Millard Criticized By Executive Board

TORONTO, Spet. 12—(CP)—The District Executive Board of the Unted Electrical Workers (C.I.O.) in a statement issued here last night asked the leaders of the Canadian Congress of Labor to help formulate a policy of Trade Union political action in Ontario to bring about a coalition of all democractic forces "for the overthrow of the Drew Government."

The board criticized the stand taken by C. H. Millard, chairman of the Congress' National Political Action committee, that the policies of Premier Drew and Premier Duplessis of Quebec "are outside the jurisdiction of the P. A. C." and assured its full support to George Burt, head of the United Automobile Workers Union (C. I. O.) calling for a Liberal-Labor Coalition Government in Ontario.

The statement also criticized the limitations of a 29-point program of the P. A. C. stating that it "fails to provide the basis for political collaboration between the trade union movement and all other democratic forces and groups and seeks to narrow the scope to create conditions which are indespensable in preventing victory of reaction."

398 Planes Destroyed In Two Days

1,000 Big Bombers Hit Reich For Fifth Day

By HOWARD COWAN,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Sept. 12 (AP)—More than 1,000 American heavy bombers attacked half-a-dozen oil plants deep in central and eastern Germany to-day and with their escorts, destroyed 70 more enemy fighters.

Supreme Headquarters announced heavy bombings had cut German oil production 61 per cent since May 1.

After a night of R. A. F. heavy bomber attacks on Darmstadt and Mosquito assaults on Berlin, the daylight American armadas cut into Germany while many hundreds of other Allied planes pummelled the foe close to the western battle fronts. The Americans destroyed 45 planes in aerial combat and another 25 on the ground. American losses were not immediately announced.

500 From Italy.

Another force of 500 or so American heavy bombers from Italy attacked the Wesserberg factory at Ulm where the Germans were building new and secret jet-propelled Messerschmidtt-262 planes. They also bombed an airfield at Lechfield where many of these aircraft have been seen.

In three days, American planes striking from the west have destroyed 398 German planes, 175 of them yesterday by 8th Air Force fighters and bombers.

Pilots reported the roads west of the battle line crowded with German military traffic in retreat.

Many Targets.

Synthetic oil plants at Ruhland, northeast of Dresden, Baolen, near Leipzig Magdeburg and at Brux on the Czech border.

Refineries at Hammingstadt near Heide and at Misburg near Hannover.

An engine plant near Kiel.

An Ordnance Depot at Friedrichstadt near Magdeburg.

The Germans said yet another American force was hitting south Germany from Italian bases.

The enemy lighted smudge pots around some of the refineries to conceal them in smoke palls. Some of the targets were even deeper in eastern and central Germany than those attacked yesterday.

Moscow reported scores of U.S. 8th Air Force bombers landed on Russian bases yesterday after bombing Chemnigz, 50 miles south-east of Leipzig.

The German radio filled European air waves with warnings of bombers and fighters approaching from Britain, France and Italy, declaring in one announcement that 1,300 Allied bombers were nearing Western Germany. It was the fifth straight day of heavy air attacks.

Before dawn, R.A.F. Mosquitos plunged many two-ton bombs into Berlin and R.A.F. Lancasters pounded Darmstadt in the Upper Rhineland in force. The nocturnal

Bouchard Says Freedom Gone

MONTREAL, Sept. 12 (CP)—Freedom of speech exists in the laws of Quebec "but it is far from existing in the habits and customs of Quebecers," Senator T. D. Bouchard said last night in a speech in which he accepted re-election of L'Institut Democratic Canadien.

Senator Bouchard resigned from L'Institut shortly after his maiden speech in the Senate in which he said that a secret order of Jacques Cartier was working in the province of Quebec for secession from the remainder of Canada and the establishment of a Corporate Catholic State. This speech resulted in his dismissal as chairman of the Quebec Hydro Electric Commission.

"When an individual finds himself refused the mouthful of bread necessary to sustain himself and nourish his family if he dares to express publicly his opinions, individual liberty has been sacrificed to the tyranny of those who dominate the masses," he said.

"This oppression within the margin of our legal codes is worse than that created by the laws. Generally, nearly everyone suffers from bad laws, the strong as well as the weak, but there are only the latter who suffer from the moral and material constraint endangered, by the dominant groups.

Pacific War Spotlighted At Conference

QUEBEC, Sept. 12 (CP)—Preliminary discussions cleared away, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill sat down this afternoon in joint session with their chiefs of staff. Stephen Early, the president's press secretary announced at a press gathering that "the real business of the conference is starting." For the second day in succession he emphasized that the second Quebec meeting of the two war leaders is a "military" gathering.

Mr. Early told 100-odd reporters covering the conference that Mr. Roosevelt was very pleased with their reports of the conference yesterday, as he saw them in the papers he had read and in a summary from Washington.

"He was glad to see that emphasis was given to the military aspect and to the Pacific."

Yesterday and this morning, Mr. Early indicated the president and Mr. Churchill met by themselves. The phase now starting brings round-table gatherings of these two with their chiefs of staff, in the big conference room overlooking the terrace in the governor-general's quarters at the Citadel.

Already the chiefs of staff have been conferring among themselves with their advisers. After they see the two top men they will go back for more staff meetings and again report in the big room at the Citadel. The conference as it proceeds will be a series of meetings on the staff side, joint chiefs of staff meetings with the two heads, and then back for more staff meetings while the two heads talk things over privately.

Russia yesterday was ruled out of the conference picture and, by inference, out of any immediate participation in the war against Japan in a message from Marshal Stalin declining an invitation to come here—on the ground he cannot leave his duties at home at present.

Russians Set To Swarm Into Germany

Full-Scale Thrust Likely Soon Into East Prussia

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 12 (AP)—Back in their own lines after a second patrol expedition into East Prussia within three weeks, Red Army units gave the Soviet Command "important information" today for a full-scale thrust into German territory expected to begin at any moment.

This second penetration of the enemy's own land was made across the Sesupe River, which forms the boundary between the Soviet Lithuanian Republic and the area of East Prussia northeast of Insterburg.

Meanwhile a powerfully-sustained Red Army drive plunged into the outskirts of the Northern Polish rail centre of Lomza, gateway city to Southern East Prussia, after overrunning 30 or more settlements.

Outflanked from the west and battered by the attacking forces closing in from the south, the Narew River stronghold 20 miles from the East Prussia border on the south appeared about to fall.

(By German radio account, the Russians also were again strongly on the move before Warsaw and toward Northern Hungary.

(Moscow did not confirm a German report of a fresh Soviet offensive that toppled Krosno, a high- and rail town in southern Poland 17 miles from Slovakia, which at this point is only a 48-mile strip separating Poland from North Hungary).

In the south, the combined Russian-Romanian offensive through the Transylvania hills surged within 40 miles of the Danubian plains.

Marshal Rodio Y. Malinovsky's troops captured 200 localities yesterday, most of them in the Hungarian-annexed section of Transylvania claimed by Romania.

In Romania Russian columns climbed from the Danube Valley through the 8000-foot Transylvania Alps by way of Vulcan Pass and captured Petrosani, 124 miles from pre-war Hungary's frontier.

Word of a Russian junction with the Yugoslav Partisans of Marshal Tito was expected hourly.

The Soviet communique said two German lieutenant-Generals were taken prisoner in Bulgaria, raising to 43 the number of Nazi generals bagged since June 23.

Austria Warned To Act Soon Get Out Of Nazi Clutches

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

State Secretary Hull scarcely could have chosen a better moment for his warning to the Austrian people that the time is almost up for them to revolt against Germany in order to help secure their own independence.

Austria isn't likely to get another chance so favorable as now. Hitler's defences are cracking fast—as witness the crossing of the Luxembourg-German frontier by American 1st Army troops and the entrance of East Prussia by Red Army patrols. The Allies finally have their feet on the Fuehrer's "sacred soil."

Moreover, this is indeed the 11th hour for Austrian action. Mr. Hull pointed out that while the Moscow conference of British, American, and Russian Foreign Ministers last fall promised the little country her independence, it also was agreed that account would be taken of the contribution which her people made to their own liberation. They must take up arms.

Eager to Revolt.

We at least know that the Secretary's message won't fall on deaf ears in Austria, for anti-Nazi ferment long has been at work in this proud country which for ten centuries had existed as a separate state until Hitler enslaved it in 1938. There are many Austrians who are eager to revolt. The question is whether their organization is prepared to strike.

Much of the territory that comes up against Austria's border is either at war against Hitler or is seeking to escape his clutches — Yugoslavia, Hungary, Czechoslovakia. She has plenty of encouragement.

Disaffection has increased in Austria since the Moscow declaration. The Nazis are reported to have arrested many and executed some. It is said 30,000 S S troops were stationed in Vienna for fear of civil war. A month ago Stockholm reported that the Nazis had established five concentration camps for Austrian children between 10 and 15 years of age who had organized into anti-Nazi groups. Apart from these movements within the country, anti-Nazi Austrian committees have been formed in both Britain and America to sponsor revolt.

A Girl Who Waited

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 12—(AP).—Betty Jane Brubaker waited three years for the sweetheart of her school days, Clayton E. White, to come home from the war long enough to get married. When he came home they had no time to plan a church wedding. A rehearsal was in progress when they appeared at a church for their ceremony. The other party agreed to help with the real wedding. The bride-to-be served as Miss Brubaker's bridesmaid. The father of the bride-to-be got in some practice by giving Betty Jane away.

Allies Storm Gothic Line In Mass Attack

ROME, Sept. 12 — (AP) — The British 8th and Allied 5th Armies jammed against the main Gothic Line positions across Italy today "in many places along the entire front" after two-to-three-mile advances through high mountain positions in the sector north of Florence, headquarters announced.

Heavy fighting continued on the Adriatic where Poles, British and Canadians have been slugging within sight of coastal Rimini for a week or more.

The Gothic Line, the strongest and last German position south of the Po Valley, stretches 125 miles across the peninsula and is based on towering Apennine mountains which rise to 6,000 feet and canalize north-south traffic through narrow, easily-defended passes.

Near the Adriatic in the Rimini sector, however, the mountains thin out and the terrain is simpler. A break-through here would put the Allies onto the level Emelian and Lombard plains to the Po, affording opportunities to cut German communications and entrap German troops in the main Gothic Line positions.

Weather Foul

As Gen. Alexander's troops moved forward, medium and light bombers attacked rail and road bridges, gun positions and other battle objectives in Northern Italy. Supply dumps and command posts were struck. Foul weather grounded heavy bombers.

The headquarters communique said the chief advances were "into the high ground north of the upper siege" north of Florence.

One 5th Army spearhead was within 35 miles of Bologna in the Po Valley. Other troops cleared out the provincial capital of Pistoia and Prato and advanced on north-east.

The Germans said the "detaching movements to the Apennine (Gothic) Line were concluded accord-

R. Henry Heads New Air Board

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(CP).—R. A. C. Henry, 60, of Montreal, president of Defence Communications Limited, a Crown company, has been named chairman for a term of 10 years of the new Canadian Air Transport Board, Munitions Minister Howe announced to-day.

Mr. Henry, Deputy Minister of the former Department of Railways and Canals, also was a vice-president of the former Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidate.

Other members of the three-man board are:

Air Vice Marshal Alan Ferrier, 50, Ottawa, pioneer in the development of Canada's air transport system, appointed for seven years;

J. P Romeo Vachon, 44, Montreal, air transport pioneer and former assistant superintendent of the eastern division of Trans-Canada Air Lines, appointed for four years.

In announcing the appointments, Mr. Howe, who has charge of civil aviation under the Canadian Aeronautics Act, said "all three members of the new board have had considerable experience in transportation management, particularly in aviation."

The Board is designed to perform regulatory duties with respect to air traffic in Canada and also is charged with the responsibility of advising the government on ways and means of bringing about a rapid and well-planned expansion of transport by air.

2nd Largest Port In France Capitulates After 36-Hour Bombing Crerar Leads Assault By British Units

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 12—(AP).—Strong British forces of Lt.-Gen. Crerar's 1st Canadian Army today seized the great Atlantic port of Le Havre, needed to feed supplies forward for the massive assault on Germany, as nearly 300 miles to the east two American columns which battered into Germany 70 miles apart were ramming against the Siegfried Line.

The fiercely-resisting Germans at Le Havre, France's second port, were hammered into submission at 11.30 a.m., 36 hours after the crushing British assault under Gen. Crerar began and after a thunderous air and sea bombardment by British and Canadian bombers and British warships.

The war surged into Germany as one United States 1st Army spearhead thrust five miles inside the country from Luxembourg and 70 miles to the north elements of an armored division crossed the frontier in strength, stepping off from Belgium east of the town of Eupen.

Eupen is 10 miles south of the Siegfried fort city of Aachen. American armor burst over the frontier in this area at 6:10 p.m. Monday. Tanks beat forward deeper this morning. The crossing from Luxembourg, hit into Germany northwest of Trier.

Farther south, the United States 3rd Army cracked through the old Maginot Line to Thionville, on the Moselle north of French bridgeheads already forged across that river.

Besides Eupen, the Americans captured Malmedy, 15 miles south and also on territory incorporated into the Reich by Nazi decree.

Seize Fort

To the north, they seized Fort Eben Emael, one of the strongest of the Belgian Liege-ring forts against only moderate enemy resistance, and smashed on within a mile of the Netherlands frontier four miles from Masstricht.

The United States 1st Army's total of prisoners jumped up 15,000 in a week to a total of 169,706, and Supreme Headquarters declared the over-all Allied bag of prisoners for the campaign in northern France now was "well in excess of 300,000." More than 65,000 have been taken in southern France.

A solid front from the North Sea to the Mediterranean was formed by a junction of the 3rd Army and the 7th Army. The British 2nd Army was over the Netherlands border, pounding toward a less formidable section of the line guarding Germany.

Tremendous Gain

First Army forces, driving 40 miles in 48 hours, thrust into Germany northwest of Trier, and apparently were within five to 10 miles of that city, the biggest Siegfried fort centre on the Lower Moselle.

Hard on their right flank, the 3rd Army slashed through the Maginot

KANDY, Ceylon, Sept. 12.—(CP).—After four days of hard fighting, a Gurkha regiment has driven the Japanese from strategic ridge positions in the Mayu Range southwest of Buthedaung in Lower Burma and has repulsed all enemy attempts to regain the lost ground, Headquarters announced to-day. Southern Army Joins With American 3rd

By SID FEDER,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ROME, Sept. 12 —(AP) — The 7th Army, now linked with U. S. 3rd Army troops, to-day thrust columns across the escape paths of large forces of Germans remaining south of them in France.

Both advances cut or threatened highways over which the enemy had been falling back by the gap pathway into Germany.

There were indications that many thousands of Germans thus were isolated from their homeland. In the vicinity of Autun, 40 miles south-west of Dijon, the French took approximately 3,200 prisonres.

Allied headquarters said that afte[r] the 3rd and 7th Army troops me[t] near Sombernon "further northwar[d] advances have been made into area[s] from which the enemy continue[s] trying to withdraw his remainin[g] forces." French forces seized Sombernon, 15 miles west of Dijon.

Churchill, Roosevelt Respect His Counsel

QUEBEC, Sept. 12 — (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King, officially host at the second Quebec conference, again will be a good deal more than that to his friends Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

It is an open secret that the British and American statesmen respect the counsel of the Prime Minister of the senior dominion, who has been in constant touch with international developments in the many years he has held the portfolio of secretary of state for external affairs.

Wants Police To Attend Special School

An officer of the Peterborough police department will be sent to Toronto to attend the Ontario Provincial and Municipal Police School to be held in that city from Oct. 25th, to Dec. 2nd it was decided at the regular meeting of the police commission Monday.

Acting Chief Thompson brought the matter to the attention of the commission in a letter and at yesterday's meeting expressed the opinion that he thought the training in police work given at these courses would be of much benefit to the local department.

The commissioners agreed and there was some discussion as to the possibility of sending a couple of officers to the school. However it was finally decided that one member of the department to be chosen by Acting Chief Thompson should take the seven week's course.

"I would like to see all the members get some physical training" remarked Mayor James Hamilton and Acting Chief Thompson was instructed to see whether such training can be arranged. Lectures on police work were also recommended. The department, it was pointed out had had several lectures from Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry K.C. and one by Corp. Karl M. Lockwood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

A request for winter clothing for the police department was received and the matter was left in the hands of Judge Smoke and Mayor Hamilton, with power to act. The commission had been notified that delivery of clothing could not be promised inside of ten weeks from the receipt of the order.

The clothing required for this winter was listed as follows: 14 pairs of winter trousers, two pair motor cycle breeches, two long winter overcoats, seven short winter coats, two raincoats, three fur caps, 19 pairs of gloves, an overcoat for Acting Detective Stevenson and a hat for Detective-Sergt. W. E. Meagher.

Present at the meeting were Judge S. L. Smoke, chairman, Mayor James Hamilton and Magistrate E. A. Gee.

W. Belleghem Dies Suddenly

Widely known in Peterborough and district, where for many years he has been active in the furniture business and as a funeral director, Walter Lovell Belleghem passed away very suddenly early this morning at his residence, 190 Hunter street. He was in his 57th year.

Born and educated in Peterborough, the son of the late Daniel Belleghem and Hannah Darling, he has lived here his entire life, and his successful business has been carried on from his parents, who operated it before him. His family has been in business in this city for more than 65 years, and is one of the city's best known families.

His hobby and favorite recreation was fishing; there was nothing he enjoyed more than a good day of sport. Many years ago, he married Alma G. Knapman, and their three children, the youngest of which is 14 years of age, are left to mourn his loss.

A man with scores of friends and business associates in Peterborough, he was a member of George Street United church. He also belonged to Nassau Loyal Orange Lodge and the R.B.P. No. 261.

He is survived by a sorrowing wife, a son, Jack Lovell, 14, two daughters, Berta K., and Frances M., at home; by a brother, Arthur of Toronto, and two sisters, Laura, and Mrs. H. T. Prust, both of this city.

The funeral will be Thursday, from the funeral home at 190 Hunter street W., to interment in Little Lake cemetery. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, of Murray Street Baptist church, will officiate.

power, Canada's role in the Pacific war must be greater if Russia remains aloof than if the Soviet Union makes bases and forces available for the last stages of the Pacific fighting.

The usual order of work in any military planning is: 1. Appraisal of the enemy's strength; 2. decision on the forces required to reduce that strength and the method of bringing those forces to bear; and 3. mobilization of the forces.

No one outside the highest military circles knows how far the Pacific plan was carried at last year's conference here, but it is known that in the interval events and circumstances have arisen which necessarily call for review of existing plans, if not the making of new ones to carry farther into the future.

Shift Due Soon.

One of these events is the rapid progress of the war in Europe. A consequence of that is that it may soon be possible to shift both air and naval strength from the Atlantic and European theatres to the Pacific and Asiatic theatres. Canada has both, particularly air strength, and after the United States is the strengest air power bordering the Pacific.

Indication the Canadian Government is ready to furnish the conference with the fullest information on air matters and with a prompt answer to any requests has become apparent. Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, air officer commander-in-chief of the R.C.A.F. overseas, returned from London to be available to the conference.

The Ottawa chiefs of staff of the three Canadian armed services are in attendance, too, and will be here on and off throughout, if not continuously. The air forces, however, is the only service to recall its overseas chief.

A shifting of air power to the Pacific might well mean a greater organization of Canadian airmen into Canadian squadrons. There might well be a change over from British to American type planes, which would be available for replacements and parts closer to the scene of operations.

The staff side of the conference, which meets in the Chateau Frontenac, is believed to be well into its work today. Chiefs of staff from London and Washington and their expert advisers went to work promptly yesterday. They have to do the spade work, provide the plans and show the reasons for them. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt give the final decisions.

The drafting of the armistice terms for Germany is believed to have been done and to have received approval.

Officer Swears Ward Admitted Shooting Bolton

Trial of Charles Ward on an indictment of having shot his neighbor, W. J. Bolton, 623 George Street, with intent of murder about 11:30 p.m. on March 24 last, was begun this morning in the Assizes of the Supreme Court, with Mr. Justice Plaxton presiding.

Evidence of Police Sergeant William Wigg related that he and P. C. John Morrow, after responding to a call to the George Street address where Bolton was found wounded in the back, lying in the lane beside his house, went to the police station.

Ward was already there, and P. C. John Stevenson was on station duty.

"I guess I shouldn't have done it," Ward said, according to the testimony of Sergt. Wigg in examination by Crown Attorney McElderry.

"I asked him what did he shoot Bolton with, and Ward said 'With my shotgun.' I then asked him where was the gun, and he answered, 'In the kitchen, hanging up.'"

Sgt. Wigg said he went immediately to the Ward house and found a single-barrelled shotgun hanging on a wall in the kitchen. Several loaded shells were on a table in the kitchen. They were No. 12 gauge, bird shot, the same calibre as that of an empty shell that was found in the lane, some distance from the place where Bolton had fallen, seriously injured in the back.

The shotgun and the loaded and empty shells were produced in the court.

Identifies Shell.

Police Constable Mesley identified the empty shell as the one he had found in the lane beside the Bolton house.

Ward is being defended by T. J. Carley, K.C.

Bolton testified that he had left his house about 11:30 p.m. for the Quaker Oats mill where he was employed on the night shift. He heard the discharge of a gun, felt a shock in the back, and fell to the ground.

Mrs. Bolton said she had heard the gun explosion and her husband's scream. She had also heard footsteps in the kitchen of the Ward house across the lane, just before she heard her husband's shout and at the same moment she heard a door shut.

Medical evidence by Dr. Robert Young was to the effect that 160 small shot had been extracted from the lower part of Bolton's back. He was in hospital ten days and absent from work six weeks.

Birdshot Penetrates.

The blast of birdshot had penetrated Bolton's overcoat, suit, coat, vest and undergarments. Some of them lodged in a copy of the Examiner which was folded up in Bolton's hip pocket. There was blood on his undergarments. Some of the pellets from that shell were said still in Bolton's body.

W. J. Moorhead, 621 George Street, testified that he heard a report that sounded like the backfire of an automobile He went out to investigate and found Bolton lying on his back in the lane. "I saw Ward leave his house three or four minutes after the shooting. He crossed to the east side of George Street."

The trial is continuing this afternoon.

Civic Hospital Charge Against All Ratepayers

In the present stage of planning for a new hospital, the council decided Monday night on a motion by Alderman Adam Sands, seconded by Alderman James Dutton, "that the proposed Civic Hospital be a charge on all the ratepayers of the city."

The affirmative vote was 7-1. Those who supported the motion which Mayor Hamilton said was a declaration of the Council's policy were Aldermen Bradburn, Ovens, Curtis, Glover, Sands, Dutton and Swanston.

Alderman Tom Mark did not vote with the "yeas", and Mayor Hamilton did not call for the "nays", merely remarking that the motion had carried. Aldermen Jack Sullivan was not present. He is out of the city on business. Alderman Robert Cotton is on leave of absence from the council.

Alderman Sands, chairman of the council's special hospital committee, reported that its discussions had progressed to the point at which it was now felt necessary that a clear decision should be made as to whether the new hospital was to be in fact a Civic Hospital within the full hopes of those who have been engaged in its promotion for months, or on the other hand was to become an investment only by the Protestant ratepayers.

Fire Demolishes Trent River Cottage

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 12. — (CP).—Fire of undetermined origin to-day destroyed a large summer cottage, together with its contents and an adjoining tent at Bradley Bay, five miles south of here. The property is owned by Mrs. S. E. Hendricks of Campbellford. Visitors at the camp lost all their personal belongings. Farmers, fishermen and campers hastily formed a bucket brigade and succeeded in saving nearby cottages along the waterfront.

JapaneseConvoy Takes Beating

KANDY, Ceylon, Sept. 12—(CP). —Pouncing on a convoy of escorted Japanese merchant ships apparently Burma-bound across the Andaman Sea, rocket-firing British Beaufighters scattered the ships over hundreds of square miles of ocean in a 23-hour fight, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

The Beaufighters made 21 separate attacks after first sighting the convoy on September 9, the announcement said, and achieved "the greatest single air and sea victory in this theatre."

"The total force of the enemy was believed to have been at least 15 strong, thus representing the strongest enemy sea force yet subjected to air attack in this area," it added.

None of the Beaufighters was lost in the attack, which raged off the Tenasserim coast far south of Rangoon and at extreme range for the attacking planes.

The convoy, Headquarters said, apparently was sent out in a desperate attempt to reinforce Burma through the semi-exposed Andaman sea route leading to Rangoon, whose renewed use reflects the success of the recent Allied long range air attacks on the Thailand-Burma railway.

fort town of Aumetz so fast its big guns were found intact, and carried the battle on to Thionville. This brought the struggle to or beyond the Moselle along a 45-mile front from above Metz to below Nancy.

The first great battle of Germany was shaping up along the Middle and Lower Moselle.

This drive into Germany, which at least on the first five miles met only moderate resistance, came as a junction of the two invasion thrusts through France gave the Allies a single front extending from the North Sea to the Mediterranean.

Meanwhile the 1st Canadian Army continued to cut through tough channel-port defences on the other side of France. British troops under Lt.-Gen. Crerar's command were reported in one front dispatch to have forced surrender of the great French port of Le Havre.

Reports from Britain's south coast told of heavy salvoes of gunfire heard along the French coast, indicating the battle for the vital supply avenues was reaching new fury.

3,000 Peterboro Men in Services

Net receipts Labor Day for the women's auxiliaries to the three services were rumored at $5,500 in a council discussion Monday night of provision for Christmas presents for more than 3,000 Peterborough men in the army, navy and air force.

A letter from Mrs. A. B. Wilson of the Peterborough Naval Auxiliary mentioned that they had received permission from the Police Commission for a tag day next Saturday. This auxiliary expected to receive $1,700 as their share of the holiday proceeds, but they have something like 1,140 men and boys to remember at Christmas time.

Bags costing $2.50 each will amount to $2,750 to $3,000, Mrs. Wilson wrote, and even with benefit of holiday receipts and tag day it is considered likely that the Women's Naval Auxiliary will have to appeal to the council to make up their probable deficit. Ditty bags for more than 3,000 Peterborough young people in the services will cost in excess of $7,500 to $2.50 a bag.

"And I know the members of the Naval Auxiliary have to do things at times for some families of men at sea," Mayor Hamilton said. "Probably they could go to the Departments Allowances Board, but circumstances occasionally require help from beyond such agencies."

The council decided to leave to Alderman Ovens the detail of obtaining from all three auxiliaries estimates of the funds they are estimating as necessary to complete their Christmas shopping for Peterborough's men and women who are fighting the Huns.

Obituary

MRS. JOHN BRAITHWAITE.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 12.—(ENS). —The death occurred early Saturday morning at Cobourg General Hospital of Mrs. John Braithwante of Alnwick township after many months of ill health.

Mrs. Braithwaite was Clara, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Pacey of Alnwick. She was a faithful member of St. James Anglican church, Roseneath, and an active member of the Women's Auxiliary. As an active member for many years of the local W.I. branch she made a valuable contribution to community progress.

She is survived by two sons, Earl and Edgar, farmers of Alnwick; three sisters, Mrs. Fred Precious of Cobourg, Mrs. Willis Stewart, of Tyrone and Mrs. Norman Henderson of New Liskeard, and five brothers, William, Shalam, Ezra and Roy of New Liskeard, and J. Wesley Pacey of Roseneath. Four grand-daughters survive also. Her husband predeceased her about twenty years ago.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon with a short service at the family residence, followed by a service in St. James church. The pastor, Rev. W. J. Lennox, officiated. Interment was made in the family plot at Merrill's cemetery. Pallbearers were H. J. McCracken, R. McCracken, James Webb, B. Thackeray, D. J. Varcoe and E. Waldie.

blows came after perhaps the most decisive air battle in Germany in which 175 "last ditch" German planes were destroyed by U.S. pilots and gunners.

Forty-eight American heavy bombers and 29 fighters failed to return yesterday.

The R.A.F. lighted great fires in Darmstadt, a chemical industry centre of 100,000 population. Darmstadt is about 15 miles south of Frankfort and 85 miles east of Trier, near which, it was disclosed yesterday, American troops now are battling the Nazis on German soil. An important railway feeding German forces along the Rhine passes through the city.

German night fighters put up strong opposition to the Darmstadt attack, said the air ministry, in acknowledging the loss of 16 aircraft in all night operations—which also included extensive minelaying in enemy waters. Seven German fighters were shot down.

Attack Coast

Supplementing the two night penetrations by the R.A.F. Mosquitos of the British 2nd Tactical Air Force attacked 100 trucks, 50 barges and seven trains in Holland.

Spitfires from the 2nd Tactical Air Force attacked five enemy ships evacuating troops across the Scheldt to the Dutch Islands. Another coastal vessel was beached and a small destroyer and four minesweepers were damaged.

The air ministry disclosed nine heavy bombers were lost on the R.A.F.'s daylight attack yesterday on oil plants in Ruhr a few hours after more than 1,000 U.S. heavy bombers attacked three other refineries.

R.A.F. Beaufighters swept four large German minesweepers off the Norwegian coast with rockets, cannon fire and torpedoes yesterday afternoon. All were set afire and three were left burning fiercely. No planes were lost.

British Spitfires and Mustangs, heretofore used to protect Britain from flying bombs, helped on escort jobs yesterday. They flew with the R.A.F. heavy bombers to the Ruhr and were with the Beaufighters over Normandy.

Mining News

TORONTO, Sept. 12 — (CP). — Stocks sold down in the early Toronto session today, the golds leading the decline. Trading was quite active at times and volume for the first three hours was 403,000 shares.

Losses of 10 to 20 cents were boarded by Giant Yellowknife and Conwest and other golds down 5 to 9 cents were Central Patricia, Negus, Upper Canada, Kirkland Lake, Bear and Malartic Gold Fields. Cochenour Willans advanced 14 cents to 2.61.

Smelters, Ventures, Steep Rock, Falconbridge and Pend Oreille were all soft issues in the base metal group.

Most industrial groups, including the steels, papers, senior oils and utilities were lower. Abitibi pfd. weakened a point. In light trading the western oils eased lower. Home, British-Dominion, Pacific Refineries and Anglo-Canadian were lower.

Col. Drew Visits Wounded Ontario Men

By CHARLES BRUCE

LONDON, Sept. 12 (CP) — The deepest impression a soldier of the first Great War obtains from the present battlefields is the striking power of the Allied armies, Premier George Drew of Ontario said Monday on his return from five days in France.

The Premier, an artillery officer in the First Great War, said that on any road leading to the front there are endless lines of heavy equipment and transport vehicles. After seeing the heavy stuff left by the Germans south of the Seine, he said he had no doubt that, following the breakthrough at Caen and Falaise, the Germans near the coast suffered one of the most severe defeats in military history.

Canadian troops held the toughest part of the whole line, where German armor was concentrated, and full tribute was paid in France to the way they carried out the vital task of clearing the hinge and investing the Channel ports, he said.

"Those who served in the last war can be proud their sons are going quite as well in this one—a war in which weapons used are of a far more intricate and scientific nature," the premier added.

Talks to Ontario Wounded

Premier Drew talked with hundreds of wounded from Ontario, all of whom spoke in highest terms of the nursing and medical attention received. He visited most of the Canadian field hospital units and was impressed by the speed with which casualties are given surgical care in the field and have the advantage of being treated by Canada's greatest surgeons and physicians.

The Canadian repair organization was regarded as perhaps the most efficient in France, he said. Hundreds of tanks are being refitted quickly and he saw some crack units. Senior officers spoke highly of their efficiency and willingness to work long hours.

The Premier flew past Le Havre a few hours after last Tuesday night's bombardment and saw German concentrations in the target area a mass of flames while there were no signs of bombardment in other parts of the city.

He visited fighter squadrons, including the City of Toronto, Sudbury, Sarnia, Calgary, Oshawa and Red Indian Squadrons which had a great record in giving protection over the beachheads.

From Rouen the Premier went last Friday to Paris, where Maj.-Gen. Georges P. Vanier, Canadian Ambassador-Designate to the Provisional French Government, had just arrived. He said Gen. Vanier's arrival, the first of any Allied diplomat, created a profound effect, evidencing Canada's interest in French reconstruction.

Vagrant Remanded

COBOURG, Sept. 12 (ENS)—Clinton Tobin, formerly of Peterborough, who was arrested September 1 by Provincial Police near Gore's Landing, was remanded for an examination when he appeared in police court on a vagrancy charge Monday. He has been out of Burwash for only a short time. Tobin was seen hanging around Gore's Landing and Harwood and his actions aroused the suspicions of residents in that area who notified the police.

Rev. W. P. Meagher Observes 35th Anniversary Of Ordination

LINDSAY, Sept. 12.—Rev. Father W. P. Meagher of St. Mary's Church celebrated the 35th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, Sunday.

Father Meagher was born in Tipperary, Ireland, and made classical studies at the famous Cistercian Monastery of St. Melleray, Waterford. He made his philosophical and theological studies at the Foreign Missionary College of All Hallows, Dublin, Ireland.

He was ordained to the priesthood in St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, Sept. 10, 1909, by the late Right Rev. R. A. O'Connor.

Before coming to Lindsay, Father Meagher served in Peterborough, Lakefield and Cobourg. In each of these places he left an indelible impression of kindness and generosity.

Coming to Lindsay some ten years ago, where he has since been attached to St. Mary's Parish, he soon found his place not only in the hearts of Catholics but of non-Catholics as well.

Father Meagher is an eloquent speaker. He has a keen sense of humor and his "Irish wit" has endeared him to a wide circle of friends.

Cochrane Man Found Guilty of Break-in

COBOURG, Sept. 12.—(ENS). — Wilfred Turgeon of Cochrane was found guilty of breaking and entering the C.N.R. station at the docks and was senteced to three months in jail. He pleaded not guilty.

Thomas Davidson, who was relieving as watchwan at the docks, testified that on August 20 at 10 p.m. he inspected the premises and found everything in order. Shortly after midnight he returned to find that a glass in, the window of the men's washroom was broken and cupboards in the station had been forced open.

Harvey Cooker, employed on one of the local car ferries, stated that he had left a suit case in the dock station on August 20 and on getting it next day found two shirts and a pair of trousers missing from it. Cooker identified the clothing in court.

Constable E. Houghton testified that when he investigated the matter he found that the west toilet window had been forced open. Cupboards and drawers in the office had been forced open also. Outside he found a kit bag with two shirts and a pair of trousers on top. This clothing was later identified by Cooker as his. He then arrested Turgeon.

Chief Carey stated that Turgeon had been asking for his kit bag and that when he took it down to the jail, Turgeon, without openthe bag said that if the shirts and pants were in the bag he had nothing to do with it. Chief Carey testified that he hadn't shown him the contents of the bag when the foregoing statement was made.

"You were a pretty good guesser when you could name what was in the bag without first opening it," said the magistrate in finding him guilty.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Major Eisenhardt Lauds Centre For Building Canadian Youth

A crusade to keep the health of Canadian youth in peace time at the same high standard required by the forces in war, in order not to bankrupt the physical wealth of the nation was the point hammered home by Major Ian Eisenhardt, National Director of Physical Fitness, speaking to an open meeting of the Local Council of Women at the Y.M.C.A. Monday night.

"It is hoped that by the National Physical Fitness Act, brought into effect early this year, to instill in the Canadian people, the eager desire for the utmost in personal physical fitness, so that the enthusiasm for the nation in wartime, may be continued as fervantly in the days of peace.

Outlining a program for Canadian youth, including summer camps, located in our national parks and on the beaches for all children, mass participation in sports and games, and more emphasis on physical education in schools, universities and colleges. Maj. Eisenhardt assured the meeting that it is no "Strength Through Joy" movement, or "just another American C.C.C. plan;" but the opening gun in a great crusade for more sunshine and fresh air for Canadian youth. "There is nothing compulsory—we are not establishing a Hitler Youth Movement," he said, "but the Act does advocate more physical education for the people of Canada, so that we may be happy, healthful and useful citizens."

The Danish-born, world-famous athlete, told the gathering it took a war to really wake hp Canada, as to the medical state of youth.

Quoting figures, he said that out of 1,064,888 young men examined under the National Selective Servire Regulations, 264,600 were placed in medical category "E"—24.8 p.c. of the total examined. "And the United States," with its super-athletes, is in approximately the same position," he asserted.

Benefit By Sports.

"Our boys," he observed, "who have taken 'basic and advanced' training in the Army, Navy and Air Force, tell me they are feeling much better for it. They are tougher, stronger, and enjoy life more. After several months in a training centre, where athletics and sports are combined with rigorous training measures, the boys are completely different people. Recently Col. Rowntree, Chief of the Medical Division in the Selective Service in the United States, said, 'Our American boys are soft and flabby on entering the services.' It is quite true; so are many Canadian boys, but after a training period, they change greatly.

"The boys say they are feeling much better, and they are wondering why a war is necessary to give them the feeling of well-being. Why the sudden care on the part of Canada. There can be no other answer other than we have failed in our obligations to youth; as our material wealth grew stronger, our human resources weaker. We became a sports hero worshipping race, believed the deeds of our few athletes at the Olympics mirrored the entire nation. There were people here in Canada who saw where we were going, but they were the proverbial "voices in the wind." In 1934, Dr. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education in British Columbia, started a physical fitness scheme that met with great response."

Huge Cost.

Maj. Eisenhardt pointed out the cost of illness in Canada annually is $300,000,000, and includes 88,000,000 sickness-days a year. "Doctors and medical men will verify the fact that 50 p.c. of all this illness is totally unnecessary," he asserted.

He said, "Some time ago, I personally toured the country from coast to coast to urge more participation in sports and more physical education in the schools; nothing was done at the time. However, in Germany, Japan and Italy much was being done. Hitler once declared, 'The country that has the youth, holds the future.'"

A Finnish sports instrutor, formerly working in Canada in that capacity, and now with the forces overseas, wrote Maj. Eisenhardt that his impression of the eating habits of Canadians followed along the common theme of a soft drink and cigarette for breakfast, skip lunch, and a sandwich for supper. "While there is certainly a large amount of exaggeration in that," the Major said, "one of the aims of the Fitness Act is to establish a higher nutritional system of food for everyone."

Major Eisenhardt said a meeting of the National Council of Physical Fitness was held in May in Ottawa, with every province represented. Every province except Ontario, New Brunswick and Quebec, he said, signed an agreement to carry out the Council's program, and receive an allotment for the purpose. The sum given for this work was $250,000, to be matched, dollar for dollar by the various provinces, making a total of a half-million dollars. Thees funds were considered inadequate to set up the organization, but a budget of from 5 to 10 millions dollars is envisaged for the future. Although Ontario has not signed the agreement whereby it would receive money for this purpose, it is represented in the Council by Major A. A. Burridge.

Personal Fitness.

The entire question of national good health revolves upon the personal good health of everyone, summarized Major Eisenhardt. "Then, mass sports, which tend to better competition, and festivals will naturally follow. We need good instructors in Canada, and it will take from 5 to 10 years to make our country physically wealthy. Canada's population as of June 1, 1942 was 11,636,872, exclusive of the N. W. T. and Yukon. We have no exact figures as to him many people took part in sports in that year, but from a survey of recruits in the armed forces, one can see that the great majority never indulge in games at all.

Sometimes, one points to the glory that was Greece, but it must be remembered only the free people in ancient Greece played games; the slaves did all the work. Now this wrong has persisted in many countries, and does to-day. I am certain we have all noticed the well-fed, athletically-inclined college boy in straneg contrast to the round-shouldered, aemenic-looking, flat-footed working man. Our National Physical Fitness Act is not going to remedy this overnight; but it will, through the Provincial Government, outline the blueprint for a better post-war living.

Beautiful City.

"You people in Peterborough are to be warmly commended on your work for this Community Health Centre," he said. "I believe you are the first city in Canada to put a definite plan for the centre in writing and as I look over this folder describing your building, I can only say I know the people of this city

Purse Snatcher Given Three Year Sentence

COBOURG, Sept. 12 — (ENS)) — Three years in Kingston Penitentiary was the term imposed Monday by Magistrate R. B. Baxter on Harold White, convicted purse snatcher. White was found guilty two weeks ago on a charge of theft of $1,150 from Mrs. Adelaide Skinner on July 27. Mrs. Skinner told the court that White snatched her purse and fled as he passed her near the corner of Ball and King streets. White was also charged with attempted theft on July 27 of a purse from Mrs. Addie Lingard at Port Hope, and a further charge of theft of a car in Toronto was also read against the accused, who was found guilty on those two counts also. For the attempted theft he received one year in jail and for the car theft he received a year also, all terms to run concurrently.

White, who is 25, is from Camp Borden, and at the time of the robbery here was travelling with 17-year-old Isabelle Smith of Toronto who was jointly charged on the purse theft the charge later being dismissed. The pair were arrested on July 29 after Montreal police in that city fired several shots into their car during an 80 mile an hour chase along city streets, at three in the morning.

"You have spent five years in prison and apparently it was no lesson for you. I considered whether I should give you a reformatory or penitentiary term and I concluded that the reformatory term would not meet the situation. I was at first inclined to give you five years but in view of the fact that you are in the army, I will make it three years. Your sentence accordingly is three years on the Skinner charge, a year in jail for attempted theft of a purse from Mrs. Lingard of Port Hope and one year in jail for car theft, sentences to run concurrently," was the magistrate's sentence.

COBOURG, Sept. 12 — (ENS)) — Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hircock, who received word during the week-end from Ottawa that their son, L-Cpl. Jack Hircock, had been severely wounded in Italy, Monday received a letter from him. Their boy informed them that he had been struck by a fragment of an 80 mm. shell. The leg sustained a compound fracture just below the knee.

Youths Plead Guilty To Taxi Theft Charge

COBOURG, Sept. 12 — (ENS)) — Evans Jones of Hilton, age 20, and Dean Summerville of Brighton, age 20, pleaded guilty in police court Monday to a charge of theft of a taxi from C. B. Graham at Trenton on August 5 and with assaulting Isaac Cook, the driver, on the same date, occasioning actual bodily harm. They were remanded for sentence to September 14.

The only evidence in the matter was given by Constable J. McKenzie, Ontario Provincial Police, Campbellford, who said that he received word on August 5 that two men had slugged Isaac Cook, Trenton taxi driver and stolen the taxi. He learned later of an accident near Warkworth and on investigating it, found that it was the taxi from Trenton that was involved, and he arrested the driver and his companion, who turned out to be Summerville and Jones.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1944

Second Quebec Conference

It is, of course, great news that Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt are conferring in Quebec once again, but there is very little which may profitably be said about their meeting. These two leaders have met no less than eight times since the war began, and never once has any news leaked out of their conferences; we have never known what it was that they were talking about until their plans had been translated into action. That is as it should be. Anything which is made common knowledge in the United Nations immediately becomes common knowledge to the enemy.

We may infer, however, that the Prime Minister and the President are going to talk about military matters, because they have brought their chiefs of staff with them. And there are only two military problems confronting the United Nations at this time which would demand close conference between the Anglo-American leaders. The first of these is the plan for occupation of Germany from the west by our joint forces; the second is the strategy for dealing with Japan when once Germany is out of the way. The President's secretary, Mr. Stephen Early, said recently that Mr. Roosevelt's recent tour of the Pacific war theatre was a preliminary to the Quebec conference, and therefore we may assume that the Japanese situation is the principal matter for discussion.

Whatever Churchill and Roosevelt decide in this matter will be to some extent influenced by the subsequent advice and aid of Chiang Kai-shek. China must play a great part in the final campaign against Japan, and what China can do, and how China can do it, will influence every final decision. And it is likely that Stalin will be consulted on the proposed moves to vanquish Japan; if Russia should decide to act toward Japan as she acted toward Bulgaria, threatening violence unless Japan dropped her relations with Germany, the Pacific war would take on quite a new appearance.

It will be six months or more before we know what the Anglo-American leaders are talking about in Quebec. Their secrets are remarkably well kept. And, as events have proved in the past, they are eminently well worth keeping.

Parlez Vous Francais?

A good many stories appear in the press these days about the adventures of our soldiers abroad with the French people, and in every one of them which we have read so far the cream of the joke appears to be the fact that our soldiers cannot speak French. Probably this is funny, but we doubt if it is as funny as the reporters who cable the stories home appear to think.

Why can't they speak French? It is difficult for boys or girls in Canada to get out of school before they have had two years of instruction in the French language. Why is it that when they need to speak French they cannot even make themselves understood? Two years is a long time to study a language. In that time it is quite possible to master the rudiments of French grammar and to acquire a vocabulary adequate for ordinary conversation. Irregular verbs, and fine flights of rhetoric may be beyond the pupil who has had two years of teaching, but coherent conversation should not be. What is the trouble?

If instruction in foreign languages in our high schools is useless, why not discard it? This would create no real hardship, for people who want to learn foreign languages are generally able to do so much faster by themselves than when they are retarded by classmates who do not want to learn languages, or anything at all. And we have no doubt that the teachers who now give instruction in French, German, Latin and Spanish in the schools would be quite happy to concentrate on private pupils who wanted to learn, rather than upon large classes who do not.

It is, of course, desirable that every man should know at least one language other than his own. But if we cannot achieve this end by our present system of instruction, why not abandon it?

Italian Impudence

Italy, which would like us to look upon it as a reformed nation purged of every Fascist taint, makes the singularly impudent demand that its colonies be returned to it after the war. Count Carlo Sforza, the well-known anti-Fascist leader, made this cool request in a public speech in Rome. He showed some sign of grace, for he excepted Ethiopia from his demand, but his effrontery is astounding, none the less.

Count Sforza seems to have forgotten that Italy was beaten by the Allies in this war, and that the Allies will decide what shall happen to the Italian colonies, probably without much reference to the opinions and desires of the Italian people. Having beaten Italy, we then had to free it from the Germans, and as a few Italian troops are helping in this job some Italian officials seem to have developed a mistaken idea that their country is now one of the United Nations. They are quite wrong; it is only a part of the conquered Axis.

Italy's conduct in entering this war was despicable. Italy boasted that British power in the Mediterranean would be destroyed, made countless assaults on Malta, and fought furiously against us in North Africa. What has Italy done to win any special consideration from us? Nothing whatever.

Perhaps Count Sforza thinks that because he and his colleagues are committed to an anti-Fascist regime all old scores are wiped out, and Italy is due for a new start. But we have learned in our war with Fascist states that bad governments can only be supported by people who are dangerously complacent, if not downright bad themselves. The Italian people supported Mussolini in his brigandage, and they must take what is coming to them. They may get some of their colonies back, or they may not. We cannot imagine that any native people would want to be placed at the mercy of the nation which behaved with calculated brutality toward Ethiopia.

Pink Nets For Fruit Baskets

Last year we wrote about the deceitfulness of fruit packers who put their green peaches in baskets covered with pink netting, thereby imparting to the fruit a deceptive appearance of maturity and toothsomeness. We see that complaints against this wicked wile are beginning to appear in the press once again.

Pink net on fruit baskets is a time-honoured convention, like those little balls of inedible silver plaster which always appear on wedding cakes; there has always been pink net, and there probably always will be. The only thing for the buyer to do is to rip a part of the net aside when the store-keeper is not looking, and examine the fruit carefully. The likelihood is that it will be green.

For some reason which is unknown to us, it has become the custom to pick fruit while it is green, and sell it in that condition; it seems to be greener every year. Probably this has its cause in some intricate merchandizing problem; doubtless it is uneconomic to sell ripe fruit. But some fruit is offered for sale so green that it cannot ripen; it rots before it shows any sign of maturity. And a whole generation is growing up which has never tasted a really ripe peach.

Have we been too clever in our merchandizing plans? Have we rushed Nature to the point where Nature has rebelled? Are we entering a period where eating green fruit will be the normal thing, and delicious maturity will be rejected as dangerous rottenness, likely to cause ptomaine? Perhaps it is so. Certainly it is a sad lookout for those of us who can recall the taste of ripe fruit across the years, as one of the pleasures of an earlier day.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The editor of the Moose Jaw Herald wonders what Wagnerian record Hitler is playing these days. Something from The Fleeing Deutschman, probably.

Gananoque weather prophets point to a flight of geese over that town as a sure sign of cold weather and an early fall. Those who heeded Hon. C. D. Howe's advice and loaded up the coal bin will not be really concerned whether the geese were wise old honkers or the silly kind.

Ottawa has organized a Philharmonic Orchestra, to be conducted by Mr. Allard de Ridder. Mr. de Ridder is an able and experienced musician, and in time he may be able to do in Ottawa what Sir Ernest Macmillan and the late Luigi von Kunits did with a scratch orchestra in Toronto. Slowly the capital is taking on the attributes of a real city.

How Much Money Do We Need?

By GEORGE BERNARD SHAW
In The London Observer

WHAT is the amount of money everyone ought to have to keep civilization safe and steady? I have had to think this question out, because I am an absentee landlord, a capitalist, a "renter of ability," and by conviction a Communist, which is a combination much more frequent than that of Communist proletarian. In fact, the professed Communists know less about it—if possible—than the rest of our politicians, and, if left to themselves, will attempt to solve it by a plundering match between the rich and the poor, which will end, not in there being no poor but in there being nobody else.

I shall state the case in 12 articles, premising only that the Basic Income must be equal for everybody, because, as it applies to newly born babes, centenarians, and families, it can have no regard to differences in personal qualities, talents and deserts.

BRITISH BASIC

1. The political object of equality of income is the prevention of the ruptures and compound fractures, the internal strains, conflicts, and civil wars, caused by the division of society into financial classes, each struggling for the lion's share of the national income, and nobody being assured of getting any share at all except as a pauper. Every former civilization known to us (there are half a dozen) has been wrecked by these strains; and ours is going the same way.

2. This suggests that the best possible distribution of the national income is equal distribution.

3. It seems to follow that the Basic figure can be ascertained by simply dividing the income figure by the population figure.

4. It does not follow immediately. The national income provides about four shillings per head per week. A family of two parents and three children would have £1 a week to live on, with no possibility of adding to it by their labour, already absorbed by its production.

5. The Cabinets, the executive public services, the judiciary, the Bar, the scientific institutions, the cultural institutions, the directors of business and finance, all of them necessary to high civilization, cannot be recruited from families living on a pound a week.

6. Nature (sometimes called Providence) produces the necessary percentage of specially capable people; but as this is a percentage, not of any class, but of the entire population, the basic income to be aimed at must be a family income sufficient to put within everyone's reach the cultural home atmosphere and schooling without which natural capacity cannot develop. Four shillings per head per week would mean cultural sterilization, ending in a relapse into primitive tribalism.

7. Equality of income must therefore begin with a basic income large enough to produce prime ministers, higher mathematicians, historians and philosophers, authors and artists, as well as ploughmen and dairymaids. They are necessities, not luxuries nor parasites.

8. Such an income has been estimated by Mr. H. G. Wells at £4,000 a year in present terms. But from eight to twelve hundred would do to begin with. This, in a scientifically organized society, would command a handsomer life than £4,000 does now. Later on, with volcanic blow holes and our British tides harnessed to industry and agriculture, £800 a year would go farther than our £20,000.

THE UPPER TEN

9. For the present, however, so high a basic income as £800 puts equal division of the national income out of the question for the moment, as the national quotient falls so far short of it. In Communist Russia is has been found that to maintain the indispensable "intellectual proletariat," even with Communist secondary education and "centres of rest and culture" within everyone's reach, it is necessary to distribute income in wages and salaries at rates varying as widely as ten to one.

10. This means that the basic rate will be enjoyed at first by only 10 per cent of the population. Only what is left can be distributed among the 90 per cent, who in the factories and mines, the ships and trains and city offices, have only to do what they are told and need not think about it.

11. From this point progress towards equality of income must depend on increased production. The thinkers and directors being sufficiently paid, and the rank and file underpaid, the increase must be used to raise the family incomes of the rank and file until they, too, can afford the privacy, the leisure, the culture, and all the other amenities and opportunities which the basic income commands, and which, applied to family life, supply the nurseries from which the thinking and directing functionaries are drawn.

12. During this process, all attempts and pretensions of the receivers of the basic income to keep their distance above the rest by having their incomes increased must be resisted. Those who have enough must be content with it until those with less than enough are raised to their level.

STARRY WEDLOCK

And now, what is to be the test of sufficient equality to make a civilization stable and secure? Will it be achieved when for every two and sixpence allotted to the Astronomer Royal his housemaid is allotted half a crown? Theoretically yes, practically no, because with the spread of culture there will certainly be competition for the post of Astronomer Royal, and, what has already begun, a growing objection to the drudgeries of housemaiding, insuperable unless these are mitigated by electric fires, vacuum cleaners, luxurious kitchens, servants' bedrooms, bathrooms and the like, combined with higher wages, shorter hours, and the abandonment by the astronomer of all pretence to social superiority.

The test will be intermarriageability. When the astronomer's son can marry the housemaid without the slightest misalliance, the trick will be done as far as law or policy can or need do it.

At that point unequal incomes will cease to trouble us. At present, though a person with £50 a year cannot marry a person with £5,000 without not merely misalliance but downright miscegenation (for the two figures produce two different human species), a person with £5,000 a year can marry a person with £50,000 without the least difficulty: in fact, if the £50,000 person refused to marry anyone with less he or she would find it hard to get married at all. But when the basic income is secured to everybody, it will not matter a rap if here and there geniuses or freaks with lucrative talents or attractions earn ten times that figure. Like the late Andrew Carnegie or Lord Nuffield, they could do nothing with their superfluous money but "do good" with it.

The directors of the equalization process must not be doctrinaire idealists beginning at the end instead of at the beginning, and thereby becoming wreckers of the civilization they are bent on saving. The road to equality starts from inequality, not the haphazard inequality that now makes millionaires of a few children-in-arms, and paupers of multitudes of people worn out by toil that begins before they escape from their elementary school prisons into industrial slavery, but a scientific inequality based on the inexorable facts.

NECESSITIES OF GENIUS

Great geniuses do not need more food, better clothes, a warmer fire or a more rainproof roof than the hewers of wood and drawers of water: in fact their clothes last longer and they eat less. But they cost more. They must be brought up in houses where there are not only tables and chairs, washstands and beds, but books and pictures and musical instruments and mothers and fathers to whom such things are necessities and whose manners and language differ accordingly from those of illiterate labourers who are barely kept alive until they reproduce themselves.

Here and there we may come on a peer who began as a bootblack; but there are not enough of these swallows to make a summer; and when neither the industries nor the professions can exist without from 5 to 10 per cent of intelligentsia we cannot depend on the 0.001 per cent who can break their way through all class barriers to the top. The Bolshevik revolution in Russia, beginning with a ruthless persecution of the existing Tsarist education and culture, not only half starved itself, but when tested by war soon found that it could not organize its army without a majority of ex-Tsarist officers, nor its industry without bourgeois bosses, nor its Cabinets without minister who had never in their lives handled hammer or sickle to earn their living.

The U.S.S.R. is really a Fabian Federation, forced into that mould by sheer pressure of har[d] facts on Marxian good will towards men. Th[e] same pressure will operate here on Primros[e] and Reds impartially. Progressive Conservative[s] are not lacking in good will. The struggle wi[ll] be between the progressive Levellers-up and th[e] catastrophic Levellers-down; and the Progres[-]sives will win if and when they learn their po[-]litical business.

Keep them Clean or Close them Up

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

ROUSED by complaints that beverage-rooms in the city of Windsor were so dirty that Windsorites were crossing the river to slake their thirsts in Detroit, Ontario Government hotel inspectors descended on Windsor this week, checked up on its beer-parlors, and suspended the license of one of them indefinitely.

This is certainly a step in the right direction, and the hotel inspectors might well make Ottawa district their next stop. While some of the beverage-rooms in city and neighbouring towns observe the provincial sanitary regulations, other have let their hostelries degenerate into a filthy state. Floors are unwashed and unswept for lengthy periods; glasses are too hastily washed and not dried; beer is sometimes served in chipped or cracked glasses; empty glasses are left around vacant tables to gather dust and flies; lavatories are often unclean and malodorous.

Establishments of this type are far from what the Ontario Government had in mind when these hotels were first licensed a few years ago.

Standards of cleanliness and health are clearly set forth in the Act, and there is no excuse on the part of the licensee for ignoring or failing to live up to the letter of the law. By all accounts the business is a pretty profitable one despite wartime regulations and restrictions.

A somewhat parallel situation arose in Ontario many years ago under the administration of the late Sir James Whitney. Hotel standards had lapsed and many proprietors were indifferent and negligent in observance of the laws. Hon. W. J. Hanna, the then Provincial Secretary, sent a corps of hotel inspectors to Ottawa and other centres who checked up on establishments that were dirty and slovenly, forced them to "keep hotel" or lose their licenses. Improvement was almost immediate and was maintained.

A similar campaign would be very much in order today. Owners and operators of insanitary beverage-rooms should be told forthrightly, "Clean Up or Close Up."

United Kingdon Shifts Labour

(BALTIMORE SUN)

SOME working forces in British munition factories are being cut down but—contrary to a swift and widely accepted rumour—this is no tip that Germany has asked for terms and the war is over.

It is in fact a stage in preparation for intensive production of new and better weapons for the prosecution of the war until the unconditional surrender of Germany and Japan, whenever that may come. The working forces laid off in one factory are in process of transfer to another making more sorely needed material.

That was the answer of the Ministry of Production today to speedily circulated speculation that followed recent cutbacks in some war plants. It also constituted an answer to restive industrialists, who saw what they thought was a pool of unemployed labour beginning to form and started exercising pressure on the Government for permission to shift to civilian production and reopen the export markets.

In an unusual step the Ministry of Production issued a formal statement to set straight the misconceptions. It said:

"As new stages of the war develop, drastic changes are sometimes necessary in Government orders for stores required by the fighting services. We cannot afford to wait on the production of new and urgently wanted weapons. When these important changes occur it is often necessary to curtail production at some factories and release the workpeople for employment on more urgent work elsewhere."

Far from there being any pool of unemployment in Britain, there is an acute shortage of labour, employment is compulsory and legal penalties are frequently applied against shirkers for absenteeism and even for repeated tardiness. Jail sentences are not unknown in such cases.

Hopeful of allaying further misunderstanding, the Ministry of Production announced new steps to acquaint factory personnel with reasons underlying reduction in working forces. As far as military security will permit each change is to be explained throughout the factory by representatives of the labour-management committees. In addition the Ministry will inform trade union leaders and employing organizations in order that they may answer queries from their membership.

Even after Germany is knocked out of the war a problem in war production will confront Great Britain while it carries on hostilities again Japan. One measure proposed to cope with the labour shortage is the direction of discharged soldiers into war factory employment.

Manufacturers who have been prodding the Government for permission to convert in some degree to civilian production had pointed to the employment cutbacks in some factories as evidence that the Government was unreasonable in maintaining the ban, especially since British export markets have been unattended during the war and may be found on the return to peace to have been lost to America.

These industrialists are concerned that the markets will have been supplied by American factories before the British producers can get their designs drawn and tolls prepared unless they are permitted to make a start in that direction without further delay.

They cite a passage in President Roosevelt's lend-lease report as supporting their view, and they have seen to it that this passage is given full publicity here.

It is the part of the report in which the President said:

"Our total exports in the first six months of 1944 were far in excess of the highest peacetime levels. The war has introduced American products to other countries in a volume and variety never approached before. After the war these countries will want to continue to get these products by buying them."

While lend-lease has distributed American products over most of the world, British trademarks have disappeared from those markets because of the understanding that Great Britain would devote her industrial resources to all-out war production, with the agreed exceptions that would involve the export of nothing containing lend-lease material.

As a result exports from this country are now less than a third of the pre-war volume. It was suggested, but without confirmation, that America and Britain might agree to release for peacetime production a stipulated proportion of the industrial capacity of each—possibly about 25 per cent in each country. The statement of the Ministry of Production made it appear unlikely that the British Government is ready to make such a proposal.

A Bible Message

I said in mine heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure: and, behold, this also is vanity....

I made me great works; I builded me houses; I planted me vineyards: I made me gardens and orchards, and I planted trees in them of all kind of fruits....

I gathered me also silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings and of the provinces: I gat me men singers and women singers, and the delights of the sons of men, as musical instruments, and that of all sorts. So I was great, and increased more than all that were before me in Jerusalem: also my wisdom remained with me. And whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them, I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced in all my labour: and this was my portion of all my labour.

Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labour that I had laboured to do: and, behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun. (Eccl. 2: 1, 4, 5, 8-11.)

THE 'CO-OPERATORS'

Italian "co-operators," the new name for Italy's prisoners of war in Britain, may now talk with civilians, and visit private houses, if invited.

They can visit movies at the discretion of the officer in charge, but must not enter public-houses or use public vehicles, except on duty.

Italians will continue to wear chocolate-coloured prisoners' battle-dress with distinctive patches on them.

More than 60,000 "co-operators" have been formed into units which have done work of great value to the Allied war effort. — London Daily Mail.

PRECEDED DOMINIONS

So distinctive has been the history and political development of the Channel Islands that their non-absorption into the English system of government not only satisfied the islanders' strong attachment to self-rule but was a logical and convenient administrative arrangement.

In their virtual independence of the English Parliament and their sole allegiance to the Crown, it may indeed be said that the islands preceded by centuries the evolution which in respect of the Dominions found formal expression in the Statute of Westminster.

Each of the four inhabited islands has its own distinctive political and administrative system. Sark, with only 500 inhabitants, remains almost a museum piece of medieval feudalism shaped to serve the intimate relations of a small, self-contained community.

Alderney's population of 1,500 evacuated their island en bloc in 1940. Their "States" or Parliament, though necessarily dormant, has remained in being during exile in the United Kingdom.—London Times.

Men Who Wear Shorts

Gazing from our office window we see some awesome sights. Fat women in slacks, big women in slacks. At first glance some we mistake for men and have to look at their shoes to make sure. You can't tell by their heads but usually women's frivolity cannot resist a toeless shoe or a high heel. We don't mind the women in slacks half as much as the men in shorts. Men in shorts make us sure that our forbears were apes and women in shorts showing their "very coarse" veins give us the jitters. However, summer fashions reign on our streets and so long as the tourists are enjoying the sunshine and invigorating breezes of this glorious vacation land and bring prosperity to our merchants we can calmly gaze from the office window and take it all in our stride.—Wiarton Echo.

Two True Bills Returned By Grand Jury

Two true bills were returned by the Grand Jury this morning to Mr. Justice C. P. Plaxton in the autumn assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

One of them confirmed the decision of the magistrate's court in committing for trial Charles Ward on an indictment of having fired a shotgun at W. J. Bolton, March 24 last, with murder intent. A second count charges Ward with unlawful wounding Bolton with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

The other criminal action before the Court accuses Frederick Smith of theft of wooltops from G. Whitaker & Company, Limited, Peterborough, during the period from May to June this year.

After the retirement of the Grand Jury Monday afternoon, the Court dealt with several divorce actions, one a final decree, and two others conditional or "nisi." The plaintiff in one of these cases is a Lakefield soldier exerseas since the summer of 1940.

Grand Jury Members.

The members of the Grand Jury are: Charles H. Elliott, foreman; R. Percy Armstrong, Roy C. Bacon, Lewis Ingram, A. Clifford Curtis, Theodore Crawford, Lakefield; Fred H. Collins, 194 McDonnel street; David R. Fleming, W. A. Rosborough, Smith Township; Howard Clegg, 184 Stewart street; Douglas G. Carlisle, Mervin Mather, Otonabee; Cyril Giroux.

Address to Jury.

In his remarks to the Grand Jury, Mr. Justice Plaxton said that its members represented an important part of the British system of judicature. The origin of the Grand Jury was lost in the dim mists of the early English traditions and system of determining justice, and was well established in the reign of King John as reflected in a clause of the Magna Charta, wrung from the hands of that tyrannous king in 1915, and asserting the principle that a freeman could not be deprived of liberty or property except by the lawful judgment of his peers. That was confirmation of the subject's right to trial by a jury of his equals.

The British system and its courts were in strong contrast with the Nazi denial of human rights, His Lordship said. But this institution and charter of liberty was something which the British people have had to defend down through the centuries to the most recent threat from the forces and spirit of German Naziism.

Mr. Justice Plaxton quoted the cheery greeting of Prime Minister Churchill on his landing at Halifax: "It is not the first time we have been here, but never have we been here when the skies were brighter or when the invincible march of our forces has been more swiftly and inevitably directed toward its goal."

His Lordship quoted a flash-back to Napoleon's day in a notable tribute to British guarantees of liberty: "Tremble, foolish people that you are, at the Emperor's success over the English; for if the English constitution is destroyed, understand clearly that the civilization of the world will be shaken to its very foundations."

These words spoken, His Lordship explained, by Talleyrand, Napoleon's Foreign Minister and one of the shrewdest diplomats of all time. They were quoted in her memoirs by Madam de Remusat, Lady-in-Waiting to the Empress Josephine, whose husband was first Chamberlain to the Emperor. Madama de Remusat added, of a time when it seemed certain the Corsican would conquer Europe: "The sacred flame of liberty was burning in England. Happily for the welfare of the nations that sanctuary was defended by a barrier which the armies of Bonoparte could not break down. A few leagues of sea protected the civilization of the world, and saved it from being forced to bandon the field of battle to one who might not perhaps have utterly beaten it, who would have stifled it for the space of a whole generation."

Our ancestors looked on our system of law as the bulwark of civil and political liberties, His Lordship said, and by the calling of committees of citizens to take part in the work of the law courts, the Grand and Petit Juries, the people gained a clear conception of the importance of this system to themselves, and the sense of law and order in the community was quickened by this performance of a highly important function of citizenship.

Classrooms Are Crowded NeedMoreDesks

When the July sessions of the Board of Education came to an end, Board members figuratively patted themselves on the back that they had overlooked nothing that would enable the principals and their staffs to get off to a good start in the fall. But they failed to reckon with incoming pupils, and the Property committee which met Monday night faced the problem of too many pupils for too few desks.

The number of students enrolled in Grades 9 and 10 at the Collegiate are reported to be the largest ever listed, and the classes are so swollen that many of the class rooms have not enough desks. The average class now is 45 to 47, and the largest of the rooms are generally equipped with about 42 desks. The upper school classes are not unduly crowded, but the lower ones are presenting a problem to the principal, C. S. Browne, as well as to the Board.

While the Property committee deliberated about the difficulties, Inspector Keith Wightman offered the helpful thought that the situation would probably be worse next year since there were more pupils in the eighth grade this year in public schools.

"Can we get a new Collegiate built by next year?" Chairman Alex Sollitt joked.

Mr. Sollitt questioned about getting desks for the junior pupils and G. Wilson Craw pointed out that if a new room should be opened, there would be no necessity of getting desks then.

It was finally decided to let the matter ride until the Board meets on Thursday. At that time a fuller report and recommendations will be received from the Collegiate principal.

Expensive Busisess

One of the perennial problems of every Board of Education was introduced by Inspector Wightman. From spring until early fall, window breakage at the public schools is high and it was estimated by Fred Finnie, maintenance superintendent, that $150 a year for glass alone, without the labor involved, was not an excessive figure.

Prince of Wales School and King George were acknowledged to be hardest hit, and the Inspector wondered if a night watchman were employed occasionally to investigate at different schools from dark until midnight, might help allay the breakage.

It was acknowledged by all the committee members that they did not believe the vandalism was done by pupils of the schools but by older teen-age boys and perhaps a few adults. Mr. Finnie reported that stones had often been found in the class rooms after a window was broken and occasionally the evidence of air rifles. This year at Prince of Wales school, at least 50 panes of glass, mostly on the second floor, have had to be replaced.

"Breaking windows with a stone has been a favorite sport for years. There is something very satisfying to hear the clink they produce. I am skeptical if a night watchman is the answer to the problem," D. V. Canning observed.

"That's true. It would be easy for someone to stand on the hill and let go," Mr. Finnie agreed.

It was finally decided to recommend to the Board of Education that a resolution be forwarded to the Police Chief requesting that some action be taken when the season for windows opens up in the spring.

Need Help

Need for extra help in the repair department was stressed by Mr. Finnie. He pointed out that there had been considerable extra work with the taking over of new schools and he and his man were far behind schedule with little possibility of getting a number of urgent matters completed. He told the committee that he felt a man who was a qualified plumber and steam fitter, would be a valuable addition in his set-up and that he could be kept busy.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. Sollitt, declared he thought it would not be difficult to keep such a man busy the year round.

"While I admit that the situation may demand such an action now, in ordinary times by hiring a plumber on the staff, we would be competing with ratepayers in the city, who gave us prompt and efficient service in the past," Mr. Craw asserted.

"We don't want to recommend 'anyone'," Mr. Canning said and in this he was suported by Mr. Finnie, who remarked that rather than get a poor workman he would withdraw his suggestion. It was decided to let the matter rest until the next meeting.

No Dark Corners

A floodlight was requested for Central school by Mr. Sollitt. He suggested that it be placed in a high position, perhaps on the roof, between the buildings and toward the front. His recommendation stressed that if it were put down lower it would be broken, and it was highly necessary to discourage using this "thoroughfare" for other purposes. The recommendation will be read at the Thursday meeting.

Some alterations in the set-up at Confederation school were urged by Inspector Wightman. Since the doctor and dentist will be working there on regular visits, water and basins are necessary, and there are practically none outside of the basement. To put in the proper plumbing would require an estimated cost of about $242. A resolution recommending that this course be followed is to be submitted to the whole board.

One of the junior men on the janitor staff, C. Runnett, handed in his resignation. It was moved that it be accepted, another man engaged at a salary of $1,080, subject to the Board's approval.

Canada Uses More Gasoline

OTTAWA, Sept. 12 — (CP). — Gasoline consumption in Canada for all purposes, including motor vehicles and aviation, increased 45,386,020 gallons in the first six months of this year, it was disclosed in Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures made available yesterday.

The 1944 six-month total was 460,437,880 gallons, compared with 415,051,840 gallons in the first half of 1943. While consumption has varied from one month to another, totals for each month have been in excess of the corresponding month last year, according to figures compiled by the Oil Controller's office.

Petroleum production in Canada for the first six months of 1944 was 176,254,295, a slight decrease from the 176,325,450 produced in the first half of 1943.

Breakdowns by Provinces, based on returns from Provincial tax departments and oil companies, are only available for the five-month period January-May, in which total consumption was 345,199,000, as against 298,500,000 in the corresponding period of 1943.

The 1944 figures for this period in each Province, with corresponding 1943 figures in brackets, are:

Prince Edward Island 2,887,000 (2,578,000); Nova Scotia 16,059,000 (14,967,000); New Brunswick 9,756,000 (8,709,000); Quebec 51,732,000 (43,300,000); Ontario 120,239,000 (109,269,000); Ontario 120,239,000 (18,850,000); Saskatchewan 39,108,000 (29,761,000); Alberta 42,241,000 (37,977,000); British Columbia 32,674,000 (33,089,000).

Rugby Season Starts September 23

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—(CP)—The sixth wartime football season will have its debut in Ontario Sept. 23 with opening games scheduled for that date in both the Ontario Rugby Football Union and the new Ontario Armed Services Football League.

The Services League starts with two games, the Camp Borden Fliers playing the Toronto Navy Bulldogs at Varsity Stadium in Toronto and the St. Thomas R.C.A.F. team meeting Hagersville R.C.A.F. at the University of Western Ontario Stadium in London. These four teams make up the Services loop.

The Dominion champion Hamilton Wildcats pry the lid off the O.R.F.U. senior season, entertaining Toronto Oakwood Indians in Hamilton. On Sept. 30 all four O.R.F.U. teams will see action, Toronto Balmy Beach playing Indians in Varsity Stadium here and Wildcats visiting Ottawa.

The Sept. 30 Services League games sends the Navy to play Hagersville at Hamilton while Camp Borden will invade St. Thomas.

Other scheduled dates for the two leagues will be announced later when agreement is reached on their co-related schedules. Each league will declare its own champion and no inter-league playoff is planned.

Dandurand Moots 2 Major Leagues

HALIFAX, Sept. 12 — (CP). — In an interview here last night Leo Dandurand, former president and managing director of the Montreal Canadiens, spoke warmly of the possibility of two major hockey leagues operating in Canada and the United States after the war.

The second league — which Dr. Dandurand pointed out was not just an idle dream, but was actualy being planned — would cover eight cities. Mr. Dandurand said they would probably be Montreal, Cleveland, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburg, Buffalo and Brooklyn. "Far from harming the present National Hockey League," he added, "the second league would be a good thing for it."

The core of the second major league would be in Montreal.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The extra series games started with a bang last night, and while there were a few upsets, most of the games ran true to form. Maybe the bowling was not just as keen as it has been but that was on account of the heavy dew on the greens. This slows down the play considerably. However, the boys seemed to enjoy the evening's fun and after all that is what the series is for. Play will continue Thursday night at 7 p.m..

To-night all players who are still in the club's singles are requested to be on hand at 7 p.m. to continue play in this contest.

Have you got your partner for Wednesday's men's double tournament?

A number of our lady bowlers are takng part in the Port Hope tournament on Wednesday. It is for trebles.

Here is one we noticed last night. One chap whom we were bowling against was so excited that he played over half the game with two rubbers on the one foot.

Lions Team Defeats Beavers In Hardball

Bigford Beavers and McGrath Lions tangled at Riverside last night, with Lions again coming to the fore with an 11-5 win. Both teams were held to singles in the first but Beavers broke the tie in the second and also held the spotlight in the field, where they put the Lions out in quick succession. The Beavers brought in another run in the third frame, but Lions put on their batting togs and pushed across seven runs, making it 8-3. With two out in the fourth and no runs in, Beavers tried to coax in a steal from third but the runner was caught in a "cat and mouse" and put out. Last of the fourth brought the Lions three runs on two hits and three walks and although the light was pretty dim, the kids kept on play and the Beavers pushed across two more runs to make a final 11-5 score.

Bigford took the mound for Beavers and was touched for 10 safeties and five walks, with three strikeouts. Killingbeck, Murdock and Northcott, hurlers for Lions, took turns on the mound and wound up with a total of six safeties, and nine walks, with six strikeouts. Lion errors were kept down to four but Beavers turned in a high count of 11.

Line-up for the game was:

Beavers: V. Monoghan, c; D. Bigford, p; K. Courneyea, 1b; R. Allen, 2b; R. Mullen, ss; G. Robinson, 3b; F. Farley, rf; R. Robinson, cf; H. Grafsteen, lf; subs. P. Levasseur.

Lions—G. McGrath, c; S. Murphy, 1b; B. Jensen, 2b; P. Mongraw, ss; B. Crowder, 3b; M. O'Donoghue, lf; M. Connelly, cf; N. Thompson, rf; B. Killingbeck, J. Murdock, A. Northcott, pitcher; subs, J. McGrath.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Westclox girls are intermediate P.W.S.U. intermediate finalists again and will meet the winners of the Stratford-Brantford series in the final round for the Ontario title. With two teams left in the running in Western Ontario it would have been manifestly unfair to have given the Big Bens two long trips into that part of the province and so they have been given a bye into the last round, leaving the two western teams to get their winner first. That means of course there will be no action for the Peterborough girls this week and while the layoff will be regretted it was unavoidable under the circumstances. It may be that the fortunes of war will put the Big Bens up against the Stratford Kroehlers, the same team which defeated them a year ago. If that should prove to be the case the Westclockers should have a good chance for as this column pointed out last night the Stratford club is not as strong as the 1943 title-winners while Westclox have been going along as well, if not better than a year ago. It would make an interesting series if the rivals were to clash for a second year. Of course this Brantford team is not to be counted out. They knocked off St. Catharines in two straight and the Tee Pees had won 22 straight games in their own loop and had knocked off Hamilton by cricket scores.

* * * * * *

Like the Big Bens, the Brinton girls seem to have a championship complex so far as the local league is concerned. The outfit from the south-end plant knocked off Johnson Motors last night 14 to 10 to take the intermediate final series 4 games to 1 and thus Brintons for the third year in succession have won the intermediate honors. Westclox during their championship years have managed to carry over most of their players from year to year but Brintons have had to rebuild each season and their feat of winning three titles in three years is all the more creditable. They deserve orchids for their consistent triumphs in the face of handicaps. And a few bouquets should go, also, to the Johnson Motor girls for their showing this season. The Outboard Marines made their debut in organized ball a year ago, went through the whole 1943 campaign without winning a game but benefitted by their experience and came back strong this season to wind up in the intermediate finals with Brintons after a fighting showing all through the season. Now remains only the girls' junior championship to be decided and the loop will call it a year after a very successful season.

Young Players Wanted

Rich Jackson of the Peterborough junior rugby club is beating the war drums for more young players for his outfit. A number of youngsters have been attending workouts regularly but there is room for more and there will be hearty welcome for boys of around 18 years of age who want to turn out with the local squad. Now is the time for novice players to break into the game but they cannot expect to do so unless they get out for the early season practices so that they can get into shape and pick up the rudiments of the game. The club has received a quantity of equipment but can use some more to advantage and would be particularly interested to hear from old players who may happen to have a pair of football shoes they would like to donate to the cause. The youngsters are doing their best to keep the game alive in Peterborough and deserve every encouragement. Any person who would like to help by donating equipment is asked to get into touch with the U.E.W. office by telephone. Incidentally tickets for the draw sponsored by the club to raise funds and offering a fine list of prizes are now on sale and should be in ready demand.

With football just around the corner it is interesting to note that some of the best observers are already picking the best stars they have seen in action, remarks the Ottawa Journal. Take, for instance, Jim Hanratty, former sports writer on the Montreal Star and Gazette, and a close follower of the game, who states that Eddie Gleeson, former Ottawa University standout, and the Very Rev. Philippe Cornellier, O.M.I., rector of the University to-day, were the best kickers he ever saw play. Times have changed, but in their days Gleeson and Father Cornellier were probably the greatest stars to step out on the Canadian gridiron. "Gleeson was an extraordinary man," Hanratty said. "He was a quick thinker and he could drop-kick goals with tacklers driving at him from all angles. In the days when he played, a back player did not have the defensive protection afforded today. Tacklers simply swarmed through loosely-held lines, and a player had to be very adept even to get a punt away without being knocked down." Any person who has played football will tell you of the difficulties a team faces when they find the kicker stretched on the ground after every play. "He could kick to every part of the field," said Hanratty, speaking of Gleeson. "It was a treat to watch him place his kicks away from opposing backfielders and make them run for the ball. One time he took a penalty kick, knocked the ball from his feet over his head, reached up to seize the ball and then kicked a field goal." He continued on to say: "I saw Cornellier play against Varsity in Toronto in 1911, and while he was on the field he had those backs scurrying behind their goals to run out punts time after time. He was a little man and finally the heavy tackling told and he was put out of action. His punting was something to remember."

This column commented last night on the fact that two different clubs, or at least some of the players of two different clubs, completely forgot the infield fly rule in Saturday's double-header and ran into double plays instead of taking advantage of the protection given them by the rules. It has always seemed to this column that if ball players would study the playing code more closely and remember just why a particular rule was adopted it would be a much more simple matter to remember the rules of the game. The infield fly rule was inserted, of course, to prevent an infielder with a couple or three runners on the sacks from purposely dropping a fly and then pulling of a double play, an easy matter if the base-runners were forced to run. There is a similar rule about a player striking out before two hands are down and with first base occupied. The batter is out automatically in such circumstances as soon as the third strike is called whether the catcher holds the ball or not. Before such a rule was drafted catchers used to purposely drop the third strike and then try to pull off a double killing via second and first. It has been in force for years and yet at a City Softball League game recently when such a play came up the batter forgetting that he was out automatically dashed for first, the player who was on first broke for second and the catcher waited to tag the batter before he made a throw to second. They were all three experienced ball players and yet they forgot the automatic out completely.

Oshawa Main Office team lasted only a week longer than the Plazas, Belleville Saco Marines, unexpectedly back in the running because the Kingston Ordnance who had eliminated them were unable to continue in O.A.S.A. competition took the second game of their series from the Oshawa gang at Belleville Saturday. It was a much tighter battle than the first game of the round and Belleville had to come from behind to take the verdict. As a matter of fact the Oshawa team was in front 4 to 2 when Belleville went to bat in the eighth but Murney Green drew a walk and Gene LaBonne, first baseman for the winners, hammered out a home run to tie the score. Belleville got the winning run in the last of the ninth when Pitcher Jim Hunter opened with a single and scored from first on a bad throw on Jim Berriage's sacrifice bunt. Hunter who also pitched the Marines to a win in the game at Oshawa went the route for the winners while Dutch Hiller pitched the full distance for Oshawa. Each pitcher allowed nine hits.

Brinton Girls Capture Softball Title

A hard-hitting Brinton Girls' team copped the Intermediate championship laurels at Ashburnham Bowl Monday evening, as they sent Outboard Marines scurrying with a 14 to 10 win, ending the four-out-of-seven series, of which the Brintons lost only one game. Monday night's tilt was an action-packed jamboree, highlighted by several timely homers, and marred by serious errors on the part of both outfits.

It was anybody's game until the fourth frame, when the Marines shot out with four runs, made on four hits. Two home runs by Teddy Mills and Marjorie Smith brought in the quota. Brintons back in their half of the inning to score once, with Marg. Thompson sacrificed to score Doris Walker, who had arrived at third base after a triple-base hit into the centre field daisies.

In the fifth, two triples by Vera Mitchell and Marjorie Smith for the Marines, were instrumental in bringing home 3 more runners, totalling their count at that time 7. The home run fever was catching though, and in Brintons' section of that inning, a powerful circuit blow into left field, combined with 5 other singles scored 5 players. Jean Vass hit the homer.

The heavy hitting subsided considerably from then on, and at the end of the eighth inning, Brintons were leading by a 11-7 margin. The last frame saw each team run in three counters, to make the final count. Two doubles, combined with a single and an error scored the players for Brintons, while a hefty triple by Maxine Monson and three singles accounted for the Marine runs.

Brintons' batting stars were Jean Vass, Marjorie Walling, Doris Wolker and Thelma Batley. For the Marines, Teddy Mills, Marjorie Smith, Vera Mitchell and Maxine Monson held the spotlight.

Doris Walker hurled for the Brintons, fanning 1 in nine innings of play, walking one and allowing 16 hits.

Helen Mark, veteran Marine pitcher, fanned 5, walked none, and gave up 19 hits to the opposition.

St. Leger Gives Bookies Big Headache

By JAMES R. CHAMBERS
Reuter Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(CP-Reuter)—British bookmakers are not sleeping well these nights. It's not the possibility of Hitler's V-2 which worries them. It's next Saturday's classic race at Newmarket, the St. Leger, in which the British public hase gone "all out" on four horses to such an extent that only the success of a rank outsider will enable the "bookies" to look forward on a nice, comfortable winter.

Tehran, owned by Prince Ali Khan, son of the Aga Khan, is the bookmaker's biggest headache. If he wins they will have to pay out $1,000,000 on bets struck before the race, apart from the bets made on the course on the day of the race.

Derby winner, Ocean Swell, would cost the "boys" almost as much if he won Britain's long distance race for three-year-olds. Pre-race bets would take $800,000 from the bookmakers' banking accounts.

In the north of England, here they know a lot about picking winners of big races, a lot of money has been placed on Lord Derby's Borealis, and, if this horse gets his nose past the post first $800,000 would leave the bookmakers.

The success of Hycilla, the pre-race choice of thousands of the "little men" and professional backers, too, would cost the "bookies" $600,000.

Any way you look at it if one of these popular fancies wins on Newmarket Heath the bookmakers will get a shellacking.

Three-way Tie Possible 17 Games To Go

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Possibilities of a two or three-way tie for the American League pennant appeared less fantastic today as the four leaders loafed through an early week rest period before moving into the final stretch drive.

With an average of 17 games to play, Detroit had 18, the first place Yankees were only three lengths in front of fourth-place Boston and one game ahead of St. Louis and a half game on top of Detroit.

If a tie should result, the world series opening date of Oct. 4 hight have to be moved back although a single game playoff in the west could be completed in time to open on schedule in St. Louis if only two teams were involved.

Open gaps in the league schedule left only a New York-Philadelphia night game Wednesday hanging before the week-end business starts on Friday but the race cannot be decided before the final intersectional series starting next week.

Monday was a complete blank in the American but Cincinnati moved up to within three games and a half of idle Pittsburgh in their scrap for second place in the National by easing out a 6-5 10-inning win over Chicago.

Catcher Ray Mueller drove in four of the first Cincy runs and scored the winning tally in the 10th to give Reliefer Clyde Shoun the nod over Hank Wyse.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

Written For The Canadian Press By ROBERT CLARKE

TORONTO, Sept. 12 — (CP). — One of the most entertaining of our sports enterpreneurs is Edmund Reagan Quinn, who gave up taxi driving and carpentry to become the Mat Mahatma of Montreal, and it is a rare day when this big Irish-American, a ruynonesque character in speech, is unable to provide a fund of stories.

Although Quinn has made a few ventures into boxing promotion, he is essentially a promoter of wrestling and it is only natural, therefore, that his anecdotes deal mostly with the matmen. Although Quinn doesn't murder the English language, he could probably be booked on a charge of manslaughter. He disguises money as "smootch," and almost invariably he refers to people as "dubious characters." In addition, he has a confounding vocabulary of ad-libbed words.

At one time Quinn was a hacker in Boston and one of his steady customers was Jack Sharkey, then near the top of the world heavyweight fight ladder. Although Sharkey was in the midst of amassing a sizable chunk of currency, he invariably gave Quinn a 10-cent tip.

In recent years, Quinn has used Sharkey as a referee on his wrestling shows and he has never lost a chance to rub it in about those dime tips. According to Quinn he has paid Sharkey as much as $500 a show, and it's generally when he is handing over the money that he reminds Sharkey of the bygone days.

It's when Quinn starts to talk about money matters that you begin to wonder if you shouldn't bring up your son to be a wrestler instead of a professional hockey player. Quinn says that Yvon Robert, the pride of Montreal, raked in $40,000 for one 12-month stretch of wrestling and that Robert would have no trouble making $20,000 a year.

Quinn likes to tell this story, and it's up to you whether you believe it, about his early connections with Robert, in the days when English was a mystery to the bog French-Canadian wrestler. Quinn and Robert were in New York and the latter had been asked to appear on a radio sports program, along with a number of other athletes— a polo player, a footballer, a swimmer and so on.

"The music plays, etcetera, and then the announcer goes into his spiel," says Quinn. "Robert is the first one up. The announcer introduces him and then says: 'Well, Yvon, what is your favorite hold?' And Robert answers: 'The forward pass.' Need I add I have given him the football player's script by mistake."

Another Quinn story involves a wrestler named Rebel Bob Russell and the antipathy of wrestler for boxer. It seems that Russell was walking down a Philadelphia street when he came to a theatre showing films of a mixed match in which Jim Braddock had been declared winner over a wrestler. A sign read: "Boxer beats Wrestler—Films being shown inside."

"Russell does not bother buying a ticket," says Quinn. "He is much too provoked for such nonsense. He bellows for the manager and when that dubious character shows up Russell tells him no blankety-blank boxer ever lived who could beat a wrestler. Unless the manager takes down the sign immediately, he is due to receive assorted hurts. Since Russell is no midget this statement leaves the manager nonplussed. I might add that Russell stands guard while the manager climbs a ladder and removes the sign."

Heavy Clouting Expected In Cup Series

(By The Associated Press)

The first round of the International League Governors' Cup playoffs, which opens tonight, may produce some record-toppling contests. The pennant winning Baltimore Orioles will tangle with fourth place Buffalo, while the runner up Newark Bears meet the third place Toronto Maple Leafs.

The first record that may fall is attendance at a single playoff game. The existing high is 24,551 set at Montreal when Newark played there in 1941. Baltimore will open its series with Buffalo at the Orioles' big Municipal Stadium, where they have already attracted 30,000 to a single game this year.

Several batting records are in danger as the league's two most potent sluggers tangle at Baltimore. The Orioles' Howie Moss and Bisons' Eddie Kobesky will be aiming for the mark of four home runs as the highest number hit during the series. In the regular league season Moss led in runs batted in and home runs with Kobesky runner up for four masters.

In the pitching department Red Embree will be gunning for Buffalo's Charlie Fischer's record of 15 strikeouts in one game, set in 1936 against the Orioles.

Paul Bibeault To Play Goal

TORONTO, Sept. 12.— (CP).—The Globe and Mail says to-day it has been learned from Tommy Gorman, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, that the Canadiens will use Paul Bibeault in goal in the coming N.H.L. season. Bibeault, property of Canadiens, played sensationally with Toronto Maple Leafs last season, joining them after his discharge from the Canadian Army.

The paper quoted Gorman as saying that Bill Durnan, who played a stellar game in goal for Canadiens all last season, will not be available because of the new league ruling barring players with war plant deferments from military service.

Mimico Team Eliminates Lakeshore Squad

TORONTO, Sept. 12 — Mimico Mountaineers eliminated Toronto Lakeshores from the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior playoffs last night at Mimico Stadium by easily outdistancing the Shores, 13-5, in the fourth game of the best-three-in-five set.

After the first quarter, when the Mounts raced into a 3-1 lead, there was no doubt which team was headed for the next round against St. Catharines, or possibly Brampton. It was Mimico all the way, and only some nifty netminding by Red Hartley kept the score down. Ray Mortimore, at the other end of the pitch, handled things capably, too, but he had a stalwart defense in Vern Steggal, Al McLean and Rhys Thompson.

Georgie Masters sank Lakeshores single-handed with a glittering six-goal display. He was a going concern all night, both on offense and defense. Blain McDonald bagged three goals, and Scoop Hayes two to pace the winners. Tommy Love was a star for the losers. Howes, who delights in playing without gloves, played strongly in the losing cause. Elmer Lee bagged two goals, and Gord Gair and Lou Vipond were others who worked hard.

Decision as to whether Brampton will get back into the running after withdrawing in protest of an O.L.A. ruling with be made tonight at a special meeting of the O.L.A. executive.

Tempers flared in the closing chapters of last night's encounter, and in a mixup near the finish, aggressive Rhys Thompson was thumbed off with a misconduct penalty. Goaltender Hartley drew two minutes' sentence for his part in the disturbance.

Tonight at Mimico Stadium, Etobicoke Aces and Long Branch will tangle in the second game of their Lake Shore Bantam Lacrosse League playdowns. Aces won the first tencounter. The contest starts at 7 o'clock.

West Abandons Rugby Plans

WINNIPEG, Sept. 12 — (CP). — The Winnipeg High School Rugby League last night withdrew its five teams from the proposed east-west schoolboy final.

The Winnipeg Rugby Club announced earlier it was prepared to sponsor a game between the champion of the Winnipeg and Manitoba school leagues and Toronto St. Michael's College.

Club officials said they still are hopeful of an east-west game in Winnipeg about Oct. 14 as St. Paul's College of the Manitoba school league has expressed willingness to send its crusaders into such a game.

Robert Jarman, director of physical education for Winnipeg public schools, said the plan for east-west competition might interfere with academic work should there be a return game in eastern Canada in 1945.

Industries Lend Trucks To Collect Paper

Throughout five years of war, civilians . . . the soldiers of the home front, have demonstrated that they are willing and able to back up the men battling in the front lines with every ounce of energy. This has included buying War Bonds and stamps to the utmost, being rationed on food and other commodities, and willingly and unhesitatingly going without pre-war luxuries. It is the saving and collecting of waste paper, 20,000 tons of which Canada needs each month in order to keep food, medical supplies and other vital equipment speeding to the front. Paper is used in countless ways in wartime; gas masks, bomb fins, hand grenades, clothing, blood plasma, and dehydrated foods must all be packed in paper containers. These containers that are shipped to the fields of France cannot be returned and as a result, there exists in Canada today, an acute and serious shortage of paper, with the war in Europe now entering its final phases, it is doubly important that there be no let-up in the supplies reaching the troops, and with that in mind, the City of Peterborough is holding a mammoth one-day waste paper drive, designed to collect 10 pounds of paper from every man, woman, and child in the city. It is on September 21, and will begin at 6 o'clock in the evening. Industrial firms and local businessmen are lending trucks and men to collect the paper, all that remains is the individual efforts of each one of us to gather our share, so the drive will go over the top.

Fall Clean-up

A golden opportunity is knocking on the door now to clean out that cupboard or drawer; get rid of all those out-dated documents and old draw tickets; letters no longer of any value, cereal boxes, and odds-and-ends of paper that should find a way into Canada's war effort. Generally, any and all paper that is not gummed or waxed is wanted and that wide scope includes soap boxes, paper board, paper bags, wrapping paper, newspapers and cardboard boxes. Letters should be bundled and tied, and paper boxes should first be flattened, then tied in bundles. Old magazines? Yes, but unless they are torn or long-outdated, better turn them in to the agencies collecting them for servicemen to read while off duty!

Turn your old paper into fighting weapons: paper is needed urgently . . . and immediately to save lives, and shorten the war. Put your waste paper on active service by collecting it, bundling it, and giving even more than the 10 pounds asked.

True beauty depends on youthful skin elasticity

14-DAY PALMOLIVE METHOD MAY IMPROVE YOUR SKIN

Compare face with shoulder skin. You'll find shoulders look 5 or more years younger. That's because shoulder skin retains its elasticity—while facial skin pores are clogged with make-up, unable to breathe for hours at a time. And when pores can't breathe skin starts to age prematurely. But Palmolive can help retain youthful elasticity in your skin.

Look younger in 14 days! Each time you wash, (use a face cloth) massage warm, rich, vitalizing Palmolive lather thoroughly into your skin for one full minute. Now a quick rinse and pat dry. Palmolive's 60-second Beauty Massage has been scientifically tested by 2,301 women and 36 doctors. Their reports prove conclusively that . . . in just 14 days, it brings lovelier complexions.

ROBERT WILLIAM ROBINSON

BANCROFT, Sept. 12—(ENS).—The funeral of Robert William Robinson, who died suddenly at his late residence, took place from his home on Hastings street, Bancroft, Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. The service at the home was conducted by Mr. N. R. Flower of Renfrew and a former minister of St. Paul's United church, Bancroft.

Immediately following this, the Masonic brethren conducted their ceremony before proceeding to Emmanuel church, east of Maynooth for service, which was also conducted by Mr. N. R. Flower. After the committal service at Emmanuel cemetery the Masonic brethren again took charge with J. L. Churcher in charge, paying the last rites of the Masonic Order to their late member.

The bearers were George A. Twa, Reginald Wiggins, P. J. Stringer, H. Strudwick, E. McColl and Balfour Vader.

The late Mr. Robinson was fifty-seven years of age, born in Monteagle township, and son of the late James Robinson, having resided in this locality for thirty-four years. He was quite active for a man of his age and during the past few years operated a service station opposite his residence.

Mr. Robinson as well as being a life member of the Masonic Order, was a Past Master of the L. O. L. 624, Bancroft, Past County Master of the L.O.L. and a Past Master of the R.B.P. No. 614 at Bancroft.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, Mrs. R. W. Robinson (Lydia Twa), four daughters, Alice (Mrs. Ralph Turner of Belleville); Iva (Mrs. John Wiggins), Fern (Mrs. Lawrence Leedy), both of Bancroft, and Hazel (Mrs. Leon Turner) of Belleville; one son, Roy of Bancroft, and one son, Lieut. Rodney Robinson, wireless operator of Merchant Marine. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. William Kelusky, of Bancroft and six brothers, James of British Columbia, Emerson of Alberta, Joe of Oshawa, David of Burlington and Sam and Tom of Monteagle, and 11 grandchildren.

WILLIAM MORTON.

BETHANY, Sept. 12—(ENS). —The funeral service of the late William Morton was held Saturday from St. Paul's Anglican church, of which he was a faithful choir member, was largely attended, showing the high respect in which Mr. Morton was held. Canon Battersby officiated at the church service and graveside, where interment was made in the family plot.

Mr. Morton is survived by his wife, nee Effie Blake, and an only daughter, Katherine, three sisters, Mrs. G. Ward of Peterborough, Mrs. McGrath of Toronto, and Laura at the Morton home, two brothers, Robert of South Line and Thomas at the homestead.

The late Mr. Morton was a faithful member of St. Paul's church, which is built on the north-east corner of the Morton property, never absent until serious illness overtook him, lasting into the second year.

WMS Hears Address On Temperance Theme

OMEMEE, Sept. 12 (ENS)—The Fall season for the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United church opened with a meeting held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bruce Rehill, when the members heard an address by Mrs. Dougall, who is the wife of a Salvation Army Captain in Lindsay, and who is president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in that town.

Since the theme of the entire meeting was "Temperance," Mrs. S. H. Moyer, Temperance secretary for the society, was in charge of the meeting which opened with prayer led by Mrs. Moyer. A meditation in which Mrs. J. Shield, Mrs. V. Lang and Mrs. W. Weir took part was presented by the leader. Mrs. C. L. Morcombe and Mrs. W. D. Weir sang a duet "He Always Knows," and Mrs. V. Lang, president, then conducted the business. The date for the tea for the Baby Band was set for September 28, and Mrs. R. Clifford and Mrs. C. L Morcombe were appointed to assist the Baby Band leader, Mrs H. Deyell, in preparing for this annual function. It was decided to have the Autumn thankoffering on October 5 at the next regular meeting.

The women were then entertained with a piano duet played by Mrs. I. Connell and Miss Lillie Race, following which the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. J. Dougall, from Lindsay, was introduced by Mrs. S. Moyer. Mrs. Dougall brought an inspiring message on "Temperance."

"As Canadian women" said Mrs. Dougall, "if we are going to cherish our country we must do something to fight this evil of strong drink." Mrs. Lang expressed the thanks of the Society to all who had helped to make the meeting so interesting. The members in Mrs. Rehill's group then served a lunch.

Parishoners Honor Resigning Minister

APSLEY, Sept. 12 — (ENS). — Rev. F. Freeston, rector of St. George's Parish for the last two years, has severed connection with the parish and is leaving here on Friday to take up work in New York City.

Following the church services on Sunday night the congregations of Trinity United and St. George's Anglican Churches gathered at the rectory to spend a short time with Rev. and Mrs. Freeston to wish them God speed and success in their new field of labor. Mr. C. Robb on behalf of his congregation expressed regret at their departure and wished them every success.

Mrs. Freeston assisted by Misses Margaret James, Irene McIlmoyl, Ruby McColl and Mrs. W. Everetts served tea and cake. Prior to church service Rev. Freeston baptized Dianne McColl, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chesel McColl. Rev. Freeston is being succeeded by Mr. Urqhart a layman, who will arrive at the rectory some time this week.

Farmers Kill Wolf Stealing Their Sheep

APSLEY, Sept. 12 — (ENS). — Wolves are proving a menace to sheep raisers in this northern part of the country. Quite recently Henry Edwards of Clanricarde had 2 sheep killed, Fred Mann had 3 killed and Mac. C. Tucker also lost 2 sheep.

Sunday morning Mr. Mann went to the field for his cows and after gathering them for home was surprised to see a lone wolf killing a lamb in the same field. He hurried to the house for a gun and succeeded in wounding the wolf. He telephone Joseph Tucker who with his son Roger and Herb and Walter Tucker went on a wolf hunt. But Mr. Mann had found it first and killed it before the others arrived. One of the sheep belonging to Mac Tucker was killed within 200 yards of his barn.

CONQUEST FOR PEACE

This painting of man's progressive conquest of the St. Lawrence River was made from a print published in 1840 — 104 years ago. It depicts the first by-passing of the Long Sault Rapids. Today's engineers estimate that the final conquest of the river will develop a total of five million horsepower, and will bring ocean shipping into the Great Lakes.

● Down through time the mighty, white-walled waters of the St. Lawrence have thundered.

Savage eyes have looked upon it in fearful awe.

Questing eyes have speculated upon its resistless power.

Practical eyes have broken down its shipping barriers—have assayed its untapped power—have planned its conquest.

White-walled waters thunder in many parts of Canada. And in them lie power . . . power to drive tomorrow's turbines in their song of peace . . . power to serve ever-mounting human wants . . . power to help make of Canada a great, free land of jobs for all and of ever-increasing bounty . . . a Canada Unlimited.

What's going to be your share of Canada Unlimited? The answer is in your hands and your heart . . . measured in the degree that you buy and hold your War Savings Certificates and Victory Bonds.

City's Record of Inoculations Stands High in The Province

National Immunization Week, which begins to-day, is a campaign sponsored by the Health League of Canada to bring to the attention of the people the purposes and values of immunization, and althought the number of children in Peterborough treated each year as compared with the number of births is very favorable, an intense effort to bring the week by the press radio, and screen, story of immunization more forcibly home will be made during the Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O. H. said to-day.

WOUNDED IN FRANCE — Pte. George Moncrief, of Bensfort, who was reported wounded recently, was injured in the left arm. He had one operation in France, and three days later he was moved by plane to England.

The compaign will be a national one, as the Health League has divisions in every province, and its primary objective is the prevention of diphtheria, small-pox, whooping-cough and scarlet fever.

"Immunization in Peterborough is very good," declared Dr. Kelly. "As an example, out of 592 birth in 1943, taking that year as an average, 463 children were inoculated against diphtheria. These figures include only those who are treated either in the schools, summer clinic,, or child welfare clinic, and not many others who are looked after by private doctors."

Other treatments for the prevention of various other diseases showed as high a percentage of children treated. In 1943, 167 children of public school age were given "step-up" does of serumn, Dr. Kelly sated. He said the present "step-up" system was for children who had received ful inoculations while they were babies, and were being treated for the purpose of keeping their immunization up to a high level.

He pointed out that while inoculations will be given in the regular places this week, it is not expected by the Health League that there will be mass toxoids or vaccinations. The idea of National immunization week will be to interest people first. All vailable facilities will be put into use to do this, and in many centres where immunization is at a low ebb, it is hoped the campaign will inject a new interest this work.

YMCA Offering Membership To Servicemen

The Board of Directors of the local Y. M. C. A. decided Monday night ot offer six month's membership to all men of the armed forces upon their discharge from the service. The Y. M. C. A.'s across Canad are adopting a similar move following the recommendations of the National Council at the Annual Meeting in Montreal in June. These free memberships are being offered as a means of recognizing the services which the youth of Canada have rendered their country and also as a means by which the Y. M. C. A may assist in the adjustment involved in their return to civilian life.

The appointment of Donald Duncan as Boys' Secretary was confirmed by the Board. R. R. Faryon chairman of the Boys' Work Committee reported for the Special Committee appointed by the president, J. R. Marshall and the feeling of the Board was that the Peterborough Association is fortunate in securing a young man of such outstanding qualities for this highly important position.

The general secretary reported that the Y's Men Club, Friday Night Club and Hi-Y Club have all had meetings at which plans for reorganization and program for the coming season were consedered. The annual membership campaign is planned for the last of September and the first week of October. A special event will be held on October 11 to commemorate the Centennial of the Y. M. C. A. This is the birthday of the founder of the Association, Sir George Williams. This event will take the form of a dinner to which all former members of the Association are invited.

Plans for additional service for the men of the Training Centre was discussed and approved by the Board and a suggestion of a plan of cooperation with the Sea Cadets was also favorably received.

Plan Investiture Of Rev. J. J. O'Brien

The investiture of Rev. J. J. O'Brien, patsor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, in the honorary position and rank of domestic prelate to Pope Pius XII, will take place Wednesday, October 11. This appointment carries with the title of Monsignor. Announcement of the papal honor received by their parish priest was made at the Church of the Sacred Heart Sunday by Rev. Dr. Grant, who expressed his own happiness in the tribute to Father O'Brien as a reward of a long service in the priesthood.

Monsignor O'Brien was born in Peterborough, educated here and in Toronto and at the Grand Seminary, Montreal, and has spent his life in the diocese of Peterborough. His friends in general have been congratulating him on the recognition of his devoted stewardship over a long period of years, and will be interested in the event of his investiture which is announced today.

Police On Lookout For London Soldier

Police in this district are on the lookout for a young soldier wanted for the murder of a woman, Mrs. Ethel Smith, at a London military camp on Sunday.

The wanted man is described as being 18 years of age, 5 feet, 6 inches in height, weighing 147 pounds and wearing battle dress, gaiters and wedge cap. He is armed with a Lee Enfield rifle and a .22 calibre revolver and may be driving a green-colored Buick car.

Any person who may have seen a young soldier answering this description is asked to communicate with the provincial police here.

Sept. 12, 1940—Italians moved fresh troops eastward in Libya for attack on Egypt. Series of explosions at Hercules Powder Company's plant at Kenvil, N.J., killed 48 and injured 125. R.A.F. bombed Le Havre, Flushing and Emden.

FIGHTING IN FRANCE—L.-Cpl. E. R. Bedding of the 2nd Canadian Division has been overseas 3½ years, and has been fighting in the Continent since D-Day. This is his second trip to France, for he took part in the Dieppe raid. He is the son of Mrs. E. Bedding, 178 Hazlitt street.

Advertising Needed To Have Free Press

Andre Geraud (Pertinax), famous French journalist, who tells of the corruption of the French press prior to the war in his book "The Gravediggers of France," was asked by Time Magazine for his opinion of the new rules laid down by General De Gaulle for the French press. These rules, in addition to making it necessary to publish the names of owners and staff, require that publications publish the source and amount of their revenue regularly.

Pertinax replied that the basis of the problem was that the French people did not have the advertising habit. "In old times," he said, "why was it so difficult for the French press to be independent? ecause the advertising business was not sufficiently developed, papers had to look to other sources for their revenue. The French people will have to develop the advertising habit or be prepared to pay much more for their papers."

Shell Burst Injures Pte. Albert N. Kouri

A letter which arrived a day before the official telegram from Ottawa, informed Mrs. Kouri, 372 Dobbin avenue, that her husband, Pte. Albert Nicholas Kouri, was reported injured in France, August 29.

The letter written by the soldier himself, said that a shell had burst in his trench causing concussion. When he regained consciousness, he was in the hospital and was deaf in one ear. Outside of being weak, he writes that he is coming along nicely.

Prior to enlisting a few months ago, Pte. Kouri was employed at Genelco for more than two years. He went overseas in July of this year. He is a native of Marmora.

Two Tractor Classes Added For Plowing

As motive power for plowing the farm horse has been pushed further into the background in plans for a match which directors of the Peterborough Plowmen's Association decided to hold on October 18.

Three of the long established classes for horses in the plowing competition were erased Monday night, and the sentimental lover of horses will note that news with a doleful shaking of head.

The directors, with Walter Thorn presiding, substituted two additional tractor classes, one of them for boys and girls under eighteen years who are going to have an opportunity of showing what they can do with any types of tractor and plow.

The match will be held in Otonabee or Douro, and the place will be chosen by a subcommittee appointed last night.

Penny Box Total Reaches $2,400 For Fund

The success of any effort of a community-wide nature stands or falls on just how widespread support is given to it, and since the penny box activity of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund is one in which a large proportion of the residents of this city and district have come in contact with, the success of the whole may be demonstrated to some extent by just how this particular sphere of the fund's activities has been supported in a general way.

At no time in the past have more than forty of these boxes been in circulation, and at the moment there are even less than that, so that with today's substantial gifts from this sources of revenue, the splendid total of $2,400.21 attained by them averages out at over $60 a box, and the fund management is particularly thankful for the splendid manner in which this activity under its own jurisdiction with the help of the business houses where they have been located has been supported.

Fund Reaches Total of $80,039.99

Nothing perhaps would seem more appropriate than that this particular fund activity should be the one to enable it to pass the $80,000 mark, since it is one in which the citizens at large have played a considerable part, and as such rebounds to the credit of the whole.

In this, the box located at the Empress Hotel has played a conspicuous part, due to the special interest taken in it by the proprietor, Chris G. Graham, who personally supports it on a daily pledge basis, proof of which may be seen in computing the last three donations reported on July 14, August 12 and today respectively, which have totalled the splendid sum of $68 and this of course does not include the very substantial help it has given on a similar basis previous to that.

Three other penny box collections also grace today's list, all of them among the good supporters of the fund in this manner, the box at the Centre Theatre yielding $12.25, those in the Bank of Montreal adding another $8.10 to their former good record, and the box at Payne's Drug Store through a real windfall which might perhaps be ascribed to some American visitors, topping the list with a splendid donation of $27, to make a total between the four of them that stands at $70.35 an outstanding day in this respect for an outstanding purpose.

The fund now has $795.79 on hand towards its next proposed gift of £300 which will make an even £18,000 that will have gone from this city and district to help those in distress in Britain, a further sum of $550 still being required to complete that amount.

This Wednesday at Millbrook

With one million homes wrecked in London alone during the past few weeks by robot bombs, there is every reason why people should give their utmost in support to the big Donnybrook Fair and Carnival being held at Millbrook this Wednesday, September 13, the proceeds of which may go largely towards completing this next gift.

Starting at 2 p.m. in the Fair grounds, an auction sale will commence their mammoth effort, a huge variety of goods being offered which have all been donated by the people of that place and those of Cavan township and the surrounding districts.

This is to be followed by a street dance and carnival, with bingo games and wheels of fortune playing their part, providing fun galore for all who attend, besides giving each the added satisfaction that all of the money they thus spend on their own pleasure or use, is going to give much added enjoyment to those in distress in Britain, besides providing Christmas comforts for the boys of that district who are now serving the nation's cause on active service.

No greater effort worthy of your patronage may be found than this, so help on the good work and join the crowds who be there, and incidentally listen to the martial strains of beautiful music played by the Midland Regiment band which will be in attendance to assist and support the effort.

Broken Glass Pane Severs Arm Artery

Friends and relatives of Willard Hubble, McGill street, will be glad to hear he is progressing favoraby after an accident Saturday morning, when the artery in his left arm was cut by a piece of glass. Although he suffered great loss of blood, his quick recovery is undoubtedly due to the speedy and expert first-aid treatment given him by C. C. Hopkins, also of McGill street. The accident occurred while Mr. Hubble was re-placing the garage door, and broke a small pane of glass.

Soldier Has Accident Falls Asleep Driving

Pte. Donald Revoy of the R. C. A. S. C., Kingston, was fined $5 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C., in police court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving, laid by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure.

Officer McClure told the court that Pte. Revoy had been involved in an accident shortly after midnight Monday night while on his way back to Peterborough from a trip to Lakefield.

"He fell asleep at the wheel," explained the traffic officer, and his car ran off the road and collided with a Hydro pole which was broken off. The front of his car was damaged."

"There was no evidence whatever of liquor," Officer McClure added, remarking that a small fine would meet the ends of justice.

J. E. O'Reilly, Wolfe street, pleaded not guilty to a charge of having been drunk in Otonabee Township and at his request the case was enlarged for a week.

John Loucks, Hunter street, charged with beating his wife entered a plea of not guilty and asked for an adjournment. Acting Chief Constable John W. Thompson opposed the request. "I don't think it would be safe to let this man out," he told the court.

Loucks was remanded in custody until next Monday, with bail fixed at $500.

Oil Company Using Buried Tanks

Canadian Oil Company is going underground with its storage tanks on Hunter street east, subject of a sharpening controversy with the council. A letter from their solicitors, Tilley, Carson, Morlock and McCrimmon Monday night conveyed the information that the company's shift would be vertical rather than horizontal. The storage tanks are going to be buried, or an arrangement to that general effect, and with that assurance of action the company appeals to the council for issuance of a permit to rebuild the service station on their property.

"The company's postwar planning intends to abandon Peterborough as a substation for the distribution of petroleum products with above ground tanks," the letter announced.

"The company intends to serve the public from storage tanks underground with a small warehouse on the present substation site for the storage of lubricating oils and grease. It is the company's intention that this letter take the place of the verbal undertaking given you some months ago. We are, therefore, applying again for a permit for the erection of a service station building on the Hunter street site. The contractor is ready and construction is an urgent matter."

City Clerk Outram was instructed to write the company for a clearer statement of intention. Presumably tanks are going to be sunk underground on the present site.

"Tell them we don't understand it," said Alderman Glover with rather elaborate pretense of being in a fog."

"And tell them we are going grayheaded about them abandoning Peterborough," Alderman Dutton remarked.

H. Ball President Of Gladioli Society

Harold Ball was elected president of the Eastern Ontario Gladioli Society, at the election of officers for 1944-1945 held after the dance and weiner roast at Wallace Point recently. More than 75 members of the society attended, and the events for the year were reviewed. The trial garden operated in Peterborough through the co-operation of the Parks Commission was found to be a success, and through the recent show a large amount of money was raised for the British War Victims' Fund. Plans were made for the coming year.

Other officers elected were George Duncan, vice-president; Mrs. Howard Hall, secretary-treasurer; William Jewell, show chairman; George Duncan, show secretary; George Clarke, show superintendent; George Duncan, chairman of the garden committee; Mrs. Howard Hall, convener of social events and committee, Mrs. G. Duncan, Mrs. Fred storey, Mrs. William Jewell; sick and visiting committee, Howard Hall, Mrs. H. Ball, Mrs. A. Maynard, Mrs. Fred Storey.

STATIONED OVERSEAS—Sgt. I. E. G. Huffman, son of Mrs. Herbert Huffman, Margaret ave., is in his fifth year of service with the R.C.A.F. He graduated as a mechanic in September, 1940, later remustering to air crew and training as an air gunner. He is now serving with the R.C.A.F. overseas.

HIGHLANDER HOME—Col. R. T. F. Hicks-Lyne, former officer commanding the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, is back in Peterborough after more than four years away from Peterborough.

Col. Hicks-Lyne Arrives Home From England

"Our Highlanders have certainly been a credit to Peterborough," said Colonel R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, original officer commanding the Stormont-Dundas and Glengarrys, who arrrived home from overseas this morning after an absence from the city for slightly more than four years.

"Before I left, and previous to that, I got around to hospitals to see as many of the lads as I could. Their morale is splendid, and I have some messages for relatives of some of them which I shall try to deliver as soon as possible. I must be careful about what I say, but I do want to say that our unit has come through a difficult time in fine form. I saw Captain Brain, the Padre, a short time ago. He is well again. I also saw Archie Hamilton, second in command, he is in great form, too.

The regiment and its Peterborough men have done splendidly. We are all proud of them."

Colonel Hicks-Lyne said that he could only pay to the parents and relatives of those men of the Glengarrys who were not coming home the tribute of his deepest respect for their memories and association.

Police Lauded In Car Case

A tribute to the work of the Peterborough police department in cleaning up a recent car theft case was paid in a letter read at Monday's meeting of the police commission from the firm of Ephgrave and Elmsley, insurance adjusters.

In enclosing a cheque for expenses the police department had incurred in dealing with the case, the firm's letter added "We appreciate the fine work Acting Chief Constable John W. Thompson and his staff of the police department did in connection with this matter. Not only was the stolen car recovered but the police were able later able to recover the five missing wheels, tires and tubes. In addition to this the two thieves were located and convicted in court. We consider that the police did a particularly good job with respect to this matter."

Grand Jury Tests Hose In Court House Result Is Flood On Floor of Corridor

Mr. Justice Plaxton will be inclined to regard almost incredible the report of the experience of the Grand Jury in examination of a stand of hose in the main corridor of the Court House, Monday afternoon.

His Lordship quoted reports indicating the enquiries and inspections made by juries during the last year, and suggested that the present Grand Jury might use its discretion in their course. However, His Lordship was inclined to advise some inspection to-day of the institutions in the city, if not the County Home or any other place in that range. He also mentioned some of the details of examination some of the debe observed and probed.

His Lordship cited the finding of a jury visiting an institution in some part of Ontario, a county home for the aged and of testing fire hose that was kept attached to a standpipe for emergency use.

"The jury found that hose to be full of pinholes, leaking and worthless." His Lordship said.

The jurors brought in two true bills and they moved on to look around the Court House. They came to a hose in the main hall downstairs and near the vestibule. Jurors had passed that way once or twice in the last year. Others had precede them dutifully. Still, one of the jurors, remembering the instance cited Mr. Justice Plaxton said to the foreman, C. H. Elliott, "Let's try it any way."

So, the hose was stretched along the floor and its nozzle pointed out the door, and the water turned on.

And Jim Brownlee's shining corridor floor is probably not dry yet. That stretch of hose was just about as leaky and sieve-like as the horrible example quoted by Mr. Justice Plaxton. It leaked badly along the hardwood floor to the amazement of the Grand Jury who would probably have laid odds on the soundness of that hose.

DOROTHY DIX • • •

WE NEVER KNOW OURSELVES. Admitting Some Faults, We Think Nobody Could Find Our Peculiarities Objectionable.

One of the curious contradictions of human nature is that while we are all egotists who spend our entire lives thinking about ourselves, we never really get to know ourselves and what manner of men and women we are. We remain strangers without even a bowing acquaintance with the individuals under our skins and if we should meet ourselves coming down the street we would probably say: "Dear me, I wonder who that sloppy woman is and where she gets those do-funny hats." Or: "Gosh, I'd hate to look like that pompus ass who struts around as if he owned the earth and had a mortgage on Heaven. Thank God, I'm not like that!"

And, although our houses are lined with mirrors and every shop window gives us a close-up of ourselves, we haven't even the slightest idea of how we look. We can see that our contemporaries have gotten old and round-shouldered and bent and broken, but we are complacently sure that WE do not look our age.

Of course, we admit in a general way to having a few faults, but no one except an enemy, who is eaten up with envy and jealousy of us, could find our little peculiarites objectionable. They are just manifestations of personality, the things that make us interesting ,if you come to that.

Folks Little Know Themselves.

And pernaps nothing else shows how little we know ourselves as the fact that we condemn in others the very things that we do ourselves. We avoid bores, for instance, as we would the plague and dive for cover when some endless talker buttonholes us and starts on his endless reminiscences, but we thing we are being perfectly fascinating and that everyone is hanging on our words when we tell the story of our lives and the cute thing the cat did.

We laugh at the elderly women who make figures of fun of themselves trying to look like glamour girls, and then we go out and spend our money at the beauty shops and buy clothes that are only suitable for our granddaughters. No woman ever sees herself as a fat woman, or a skinny woman. She is just a little plump, or has a willowy figure.

We not only don't know ourselves. We don't want to know ourselves. There is no one whose society we dread as much as our own, and there is practically nothing that the average man and woman will not do to avoid spending even an hour alone with themselvs.

We will leave comfortable homes homes and herd in crowds with dull and uninteresting people we never saw before and hope never to see again; we will spend hours looking at movies that bore us to tears, or listening to tiresome lectures, or going to concerts that make us want to scream, doing anything just not to have to try to entertain ourselves. Thousands even live with husbands and wives and relatives they hate just not to have to be thrown upon themselves for company.

We love ourselves the best and admire ourselves the most, yet there is no human being we take so much trouble to avoid. Funny, Isn't it?

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

The way to a man's heart is through his stomach. A wedge of home made pie ensures that thoroughly satisfied feeling as a dessert. Below are some choice recipes for pies.

Australian Plum and Apple Pie

4 cups sliced apples, 2-3 cups sugar, 1½ tablespoons flour, ¼ teasoon salt, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup stoned, drained, purple plums (No. 2½ can), 1 cup pastry flour (sifted), ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons shortening, 2 to 3 tablespoons cold water. Place the sliced apples in a well greased, nine-inch plate. Combine the sugar, flour, salt, and nutmeg. Sprinkle this mixture with the stoned plums. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cut the shortening into the dry ingredients with a pastry blender, until it is the size of lima beans. Add the water, stirring only enough to hold the ingredients together. Place the dough on a lightly floured board and roll into a circle about 12 inches in diameter. Wet rim of the pie plate, lay the unbaked pastry crust on top of the fruit. and trim the edges, leaving about one inch to fold back on top. With sharp shears, cut four V shaped gashes near the centre, and fold back the points. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees about 45 minutes, or until apples are tender. Serve warm.

Squash Custard Pie

1½ pounds winter squash, ¾ cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon ginger, ⅛ teaspoon allspice, ⅛ teaspoon cloves, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 eggs, ¾ cup milk, ½ cup cold, strong coffee brew, 9 inch unbaked pastry shell. Scrub the squash cut in one inch pieces and remove seeds, and stringy portion. Add to a small amount boiling water, cover, boil 10 minutes, or until tender, drain, cool slightly and remove skin. Press pulp through a potato ricer. Measure pulp. There should be 1¼ cups. Mix sugar, flour, salt, ginger, allspice, nutmeg cloves add squash and butter and mix well. Beat eggs slightly and add with milk and coffee. Pour into pastry shell, bake in hot oven (425 degrees F)) 40 minutes, or until a knife inserted comes out clean.

Russian Chocolate Pie

For meringue 2 egg whites, 4 tablespoons sugar. Scald milk and coffee in double boiler, combine next five ingredients and add to scalded milk and coffee. Stirring constantly, cook until thickened, cover and cook 15 minutes longer. Stir hot mixture into beaten egg yolks, return to double boiler and cook 2 minutes longer, cool and add vanilla. Pour into crust. Beat egg whites until stiff, add sugar, gradually, beating constantly. Pile lightly on filling and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 20 minutes.

Since no extra sugar is allowed for pickle making, and must therefore, be taken from the regular weekly ration, the recipes that follow have been selected because of their low sugar content. In some no sugar is required, in others a very small quantity is used.

Ripe Cucumber Relish.

3 large cucumbers (3 quarts chopped), 2 large onions, (1½ cups chopped), 1 pint vinegar, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup mustard, ¼ cup flour, 1 teasoon tumeric. Peel and remove seeds from cucumbers and cut in cubes (about 1 inch). Chop onions and add to cucumbers, with 3 tablespoons salt. Let stand ½ hour and drain. Mix flour, sugar, tumeric and mustard to a smooth paste with vinegar. Add vegetables and cook slowly until tender, about 20 minutes. Stir to prevent burning.

Vegetable Marrow Chutney.

5 pounds vegetable marrow, 1 cup salt, 3 teaspoons mustard, 3½ pints malt vinegar, 1 pound small onions (chopped fine), 1 teaspoon ground ginger, ¼ cup brown sugar or honey, 2 red peppers, 2 teaspoons tumeric. Peel a ripe vegetable marrow, cut in half and scoop out all seeds and stringy parts. Cut the marrow into small pieces, cover with salt and let stand for 12 hours. Mix mustard and tumeric with a little of the vinegar, then add remainder of the vinegar and all other ingredients except the marrow and boil together for 15 minutes. Drain marrow, add to the boiled mixture and cook until soft. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Malt vinegar is used in this recipe to approximate color and flavor of imported chutneys.

Uncooked Vegetabue Salad Pickle.

1 gallon ripe tomatoes, 2 green or red peppers, 6 medium onions, head of celery, finely chopped, 1 cup salt, 1½ cups sugar, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 tablespoon cloves, 1 teaspoon pepper, 4 small hot peppers (chillies), 1 quart vinegar. Peel and cut tomatoes into small pieces. Add chopped peppers, onions and celery. Put salt on vegetables and let stand overnight. Drain well. This is most important as otherwise a very juicy mixture will result. Mix sugar and spices with vinegar and pour over vegetables. Pour into sterilized sealers and seal tightly. This makes about 8 pints.

Dill Pickles.

Wash cucumbers and wipe well. 4 tablespoons salt, 1 small hot red Pack into jars. To 1 quart jar add pepper, 1 clove , garlic, dill and savory. Fill jars with mixture of vinegar and water in proportion of 1 quart of white vinegar to 2 quarts of water. Seal tightly. Will be ready to use in 6 weeks.

15 Criminal Cases Reported By Chief

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 12 (ENS)—At the deferred meeting of the Town Council, reports of officials comprised the major items of business.

Chief of Police Hardy reported that to date in 1944 there had been 15 criminal cases, 24 Liquor Control Act cases and 8 by-law cases. Mr. Townsend, assessor, reported on the proposed changes of assessment on business properties. One hundred and thirty residents living in the vicinity of the town dump signed a petition asking that the location be changed.

An incinerator was discussed but no action taken. A check for $50 was received from the Hydro Commission toward the upkeep of the road to No. 10 Power house. The right of way is the property of the Dominion Government but the deplorable condition of the road makes it necessary for some repairs to be undertaken.

A public meeting will be called to discuss the hospital situation.

will back it up to the limit. May I offer a suggestion that your building be so constructed as to serve everyone, not just those interested in sports, but let it be a centre for the arts, drama, music, . . . indeed, all phases of community life. This centre will go far in unifying the family life, it will in truth, be a community building.

After his address, Major A. A. Burridge spoke briefly, stating, that in his opinion, all the hopes and plans of the National Physical Fitness Act would be carried through, due to the resourcefulness, and surety of Major Eisenhardt. "He is a man who can see no difficulties, and although, it has been said that where he speaks, he leaves an impression that it would be nice if that could come true' time has shown that what he plans, he carries out," he said. In connection with the Peterborough Community Centre, Major Burridge said it might be wise to establish a Peterborough Recreational Council, whose purpose it would be to make a survey of the existing and wonderful facilities here in the city, and plan the building accordingly.

J. Jebson, general chairman of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, expressed his thanks to Major Einsenhardt for his address, and extended an invitation to return to Peterborough soon.

Mrs. W. H. Morton, president of the Local Council of Women presided.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, September 13.

Continued progress and prosperity are presaged by the ruling planetary configurations. With initiative, well directed energies, supplemented by wisely organized strategies there is every promise of all affairs moving to definite accomplishments of most cherished fulfilments. This in business, professional, artistic and romantic ventures, all advancing under high tempo, if not imperiled by an overweaning enthusiasm or foolhardy or reckless aggressiveness. Reason and sound sense should govern for even bold strokes and speculative enterprises. New and expansive ideas should thrive. Social, artistic and affectional aspirations should bring exceptional pleasure and prestige.

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to push on to the most cherished of goals, with new heights and new aspirations expanding under aggressive and well organized plans and policies. This with the friendly support of those in influential positions, who may be ready to further constructive but practical ideas. There may be danger however from over-zealous, reckless or too strenuous effort at capturing ambitious objectives. New enterprises or business ventures are encouraged, but the concentrated efforts may be in social, dramatic, cultural or romantic affiliations, with new friendships powerful.

A child born on this day may be bold, enterprising and energetic, with many diversified talents, skill and ambitions. It may also enjoy friendship and a romantic career.

Sailor Marries Girl In Army

OMEMEE, Sept. 12 —(ENS)—A charming wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, Omemee, on Saturday afternoon at 2:30, when Pte. Gladys May Lockhart, C.W.A.C., stationed at the Royal Military College, Kingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lockhart of Homeglen, Alberta, was united in marriage to Leading Stoker Donald Alfred Eggleton, R.C.N.V.R., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Eggleton of Omemee. Rev. F. W. Pooley officiated and the wedding music was played by Mr. Milburn Jones. During the signing of the register, Mr. Jones played an organ solo "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by Lieutenant George Starr, R.C.E., Toronto, the bride was smart in her C.W.A.C. uniform, and wore a corsage of red roses. Her bridesmaid, Pte. Olga Stefanik of Mapova, Alberta, also wore the uniform of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

The groom was attended by Charles Shaw, and the ushers were Mr. Jack Williamson and Mr. Brackley Shaw.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Eggleton.

Doctor Outlines Steps Taken For New Hospital

An idea of the initial steps already taken to promote the building of a new hospital in Peterborough, and the part women could play in the publicizing and promoting interest in this new plan, was given by Dr. H. M. Yelland, to members of the Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary at their annual meeting Monday afternoon in the Guild Room of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Dr. Yelland, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Nicholls Hospital, and a member of the publicity committee working on plans for the new hospital, outlined briefly the first action taken in connection with the new project. He explained that a special committee, named by the city council, had recommended to that body that a hospital committee, made up of members of the council, with representatives from the Board of Nicholls Hospital Trust, be set up. This original group has been divided into three committees, each with a definite task to perform.

The property committee was to obtain options on property near Nicholls Hospital, for the erection of new buildings, while the equipment committee was to enquire about the supplies of medical and nursing equipment available, and also to examine new ideas in hospitalization. The publicity committee, of which Dr. Yelland is a member, was to take charge of publicizing of the project, and to try to put before the public a clear picture of the difficulties under which hospital staffs are working, and how that problem could be alleviated, by putting more hospital space and newer equipment at their disposal.

The speaker went on to say that these committees were actively working, and receiving cooperation from the city council. He said that no definite plans could yet be put before the public since they had not yet been formulated, and a number of matters yet remained to be "ironed out." He felt that the hospital question should be brought before citizens as a public utility, for the city and county it would serve.

Job To Do

Discussing the part women could play, the speaker said that they could do more to influence citizens than perhaps any other single group. "You, as members of this Auxiliary, are more vitally interested than any other group," he continued. "The reputation of this Auxiliary is high, and you are well-known for going out and getting things done. I hope that we can count on your whole-hearted support, and that you will volunteer your help when called upon."

Mr. J. Hornall, in a brief address, outlined the acute problems being faced in the hospital, saying that shortage of help, of graduate and student nurses, and the increased cost of materials, were among the foremost. Quoting statistics, he said that the hospital had originally been meant to handle 70 patients, which was increased to 96 in 1942. "Now," he continued, "Nicholls Hospital is giving care to 115 patients and 20 babies, and increased service cuts efficency." Three thousand and seventy patients were admitted to the hospital during 1943, and 40,137 patient days service were given. He hoped that the committees now working on the problem would be able to present a plan in the near future to eliminate the serious shortages.

Auxiliary Lauded

Miss Edith Young, superintendent of nurses at Nicholls Hospital, gave high praise to the Auxiliary for the work it had done in the interests of the hospital and the nurses, and also thanked the volunteer workers, who were quietly and efficiently doing a real war job on the "home front." Miss Young also outlined the recent recruitment program sponsored in Peterborough, and thanked the Auxiliary for the improvements effected in the nurses' residence.

A year of continued activity and energy was reflected in the annual reports given by conveners and officers. Among the articles supplied to the hospital during the year are two electric dishwashers, four new spring mattresses, one deoderizer, a set of clinical thermometers for each of the 12 nurses who graduated, and two dozen flower vases for the public wards. Other articles which have been ordered, but not yet delivered, include one deoderizer, six tables and 40 chairs for the nurses' dining room, and three germicidal lamps. Two thundred dollars has also been set aside for the re-decorating of bedrooms in the nurses' residence. These items were included in the report given by Mrs. E. V. Morphet, convener of the buying committee, which also purchase all the prizes for the penny sale.

Reporting for the membership committee, Mrs. S. G. Graham asked for the cooperation of each member in the coming membership drive, and set the objective at 3,000 names, as against a membership of 2,448 for 1943. She explained that all the money received from membership fees went towards improvements for the hospital, and said that this year the need was even greater.

Theatre Party

Mrs. I. T. Lillico, for the social committee, told of the theatre party arranged for about 28 of the nurses-in-training, followed by a social evening at the home of the president, Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell. Miss E. Morrow, corresponding secretary, reported 12 notices sent out, 39 letters written, and 21 letters of thanks sent during the year. Mrs. Robert Ross and her committee made over 2,000 calls at the hospital, and several bouquets of flowers, and several cards, were sent by the flower committee with Mrs. G. Borland as convener. Mrs. J. Detcher, reporting for the sewing committee, said that through the shortage of material, work was not sent out to the various societies as in previous years, but that volunteers had worked at the hospital, repairing, and making new articles. Mrs. J. Wood said that the Samaritan Club, with Mrs. W. H. Hill as convener, was reported as regularly giving its monthly donation of two layettes to the hospital.

$4,500 in Bonds

The secretary's report, a review of the year's work, was read by Mrs. W. C. Boate, and Mrs. W. G. Hall gave the treasurer's report, which showed over $4,500 in bonds, as well as satisfactory balances in the Auxiliary accounts Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell presided, and Rev. M. Newton offered prayer. Miss E. Morrow was at the piano. A vote of thanks to the speakers, and to the St. Paul's church for the use of the Guild Room, was moved by Mrs. J. G. Wharry.

On behalf of the members, Mrs. I. T. Lillico presented the president with a life membership in the Auxiliary, in recognition of the sincere and devoted service she has given Members of the Board are as follows: Two year term, Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell, Mrs. E. Breckenridge, Mrs. E. R. Frost, Mrs. W. C. Hughes, Mrs. J. K. Hughes, Mrs. I. T. Lillico, Mrs. E. V. Morphet, Miss E. Morrow, Mrs. C. W. Nicholson Miss M. Patterson, Mrs. A. Rosborough, Mrs. R. Ross, Mrs. J. G. Wharry, Mrs. W. H. Hill, representing the Thursday Club, Mrs G. K. Fraser and Mrs. G. Spence, for Lakefield and vicinity, Mrs. A. B. Mann, of Bridgenorth, Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus, of Lily Lake and Mrs. R. Williamson.

The following members continue on the board for one year: Mrs. W. C. Boate, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. J. Detcher, Mrs. E. Dinner, Mrs. H. H. Dulmage, Mrs. L. G. Dobbin, Mrs. S. J. Graham, Mrs. W. G. Hall, Mrs. A. G. Howson. Mrs. J. Low, Mrs. I. McRae, Mrs. W. K. Sloan and Mrs. J. Wood.

Mrs. J. Brown Addresses WMS

Mrs. R. C. Boulter, Aylmer street, was hostess Monday evening for the regular meeting of Group F of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United Church. Guest speaker was Mrs. James Brown, who in a short talk, stressed that the Church was the habitation of God, and that to be good Christians, all should "Bear ye one another's burdens." The devotional exercises were taken by Mrs. J. W. Hales and Mrs. R. P. Wellman.

Miss M. Smith read an interesting letter from a serviceman who had visited the Holy Land, and Mrs. R. Powell gave a reading, "No Sects in Heaven". Mrs. A. H. Radford sanga solo, accompaying herself on the piano. The hostess served refreshments.

Beta Sigma Phi Planning Picnic

The first regular meeting of the newly organized Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, Ontario Alpha Theta Chapter, was held Tuesday evening in the club room of the Y. W. C. A. under the direction of Mrs. M Holt. The president, Mrs. A. S. MacRae, read the opening ritual, after which the minutes of an executive meeting and picinc business session were given by the secretary, Miss Leona MacMillan. Mrs. G. S. Cameron extended an invitation to a Fall picnic to be held at her summer home on September 25.

The program chairman, Mrs. Stuart Munro, then took charge of the program during which very interesting and informative talks were given by Miss Leona MacMillan on "Formation and Growth of Greek Letter Societies" and by Miss Margaret Preston on "The Philosophy and Code of Conduct of the Sorority Woman." A short discussion period followed under the headings outlined in the chapter book "Invitation to Life" after which all members joined in the closing ritual. The next meeting will be held Sept. 25 at the summer home of Mrs. G. S. Cameron.

Home and School

QUEEN ALEXANDRA

Twenty-six young students received graduation diplomas from Queen Alexandra School Monday evening, in a ceremony conducted in connection with the regular meeting of the Home and School Association.

The following received diplomas from J. E. R. Munro, the principal: Clara Althouse, Elizabeth Blackwell, Ronald Beals, Katherine Benton, Ruthann Brown, Evelyn Clarke, Douglas Crawford, Rodger Hendren, Alan Hawthorne, Grace Ingram, Walter Jary, Doreen Jewell, Ray Morgan, Kenneth Powers, Don Richardson, Pauline Revoy, Gerald Simmonds, Doris Simmonds, Harold Syvertsen, Dorothy Sanders, Nelda Taylor, Wilma Watson, Casper Wiechorek, Bob May, Mildred Whatman and Donald Welsh.

In his talk to the students, under the topic, "What Do I Ask of Life?", Rev. F. W. Craik, urged them to take full advantage of all opportunities, and to use their talents to their fullest extent. He said that the most anyone could ask was a good and effective life, but that to attain it, each must give life the best that is in him. He went on to say that the "best" from life was not necessarily material success, but a deep sense of peace achieved only when doing things for others without thought of remuneration, and continued by urging his listeners to work steadily to develop character and command the respect of all people.

Miss Dorothy Saunders, winner of the Board of Education prize for the student passing first in the Grade 8 class, was congratulated by Mrs. R. Parnall, who explained the gift to the student passing first in each Grade 8 in the city. Mr. Munro also had words of praise for her scholarship. Valedictorian addresses were given by Elizabeth Blackwell and Douglas Crawford. Congratulations were extended by Mrs. C. McBride, the president of the Home and School, to the softball team, and presented each member with a crest, reading "Champions, Queen Alexandra, Softball, 1943-1944." Mr. Munro spoke of his pleasure and gratification that Queen Alexandra pupils had again won the Horticultural Cup.

An entertaining program followed the ceremony, with R. Howey's dog, "Pat", delighting the audience with his many tricks. Mr. Howey and his dog have presented programs from Vancouver to Halifax, and have raised over $1,000 for the British War Victims. Mr. F. Board and Mrs. A. Bennett sang "The Church Bells of England", arranged as a duet by M. B. Chenhall, and an Irish melody, also arranged by Mr. Chenhall. Miss Betty Mather played two piano solos, "Valse in E flat" and "Souvenir in F".

Mrs. C. McBride, president of the Home and School Association, welcomed the parents and students, and urged a large attendance at the GRAY FLANNEL KNEE PANTS — The British schoolboy type of short pants has been popular for summer wear amongst the junior debs; it carries on into autumn school-day wardrobes, useful and smart. Here the pants are coupled with a bold plaid shirt, which appears to be the chosen upper for these shirts, rather than pullover or jacket. —By Prunella Wood.

INFLATION IS POISON

Canada has held off inflation so far and other countries admire us for it. But if you and I and our friends stop giving the Prices Board our support, the whole ceiling may still crack and then we'll all learn what hardship and deprivation really is!

WE NEVER KNOW OURSELVES. Admitting Some Faults, We Think Nobody Could Find. Our Peculiarities Objectionable.

One of the curious contradictions of human nature is that while we are all egotists who spend our entire lives thinking about ourselves, we never really get to know ourselves and what manner of men and women we are. We remain strangers without even a bowing acquaintance with the individuals under our skins and if we should meet ourselves coming down the street we would probably say: "Dear me, I wonder who that sloppy woman is and where she gets those do-funny hats." Or: "Gosh, I'd hate to look like that pompus ass who struts around as if he owned the earth and had a mortgage on Heaven. Thank God, I'm not like that!"

And, although our houses are lined with mirrors and every shop window gives us a close-up of ourselves, we haven't even the slightest idea of how we look. We can see that our contemporaries have gotten old and round-shouldered and bent and broken, but we are complacently sure that WE do not look our age.

Of course, we admit in a general way to having a few faults, but no one except an enemy, who is eaten up with envy and jealousy of us, could find our little peculiarites objectionable. They are just manifestations of personality, the things that make us interesting ,if you come to that.

Folks Little Know Themselves.

And pernaps nothing else shows how little we know ourselves as the fact that we condemn in others the very things that we do ourselves. We avoid bores, for instance, as we would the plague and dive for cover when some endless talker buttonholes us and starts on his endless reminiscences, but we thing we are being perfectly fascinating and that everyone is hanging on our words when we tell the story of our lives and the cute thing the cat did.

We laugh at the elderly women who make figures of fun of themselves trying to look like glamour girls, and then we go out and spend our money at the beauty shops and buy clothes that are only suitable for our granddaughters. No woman ever sees herself as a fat woman, or a skinny woman. She is just a little plump, or has a willowy figure.

We not only don't know ourselves. We don't want to know ourselves. There is no one whose society we dread as much as our own, and there is practically nothing that the average man and woman will not do to avoid spending even an hour alone with themselvs.

We will leave comfortable homes homes and herd in crowds with dull and uninteresting people we never saw before and hope never to see again; we will spend hours looking at movies that bore us to tears, or listening to tiresome lectures, or going to concerts that make us want to scream, doing anything just not to have to try to entertain ourselves. Thousands even live with husbands and wives and relatives they hate just not to have to be thrown upon themselves for company.

We love ourselves the best and admire ourselves the most, yet there is no human being we take so much trouble to avoid. Funny, Isn't it?

A sincere, homey welcome . . . a pleasant spot to read and rest . . . good, hot, nourishing meals and varied entertainment are ever-ready and waiting for the uniformed lads who throng into the Active Service Canteens.

Behind these well-organized, expertly-run "homes away from home" is an army of women volunteers who give cheerfully of their time and energy, day in and day out. These women cook, wash dishes, clean, and make repairs . . . all the never-ending tasks necessary to keep such Canteens running smoothly. To them, no tribute we could offer would be too great.

We at Christie's also honour the thousands of hospitable Canadian families who contribute so greatly by inviting Service Men and Women to their homes.

15 Criminal Cases Reported By Chief

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 12 (ENS) —At the deferred meeting of the Town Council, reports of officials comprised the major items of business.

Chief of Police Hardy reported that to date in 1944 there had been 15 criminal cases, 24 Liquor Control Act cases and 6 by-law cases. Mr. Townsend, assessor, reported on the proposed changes of assessment on business properties. One hundred and thirty residents living in the vicinity of the town dump signed a petition asking that the location be changed.

An incinerator was discussed but no action taken. A check for $50 was received from the Hydro Commission toward the upkeep of the road to No. 10 Power house. The right of way is the property of the Dominion Government but the deplorable condition of the road makes it necessary for some repairs to be undertaken.

A public meeting will be called to discuss the hospital situation.

will back it up to the limit. May I offer a suggestion that your building be so constructed as to serve everyone, not just those interested in sports, but let it be a centre for the arts, drama, music,.... indeed, all phases of community life. This centre will go far in unifying the family life, it will in truth, be a community building.

After his address, Major A. A. Burridge spoke briefly, stating, that in his opinion, all the hopes and plans of the National Physical Fitness Act would be carried through, due to the resourcefulness, and surety of Major Eisenhardt. "He is a man who can see no difficulties, and although, it has been said that where he speaks, he leaves an impression that it would be nice if that could come true' time has shown that what he plans, he carries out," he said. In connection with the Peterborough Community Centre. Major Burridge said it might be wise to establish a Peterborough Recreational Council, whose purpose it would be to make a survey of the existing and wonderful facilities here in the city, and plan the building accordingly.

J. Jebson, general chairman of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, expressed his thanks to Major Einsenhardt for his address, and extended an invitation to return to Peterborough soon.

Mrs. W. H. Morton, president of the Local Council of Women presided.

The Tea Hour Gossip . . . .

The way to a man's heart is through his stomach. A wedge of home made pie ensures that thoroughly satisfied feeling as a dessert. Below are some choice recipes for pies.

Australian Plum and Apple Pie

4 cups sliced apples, 2-3 cups sugar, 1½ tablespoons flour, ¼ teasoon salt, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup stoned, drained, purple plums (No. 2½ can), 1 cup pastry flour (sifted), ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons shortening, 2 to 3 tablespoons cold water. Place the sliced apples in a well greased, nine-inch plate. Combine the sugar, flour, salt, and nutmeg. Sprinkle this mixture with the stoned plums. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cut the shortening into the dry ingredients with a pastry blender, until it is the size of lima beans. Add the water, stirring only enough to hold the ingredients together. Place the dough on a lightly floured board and roll into a circle about 12 inches in diameter. Wet rim of the pie plate, lay the unbaked pastry crust on top of the fruit. and trim the edges, leaving about one inch to fold back on top. With sharp shears, cut four V shaped gashes near the centre, and fold back the points. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees about 45 minutes, or until apples are tender. Serve warm.

Squash Custard Pie

1⅛ pounds winter squash, ¾ cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon ginger, ⅛ teaspoon allspice, ⅛ teaspoon cloves, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 eggs, ¾ cup milk, ½ cup cold, strong coffee brew, 9 inch unbaked pastry shell. Scrub the squash out, in one inch pieces and remove seeds, and stringy portion. Add to a small amount boiling water, cover, boil 10 minutes, or until tender, drain, cool slightly and remove skin. Press pulp through a potato ricer. Measure pulp. There should be 1¼ cups. Mix sugar, flour, salt, ginger, allspice, nutmeg cloves add squash and butter and mix well. Beat eggs slightly and add with milk and coffee. Pour into pastry shell, bake in hot oven (425 degrees F)) 40 minutes, or until a knife inserted comes out clean.

Russian Chocolate Pie

For meringue 2 egg whites, 4 tablespoons sugar. Scald milk and coffee in double boiler, combine next five ingredients and add to scalded milk and coffee. Stirring constantly, cook until thickened, cover and cook 15 minutes longer. Stir hot mixture into beaten egg yolks, return to double boiler and cook 2 minutes longer, cool and add vanilla. Pour into crust. Beat egg whites until stiff, add sugar, gradually, beating constantly. Pile lightly on filling and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 20 minutes.

Since no extra sugar is allowed for pickle making, and must therefore, be taken from the regular weekly ration, the recipes that follow have been selected because of their low sugar content. In some no sugar is required, in others a very small quantity is used.

Ripe Cucumber Relish.

3 large cucumbers (3 quarts chopped), 2 large onions, (1½ cups chopped), 1 pint vinegar, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup mustard, ¼ cup flour, 1 teasoon tumeric. Peel and remove seeds from cucumbers and cut in cubes (about 1 inch). Chop onions and add to cucumbers, with 3 tablespoons salt. Let stand ½ hour and drain. Mix flour, sugar, tumeric and mustard to a smooth paste with vinegar. Add vegetables and cook slowly until tender, about 20 minutes. Stir to prevent burning.

Vegetable Marrow Chutney.

5 pounds vegetable marrow, 1 cup salt, 3 teaspoons mustard, 3½ pints malt vinegar, 1 pound small onions (chopped fine), 1 teaspoon ground ginger, ¼ cup brown sugar or honey, 2 red peppers, 2 teaspoons tumeric. Peel a ripe vegetable marrow, cut in half and scoop out all seeds and stringy parts. Cut the marrow into small pieces, cover with salt and let stand for 12 hours. Mix mustard and tumeric with a little of the vinegar, then add remainder of the vinegar and all other ingredients except the marrow and boil together for 15 minutes. Drain marrow, add to the boiled mixture and cook until soft. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Malt vinegar is used in this recipe to approximate color and flavor of imported chutneys.

Uncooked Vegetabue Salad Pickle.

1 gallon ripe tomatoes, 2 green or red peppers, 6 medium onions, head of celery, finely chopped, 1 cup salt, 1½ cups sugar, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 tablespoon cloves, 1 teaspoon pepper, 4 small hot peppers (chillies), 1 quart vinegar. Peel and cut tomatoes into small pieces. Add chopped peppers, onions and celery. Put salt on vegetables and let stand overnight. Drain well. This is most important as otherwise a very juicy mixture will result. Mix sugar and spices with vinegar and pour over vegetables. Pour into sterilized sealers and seal tightly. This makes about 8 pints.

Dill Pickles.

Wash cucumbers and wipe well. 4 tablespoons salt, 1 small hot red Pack into jars. To 1 quart jar add pepper, 1 clove , garlic, dill and savory. Fill jars with mixture of vinegar and water in proportion of 1 quart of white vinegar to 2 quarts of water. Seal tightly. Will be ready to use in 6 weeks.

October meeting, when Mr. Munro will be the guest speaker, and all the teachers will be present to meet the parents. Donald Crawford was chairman for the evening, and introduced the guest speaker. Donald Munro's class won the award for the largest attendance of parents at the meeting. Following a vote of thanks to the speaker and to those taking part in the program, moved by Edward Beals, refreshments were served by Mrs. Colin Althouse and her committee.

CENTRAL.

A "get acquainted" night was featured by the Central Home and School Assocation Monday evening, at their first meeting for the new season. Mr. F. H. Dearborn, the principal, presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. L. Groombridge, welcomed the large attendance of parents and teachers. He said that it was encouraging to see so many present, and urged them to continue their interest.

In a short address, Mr. Dearborn stressed the definite aid Home and School meetings could be at this time, explaining that teachers were finding it difficult to give the usual individual attention to their pupils, because of crowded classes. He felt that parents, discussing the work of their children directly with the teacher, before or after Home and School meetings, would better realize and understand the help that they could give.

He then introduced the officers and conveners of the executive to the meeting, and also presented the teachers and the school nurse, Mrs. D. Rostocky, program convener, outlined the program for the coming year, and following a social period for a friendly get together, refreshments were served by Mrs. P. Martyn and her committee.

Camper Catches 35-lb. Muskie

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 12 (ENS) —After a battle that lasted for over half an hour, Mr. W. P. Arntz of 358 Kenilworth avenue, Warren, Ohio, accompanied by Mrs. Arntz, finally landed a 35-lb. maskinonge, which measured 52 inches in length. This large fish was caught with a pikey minnow on a temper rod with a Phleuges reel, and a black Nylon line testing 25 lb., off Percy Boom Lodge, near George Bailey's cottage.

Mr. Arntz has been a visitor in this district for many years.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

Guidance Plans Are Outlined To Rotary By New Director

That guidance was no fad but was the integrating force for all education, the agency which would make all branches of education effective, was the statement of H. R. Beattie, newly appointed director of guidance, Ontario Department of Education, in an address at Monday's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club. Many people connected with education and members of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club were in attendance at the meeting which was presided over by Gordon S. Matthews, president of the Rotary Club.

"By paying attention to the individual problems of pupils and by helping them to make intelligent decisions in relation to school, vocation and leisure time activities" said Mr. Beattie" the schools are preparing the way for an excellent placement service. Industry with its increasing emphasis upon personal work can see much value in a guidance program.

The school on the other hand is fulfilling its true function in the community when it assists pupils to make the transfer to the educational world."

"It must not be thought" said the speaker "that guidance is entirely new. All good teachers have done guidance and will continue to do so. But the increasing complexity of the occupational world with its great number of occupational choices makes organized guidance necessary.

Mr. Beattie pointed out that the guidance programs would not be set up overnight. It would, he said, require a few years for Ontario schools to get adequate pupil personnel records in operation, to train teachers and teacher counsellors, and to permeate the schools with the guidance philosophy of education.

In beginning his address the speaker remarked that there was no topic that was more misunderstood or concerning which there were so many ideas and viewpoints, than guidance.

The Basic Principles

Pointing out that there were different viewpoints Mr. Beattie declared that they all revealed the same basic principles. "The basic purpose of education" he said "is not only to train the mind but also to develop students in their social, civic and emotional growth. If such development is to be truly effective attention must be paid to what the students intend to do on completion of their formal education." The guidance point of view puts the emphasis on the full development of each individual to the limit of his abilities and capabilities, the assistance given to each student to make intelligent decisions and the assistance necessary to make a satisfactory transfer from the school to another educational institution or the occupational world."

Stressing the need for guidance Mr. Beattie remarked that many young people had little idea of what various occupations demand of the worker or the specialized training demanded in the school by many of those occupations. It was a fact, too, too many pupils had been allowed to guide themselves toward unachievable goals and had been given negative guidance in terms of failing marks.

Have No Choice.

"Surveys which have been made in Ontario, as well as many conducted in the United States, prove conclusively that nearly 50 per cent of the pupils in our secondary schools have no occupational choice," said Mr. Beattie. What is even more surprising is that the percentage is as correct for senior students as it is for junior students. Another fact which such surveys show is that the greater majority of these pupils are choosing within a very narrow range. In fact 50 per cent of the choices of the boys are in the fields of engineering and medicine, 50 per cent of the choices of the girls are in the field of nursing, stenography and teaching. Why are the choices in such a narrow range? Simply because we have not given them information on occupational fields. Students are choosing those occupations with which they are familiar. But this must not be interpreted to mean that all students should have a choice because many are not ready to make a choice. It does prove, however, that we must give students accurate and up-to-date information on occupations. Each pupil should be made consciosu of the fact that the choosing of one's occupation is a serious undertaking for which the responsibility rests upon him, and that the school is ready and able to give him assistance when needed.

What is more alarming than the fact that a large number have no choice is that many have made choices totally out of line with their own abilities and capabilities. The choice may be based on a mere whim or fancy. At the present time about 25 per cent of the boys in our secondary schools are thinking about jobs in engineering. Two years ago that percentage were thinking of jobs in aviation. But to-day many of these boys are thinking of engineering merely in terms of building bridges, aeroplanes or travelling around the world. How many of them know that success in engineering is dependent upon many factors, one of which is a knowledge of and proficiency in mathematics? This is just one illustration of information pupils should have. Surely by giving pupils accurate and up-to-date information on occupations many years of wasted effort can be avoided."

Many Never Graduate.

"Also mention might be made of the great number of pupils who never graduate or go on to another educational institution. In Ontrio out of every 100 pupils who begin elementary education, 62 obtain their high school entrance 54 begin Grade IX, 12 write examinations in Grade XIII, and 3 go to university. This is evidence that many are dropping out of school before they should. Although there are many reasons for these withdrawals, not the least common is the one that pupils leave school because they are not aware of what the school has to offer and have no knowledge of the requirements of the occupational world. A full guidance programme should remove entirely this reason for withdrawal. It is not contended that all pupils could or should be kept in school until graduation, but it surely is not wishful thinking to claim that pupils should not withdraw from school without a measured consideration of the step being taken, as well as consultation with some person qualified to discuss the merits of school leaving."

Guidance Inevitable.

These conditions, Mr. Beattie submitted, made guidance inevitable, not merely the guidance which all good teachers had always done but the organized assistance which was demanded by the urgency of the situation.

"It is not merely a case of administering a few tests and pigeonholing the pupils into various occupations" said the speaker, adding that neither was it merely placement but rather a concerted effort on the part of all school personnel assisted by the efforts of trained counsellors, to make pupils conscious that the school was prepared to assist them to make wise decisions."

Mr. Beattie outlined the steps that would be necessary to bring guidance organization into being. In the first place a proper study of the individual pupil was required and proper personnel records prepared and kept up-to-date. Then as the program developed tests would have to be introduced. They were not magical instruments that would solve all problems but they would be useful as measuring sticks.

Mr. Beattie also recommended classes in guidance in the secondary schools such are now obligatory in Grade IX. The work in such classes, should not be the mere compilations of the requirements of a few occuptions but rather such topics as factors to be considered in choosing an occupation, how to study, value of an education, rightful habits of living, development of personality, an examination of the requirements of "areas of work.", informaiton on entrance to universities and other training institutions.

Finally, he said, that with a study of the individual and of the world of work, it was possible by expert and skilful counselling (interviewing) to make all the work effective. "Such a work," he said "must be handled by a person with the proper personality of training. Unless this is the case there is danger that much advice of an amateur nature might be given which would be harmful. Mr. Beattie remarked that it was not a case of hastening a pupil into an occupational choice nor of disregarding the plans of parents. The efforts would be co-ordinated.

The speaker was introduced by Edward H. McKone, principal of the Peterborough Normal School and a vote of thanks was moved by Rotarian Ian McRae.

Among the guests interested in education who heard the address were Most Reverend John R. MacDonald, Bishop of Peterborough, Rev. Father Grant, Rev. Father Houlihan, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, president of the Ministerial Association, G. Wilson Craw, chairman, Alex. Sollitt, and D. V. Canning, members of the Board of Education; School Inspectors K. S. Wightman and F. D. BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

NOTHING FOR GRANTED

BRIDGE IS always producing unexpected developments, and the player who allows himself to be upset when things don't go as he expects is doomed to plenty of unhappy moments. Some have a habit of always counting on a particular high honor being in the hand of an opponent who bid that suit, though many a time length was the basis of the bid, combined with honors in some other suit or suits.

You would think everybody ought to prefer a rebid of those hearts to what this South did. That proved to be the case at all other tables of the duplicate where this hand was dealt, and all other Souths made 4-Hearts because nobody led a club. This particular declarer, in his No Trump game, was the only one who got set.

West led the diamond 2 to be unorthodox, hoping his partner had the Q and not wanting to open spades, as he reckoned holding his A might kill off the K. What happened then was funny. The diamond lead was won in dummy, the heart A taken to unblock, then two diamonds.

Deciding he might as well score heart tricks as diamonds, and sure that the spade A was held by East, he now led the spade 4 from dummy. East played low and the K was put up confidently. South's smile changed to a frown when the A took it and the 10 was returned. Six consecutive spades and the club A set the contract three tricks.

HMCS Albern Sunk During Invasion

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(CP).—The corvette Alberni, veteran of the battle of the Atlantic and the invasion of North Africa, has been sunk while on invasion duties with four officers and 55 ratings missing, Navy Minister Macdonald announced to-day.

There were 31 survivors — three officers and 28 ratings—including Lt.-Cmdr. Ian H. Bell, Vancouver, who commanded the battle-tried warship during the last two years.

Mr. Macdonald's announcement gave no details of the latest naval loss which came three weeks after it was announced that the corvette Regina went down while on invasion duties.

The Alberni is the 18th warship and the eighth corvette lost by the Canadian navy in this war.

An action-filled career of more than three years lay behind the Alberni when she slipped to the bottom in invasion waters. During that time she had been officially credited with one "probable" U-boat sinking in the North Atlantic and had been present at numerous other sub hunts.

One of the first western Canadian corvettes assigned to escort duties, Alberni was built at Esquimalt, B.C., in 1940 and was commissioned Feb. 3, 1941.

Along with other western built corvettes, she was transferred to the east coast in the spring of 1941.

She was on duty in the Atlantic during the height of Germany's attempt to cut the northern life-line to Britain.

Magladery Raps Civil Service

LISTOWEL, Sept. 12 — (Special). —Capt. Thomas Magladery, president of the Ontario Command, Canadian Legion, Monday sharply criticized the work of the Civil Service Commission of Canada as he addressed some 236 veterans representing 30 branches of District "C" assembled in Listowel for a one-day school of instruction. He cited instances in support of his charges where he claimed appointments of civilians are being made when veterans should have the jobs.

He expressed the belief that Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Ministers of the Crown have no knowledge of what is going on, and suggested an investigation of the Civil Service Commission to find out if they are not appointing personal friends without giving thought to the welfare of ex-servicemen and those now serving.

At the conclusion of his address the assemblage unanimously endorsed a resolution respectfully requesting Mr. King to institute an immediate and searching investigation of appointments made by the Civil Service Commission in so far as that appointments, both permanent and temporary, are being made which are contrary to law and regulation and the general wish of Parliament; that the instructions issued by the Department of Labor regarding the appointments of veterans to civil service positions are not being observed by the Civil Service Commission; that many appointments are now being made which are most unfair to service and ex-service men.

District Commander Gordon C. Thompson, Kitchener, was in charge of the meeting, and Lt.-Col. T. Medland, Toronto, was the luncheon speaker. Other speakers included: Provincial Adjustment Officer J. Wager; Western Ontario and Hamilton District Adjustment Officer A. M. Forbes; Veterans' Welfare Officer R. G. Goldstone, London; Provincial Secretary W. Burke, Toronto; J. A. Waring, London, Canadian Legion educational services; and Capt. the Rev. W. E. Kelley.

Late Marriages Plague Eire Legislators

By J. H. MURDOCH
Canadian Press Correspondent.

DUBLIN, Sept. 12 — (CP) — One of Eire's most serious social problems, the comparative lateness of marriage by young people, may have to be seriously tackled soon after the war ends. This is a curious social evil which Eire appears to have all to herself among modern civilized countries and certainly in English-speaking countries.

These "late" marriages are almost all in agricultural areas and that makes the problem all the more difficult. How the job is to be tackled nobody appears to know.

Recently in the Senate Finance Minister Sean T. O'Kelly confessed that the Government had no ready remedy.

Prime Minister De Valera has suggested that the creation of the "dower" houses on farmsteads might enable the old folk to move into a new home and so give their son or daughter an opportunity of getting married, rear a family of their own and keep the farm going.

Houses Scarce.

One of the main causes of late marriages in Eire is that there is usually only one house on each farm. The son or daughter has to wait until the old people die until he or she can see the way to get married. This is playing havoc with the country's population.

In most Continental European countries, in Britain, the United States and Canada, the average age at which people get married is from 22 to 26 years. In Eire, a big percentage of the people are still unmarried at 35.

In the last census, that of 1936, there were 134,680 men in the country between the ages of 20 and 24. Of these only 5,098 were married, 129,529 were single, and 53 were widowers. There were 119,833 women between the same ages and of these 16,184 were married, 103,558 single, and 91 widowed. Of the 94,- men between 30 and 34 years, 59,700 were unmarried, and of the 89,000 women of the same ages, 39,000 were single.

Eire is the only civilized country in which the population has fallen consistently in the last 100 years. A century ago, the country had a population of more than 6,500,000, not counting the six counties of Northern Ireland. To-day the population is just under 3,800,000.

Bean Marketing Plan Approved

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—(CP). — The Ontario Department of Agriculture to-day announced that an order-in-council has been passed approving a plan recommended by the Farm Products Control Board for marketing Ontario's 1,250,000-bushel white bean crop, value of which is estimated at $3,000,000.

The Board's recommendation followed a vote taken among bean growers in the counties of Kent, Huron, Elgin, Middlesex and Lambton in which 3,511 of the 5,691 bean growers voted for the plan.

The plan, which also was approved by the Ontario Bean Dealers' Association, provides for a negotiating committee with equal representation for growers and dealers and empowered to negotiate minimum prices, forms of contract, conditions of sale, picking and storage charges and all other matters relating to the sale of white beans by the grower.

What Does Inflation Mean to You and Me?

Why, we couldn't buy enough food to keep our families healthy under inflation. For wages and salaries never catch up to prices when they start to soar!

How would we like to pay $1.10 a dozen for eggs? You say it can't happen? Don't forget it's already happened right here in this Dominion, during the last war. And it will happen again . . . unless we're on our toes to keep the cost of living down. Every Canadian must face this challenge! It's our responsibility.

But be of good heart. Living costs have risen LESS in Canada than anywhere else. Canada leads the world in the fight against inflation.

HERE'S HOW IT'S DONE—

In 1941, Canada determined to control the cost of living. Price ceilings were established on wages, rentals and commodities; subsidies were paid on essential foods; goods in short supply were rationed . . . so that everyone could get their fare share at a price they could afford to pay!

But control of prices is a two-way responsibility. It needs your support if it is to continue working effectively.

So make this Pledge Today!

I PROMISE to give my support to keeping the cost of living down. I will buy only what I need—I will observe the ceiling whether buying or selling goods or services. I'll pay off old debts, save for the future, invest in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates—and will support taxes which help lower the cost of living.

DYESTUFFS have always been an important article of commerce. Long years ago, in the days of earliest navigation, ships sailed to distant points, braved the dangers of uncharted seas in their search for more brilliant reds and blues that would not fade. Tyre itself rose to fame largely on the quality of the dyes that it could offer to the early world.

To-day the important part that dyes play in industry is no secret. Busy shoppers look for smart materials, feel their fine texture and ask, "Is the colour fast?"

The answer to-day can be in the affirmative, for such is the progress in the manufacture of dyes that colours are available in Canada now that are equal to any the world has yet produced. Silks, cottons, rayons, woollens and other fabrics can take on the brilliance of the rainbow, resistant to sunlight, to perspiration, to salt air and water, to constant tubbing or dry cleaning according to the purpose for which they may be intended.

And thus through the magic of commercial chemistry, the test tube has replaced the sailing ship and man's search for brilliance need go no further than the confines of the laboratory.

To provide dyes equal to every need of the textile, paper and leather industries of Canada is one of the many functions of the Organic Chemicals Division of Canadian Industries Limited.

Complete Secrecy Shrouds Quebec Victory Conference

Defeat Of Nipponese Major Conference Item As War Leaders Behind Closed Doors Lay Final Plans To Free Pacific Nations

By JOHN DAUPHINEE—Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Sept. 13—(CP).—Secrecy as complete as that shielding military operations in the field has been applied to the Quebec "Victory Conference" as Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt settle down to the second phase of their meeting—joint talks with their chiefs of staff. The prospect is that less information than ever will be provided for the 150 newspaper and radio correspondents on the job.

The conference opened Monday. As the secrecy restrictions tighten, a review of announcements by official spokesmen shows these facts have been released:

1. The conference is "almost exclusively a military conference" with the main emphasis on the Pacific war.

2. Decisions taken at the conference will be Anglo-American and made by Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt with the advice of their experts.

All Kept Informed.

3. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, as conference host, is consulted frequently by the two principals, but he has no say in actual decisions other than giving his views when asked for them.

4. Marshal Stalin was invited to attend but declined because of pressure of war duties at home.

5. Other United Nations leaders, including Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China, were not invited but all the United Nations will be informed of conference results.

6. Foreign affairs experts of Britain and the United States are not in attendance.

7. The conference started with private talks between Mr. Churchill and the President; now the "real business" of the conference is under way with the principals meeting with their chiefs of staff.

8. Before the conference ends, there will be a meeting in Quebec of the Canadian Cabinet's War committee, with Mr. Churchill and probably his chiefs of staff sitting in.

9. Decisions of the Dumbarton Oaks peace-planning conference are being followed closely by the president and British prime minister.

Speculation sent out from Quebec by reporters has been based largely on these facts and on recent war developments which indicate a quick end to the war in Europe.

Speculative Points

These are among major points of speculation:—

1. There is likely to be another Churchill - Roosevelt meeting soon after Germany is defeated, if not before, to talk over European affairs with Marshal Stalin.

2. One main subject of the present conference may be planning to bring an early end of the fighting in Europe, possibly by revising the Casablanca declaration of "unconditional surrender." But without departing too far from the original.

3. Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, and perhaps a high American foreign affairs expert may come to Quebec later.

4. Approval may be given to interim reports sent from Dumbarton Oaks.

5. The status of various nations at the European peace table may be decided—and more particularly the status of France.

Leopold Canal At Frontier Blocks Canucks

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN BELGIUM, Sept. 13 (CP Cable)—Canadian troops stood on the Netherlands border today after capturing Bruges and advancing eastward 10 miles to the Leopold Canal which skirts the frontier southwest of the Schelde.

Reconnaissance forces were along the canal, seeking a way across, but retreating Germans had blown up the bridges.

In less restricted country to the southeast, where there are not so many dikes and waterways, Polish troops of the 1st Canadian Army leaped forward 20 miles from Gent to reach St. Nicholas. They now are working north toward the Netherlands border.

Other Polish troops are fighting a German force in the northern outskirts of Gent, where the enemy rear-guard is making haphazard attempts to hold the Canadian army out of the Schedle area.

Canal Wide.

Canadian tanks and infantry now delayed by the Leopold canal have a difficult obstacle to overcome before they advance into the Netherlands. The canal is one of the largest in Belgium and will require a lot of bridging. The Germans may attempt to defend the canal line.

At the moment the Canadians have lost contact with the enemy on the canal but when they begin to cross it he may fight to prevent a bridgehead being gained.

Along the coastal sector, Canadian infantry swept the area from Zeebrugge to Newport clear of the enemy. One strongpoint held out yesterday but finally surrendered. Three hundred prisoners were taken.

Canadian troops have formed tight semicircles about Calais and Boulogne, and also are in strong positions on the Dunkerque perimeter, awaiting the order to assault.

Allied Planes Protect Paris

By ROSS MUNRO,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

PARIS, Sept. 12—(CP Cable)—Paris, still an excitable unpredictable city nearly three weeks after the Germans were driven out, is rapidly regaining stability and settling donw to becoming th ecapital of France again.

With the doubtful distinction of being the last war correspondent from the western front to reach the city, I drove from the Canadian sector in Belgium to spend 40 hours there last week-end.

The city is remarkably quiet. There are no masses of vehicles but thousands of bicyles hum along the boulevards from morning to night although there are no more street skirmishes, men of the French forces of the interior— dubbed "fifis" by the Canadians— go around with rifles slung over their shoulder.

A few buildings on a few famous squares have been pitted with bullets and grenades and there is a burned out German tank on Place de la Concorde but it almost looks as if it had been put there as a monument to Liberation. Allied planes drone over the city all day.

Food fo rcivilians remains scarce but the situation rapidly is being improved.

London Evacuees Are Rushing Back

LONDON, Sept. 13—(CP).—Growing official alarm at the rush of evacuees back to London reached such a point today the Government began searching for a legal way to forbid them to return.

Warnings that the danger from flying bombs is not over have gone unheeded, although newspapers have been frank in appealing to the evacuees, mostly women and children, to stay where they are safe.

In addition to danger from further Nazi vengeance weapons, there is a critical housing problem in London.

Would Eliminate Censorship

Plan Aimed At Preventing Wars

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—Peace treaty provisions "proclaiming the world-wide right of all men to get, send and publish the news for the information of the public—without interference by governments" were urged by the New York State Publishers' Association, which closed its fall meeting yesterday.

The publishers' resolution declared "it is universally recognized that the most powerful thing in all the world is truth" and that "a guarantee against future wars is a better understanding among nations."

It urged, specifically, "no peacetime censorship....equality of access in all countries by properly accredited press and radio representatives to news at its source.

"Equality of access for properly accredited press and radio representatives to transmission facilities, which shall be adequate and which shall transmit news promptly by reasonable rates.

Two Delegates Arrive From Antipodes

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

QUEBEC, Sept. 13 — (CP). — Representatives of Australia and New Zealand have been called to the Churchill-Roosevelt conference at Quebec, it was announced to-day by spokesmen for the President and the British Prime Minister.

Sir William Glasgow, Australian High Commissioner to Canada, and R. M. Firth, Acting New Zealand High Commissioner, will arrive this afternoon in response to what was described by Robin Cruickshanks, British Ministry of Information representative, as "a very warm invitation" from Mr. Churchill.

The announcement gave further emphasis to the bearing of the conference on the war against Japan and confirmation to earlier speculation that the contributions of the various Pacific nations to the final fight were under review.

Canada, as a major Pacific Power, is already in direct contact with the conference through the presence of Mr Mackenzie King and the Canadian Chiefs of Staff.

The Presidential spokesman disclosed that Marshal Stalin was informed in advance of the purposes of the Quebec conference and the matters to be discussed, and that had it been possible for the Soviet Leader to attend the meetings would not have been held at Quebec.

Two alternative places to Quebec were in mind and had Stalin been coming one of the others would have been used. Mr. Early did not name them, but presumably they were within easier reach of a Russian delegation. He disclosed that the first plan for the one previous conference with Stalin was to hold it at Fairbanks, Alaska, in the summer of 1943, instead of Teheran in November as actually occurred.

Fast Progress.

The present conference here is making rapid progress and it is expected to wind up at the week-end. After that it is believed there will be British-Canadian staff talks, participated in by the Canadian Defence Ministers who came to Quebec to-day for a meeting of the Cabinet War Committee this afternoon and Prime Minister Mackenzie King's reception to-night.

At the press conference held in the glare of lights installed by the newsreel cameramen, additional statements were made to give point

Trapped Miner Scrawls Note

BELAIRE, O., Sept. 13 — (AP).—A note pencilled by one of 66 coal miners trapped by fire in Powhatan Pit last July 5 disclosed to-day how the entombed men grew weaker, but continued "trusting in God" as deadly gas seeped through the barricade they erected while awaiting rescue.

Crews working with oxygen masks came upon 47 bodies last night and brought out four of them this morning. A fifth body was recovered from another part of the mine several days ago.

The underground fire first was reported shortly before noon July 5, but miners were unable to control it. A section of the pit then was sealed to smother the flames. The 66 men were trapped behind the fire.

The note signed by Hi Hartline, a 47-year-old miner whose given name was Dorsey, was written on a pad he usually carried. It said:

"5:30 p.m.—Men are showing effect of co. (carbon monoxide). They feel weak. Sleepy-looking. Vision blurred. We are trusting in God, hoping for best."

4 Armadas Hurled At Germany

Eisenhower Warns Civilians Heavy Raids Coming

By HOWARD COWAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 13—(AP)—Four huge Allied bomber fleets were hurled against Germany today, sending upwards of 10,000 tons of fire and explosive bombs crushing the country warned by Gen. Eisenhower to prepare for "high and low level air attack at any hour of the day or night."

Thousands of heavy, light and medium bombers and clouds of fighters flew through sunny skies against Germany from England, Italy and France. Before dawn, massive fleets of R.A.F. heavy bombers had saturated Frankfurt and Stuttgart behind the Siegfried Line, while British Mosquitos plunged two-ton bombs into Berlin.

Stuttgart and Frankfurt were seared with some 3,000 tons of bombs while Berlin caught 100 two tonners. The American heavy bombers in daylight rained approximately 3,300 tons of bombs on four oil centres, two factories and a jet-fighter plane field. At 6 p.m., the German radio said bombers were approaching western and northwestern Germany in another major assault.

Drive From Italy

Just before that warning, a huge fleet of R.A.F. heavy bombers had crossed the Channel.

Another American force was reported striking south Germany from Italy. Medium and light bombers dive-bombed and attacked from low level at the front on both sides of the Siegfried Line, starting their work at dawn.

Preliminary counts showed at least 50 German fighters destroyed in this sixth successive day of heavy air offensive against the Germans. These fell victims to 1,000 fighters which accompanied an equal number of bombers striking deep in central, southern and western Germany.

More than 1,500 were heavy bombers and they struck while Frankfurt, Stuttgart and Berlin still burned from massive R.A.F. nocturnal blows.

For the sixth successive day, German radios carried "achtung" warnings of the approaching Allied bombers from England, France and Italy.

More than 1,000 United States heavy bombers and an equal number of fighters bombed three oil plants, an aircraft factory, and armored vehicle plants, an oil storage depot and jet-propelled fighter plane field in central, southern and western Germany. Another force of 500 or

Plan Extensive Highway Work

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 13 (CP)—A post-war highway improvement program costing millions of dollars is blue-printed for development in the Sudbury-Manitoulin region, Ontario Highways Minister Doucet announced here today.

A new policy of providing a central pool of heavy-duty highway equipment which municipalities may draw on upon a rental basis is also proposed, he said. This would be for the benefit of rural municipalities.

The contemplated development would be carried out in the 4 years following the war, Mr. Doucet added, but its progress was naturally dependent on the labor supply. "If there is no general business recession in the transition period from war to peace—and I am one who believes there will be no serious letdown—then our program will be developed more slowly. It is planned that public works shall be a cushion against unemployment."

He said that a highway from Sudbury to Parry Sound was in prospect but a highway from Sudbury to Timmins "is quite distant. But we have many alternatives and desire to put first things first."

Allied Armies Drive Hard On Gothic Line

By GEORGE BRIA
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 13—(AP).—Allied 5th Army forces driving against the central sector of the Gothic Line northeast of Florence are within a mile of Futa Pass, one of the main avenues through the German defence line barring the path to Northern Italy, it was announced today, while the British 8th Army remained stalemated near the Adriatic.

The pass was described as more strongly defended than Cassino, scene of some of the bitterest fighting in the Italian campaign.

Allied headquarters said the 5th Army had reached Langnano and Poggio d'Ella Dogana, five and two miles, respectively, southwest of the pass.

Some of the fiercest fighting of the Italian campaign continued meanwhile on the Adriatic sector, where the Coriano-San Savino positions remained unchanged.

On the west coast 5th Army troops drove ahead three miles to the Berlamacca Canal, while farther east patrols pushed on to the vicinity of Sant' Ippolito, 18 miles northwest of Florence.

The advance northeast of Florence toward the hard core of the Gothic Line was a steady sweep. Troops which had thrust a short distance across the Sieve River Sunday and Monday advanced five miles yesterday.

The Germans apparently were ready to meet any new assault on the Gothic Line. In the vicinity of the Futa Pass new pill-boxes and gun emplacements have been established and many heavy anti-aircraft guns brought into position.

Report Liquor To Be Eased

TORONTO, Sept. 13—(CP). — A Toronto paper said today there are reports at Queen's Park that the Federal Government plans to relax its order restricting annual liquor consumption to 70 per cent. of the amount in the 12 months ended Oct. 31, 1942. Queen's Park sources said that if the Federal Government took this step the Ontario liquor ration may be increased from 13 ounces a month to 26.

The item said also that if the Federal Government does not act, the province may increase the liquor ration to 26 ounces a month for the Dec. 31-March 31 period.

'Teen Age Youths Battle R.C.A.F. Men

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Sept. 13. — (CP).—Street fights broke out here last night between Royal Air Force men, stationed at No. 32 Service Flying Training School near Moose Jaw, and civilian 'teen age youths on the city's main street. Four airmen were said to have been treated for head wounds and facial cuts.

Officials of the air school did not comment immediately.

Police reported ill feeling between the airmen and Moose Jaw youths had been brewing for some weeks and that fights in local dance halls had occurred last week-end. Police said the civilians were "irresponsible youths between 16 and 18 years of age."

Reports were that airmen had belittled the youths for not being in uniform and that the civilians resented the airmen "for taking girl friends away from them."

Strong Resistance Slows Armies On Prussian Front

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 13.—(AP).—Powerful Russian tank forces and Romanian infantry emerged to-day from the western foothills of Transylvania and fought for control of the rail network radiating from Timisoara, 40 miles south of the pre-war Hungarian border and 75 miles north of the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade.

(The Paris radio said the Red army had reached the outskirts of Sofia and that the Bulgarian capital was preparing a reception, having arrested all members of the former pro-Nazi government.)

Marshal Malinovsky's offensive was rolling forward during his brief absence to sign an armistice with Romania in Moscow. His troops approached to within 25 miles of Cluj, capital of Central Transylvania and largest Romanian city still in enemy hands. He broke a permanent fortified line which the Hungarians had been building since 1940 when Hitler awarded them the northern half of the Romanian province.

Lomza Given Up.

Battle reports from North Poland saaid the major rail centre of Lomza, 20 miles below Prussia, was virtually encircled. (The German radio heard at London said Lomza had been "given up.")

The battle in the Balkans for Transylvania now is becoming a campaign to envelop Serbia (Southern Yugoslavia) from the north and reach the Tisza river, which flows north and south across the heart of the Hungarian plain, one of Hitler's major bread baskets.

Russian front dispatches told of hundreds of confused German and Hungarian prisoners marching back into hte Transylvania mountains as streams of Soviet armor rolled west.

Rivers, but no mountains, now stand between Malinovsky's vanguard at the mouth of the Mures Valley and the area for a flanking move south to Belgrade to seal the Balkan peninsula's neck.

At midnight, the Kremlin announced the capture of Deva, 85 miles from Hungary.

In capturing Deva, Russian and Romanian forces advanced 36 miles from Petroseni. The thrust gave them a firm grip on the main highway and railway into Budapest

3,000 Germans Reach Canada

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Sept. 13 — (CP). — Three thousand German prisoners of war, most of them captured by Canadians about Caen in France, are detained in the prisoner-of-war camp at Medicine Hat, it was learned here today.

They were brought to Medicine Hat early Monday in six heavily-guarded special trains.

It is believed this is the first substantial shipment to the Dominion of German prisoner of war captured by Canadians.

Majority of the arrivals were described as being either "surprisingly young or far over military age."

Members of Gestapo Fear Nazi Prisoners

LETHBRIDGE, Sept. 13—(CP).—Fear of reprisals haunt members of Hitler's Gestapo who are prisoners of war in Canadian camps, it was learned here today.

The Lethbridge Herald, which is running a series of articles on German prisoners of war in Canada, says hatred, which is breaking into the open among Hitler's forces in Europe, is steadily becoming more pronounced among Nazi prisoners in the Dominion.

Gestapo members until recently were active in the prisoner of war camps; their word was law, and there are indications that they administered severe beatings to "bolster" the Nazi morale of weakening Germans.

"Many of the Gestapo fear retaliation from their fellow-prisoners for the brutal beatings they administered while they kept the captives 'in line for Hitler'," said the Herald.

Lots To Drink

BRUSSELS, Sept. 13—(CP Cable).—Eight days after its liberation, a carnival spirit still reigns in the streets of the Belgian capital.

Balkan Crisis Robs Nazis Of 50 Divisions

By JON MIMCHE,
Reuter Military Commentator.

LONDON, Sept. 13—(CP-Reuter)—While Allied troops have invaded German territory in strength and Germany is called on to make its utmost exertion to counter this threat, all eyes have naturally turned to this most sensational of all fronts.

Yet 1,100 miles from the Albert canal another crisis has developed for the German high command. A front 600 miles wide has been burst open: 50 divisions that two weeks ago were still counted as additions to German manpower and as an essential stop-gap of the invasion of the Danube basin, now are marching with the Allies.

For the German high command the crisis is now in full swing in the Balkans is more serious than that caused by the surrender of Italy, and operationally more menacing than the Russian break-through in White Russia last June. In terms of continental strategy the Balkan crack is hardly less dangerous to the Germans than that in France.

Spread Thinly.

A front that was held last July by 25 Romanian divisions, 25 Bulgarian divisions, 15 Hungarian divisions and about 35 German divisions, a total of 100 divisions, now has to be held by 15 Hungarian divisions and 25 German spread from Greece through Yugoslav to Hungary and largely in the course of retreat.

Obviously such a front cannot be held—and the German high command as well as Marshal Joseph Tito have recognized this. The moment the Germans realized what was afoot they began withdrawing their troops from the exposed extremes of Greece and from the southern parts of Serbia.

Partisan strategy in Yugoslavia is something novel in wars of liberation. Tito does not aim at driving the Germans from his soil, but, on the contrary has mobilized all his forces to prevent the Germans from getting away.

King Peter of Yugoslavia, in a broadcast last night from London, called upon all Serbs, Croats and Slovenes to unite and join the National Liberation Army under the leadership of Tito.

He assurred them that with the victorious armies of the Soviet Union on one side and those of Great Britain and the United States on the other side at the Yugoslav frontier, their day of liberation was at last dawning.

Halifaxes Bring Aid To Poles In Warsaw

ROME, Sept. 13—(AP)—R.A.F. Halifaxes flew 1,750 miles through dense clouds which left the planes encrusted with ice and dropped more supplies to Polish Patriot forces in Warsaw Sunday night, the Mediterranean Allied Air Force announced today.

Pilots reported that fires were raging in the Polish capital as the British planes swooped low and released the containers.

Germans Told Allies Inside Reich

All Netherlands Placed Under Nazi Court-Martial

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 13 — (AP). — Loss of "an outpost of the west wall" was acknowledged by Berlin late today as American columns stepped up double invasions of Germany, and thrust to or near the frontier at two or more other points.

Canadian troops reached the Netherlands border after a 10-mile advance from captured Brugge (Bruges) eastward to the Leopold Canal which skirts the frontier southwest of the River Schelde.

Polish troops of the 1st Canadian Army drove 20 miles from Gent to St. Nicholas in Belgium and also were approaching the Netherlands border.

(In London, the Netherlands News Agency Aneta reported that a "state of emergency" had been declared for all of occupied Holland by the Nazi commissioner for Holland, Arthur Seyss-Inquart.)

The German broadcast — first Berlin disclosure to the people that war had surged into their homeland — did not specify the sector where the formidable wall was dented.

Near Aachen

The invasions, gaining new power from reinforcements of men and armor, have struck from Eupen in Belgium to a point 10 miles south of Aachen, a Siegfried Line bastion, and five miles into Germany northwest of their from Luxembourg.

The Berlin radio also declared Americans of the 3rd Army had pushed across the Moselle River south of Nancy, advancing on Luneville 15 miles to the southeast. An offensive "aimed at forcing the entire Moselle line on a broad front is in full swing", with "bitter fluctuating fighting especially south of Nancy," it added.

Artillery battered at enemy defences and Allied planes tumbled 10,000 tons of bombs on Germany.

Supreme headquarters wrapped all operations in secrecy, and at the evening press conference gave no word of new advances nor of fresh developments on any sector of the huge Allied front.

In two border sectors the Germans counter-attacked, it was announced at Allied Supreme Headquarters, but they were thrown back or held.

Headquarters also announced that the American 9th Army under Lt.-Gen. William H. Simpson had taken its place in the operational command of France.

This army's sector has not yet been disclosed. It is the sixth Allied army to be identified in the combat area. Others are the American 1st, 3rd and 7th Armies and the British 2nd and the 1st Canadian Armies.

Gen. Eisenhower announced that

Japanese defenders fled by night after the attackers cleared away some of their strong positions, but the enemy retaliated with increased shelling of forward areas, in one of which is an advanced hospital.

Hungarian Queen Flees?

Romania Formally Concludes Armistice

MOSCOW, Sept. 13.—(AP).—Romania, Germany's erstwhile Balkan ally whose troops now are fighting beside the Russians, formally concluded an armistice agreement last night with the United Nations, the Soviet government announced today.

Terms of the agreement were not immediately made public.

Meanwhile, the Hungarian radio said in a wholly-unconfirmed broadcast and believed German-inspired, that Bulgaria's infant King Simeon and Queen Mother had fled to Syria.

A Moscow broadcast indicated Bulgaria's new pro-Allied government was energetically cleaning house as the Red army approached Sofia. The broadcast quoted Bulgarian Premier Kimon Georgiev announcing that the Council of Regents had been abolished and members of former government in power since 1941 had been jailed.

Labor Question Engages General Council

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 13 —(CP)— The 11th General Council of the United Church of Canada went into its eightht day to-day with additional reports of boards and standing committees scheduled to come up for discussion.

Delegates concluded a heavy session yesterday after lengthy debates on reports of a special committee appointed to inquire into the signing of a closed-shop agreement with the Toronto Allied Printing Trades Council (A. F. L) on behalf of employees of the United Church Publishing House in Toronto, and the Foreign Mission Committee Report.

Debate on the foreign mission committee report was adjourned last night after heated argument and the deletion of a reference to any Federal Government legislation curbing rights of any racial group in Canada as "unchristian and undemocratic."

The council failed to reach agreement on the recommendation of the special committee to sign a closed-shop agreement with the A. F. L. union after Dr. J. A. Irving of Vancouver presented an amendment asking that council re-affirm its endorsation of the principle of collective bargaining, independently of closed and open shops.

The amendment further asked that the board of publication of the United Church continue its efforts to bring an agreement with the unions in question into effect and report to the 1946 council.

The original resolution presented by the foreign mission committee read: "Therefore, be it resolved that the 11th General Council of the United Church of Canada re-affirms the Christian doctrine of the unity of mankind and believes that all individual or group actions and all legislation which discriminates against any persons or groups on groups of race or color are both unchristian and undemocratic."

Rev. F. H. Stevens of Hollyburn, B.C., said that by opposing any action of parliament without offering an alternative solution "we are supporting by implication the notion that the Japanese in British Columbia return after the war to the same conditions which existed before."

"...I think the solution...lies in education which will gradually eradicate all racial prejudices, not only Japanese, but the Jewish, French-Canadian and the rest."

Sweater Burns Owner Mystified

KITCHENER, Sept. 13 —(CP) — Norman Smith of Kitchener is wondering whether he should risk wearing another pullover sweater. Within two days two different sweaters he was wearing took fire. The first time he was unharmed and the second time he suffered slight burns on his neck. Police and firemen are investigating.

The second sweater was newly-purchased. Smith put it on in the store and had walked only a few blocks when it burst into flames. He wasn't smoking and there was no one near him at the time. The remains of the second sweater have been sent to the Ontario Fire Marshal's office for investigation.

Philip Karn, acting fire chief, suggested that the sweater may have been treated in some solution which ignited from friction caused by Smith swinging his arms as he walked along the street.

Canadians Reach

Maj.-Gen. John T. Lewis of the U.S. Army heads a new Allied Supreme Headquarters mission to France located in Paris as of today. Maj.-Gen. H. Redman of the British Army was named deputy. The mission will represented the Supreme Allied commander with the French government.

Clearing the way ahead of the American 1st Army columns probing the Siegfried defences at two points, U.S. 9th Air Force fighter-bombers went out in relays beginning at dawn for a ceaseless pounding of concrete strongpoints in the path of the advance.

Tanks Cross Moselle

They ranged both sides of the Siegfried line and swept as far south as Metz and Nancy where the U.S. 3rd Army poured armor and artillery across the Moselle on a 15-mile wide front in a power build-up for a sweep on Saarbrucken and Etrasbourg.

The Germans hurled two counter-attacks against the Americans.

First Army troops beat down one in the vicinity of Limbourg, 15 miles east of Liege. This enemy blow hit almost behind the northernmost penetration into Germany—the drive which carried at least six miles beyond the Belgian border city of Eupen.

From the west bank of the Moselle, just across the river from Corny, the Germans launched out against the 3rd Army build-up six miles southwest of Metz. They were being held by the Yanks.

Behind the eastward-surging front British, Canadian and Polish troops of the 1st Canadian Army squeezed the last Nazi pocket south of the Schelde estuary down to a thin strip between Zeebrugge and Antwerp, 40 miles long and less than 10 miles deep.

As the Germans got out as fast as they could in a cross-water escape to the Netherlands island, Canadians pushed 10 miles east of Bruges to the Leopold Canal near Eecloo, and the Poles took over Gent from the British and moved up to St. Nicolas close to the southern border of Holland.

Hold 5 Ports

Far behind were battles for five ports.

At Brest Germans fought on fiercely, mustering every man of army and navy personnel and even workmen into a delaying stand against American penetrations into the city.

Boulogne, Calais and Dunkerque were closely invested and Germans there seemed determined to hold on until blasted out—a process which does port facilities no good.

Zeebrugge was not under direct assault but probably will be soon. Canadian patrols have penetrated to the port area but now are mopping up to the south before driving on from Blankenburghe for the clean-up.

Ostend, Newpoort, Dieppe and now Le Havre are in Allied hands in varying degrees of demolition.

Antwerp is held virtually undamaged but will be of no use until the Germans are cleared from island positions overlooking the long inland channel of the Schelde.

Germans Told Allies Want Sneak Victory

LONDON, Sept. 13 (CP) — Predicting that a new Allied surrender ultimatum would emerge from the Roosevelt-Churchill conference in Quebec, the Berlin radio told the German people today that to give in now would allow the Allies to gain victory "by sneaking through the back door."

The broadcast disclosed that similar warnings were published by all German newspapers as Nazi propagandists sought to bolster home front morale for the final defence of the Reich by harping on the theme that defeat would be "worse than Versailles" and that Germany must "fight to the bitter end."

"A political offensive is in the making along the lines of President Wilson's 14 points in view of the terrific losses which the Allies will have to face during the coming phases of the onslaught against Germany," declared Voelkischer Beobachter.

"In this way victory would be obtained by sneaking through the back door. The Allies know full well that Germany will play out decisive trump cards in the near future and that the war must be won now at all costs."

A dispatch from Switzerland, however, declared that Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian, Chief of the German General Staff, with the support of his Field Marshals and the whole high command had advised Hitler that the worst could be expected at any moment.

Other neutral reports indicated the Nazi party itself was divided into two factions—one under Hitler, Himmler, Goebbels and Von Ribbentrop called the "Vernichtungspartel," or destruction party; the other under Reichsmarshal Goering known as the "Friedenspartel" or peace party.

to the coming drive against Japan.

One of the officials to arrive soon is Rear-Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States War Shipping Board. Vast numbers of ships will be required to carry the war to Japan in the desired intensity, across the immense spaces of the Pacific. His British counterpart, Lord Leathers, Minister of War Transport, came with Mr. Churchill.

Mr. Cruickshanks was asked if the calling of Australian and New Zealand representatives to the conference indicated the part those two countries were to play in the future Pacific operations was to be discussed, and he replied:

"I should think that would be a very fair assumption."

The two leaders wound up yesterday morning the first stage of their meeting: A general exchange of views in private while their experts worked to co-ordinate plans to be submitted for approval.

In the afternoon they embarked on the second stage: A series of round table meetings with the generals, admirals and air marshals to study and eventually approve the staff plans.

Hold Many Talks

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt are the government leaders and at times stern critics. The staff planners may be sent back for more information to make changes. While they work the leaders themselves hold further private conferences at which they talk over the work of their advisers.

It has been officially stated that the plan for the invasion of Europe, already successfully carried out, received final approval at the first Quebec conference a year ago.

The present "Victory Conference" is brewing things of equal importance to the nations of the Pacific where the Japanese enemy has yet to be pushed back and finally subdued.

Nations Advised

That the fighting nations of the Pacific will be informed of the decisions taken here was made clear yesterday by President Roosevelt's press secretary, Stephen Early, in response to inquiries about Australia and China.

Mr. Early said there had not been a conference yet concerning which all governments were not informed of decisions.

Thus it was made clear that the conference is secret, but not private. The Canadian Government at this meeting as at previous conferences is expected to get full information by direct contact of Prime Minister Mackenzie King with the British and American leaders. Mr. Early's statement let it be known that other United Nations, including the Pacific States vitally concerned, will also be advised of conference results.

Yesterday was the 36th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Churchill but no time was taken off work for celebrations. Since the Governor-General and Princess Alice were leaving in the afternoon for Arvida, Que., photographers were called in during the morning to make official conference pictures.

Special Meeting

Mr. King was to be joined by more of his ministers today or tomorrow and a meeting of the war committee of the Canadian cabinet, with Mr. Churchill sitting in, will take place during the week.

Press correspondents worked to make news out of information, and they received no promises of enlightening announcements.

While the arrival of other notable figures—possibly economic and diplomatic advisers of the two principals or representatives of other nations—was not ruled out, the official spokesman said he had no knowledge that any were coming.

That left the meeting still what it set out to be, a strictly business gathering between two of the big shareholders in the United Nations Firm deciding how to finish an important task for which the firm was formed—namely to beat Japan down to unconditional surrender.

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN BELGIUM, Sept. 13 — (CP). — A Belgian taxi-driver, who came through the British lines after driving a German officer to Berlin, reported "there is nothing left of it."

The officer, who had ordered the driver to "drive me to Berlin," gave him a signed paper to get him back through the German lines.

Say War To End On October 31

LONDON, Sept. 13 —(CP) — United States war planning chiefs were reported to-night to have esatablished October 31 as the tentative "outside" date for the collapse of organized resistance in Germany.

Without discounting the possibility that victory may come more quickly, a responsible non-British source said the date had been pinpointed by the United States war production board after consultation through usual military channels in plans for partial industrial reconversion from war to civilian production.

It was emphasized, however, that while plans were predicted upon the end of wide scale warfare in Europe by October 31, there would be no sacrificing of requirements for the war in the Pacific.

Labor Leaders Meet In London

By CHARLES BRUCE,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Sept. 13 —(CP Cable)— The first conference of British and Dominions' Labor parties settled down to a series of private sessions to-day after an initial public gathering attended by representatives of Australia's and New Zealand's Labor Governments, Britain's Labor Party, and Canada's Co-operative Commonwealth Party.

All speakers in the opening session yesterday urged the general raising of standards of living as a pre-requisite to a lasting peace.

Clement Attlee, Britain's Deputy Prime Minister, said: "There will be found in the British Commonwealth Labor Parties a full realization that those who desire peace must be prepared to take action to preserve it. But if peace is to be preserved, we must see that the causes of war are removed. Freedom and democracy must be based not only on security but also on social justice."

Remarking that during the world slump, Labor Parties "pointed out the folly of a policy of scarcity," he said that "the views we labor men and women put forward now have been accepted by many of those whom formerly opposed them."

Ellen Wilkinson, Labor member of the British House of Commons for Jarrow and chairman of the meeting, said Labor Parties have been criticized in the past for being too domestic in their interests, "or being parties of hours and wages." Hence the importance of this conference.

so heavy bombers was reported striking up from the south.

Gen. Eisenhower warned of "high level and low level air attack at any hour of the day or night." Medium and light bombers opened the low-level phase at dawn today and the heavies with their escort supplemented their blows with high-level bombers.

Targets from the west included:

Synthetic oil plants at Merseburg and Lutzkendorf near Leipzig in central Germany and another at Ludwigshafen on the Rhine.

The Daimler-Benz plant at Sindelfingen, southwest of Stuttgart, which makes parts for trucks and air engines.

The Klockner Humbolt Deutz truck and armored vehicles factory at Lulm in south Germany near Munich.

The Schwabisch Hall airfield northeast of Stuttgart, which bases Messerschmitt-262 jet fighters.

An oil storage depot at Wissenhorn near Ulm.

Clear weather also favored the forces of British heavy bombers which struck at the great German engineering and war industry centre of Stuttgart.

The attack on Berlin was carried out by Mosquitos, which showered the German capital with two-ton bombs for the third successive night.

The night attacks cost the R. A. F. 25 aircraft. Intruder planes shot down two German night fighters.

A communique said reconnaissance photographs showed that 269,000 incendiaries dropped on Darmstadt early yesterday devasted "almost the entire city."

Thunderbolts, Lightinings and Mustangs were out at dawn to-day pin-pointing targets across the German frontier on both sides of the Siegfried Line and attacking enemy position in the Nancy-Metz area and at Brest.

At a loss of two planes, British and Canadian Beaufighters, supported by Mustang, attacked an enemy convoy last night off the West Frisian Islands on the Netherlands coast, severely damaging a destroyer and leaving five other ships on fire. Shore installations also were left afire.

Students Must Sing Anthem Or Be Expelled

TORONTO, Sept. 13 — A precedent decision upholding the right of teachers and principals in Ontario public and secondary schools to expel from their schools students who refuse to sing the National Anthem or salute the flag as directed, was handed down yesterday by Mr. Justice Hope at Osgoode Hall.

The case arises from a damage action brought against the Hamilton Board of Education by Robert Donald, post office employee and Jehovah Witness, whose two children were expelled from Hamilton schools for refusing to sing the National Anthem, salute the flag and repeat the oath of allegiance.

The children, Robert Jr., and Graham, then 14 and 10 years of age, respectively, were first expelled in June, 1940. After receiving private tuition, Robert passed his matriculation examinations, and entered secondary school, from which he was expelled in March, 1942.

Mr. Donald sought a declaration from the courts that the children were entitled to attend the collegiate and public schools and a mandamus permitting their attendance, as well as damages of $2,600 covering cost of private tuition and other expenses incurred.

Sees Friction Created.

In a lengthy judgment dismissing the action, Mr. Justice Hope observed:

"I can conceive of no more certain way of creating confusion and uncertainty and even friction amongst the pupils of a class as to their love of country and their duty to their country, than by permitting haphazard compliance with the singing of the National Anthem at the whim of the particular pupil."

Stating that Ontario legislation with respect to schools makes the singing of the National Anthem by pupils mandatory, Mr. Justice Hope also asserted that though there are no provisions in the Ontario regulations requiring the saluting of the flag, under the general imperative power given to the teacher by the legislation to teach patriotism by "order or command," the teacher has full power to prescribe the salute.

Referring to a United States judgment which held that there was no power in the United States to make the salute a legal duty on a constitutional basis, Mr. Justice Hope stated that Ontario statutes and regulations not only vest that power with teachers and principals, but impose an impressive duty on them to exercise those powers.

Patriotic Exercise

Mr. Justice Hope pointed out that the school regulations on which the judgment was based fell within the category pertaining to patriotic exercises and not with respect to religious exercises.

He observed that it was not a case of the conscientiousness of the beliefs held by the plaintiffs, but rather a question whether the school board and its teachers acted within the powers conferred upon them by statute and regulations in expelling the children.

"Nor do I consider it necessary for the court to discuss or consider the wisdom or efficacy of the compulsory singing of the National Anthem and saluting the flag as a means of inculcating in the youth . . . a true sense of loyalty and patriotism," he added.

That, said his Lordship, was a problem of pedagogic psychology. Drawing an analogy, Mr. Justice Hope commented that personal cleanliness, orderliness and neatness cannot be "inculcated solely by expressions of desirability, but . . . require to be enforced by compulsory adherence to practices which formulate those habits."

Since Jehovah Witnesses were illegal from July, 1940, to October, 1943, his Lordship questioned whether the plaintiff had the right to claim damages during the period of the ban.

Mining News

TORONTO, Sept. 13 — (CP). — Golds and industrials worked lower this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Other groups held steady. Trading was active, with turnover at 374,000 shares.

Golds took an index loss of .93 before putting on a small rally. Declines of 10 cents or more came out for Frobisher, Giant Yellowknife, O'Brien, San Antonio, and Macassa. Cochenour Willans was a feature of the trade as it climbed 15 cents to $2.74.

Smelters gained ¾ and prices weakened a bit for Nickel and Steep Rock.

Lower prices ruled in industrials for foods, utilities and papers. Gypsum lost ¾ to 8, Ford A was off ½ to 25½, and Canada Packers lost 2 points to 113.

Pacific Refineries netted a recovery of 8 cents from yesterday's decline and Foothills gained 5 cents.

Allied Generals Outgeneral Foremost Nazis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

When we see Allied forces battling on the soil of tottering Germany, it gives to wonder that the United Nations in such comparatively short time should have achieved this triumph over a militaristic nation which came close to conquering the world.

There are, of course, many reasons for Allied success, but an important one is the superior skill of generals who at decisive moments have outsmarted the best brains that Prussianism could produce.

Brig.-Gen. Horace Sewell, distinguished British military expert, says that one outstanding reason for the Allied superiority is the relative inflexibility of the German mind. It works along well defined lines—a powerful and smoothly-running machine, but in a groove.

Will Repeat Tricks.

We have an excellent illustration of this in one of the Reich's foremost generals—the famous Field-Marshal Rommel, of desert fame. Rommel is a great soldier, and he was so characterized to me by none less than his conqueror in North Africa— General (now Field-Marshal) Montgomery — when I was with the British forces not long after they had won the decisive Battle of El Alamein. One thing that helped Montgomery take his opponent's measure was the shrewd observation that while the German was dangerously tricky he could be counted on to repeat the same tricks under certain circumstances.

The Russians, of course, provide us with many cases of out-generaling the Nazis.

Then there have been numerous cases in which Allied generalship has delivered a telling blow at a vital point after leading the Germans to believe the attack was coming somewhere else.

Well, one could write a book on the superiority of Allied generalship, but I'll give Sewell the last word with comment on D-Day in Normandy. He points out that this invasion was a surprise in two ways —first because the enemy expected the attack at another place, and second in the way the Allies built up their positions and supply bases on open beaches which were supposed to be invulnerable.

from Romania. The Cluj-bound spearhead seized Aiud, 30 miles to the south.

Front reports said the campaign was meeting stiff but sporadic German and Hungarian resistance.

To the south the Red Army appeared to be on the verge of joining up with Marshal Tito's Partisan forces in Yugoslavia. A group of Soviet war correspondents was said to have left Moscow expecting to witness the junction.

The Red Army was fighting a hard battle just south of the East Prussian border, but the daily Soviet communique gave few details. The Russians closing in on Lomza, gateway city to lower East Prussia, were meeting strong resistance from large German tank and artillery forces.

The Soviet communique, one of the shortest in months, remained silent about broadcast German reports that new concentrations of Red Army troops and guns had begun a drive aimed at breaking into East Prussia.

Moscow likewise said nothing about the Warsaw sector. The Germans have reported a concentrated attack on the outer approaches to Praga, eastern suburb of the Polish capital.

Police Find Prints At Scene Of Murder

PORT FRANKS, Ont., Sept. 13—(CP). — Ontario Provincial Police here said last night fingerprints, believed to be those of the slayer of Mrs. Austin Smith, 43-year-old resident of Detroit, in her summer cottage here during the week-end, were photographed successfully, but not yet identified.

Belief that an 18-year-old soldier from nearby Camp Ipperwash was responsible for the fatal shooting was discounted by Lt.-Col. Arthur Garod, administrative officer at the camp.

He said no police officers had been to the camp to check rifles, but that Ipperwash authorities had been advised of the shooting and were keeping a sharp lookout. He said further that no troops were firing in the vicinity of Port Franks yesterday.

Ontario Provincial Police, under the direction of Inspector W. H. Kennedy of the Criminal Investigation Branch, issued a warning to law officers throughout Western Ontario to be on the lookout for Mrs. Smith's automobile, which is missing.

Provincial Constable Forrest Inch of Forest, Ont., to whom Smith first reported the finding of his wife's body, said he saw Mrs. Smith on Sunday afternoon. Earlier reports had placed the time of the fatality early Sunday morning.

Dr. F. W. Lunney of the University of Western Ontario completed an autopsy. His findings will be forwarded to C. L. Snyder, Deputy Attorney-General of Ontario, in Toronto.

Accident Toll Terrific Speaker Tells Safety Meeting

The place to stop accidents is on the job, and since the war cannot be won by men lying in hospitals, hundreds of industrial accidents every week throughout Ontario must be stopped, said T. Norman Dean, Chief Statistician of the Workers' Compensation Board of Toronto, speaking before a large gathering of the Lumbermen's Safety Association at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Dean brought vividly to the attention of the meeting that safety consciousness was all right, but the most vital thing is to be conscious of danger, in everything you do, all the time.

"Whenever you see a man doing something on the job, think of whether there is some possible danger in it, and if there is, point it out to that man," Mr. Dean advised. "Your safety advisors and inspectors are always ready to help you, and they can give the best advice in safety matters that can be sought," he said.

The guest speaker, acknowledged as one of the continent's finest statisticians, told lumbermen he had heard assorted comment to the effect safety rules are of no avail. "Well," he said, "I have personally seen the reports of more than 2,000,000 accidents, and what a record of human suffering that must be." He said it was our duty as Canadian citizens to help stop this terrific loss of manpower and materials. With thirty years of experience with the Compensation Board behind him, he said he was convinced that accidents can be prevented, and insisted it is the duty of all employers to teach workers to avoid potential danger.

Industry Leads.

He pointed out industrial accidents total 11 per cent of all accidents, and said that last year the Compensation Board paid out $12,000,000 for Ontario accidents alone, which, when multiplied by nine, would become an imposing figure for Canada. He explained to the men that actually the protection of the Compensation Board costs them nothing, while often the employer must pay out of his own money.

"Essntially, our way of living to-day depends upon our ability to put weapons into the hands of our fighting men on the battlefronts. Some think, in an easy frame of mind, the war is almost over. I can tell you that men who have studied the German economic system from top to bottom know that it is not nearly over yet. Why then, should we continue to have serious and preventable accidents. The truth is that it is totally unnecessary; if we make up our minds to prevent them."

He said everyone should practice prevention of accidents, because "it is the decent thing to do; it will relieve pain and suffering, it is the duty of a good citizen; it saves money for everyone; and because everyone has a duty to his fellow men."

George Potts, a director of the association, thanked Mr. Dean for his address, and said the association was extremely grateful for Mr. Dean giving up his own time to come to Peterborough for this purpose.

Cecil S. Smith, chief inspector of the Lumbermen's Safety Association, presented three reels of color film, depicting the logging process and scenes in a lumber camp. Filmed in gorgeous Northern and Eastern Ontario, Mr. Smith illustrated instances in the film where accidents would have happened. Next year, he said, better movies and instructional films were to be produced, and would be shown in many centres.

Later in the evening, after a banquet, the attending members held an open discussion period, and the lumbermen told of accidents that had been prevented in their shops and other interesting information in that connection. Officials of the Central Ontario Industrial Accident Prevention Association, including H. A. Cramfield of Peterborough, and Fred Overend of the Peterborough Lumber Company, and Fred Brooks of Port Hope, also attended. Chairman of the meeting, Walter Peel introduced the speakers, and George Potts conducted a sing-song before the supper. Two inspectors, Walter MacPhail and Roy E. Hazelwood, were present, and each spoke briefly.

Members at Tuesday evening's meeting came from Peterborough and many surrounding points, including Cavan, Cameron, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay, and Port Hope.

Rotarian Tells Story Of War Experiences

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13 (ENS)—In a humorous address Rotarian Art Francis of Belleville recounted experiences as a runner in the First Great War, and proceeded to frame conclusions as to the post war era when Canadians return to civilian life.

He quoted Alfred Noyes, who pictured the war mongers as counting the cost in little discs of gold and not in blood. We British are not sufficiently emotional, and Gray was right when he wrote:

"For them no more the blazing hearth shall burn,
Or busy housewife ply her evening care,
No children run to lisp their sire's return,
Or climb his knees the envied kiss to share."

He noted that war claimed more than just men's lives, for their future described by the poet is lost and gone. The men who return after years of regimentation will be emotionally upset.

In conclusion he stated that Rotarians must assist the process of rehabilitation mentally as well as physically. Money must be put into its proper perspective and we must all learn "to do unto others as you would be done by."

363 Pupils Register At Cobourg School

COBOURG, Sept. 13.—(ENS). — Three hundred and sixty-three pupils registered for the opening of Cobourg Collegiate Institute for the fall term. This figure is a little higher than on opening day last year and R. N. McKensie, principal of the Collegiate, stated that there were a considerable number who are still busy on farms getting in the harvest. When all are back at school, the total enrolment will be somewhat higher than last year.

There are two new teachers on the staff, Miss Mary Cunningham and Mr. O. E. Cameron. Miss Cunningham is an extra teacher and will teach English and History. Mr. Cameron will fill the vacancy left by the death of T. H. McClelland.

Small Chimney Built From Salvaged Brick

COBOURG, Sept. 13.—(ENS.) — Meeting for the first time since the summer holidays, Cobourg Public Utilities held a brief session on Tuesday night. There was some discussion on the chimney which was removed recently at the water works. This chimney, which was 80 feet high, served the water works during the days when the pumps were steam-heated. Since the use of electric motors, the chimney was of no value and it was accordingly removed. A smaller one is being built, from the salvaged brick, which will serve the small boiler in the building.

Accounts passed in the electrical dept. at the meeting, totalled $890.49 and in the water dept., $554.51.

France Demands Voice In War Decisions

PARIS, Sept. 13 (AP) — As Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt met in Quebec and presumably considered Europe's immediate future, Gen. de Gaulle told Paris and the world tonight that France wanted full participation in discussion and adoption of plans for conquered Germany and liberated Europe.

In an address to an assembly of the National Council of Resistance, Gen. de Gaulle declared:

"We believe it is in the better interests of all mankind that the arrangements which tomorrow will govern the fate of conquered Germany should not be discussed and adopted without France, because there is no power more interested than France in what concerns the neighbor with which she has had for more than 2,000 years to occupy herself more than with any other.

"If there were any persons anywhere who doubted what this oppressed nation wanted or its capacity to handle itself, I suppose they are now definitely enlightened," the general told the cheering resistance leaders and followers in the auditorium of Chaillot Palace.

Making his first major address since the liberation, Gen. de Gaulle reiterated the intention of the Provisional Government, as soon as war prisoners and deportees can be returend home, to hold an election by universal suffrage of "all men and women of our country." French women have never had the right to vote.

Gen. de Gaulle declared that in future battles for Germany's defeat and in the occupation itself "we intend to participate in as large a measure as possible."

He reported the Germans still had a hold on 15 of France's 84 departments, and he said the better part of France's communications were still "paralyzed" from the ravages of war.

Recent rigors, he said, had highlighted her failings of the past—"negligence, mediocrity and injustice which we have practiced or tolerated"—sufficiently to have made France resolve to "take a new road."

Claims Gas Story Not Told Properly

TORONTO, Sept. 13 —(CP) — The office of Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle last night issued a statement saying that the difference in the average gasoline consumption per registered motor vehicle in the nine provinces of Canada is due to the "considerable difference in proportion and uses of commercial vehicles included in the motor vehicle registration.

Regarding an Ottawa dispatch to the Windsor Star which quoted figures showing that average consumption of gasoline per motor vehicle was higher in Quebec than in any other province the statement said that dividing the total consumption of gasoline by the number of registered motor vehicles "gives an entirely erroneous impression."

Robot Bomb Train Is Blown Up

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent

ON THE BRITISH FRONT, Belgium, Sept. 13 (AP)—I have just seen an area in which more than 100 flying bombs were exploded in one spot by an air attack.

The nightmare scene is about a half mile from the Oeschulen railway station near the Albert Canal southwest of Diest. At 12.30 p.m. Sept. 1 a squadron of rocket-firing Typhoons pounced on a German-manned train of 40 cars, each car bearing three flying bombs.

"We found parts of a German officer's jacket but nothing else, not even teeth," said the station master who witnessed the attack.

"It is not believable now that I am alive; the noise was so formidable," he said. "My house is three miles away. You understand, Monsieur, I was three miles away."

Holes were blown in the earth 50 to 60 feet deep, nearly twice as deep as the biggest craters made by Allied blockbuster bombs I have seen in France and Belgium.

Curiously enough, six of the 40 cars remained on the rails in what apparently was the middle of the train. Their cargoes of flying bombs were charred, melted and twisted by the tremendous heat, but were still recognizable.

A Project To Benefit The Whole Family

The Peterboro Memorial Community Centre

For Health, Culture and Recreation

The plans include a swimming pool, a softball diamond, a hardball diamond, rugby field, soccer field, lacrosse field and an artificial ice arena. The Arena will have a floor for summer use, enabling the arena to house large public gatherings of service clubs and churches as well as conventions, for which the City is ideally situated but for which we have no suitable facilities. With such meetings in mind, a suitable public address system will be installed. The floor will also make roller skating and dancing possible, and in the spring and fall, basketball and volley ball may be played. In winter, in addition to Senior Hockey, Industrial, Church and School leagues will be formed and the building will be available for tiny tots to learn to skate in proper surroundings.

YOU CAN DEDUCT YOUR CONTRIBUTION FROM YOUR INCOME TAX UNDER THE WAR CHARITIES ACT

Mr. C. Fraser Elliott, Commissioner of Income Tax has ruled that as the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre is a charitable project, which is for the benefit of the community as a whole, contributions are deductable from Income Tax.

THE AVERAGE COST PER PERSON IN THE CITY IS $2.00 EACH YEAR FOR FIVE YEARS.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1944

The Blame Must Be Shared

It was a week ago this evening that Mr. Elliot Little, speaking on behalf of the Conservative party over a CBC network, said that Canadian unity was a sham. During that week we have wondered several times how seriously Mr. Little meant his remark to be taken. If he intended it to be a statement of fact it is quite obviously untrue; if he meant it as a rhetorical exaggeration he strained the license of the orator to its utmost limits.

If Canadian unity were a sham there would be no coherent Canadian war effort. But our war effort is very great, and has won the admiration of the other United Nations — an admiration which they have expressed in terms of unmistakeable enthusiasm. Our war effort is not perfect; it displays some large gaps and breath-taking inconsistencies. But even when we give its faults full value it is a magnificent effort, and one of which we shall always be proud. Efforts of that sort are not the result of serious national disunity.

What, then, did Mr. Little mean? Clearly he meant that he thought that Canada should have a policy of conscription for overseas service which actually sent every physically fit enlisted man abroad to fight. Now the present system of conscription which sends some men abroad and keeps others at home is defensible logically, but like many other logical things is not notably glorious in action. Who is to blame? The Liberal Government, says Mr. Little and his colleagues. But let us see whether the blame may be confined to the Government which happens to be in power at the moment.

Mr. Little's party, whether as Conservative or Progressive Conservative, has not declared itself for a policy of complete conscription. The Conservatives would like to get into power in Canada, and it is an axiom of Canadian politics that no party which advocates conscription can hope to get into power, because Quebec will defeat it. Quebec is the key to political power in this country, and every party which wishes to prosper woos Quebec assiduously. Mr. Little's party have had their turn in power twice during the past 33 years of this country's history, and on both occasions they worked closely with the isolationist forces of Quebec. Nor at any time did they exert themselves to educate the Quebec electorate toward a broader conception of Canadianism. These were chances to do something to strengthen Canadian unity, and smooth the path for conscription, and they were neglected.

If a measure of bad feeling and disunity exists in Canada both the major political parties must bear the blame for it, and we suggest that if the Conservative party had been in power in 1939 it would have been extremely reluctant to put in force the complete conscription policy which it seeks to foist on its rival; if it had done so, we should have seen a degree of disunity in Canada worth worrying about. Frankly, we do not think that such Canadian disunity as exists at present is alarming. There is a great deal of talk about it, and there have been a few ugly incidents, but nothing worse than most of our Allies can show, in one way or another. The proof of a pudding is in the eating, and the Canadian war effort is something in which all but a few Canadians take pride.

Fascism In This Hemisphere

In the past fortnight it has become plain that while Fascism is being crushed in Europe and in the Pacific it is gaining strength in this hemisphere, and that Argentina has taken unmistakeable steps along the Fascist path. The Argentinian President, General Farrell, has told his country that the present military government will be maintained only so long as is necessary for the good of the state, and that the country will be returned to civilian control when it is safe to do so. In other words, General Farrell has no intention of relaxing his hold on The Argentine at present, and does not mean to risk an election to legalize his position. Meanwhile The Argentine is the centre of Fascist activity in this hemisphere, and is using the classic Fascist devices of false reports and disruptive rumours in order to make trouble in South America. Very clear evidence of this has been made public by the U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull.

It would not be difficult for the United States to crush the Fascist regime in The Argentine; probably a threat would be sufficient. If Britain joined the U.S.A. in such a threat there would be no question of its success. But the U.S.A. is very properly diffident about taking such a step, which could be interpreted as 'Yankee Imperialism' by South American demagogues. But Uruguay, one of the smallest of the South American republics, has asked that the foreign ministers of this hemisphere meet in Mexico to discuss the situation in The Argentine. If all the countries of this hemisphere joined in that meeting, and agreed to put pressure on General Farrell to hold an election—a fair election—his government would probably not be able to survive it, for it does not appear that he has such wide popular support as he pretends. If anything effective is to be done about the Argentinian situation it must be done by all the American nations together.

The Argentinian Fascist situation is a grave one. Among other things, that country might provide a delightful and rich hunting-ground for Adolf Hitler and some of his associates after the war. The neutral countries of Europe have closed their gates to the Nazis, but The Argentine has not done so. By this time it must be clear to everyone that Fascism, wherever it exists, is a threat to the peace of the world. Fascism in the Argentine could bring about a war which would involve every nation in this hemisphere.

A Plot For The Movies

When Hollywood turns seriously to the task of making movies about this war it will find one plot ready to hand, perfect for its purpose without alteration; that is the story of how Romania changed sides in the fight. It has all the elements of romantic drama in the style of The Prisoner of Zenda except a beautiful heroine, and it would be a simple matter to thrust one arbitrarily into the plot.

Briefly, that plot is as follows: young, handsome King Michael sees that his country is being ruined by a villainous dictator who has allied Romania with the Axis; therefore King Michael separates the dictator from his bodyguard, and causes him to be thrown into the deepest dungeon beneath the castle moat; the King then announces over the radio that Romania has changed her allegiance and that he, and not Antonescu, will direct the nation's course in future; there is wild confusion, and a great deal of scurrying about the countryside, with the Fascists chasing the King, and the King chasing the Fascists; there is shooting, and in this the King's mother takes a personal and remarkably skillful hand; the Germans are in confusion and do not know what to do; the Russians arrive, and the Germans immediately know what to do — they get out; wild cheers for the young King; fadeout, with triumphal music.

The story from Romania proves that a King can be a remarkably useful man to a nation in which democracy has been shamefully abused. At least he can throw a dictator into a dungeon when he thinks that the time is ripe; if Germany had had such a monarch history would have been written differently.

What Is Funny, And When?

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THERE is a constant and insatiable demand for funny books; fully three-quarters of the public which is able to read wants to read something which will make it laugh. Most people want to laugh, but being deficient in humour themselves they have to turn to professional funny-men to be given something to laugh about; the more obvious the joke, the larger the public which likes it. A funny book may be a work of genius like "The Pickwick Papers," or it may be a quickly forgotten volume—immensely popular for a year or two—like Milt Gross's "Nize Baby." I have just finished reading the latest funny book, which is Bob Hope's "I Never Left Home" (Musson). Oddly enough, I have also recently finished "Choice Humorous Works of Theodore Hook." Hook was the Bob Hope of his day, and his day was a little over a century ago.

UNLESS you are a fancier of literary rubbish, like myself, it is unlikely that you have read anything by Hook, and I do not advise you to do so; if you want to find out what made people laugh a century ago his work is interesting, but if you want to laugh yourself it is hard going. Hook, like Hope, specialized in puns and gags; he wrote a great quantity of light verse and, like Hope, he cracked a great many jokes against himself. But he is as dead as mutton now, and his concoctions cannot raise a smile. I suspect that "I Never Left Home" will seem heavy, stilted stuff to our children. At present, however, it is just the thing to make you laugh—if you like Bob Hope. I like him—in moderation.

THE book is an account of Hope's tour of the United States' forces abroad; like a number of other prominent American comedians, Hope has done a great deal of hard work to keep up the spirits of his country's soldiers. In spite of his elaborately nonchalant and self-depreciatory manner of writing it is plain that he took great pains to go everywhere that he could be of service. Bob Hope has a pleasant personality on the screen and the radio, and in his writing that pleasantness is enhanced by the occasional glimpses which he allows us of a very intelligent man. But whenever this happens it is inadvertent; Hope does not want us to see him as he is. He wants to be funnier than anyone has ever been before; he wants to be funnier than is really endurable.

THE economists' law of diminishing returns works in humour as well as in more easily measured forms of effort. If a man is funny, that is splendid; if he is hilariously, uproariously, side-splitting funny, that is superb; but if he goes beyond this and becomes desperately, agonizingly, remorselessly funny,—determined to kill his audience with laughing or die in the attempt—that is pathetic, and we cannot laugh. Hope's book has no continuity of humour; it does not sweep us along through a relation of incidents which are intrinsically amusing. His jokes are almost entirely verbal, and they are exploded on every page like Chinese fire-crackers. For a chapter or two this is amusing; after that it becomes rather grim. It becomes, in fact, indistinguishable from the writing of Theodore Hook.

DIED-IN-THE-WOOL Hope-friends will not agree, but they are unlikely to read criticisms of their hero's book. Their delight in Hope's puns, and his references to his girdle and the lace on his drawers will not be marred by anything that I may say here. Therefore I may put forward the opinion that Hope's humour, like that of most radio and movie comedians, is good as far as it goes, but it does not go very far. It is scarcely to be called humour at all; it does not originate in the character of the funny-man himself, nor in his shrewd observation of the idiosyncracies of his fellowmen. It is fast-moving, shallow fun, easily manufactured by the clever joke-smith. When Hope himself delivers it on the air his pleasing personality and his brilliant technique carry it off effectively. But it is poor reading for anyone who hopes to be diverted, or to have his gravity removed, as Kai Lung would say.

PERHAPS it is unwise for a funny man to work too hard. Hook lashed himself into frenzies of funniness, and now he is as dead as the dodo. Hope does the same thing; he puts too many raisins in his cake, and it becomes an indigestible mess, agreeable only to the strongest stomachs. It was generous and likeable of Bob Hope to go abroad to amuse the American troops: I am sure he made them laugh a lot. But his account of the journey is hard to read as only a determinedly funny book can be.

Hogarth's Mulberry

The death of a tree is relatively a trivial event in these days when thousands of human beings are dying miserably. But it is a sign of an old affection for trees in the human heart that a large section of the English-speaking world can pause amid the current carnage to mourn the loss of Hogarth's mulberry tree in London.

The loss of this ancient tree has already been noted in editorial comments in the United States. Now comes the new air edition of the Times of London with its tribute. Hogarth's mulberry was the old tree which grew in the garden of the English artist's Chiswick home, where he spent his summers from 1749 to 1764. Beloved by the artist, it had been repaired and tended by him, and it survived until a few days ago.

Nightingales once sang in its branches. Around it the school children of Chiswick played games and used to come in season to share its fruit, which the owner distributed with just and generous hand.—Ottawa Citizen.

Scurvy in Scotland

A serious increase in the occurrence of scurvy among the admissions to certain hospitals in Scotland since the war, especially in the period of 1941-42, is reported in the current issue of the British Medical Journal.

The disease now known to be due to absence of sufficient vitamin C in the diet, was what is termed "bachelor" scurvy, although some of the patients were women, because it occurs mainly in those who live alone.

Three root causes are emphasized. Ignorance, especially of the need of potatoes and vegetables in the diet; apathy especially as regards cooking these articles of food; and poverty making it impossible to buy adequate food or to obtain facilities for cooking.—London Times.

THE HEAT IS ON —By Thomas

"Miss Edith! The Queen!"

THUS, one cold spring morning, when gray clouds clustered round the sky as gray feathers round a sea bird, Edith and I were walking with Davis along the Mall—then an unpretentious street, and not a processional road modeled by elephantine Edwardian taste upon the Sieges Allee in Berlin. Suddenly a clatter and a scarping of hoofs told us that a body of Life Guards was approaching, and behind them, in an open carriage, sat a small figure, in black, with a black bonnet, bowing with regular swaying motion to right and left, as the people thinly lining the road cheered her. She liked the air, and her face was rather red with exposure to it. This was the sovereign who, at the age of seventeen, had mounted a shaken and a shaky throne and now, after a reign of sixty and more years, was about to leave it, transmuted into rock by the magic of the common virtues she exhibited, to her heirs. This was the presiding diety of a golden age, blessed and tranquil in spite of its manifold endeavour; this, the young girl, who had remained, until the time she had become an old woman, the personification of a way of life, and who, by some combination of evolutionary advantage and of instinct, had invented a new kind of sovereignty, so that the frontiers of it now stretched as the very portals of the world; this, the little old woman who, by virtue of her dignity, had magnified her image, so that in every town in Great Britain statues of a crowned giantess holding a ball and scepter were even now being erected; this the old lady, the straight glance of whose clear blue eye, protuberant and searching, made the bravest and the cleverest men confused, if they were not anxious to tell the truth...."The course of the Boer War must be worrying the Queen", I heard my father say subsequently at luncheon; but she showed no sign, even at her great age, of strain or emotion and, still bowing, had driven through the gates up to the old front of Buckingham Palace, with its chocolate-brown facade by Blore, and a skyline, crowded as the roof of a roundabout, with stucco shields and lions and trophies and a great effigy of Britannia; a facade that was part of London architecture, and lacked the sterilized rigidity of the present Portland stone front.... As she drove into the courtyard, my sister and Davis were talking of how, once before, they had seen the Queen. My parents had spent a winter at Cannes when my sister was three, and one morning this plump small child had been walking with her nurse along the pavement of a straight dusty road lined with palm trees. They had been the two figures in all its deserted length, when they noticed from the distance a carriage rolling toward them down this straight perspective of painted villas with green Venetian shutters, and cobbles, and green palms, high up, and waving gently in the sun. As the horses neared them, Davis called out "Miss Edith! The Queen!" and my sister had accordingly stopped in her walk and had dropped a low but uncertain curtsy, which Queen Victoria had most ceremoniously returned with a bow.—From "Left Hand, Right Hand!" by Sir Osbert Sitwell.

Peterborough In September

(By BETTIE HISCOCKS)

AT this time of year when the leaves turn brown and the nights are cold and the days are tinged with wood-smoke and autumn I remember Peterborough.

We came east to Peterborough from Alberta September 15, 1941. It was a beautiful fall! For one solid unbroken month every single day was crystal clear and sunny and warm, the black squirrels played football along Homewood with the horse chestnuts from 6.30 a.m. to 8 p.m. every day, and the golden leaves reluctantly sifted down from the great elm and maple that line the streets, like golden feathers upon a golden quilt—silently, without a sound.

I remember one Sunday we climbed the hill beside the canal with the highest locks in the world. Looking down the canal we saw the regularly spaced yellow trees reflecting in the oily, green water with the dignified precision of candles upon a mirror. It was an old world ...a Flemish old world painting of a canal with yellow trees — a Van Gogh — not a real scene in Peterborough. It was too perfect for reality.

Looking back to Peterborough in September (as I always do) I remember many things about that comfortable city: the parks with their shady old trees and their swings—the old upheaved walks—the huge old houses (everything in the East has an haze of age to my Western eyes—an haze which gilds and enhances it)—but most clearly of all I remember the rocking chairs upon the porches.

The second day in Peterborough I was free early in the morning—9.30 a.m., to be precise. I walked along revelling in the warm September sun. I stopped at a store and looked at the great hoards of baskets of peaches stacked outside the door on the street. The storekeeper came out and asked me if I would like to buy a basket. I hesitated. He seemed anxious, when he found I was from Alberta, to convert me to peaches, for he took a ripe peach, broke it in half, lifted out the stone, and explained "Free Stone. Taste it." He seemed very lavish to me at the time. I having a prairie regard for the price of a peach, but he was a good salesman. One taste of the luscious sweet fruit and I was sold. I bought a basket and a knife and went to the hotel and proceeded to consume half of them before dinner.

But I digress. I was speaking of of rocking chairs. On my way home I walked along many quiet side streets—residential moderate districts where each big brick house had a lawn and a porch and at least one rocking chair. And in the rocking chair there was almost invariably someone sitting, rocking....Just sitting, rocking at nine-thirty in the morning!! And by the tempo of the rocking and by the occasional glimpse through the half-open door, and by the sedate, self-satisfied expressions I gathered that the rocker was at peace with the world and this was justifiable rocking—even if it were early in the morning.

It arouses a strange and interesting comparison in the psychology of Easterner and Westerner—this rocking business. In the West we have lawns, and porches too—nice ones, and occasionally one rocks in the afternoon, often in the evening—but seldom, if ever, in the morning.

Perhaps Westerners work harder in the day—play harder at night. Perhaps Easterners rise and shine (and rock) earlier, whilst we rock late in the evening.

There are many charming things to see in Peterborough—the lovely Anglican church upon the hill, the passage under the locks where the horses used to go through—the wooden bridge—and the convent with its well—but when September comes and my thoughts turn to Peterborough, the most vivid picture in my mind is that of a sunny street, a quiet lawn and a dignified lady sitting upon her porch at 9.30 in the morning—rocking.

A Blueberry Fraud

There's an enterprising firm in Montreal whose production manager certainly knows his blueberries—and economics. A Dominion food inspector at London, Ontario, discovered that the 20-ounce cans of blueberry preserves put out by this firm contained just four ounces of blueberries per can! But that isn't all. To mellow the tartness of the berries the canners used saccharine—a coal-tar derivative, cheap, concentrated, and reputedly 300 times as sweet as cane sugar.

This recalls the plum-and-apple jam issued British and Canadian troops in the last war. The only trace of plums were the stones, there wasn't even an apple-core in a carload, and there was a strong suspicion that the bulk was a compound of turnips, vegetable marrow, saccharine and glucose. For that there was some excuse, since the real ingredients simply weren't available.

There's no shortage of blueberries in Canada. Across Ontario and Quebec hundreds of square miles of land are covered with blueberry-bushes laden with fruit, and thousands of tons go unpicked yearly. Lots of people have gone poetic over the joys of blueberry pie. Imagine such a pie with only one-fifth of its fruit content blueberries—hardly enough to discolour the eater's teeth and lips! Three thousands cans, we are told, were ordered destroyed in London but thousands of others must be on sale elsewhere.

We wonder how the fellow did it—that is after first screwing up his courage to put over such a monumental swindle on his fellow-countrymen. Perhaps he studied in Germany under the masters of ersatz, substitution, and adulteration. Let's hope the identity of the monster will be revealed in court.—Ottawa Journal.

The pessimist was suffering from rheumatism. "Every bone in my body aches," he complained. "You ought to be glad you are not a herring," said the optimist.

A Bible Message

And God spake all these words, saying, I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them. (Ex. 20: 1-5.)

Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help: and stay on horses, and trust in chariots, because they are many; and in horsemen, because they are very strong; but they look not unto the Holy One of Israel, neither seek the Lord!....

Now the Egyptians are men, and not God; and their horses flesh, and not spirit....

Turn ye unto him from whom the children of Israel have deeply revolted. For in that day every man shall cast away his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which your own hands have made unto you for a sin. (Isa. 31: 1, 3, 6, 7.)

O Lord our God, other lords beside thee have had dominion over us; but by thee only will we make mention of thy name. (Isa. 26: 13.)

Letter To The Editor

A PLAN OF DECORATION

Sir,—Having noticed the letter in the Examiner under heading "Celebration," I might state that I have had the same thought for weeks and have what I think is a unique suggestion for a decoration which I would be pleased to pass on to the committee which may be formed. It will be original and beautiful, easy to handle and should be outstanding to the extent of giving our city wonderful advertising.

Bunting to a great extent will be at a premium. I am not well enough or able physically to take an active part such as I would like to do, but I am heart and mind behind preparedness. In other words I do not put off anything until tomorrow which I could do the day before yesterday. Now is the time to get busy.—Thanking you,

Malice Pulled Trigger, Supreme Court's Verdict

"Guilty," of the charge of shooting William J. Bolton with intent to cause grievous bodily harm, was the trial jury's verdict against Charles Ward, Tuesday afternoon in the assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario with Mr. Justice Plaxton on the bench.

Ward was indicted on two shooting counts, in the one offense about 11.30 p.m., March 24th last in the vicinity of the George Street homes of himself and Bolton. The jury struck off the major alternate which charged the accused with having fired a shotgun at Bolton with intent of murder, and reached its decision on the lesser count in twenty-five minutes.

Mr. Justice Plaxton announced that he was deferring sentence until the close of the sittings.

M. G. Hardill was foreman of the trial jury.

Ward pleaded an accident in his defense as elicited by his counsel, T. J. Carley, K. C.

"I stumbled and fell— and the gun went off." That statement in his testimony summarizes his explanation of the discharge of his single-barrelled gun whose spray of lead, known as bird shot, punctured the lower part of Bolton's back in more than 165 spots from which the pellets were removed by Dr. Robert Young.

Bolton had the fortunate advantage of the protective covering of his overcoat, suit coat, vest, and other underclothing. He was in hospital ten days and unable to return to work for six weeks.

Domestic Scene.

Ward said he was reading a newspaper and sipping brandy in his kitchen about 11 p.m.

"I thought I heard something at the wood shed door. It was about ten after 11 o'clock. It was a sort of grating or frying noise. I went out through the wood shed but did not see anything.

I went back to the kitchen, and after a few minutes I heard the same kind of noise. I thought that was funny. I knew previously there had been some prowlers around.

I reached up and took my shotgun off the wall. It was hanging by two leather straps. I grabbed some shells out of a box in the cupboard. I noticed as I put them on the table that some were larger gauge than others, some No. 4 and some No. 6. I picked out one that contained smaller shot. I rushed out to the wood shed door. I thought I heard some one running and I ran across to the laneway. I stumbled and fell in the lane, and as I stumbled the gun went off."

Ward said he was holding the shot gun in both hands. To Mr. Carley's question, the accused said "the trigger pulls very easy." In falling he tried to keep the gun from slamming on the ground, but it discharged in the course of the fall.

Mr. Carley— "Where were you when the gun went off?"

"Just past the end of a car parked in the laneway, and at the end of Mr. Bolton's verandah."

At Police Station.

Continuing his story, Ward said he heard a man scream, recognized the voice as Mr. Bolton's, and got to his feet in a confusion of excitement.

"For two or three seconds I didn't know what to do. I heard Mr. Bolton's wife come out to her husband.

My thoughts was to go to the police station and report the accident."

He threw the empty shell aside, hung the gun up in the kitchen, and presently left his house, going by Dublin and Water streets to the police station.

His Name on Radio.

"I walked into the station, Constable Stevenson was talking on the telephone. When he finished he came to talk to me. Just then a voice came over the police radio. It said "Be on the lookout for Charlie Ward. He is walking to the jolice station, be careful he's heavily armed.

Mr. Stevenson said into the police radio, "Charlie Ward is here."

At the same time, I said, "That is my name," and Mr. Stevenson told me to come around into the guard-room. I walked around as he told me, and almost immediately Sergeant Wigg and a policeman came in.

Wigg started to search me. He said, "Where's the weapon?"

I said I had none. A policeman behind me said, "Where's the gun?" I said "my gun is hanging up in my kitchen."

Mr. Carley: "You heard Wigg testify that you told him 'I'm sorry I did it.' What do you say as to that?"

"I never said such a thing."

Ward denied also that he greeted P.C. Stevenson with the question, in the Police Station, "Did you get a phone call about a shooting? I'm the man who did it."

"No such a thing was said," Ward declared.

Denies Any Intent.

Mr. Carley: "What do you say as to the charge you intended to shoot W. J. Bolton?"

"I had no intention of shooting anyone."

"What do you say as to whether you intended to injure W. J. Bolton when you took that gun into the back yard?"

"I did not."

His Lordship: "What did you take it out for?"

"Self-defence only," the accused replied.

Mr. McElderry: "Were you convicted in Peterborough on October 25, 1943, of having committed on October 19 an assault on W. J. Bolton?"

"I did."

"And you were so convicted?"— "Yes."

Ward told Mr. McElderry that he was sure he heard a noise at the shed door, especially the second time.

Mr. McElderry suggested that it might have been a cat or dog prowling around.

"A cat wouldn't have made a noise like that,' Ward replied.

As to the sipping of brandy, the accused in reply to Mr. Carley said he drank about one-quarter of a tumblerful.

Mr. McElderry pointed out in his address to the jury that Ward swore he had taken down his gun from the kitchen wall only for self-protection, then he went to the woodshed door, he heard footsteps running down the lane.

"He had no need of a gun for self-protection when steps were running away from him," Mr McElderry emphasized. "Then, three days before the shooting, Ward said to Allen Lee, 'I'll get even with him. (Bolton).'"

Our teeth unquestionably must be listed among our most priceless assets, both from the standpoint of appearance and health. All of us unfortunately are not blessed by the possession of perfect teeth, and of necessity must take the best of care of those with which Nature has endowed us. It is a proven fact that "to be well and to keep well" everyone should possess a good Tooth Brush and suitable dentifrice—and use them regularly. Periodical visits to your Dentist are also most imperative. In our present day there certainly can be no excuse for "Tooth Neglect," as "Tooth Preservation" can be easily assured by the use of any of the many modern Dentifrices so readily available at such modest cost. Your Tamblyn Drug Store has for your selection, at all times, a most complete range of these "Tooth Requisites," and this week is again stressing the importance of their use. Stirnweiss Spark In Yank Machine, Leads In Hits

By WALTER L. JOHNS
(Central Press Canadian Sports Editor)

Reams and reams of publicity copy flooded this desk in the football season of 1938-39, all mailed out of Chapel Hill, N.C. The build-up was for George Stirnweiss as an All-American halfback on the University of North Carolina squad.

Stirnweiss played good ball for the Tar Heels, but he failed to make the All-American.

Today, there is no publicity copy reaching this desk on. Stirnweiss, and, strangely, he doesn't need any for he has reached athletic stardom—in baseball.

Stolen Base King

Stirnweiss, regular second baseman of the New York Yanks, is probably the "one" player who has sparked the world champions back into the lead in the American league.

Here is what Stirny has done:

He has made the most hits in the league—172. He has stolen the most bases—49. He has hit the most triples—15. He is batting around .320. He is fielding with the best of the loop infield job-holders.

Of course Stirnweiss' play alone hasn't boosted the Yanks from fourth place, where they were on Aug. 13, to first. It has been a combination of factors, with Stirnweiss' efforts certainly a ranking one.

Marse Joe McCarthy himself deserves that so-infrequently-given pat on the back for he had to rebuild the Yanks from a championship baseball club with a group of mediocre players.

In the early season he was getting poor pitching but now he's getting a fair sample. The hurling of Walt Dubiel, a 16-game winner with Newark in 1943, has done much to promote the Yank cause. Dubiel now has won 12 games, five of them in a row.

Borowy in Form

Johnny Lindell, one-time pitcher, converted into an outfielder, has paced the Yanks' attack with 86 runs batted in. Bud Metheny and Lindell have delivered timely home runs, having clouted more than 30 between them.

Hank Borowy, off to a shaky start, has become the Yanks' ace flinger and may become a 20-game winner.

Return of Frank Crosetti, a steadying influence in the infield, marked the Yanks' splurge to the top. Crosetti, who didn't report until July 23, has given the Yanks the shortstopping of old. The San Francisco Italian is now in his 13th season with the Yanks.

Despite the apparent poor quality of the Yank team this season and the dismal showing of the club when it dropped into fourth place several weeks ago, the home attendance has been upped over 1943 by 100,000 or more.

What the Yanks do from here on in is a guessing matter. The schedule is against them for the Yanks play all but two games (Sept. 16-17 with the Athletics) on the road. The club ends its season with a four-game series with the Browns which may turn out to be a championship battle.

LET'S ALL DO MORE TO WIN THE WAR D-34

By FRED D. CRAIG

Word from the rival camps is that both teams are in good shape for the All Scots-All English soccer game at Riverside Park Saturday with the proceeds in aid of the Norwegian Relief Fund. Meanwhile the supporters of both teams are carrying on a verbal warfare as to the relative merits of English football and the manner in which the Scots play the game. It is not expected that Saturday's battle will settle the argument no matter what the result of the game but it will at least give the supporters of the winning team a talking point and slow down the fans who are backing the losers. The kickoff will be at 2.30 o'clock and there promises to be a real crowd on hand for the tickets are going fast. Both outfits include some of the former stars of soccer in this district and while the march of time may have slowed them up to some extent they should still be capable of a crowd-pleasing effort. Plenty of subs will be permitted so that the teams will be able to toss in fresh players and keep the game moving at top speed. It should make a lot of money as it is staged for a cause that sport-loving Peterborough folk should be glad to support, the fund to help the hard-pressed people of Norway.

This column expressed the opinion yesterday that if ball players and fans studied the reason why certain baseball rules had been formulated they would find it much easier to remember those rules when they happened to come up. One particular section of the code seems to give a lot of folks trouble. That is the rule in regard to base-runners advancing on a fly. The present reading is that as soon as the ball hits the hands of the fielder the runner may advance, even if the spheroid should be juggled two or three times before being firmly held. That particular rule was adopted years ago because before it was in existence it was almost impossible to score on a fly to the outfield. With a runner on third in a position to go home after the catch, the oufielder in whose garden the ball was hit would not immediately catch the ball but would keep on juggling it, at the same time jogging in toward the infield until he was so close that it would be impossible for the base-runner to score. Then he would finally complete the catch. The rule-makers decided that something would have to be done about that and so the present rule allowing an advance as soon as the ball hits the fielder's hands was manufactured.

Military Football

Kingston is to have some rugby this fall, thanks to the fact that it is a military centre. The Limestone City has had a lot of breaks in sport activities because it is the headquarters of a military district and this football activity is just another proof of its luck in that respect. Capt. K. J. Preston, sports officer of No. 3 District has announced that there will be three army teams in Kingston this fall and that they along with a team from Queen's University will comprise a four-club loop which will play at the George Richardson Memorial Stadium. The three Army outfits will be from the Canadian Ordnance and Electrical Mechanical Engineers Training Centre, Barriefield, the Canadian Signals Training Centre, Vimy Barracks and the Canadian Radar Training Centre. The latter outfit will probably have some of the players who played softball here this week-end against the Military Training Centre in line. Certainly a runner like Left Fielder McDiarmid of that team should be a useful asset to any football squad, either as a half or as an outside wing. With his fleetness of foot and catching ability McDiarmid would seem to be a natural as a pass-receiver. Incidentally he won the 440 yards event at a recent military sports meet.

Lionel Conacher's selection by an important U.S. magazine a few days ago, as the finest all-around athlete on the continent, might be authentic, but not having a line on the versatile parties across the border, it would be going a long way by handing the palm to the big Canuck, writes Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Review. Certainly, Lionel could do more things right athletically than any other Dominion native, his hockey, lacrosse, football, baseball, swimming boxing, wrestling and golfing being exceptionally good. He also made real headway in American football on his brief stay with a U.S. college team and the speed he exhibited in all sports would qualify him for running recognition. There was no mistake about the "Big Train" being a headliner in football, and we are told that he held similar roles in lacrosse, although, we never had the pleasure of seeing him in the gutted stick circles. In hockey, he was up there with the best, his defensive play being as good as any ever displayed back of the blueline. There have been several better Canadian baseballers, but Conny was not bad and must have showed something to ride the bench for that good 1926 Toronto team, so when great athletes are being called, he must get unusual attention.

Carry Big Load

"Undoubtedly both Newhouser—although he was plenty fast and had all his stuff yesterday—and Trout are finally beginning to buckle under overwork," says Doug Vaughan in the Windsor Star. "The coming four days of rest—the Tigers won't be in action again until Friday in Cleveland against the Indians—may be just what they need to give them the strength to keep the Tigers in the thick of the pennant hunt. It is to be hoped so for, without them, the Tigers would be in last place today instead of in a mighty favorable spot to win the pennant. What Trout and Newhouser have meant to the Tigers this year just can't be calculated in dollars and cents—although Diz and Hal will probably make a gallant attempt to find out when it comes times to talk of 1945 contracts. For his efforts of this season, Trout is receiving $12,000. Newhouser is being paid somewhat less. Both will probably receive handsome bonuses regardless of whether or not the Tigers win the pennant. Before the season is over the Tigers will have attracted well over three-quarters of a million customers to Briggs Stadium. The figure may go as high as 850,000 which will be more than a quarter of a million more than they drew last season. Trout and Newhouser have been the men chiefly responsible for that amazing increase and they deserve to reap the harvest of their efforts. It wouldn't be surprising if both of them asked for, and got, in the neighborhood of the peak Tiger pitching salary of $30,000 that the Detroit club paid Buck Newsom back in 1941."

Stratford Kroehlers who meet Brantford Plowettes in the semi-final of the P.W.S.U. series, the winner to clash with Westclox in the finals had an easy time in knocking off the Fergus Maple Leafs in the second game of their round. The champs defeated the Guelph girls 10 to 1 with Greta Harmer allowing only four hits. The losers did not get a blow off the Stratford ace until the seventh. The Westclockers will be probably interested in the Kroehlers' lineup. There are some changes from last year. Eileen Heinbuch, for example, is doing the catching chore, replacing Jean Aiken who went to Montreal with her battery mate while Eileen Hutchinson is at shortstop in place of Betty Appel. Gladys Heinbuch, Evelyn Easson, Doris Harloff, Ruby Huras, Helen Doubrough and other members of last eyar's championship array are still playing.

Weighing 10 pounds more than his opponent, Johnny Greco, 144, of Montreal, accredited Canadian titleholder, took less than three rounds lats night at Montreal to dispose of Bobby Gunther, dark-haired Detroit scrapper. It was Greco's third fistic engagement since stepping out of a Canadian army uniform. The feature bout, a scheduled 10-rounder, was witnessed by 10,000.

The Jamestown, N.Y., team again toppled the Lockport nine, champions of the class D pony league, last night, taking the third straight game 3-0 in the post-season final playoff series. The winners require only one more decision to grab the playoff trophy.

Before the end of the second round of the heavyweight feature, last night at New Bedford, Mass., Sgt. Jack Porter, military policeman at Moncton, N.B., had knocked down Felix Del Paoli of Philadelphia 14 times and was awarded the decision on a technical knockout. Porter, 191, flattened Del Paoli, 212, seven times in the first round and seven times in the unfinished second frame.

Based on the showing of farm teams, the Chicago Cubs look to have substantial reinforcements in prospect next season. Among their minor league affiliates, Los Angeles has a long lead in the Pacific Coast League; Milwaukee copped the American Association pennant; Lockport, N.Y., won the Pony League race while Nashville earned the second half flag in the southern Association. Only 10 minor leagues operated this year.

Schedule Complete

TORONTO, Sept. 13 — (CP). — Harold Bailey, secretary of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, last night announced complete dates for games in the O.R.F.U. and the newly-formed Ontario Service Football League.

The season opens Sept. 23 with the Service League playing two games and one being scheduled in the O.R.F.U. League games will be completed Nov. 4.

Sell Ulster Stadium

TORONTO, Sept. 13 — (CP) — Mr. Justice W. D. Roach in a judgment handed down yesterday granted permission to the owners of Ulster Stadium, in the East End, to sell it to a construction company which will subdivide for building.

Detroit Can Take Lead If Yanks Lose

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Connie Mack's lowly Athletics put the chill on Detroit all season, winning 10 of 19 from the pennant contenders, but Tigertown to-day was 100 per cent behind Philadelphia as the A's tangled with the Yankees in a resumption of American League competition.

If the seventh-place Mackmen can trip New York, Detroit would vault into the lead by .0008 The Yanks-Athletics tilt was the only game scheduled from Monday to Friday, but they were due for two more in New York this week-end, while Boston plays Washington, St. Louis entertains Chicago, and Detroit visits Cleveland.

American League teams, thinking of the World Series, took heart from the Cardinals' continued slump as the Red Birds dropped a double-header to Pittsburg for their ninth defeat in their last 13 starts.

The Cardinals fell before the Pirates' Fritz Ostermueller, 5-3, in the first game and then dropped the nightcap 6-5 as Preacher Roe took the decision over Bud Byerly.

Attendance figures reflected the tightness of the flag chase with New York showing the way at 727.385, and the entire league drawing 4.-185,000 customers. Detroit was second with 648.642 and a cinch to take the lead with 14 more home games to two for the Yanks.

Rain washed out Cincinnati at Chicago and Philadelphia at New York double-headers in the National after the Phils had taken a 2-0 lead in three innings of the opener. Boston at Brooklyn also was postponed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 —(AP) — From somewhere in France, Cpl. Doug Gary writes: "When we came to England the kids had no life at all. Games didn't interest them. But after a year or so all the kids were playing baseball, yelling, fighting like they do back home. .... Even the service Tommies, R. A. F., etc., took up baseball in preference to cricket. Now the cricketeers are afraid baseball will completely ruin their game" ...... The Columbus Red Birds, who set a record by winning the Little World Series the last three years in a row— and under three different mangers—retained Nick Cullop as pilot this year and failed to make the American Association playoffs by .001 per cent.

Team championship of Ferd Lipovetz's "700" bowling clubs of American goes to the Clinton, Iowa, club with a 3218 score. Frank Serpico of Philadelphia topped the list with three 700 or better series last season, including one even 800.... Stan Lomax has just been re-elected president of the New York Sports Broadcasters and Ted Husing is chairman of the overpowing committee believe it or not, that's no reference to Ted's language.

Lieut. Frank Williams

Frank Williams, rugby star, in action

GRID STAR "TERRIFIC" SAVING CANADIAN LIVES— Lieut. Frank Williams of Fort Erie, Ont., well-known Argos' snap back, is credited by the Royal Canadian Navy with saving many lives, including that of the captain, Lieut.-Cmdr. Ian Bell of Vancouver and Halifax, when the Canadian corvette Alberni was sunk on invasion duty. Survivors report he was "terrific," said he seemed to be everywhere at once helping people out of trouble.

Livewires Grab Omemee Victory

OMEMEE, Sept. 13 — (ENS). — Hattie Eakins' pitching and the timely hitting of Cliff Campbell, who drove in five of his team's runs, helped the Lindsay Livewires to an 8-2 decision over Omemee Creamery in the fourth game of the league play-offs, staged in Lindsay on Monday night. The first play-off bout resulted in a 5-all tie, and Omemee took the next two straight.

Eakins allowed only five scattered hits, struck out three, and walked one. Stephenson, hurling for the O's, struck out three and walked one while the Wires were able to colect seven hits. Omemee's three errorts contributed to scoring for the Lindsay boys.

For Lindsay all the hitting and all the scoring was done by four players, Campbell with his homer and one two-bagger, Eakins and Grills with two singles each, and Schell with one double. For Omemee, Parsons connected with two, a single and a double, Williamson, got a double, and a single each went to J. Deyell and Weir.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX, Sept. 13.—(CP). — Every once in a while this department sees pictures of prehistoric men carelessly whaling each other across the noggin with outsize clubs. Were these shillelaghs in reality hockey sticks? We haven't gone into the subject deeply enough to render an opinion, but we hereby offer it to palaeontologists as a matter of research in the hope they may be able to strike a blow for sport and Canadian unity.

This suggestion comes to mind as the result of some new discoveries bearing on the rivalry between Kingston, Ont., and Halifax as to which community gave birth to the game of hockey. It seems the Halifax protagonists have been stirring up the dust in the archives and have come up with a year that makes Kingston's 1865 birth claim look like ultra-modern stuff.

According to these earnest researches, they have dug out of an ancient publication a news item to the effect that hockey— or a reasonable facsimile thereof — was played hereabouts in 1779.

This, they said, makes it obvious that old gaffers in the Kingston hot stove league of 1865 were grumbling even then that the new crop of hockey players couldn't hold a candle to the men of the old Halifax circuit of '79.

At any rate this looks like the cleavage between the Halifax and the Kingston, or Upper Canada, factions is going to get wider than ever, with loud outcries of dissent going up from either side and national unity taking a severe beating.

Which puts the question up to the palaeontologists. Personally, we're in favor of seeing them get right to the bottom of this thing, ending the argument once and for all.

In the meantime the Halifax's supporters will go right ahead with their plans to set up a hockey hall of fame in opposition to Kingston's The leader in the movement is J. E. (Gee) Ahern, who divides his time between sports, editing the Halifax Herald and Mail and acting as deputy mayor. Next move, he says, will be the appearance of a book with Halifax's claims documented. Meanwhile, too, he says, Kingston can chew over that 1779 business.

Rain Gives Rest To Teams Leading League

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore and Newark, pennant winners and runners-up of the International League pennant race, are the teams most likely to have benefited from the complete wash-out of yesterday's Governors' Cup playoff schedule, which opens to-night. Buffalo plays at Baltimore and Toronto at Newark.

The Orioles and Bears fought a hectic race right down to the wire, with each club squeezing the maximum from its overworked pitching staff. An extra day of rest might conceivably change the entire course of the playoff with the top two contenders rested enough to flatten the third and fourth place clubs.

Manager Bucky Harris of Buffalo has elected to change his starting hurler from Bob Gillespie to Forrest Orrell, while the remaining three clubs are content to string along with the starters previously announced.

Players who have not been overly publicized and who may well alter the course of events in the playoffs are Mayo Smith of Buffalo, Tony Castano of Toronto, Newark's Danny Reynolds, and Blas Monaco of Baltimore. Monaco has accounted for three grand slam home runs this season, while Mayo Smith has been battling with teammate Eddie Kobesky for league batting honors.

Tony Castano, quietly near the batting title all season for the Maple Leafs, and Danny Reynolds, who provided payoff hits for the Bears when they were most needed, round out the quartette of hitters who may shine during the series.

Cards Fielding Is Big Factor

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — (AP). — St. Louis Cardinals, whose butter-fingered fielding was a big factor in their world's series defeat by New York Yankees last year, are currently fielding at a pace never before equalled in major league baseball.

Including games of Sept. 11, the Cardinals boast a team fielding percentage of .982, a point higher than the major league record of .981 set by Cincinnati Reds in 1940.

Of their 132 games to date, the Red Birds have played errorless ball in 58, probably a record.

Leading this group of glue-fingered phenoms is Marty Marion, probably the best fielding shortstop in baseball. He has erred on only 15 of his 631 chances for a .976 percentage, tops for short-fielders in the majors this year. He accepted 15 chances (another high) on July 8 against Pittsburgh, and had 10 assists against Brooklyn 10 days later.

Katan Battles Rasputin To Draw Verdict

Ivan Rasputin, the Russian grappler who is known all over the continent for his famous bear hug and for the quantity of hair that masks his body, battled to a draw with John Katan in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling show at the Brock Street Arena Tuesday night. The hirsute Russian took the first fall with his celebrated hold, but it speaks volumes for the endurance of the Palermo Panther that it took four applications of the bear grip to pin Katan's shoulders to the mat.

Katan came back to outrough Rasputin in the second round to tie up the match and the battlers failed to break the deadlock in the thirteen minutes that remained.

Rasputin, squatty and broad and packing 250 pounds, proved himself not only a quaint figure in the ring but also a wrestler of parts, for he showed a variety of holds on the attack as well as some smart defensive moves.

Katan fought his usual hard, rough fight. The pride of Palermo knows only one style and never wanders very far away from it. Give Honest John a chance to apply a headlock, slip in the odd punch when the referee isn't looking, work a lot on his opponent's eyes and get away with a kick or two and he is perfectly satisfied.

The Same Katan

He didn't let the mad Russian's reputation prevent him from adopting his usual tactics last night. He went after Rasputin from the first bell with some high-class gouging and for a while the beard was floundering around in evident distress. When you can't see the other fellow you are naturally handicapped and the Katan attack on the eyes had Rasputin worried. However, he cut loose on the Panther with a series of punches that had his opponent running for cover and finally got a chance to clap on his bear hug and the crowd got a real kick out of seeing Katan powerless in the arms of the whiskered Russian.

The Panther got away from a couple of those grips and resumed his head locks and punches, to carry the fight for a while, but eventually Rasputin took over the attack again and this time he really used the bear hug. Four times in succession he had Katan locked in his arms and helpless in his grip. Then he flopped him to the mat. On the first three occasions the Panther managed to break loose, but the fourth time there was no escape. The Russian simply floored Katan after applying the pressure hug and it wasn't much of a job to pin his shoulders. The fall was registered in 25 minutes.

Evens It Up

Katan came back fighting after that reverse and in the second round had an edge on the grappler with the hair. He used all the unorthodox stuff he could think up in subduing the Russian. Finally he hurled him bodily through the ropes, kicked him off the edge of the platform when Rasputin tried to re-enter the ring and then when the Russian did at last succeed in getting back on the mat he was easy picking for Katan who rolled him over with a headlock and spread him for the fall. The winner added insult to injury by booting the recumbent Russian a couple of times as a parting salute, and the crowd booed him as he left the ring.

That was the last fall. In the thirteen minutes that remained the boys playfully devoted themselves to a duel to determine which could twist the other's fingers most painfully. Katan started that form of wrestling and Rasputin met him at his own game and nearly pulled the Panther's arm off at the wrist before the final bell stopped the action.

Rough As Ever

Karl Krippler Davis, the rowdy Texan, who features the stepover toe hold but who is not particular just how he handles his opposition so long as it is the hard way, made his first appearance here in months in the semi-final, and if anybody thought a change of scenery might have softened the tough hombre from south of the border, Davis soon caused that impression to disappear He got the fans' goat before the bout started by refusing to take off the tape he was wearing on his hands, and made them still angrier when he proceeded to use the tape in a gentle effort to rub out the eyes of Tom Collins, his opponent.

Collins took quite a ride from the hard-hitting Texan, and although he did a bit of attacking himself and hammered Davis around the ring to the delight of the crowd, he was not carrying heavy enough armament for the Krippler. The latter finally took the bout without any fancy holds. He simply rabbit-punched Mister Collins into submission and then rolled him over and pinned his shoulders.

Gyroffy Wins

Johnny Gyroffy, formerly of the R.C.A.F., won the preliminary from the ex-sailor, Jimmy Burke, after a lively bout. Gyroffy had the advantage in height on the former member of the Canadian Navy and the edge in experience as well. Burke was game, however, fought all the way and was not wiped out until he had given Gyroffy quite an argument. At one stage it looked as if he was going to get the decision. He flopped Gyroffy hard to the mat twice with monkey drops However, when he tried the same hold for the third time Gyroffy suddenly straightened up and droppe Burke over his head and over the ropes. The ex-sailor lit heavily and although he got back into the ring he was an easy target for a barrage of flying tackles and after the third one Gyroffy spread him for the fall.

For the first time in many months the battlers were not introduced by Fred Scates, who is on vacation.

Hitler Enemies too Hasty in Moves

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 13 —(AP)— Adam Von Trott Zu Stolz, one of seven Germans who, Berlin announced Tuesday, have been condemned to death for complicity in the July 20 plot to kill Adolf Hitler, was reported Tuesday ot have visited Stockholm in June to inform the Allies about the anti-Nazi underground movement in Germany and obtain their reaction.

An informant who can be regarded as truthworthy said he saw Von Trott here twice, talking with him once for two hours and on another occasion for six hours concerning conditions in Germany.

Von Trott saw a number of Allied representatives, but made no contact with the Russians, the informant declared.

The Berlin radio asserted Monday that Von Trott, a former secretary in the German foreign office had used business trips to Stockholm to "contact enemy powers."

The informannt said he thought perhaps the impressions which Von Trott obtained here might have resulted in an "over-hasty move" on the part of the anti-Hitler plotters.

He added that organized opposition to the Nazis had been hard hit by the purge which followed, but said there "still are centres of opposition which may be important when collapse and occupation comes."

While here, Von Trott was said to have expressed the view that the opposition movement in Germany should have some assurances that the Germans would be granted "minimum possibilities of living after the war."

"The formula of unconditional surrender," Von Trott said, "is sterile and in its effect harmful on the opposition movement."

CANADIAN FLIERS WORSHIP IN FRANCE — Members of an R.C.A.F. Typhoon wing in Normandy recently marked the simultaneous decoration of three squadron commanders with an early morning church service at one of the dispersal points. Often called the "assistant chaplain" (Upper Left) LAC. Walter "Tiny" Reave, 194 Maple street, Timmins, the padre's personal driver, gathers the hymn books and the Union Jack pulpit cover at the close of the service which was held in a harvested wheat field with a Typhoon as background and empty gasoline tins and ammunition boxes as pews. In the Top Centre, Squadron Leader Herbert E. D. Ashford, MBE, 1413 Snelgrove avenue, Calgary, the wing padre, leads the singing of a hymn. Sometimes the congregation's singing is drowned out by the roar of aircraft taking off or landing. The commander of the wing, Group Captain Paul Y. Davoud, D.S.O., D.F.C., Kingston, reads the Scripture lesson in the Top Right. "A wing and a prayer" is suggested by the Bottom Left picture. Another section of the congregation is seen singing in Lower Centre, and in the Lower Right Sgt. M. E. McRady, rigger from Vancouver, plays the portable organ, and to his right is the first baritone, Cpl. "Lefty" Helm, cook from Kitchener.

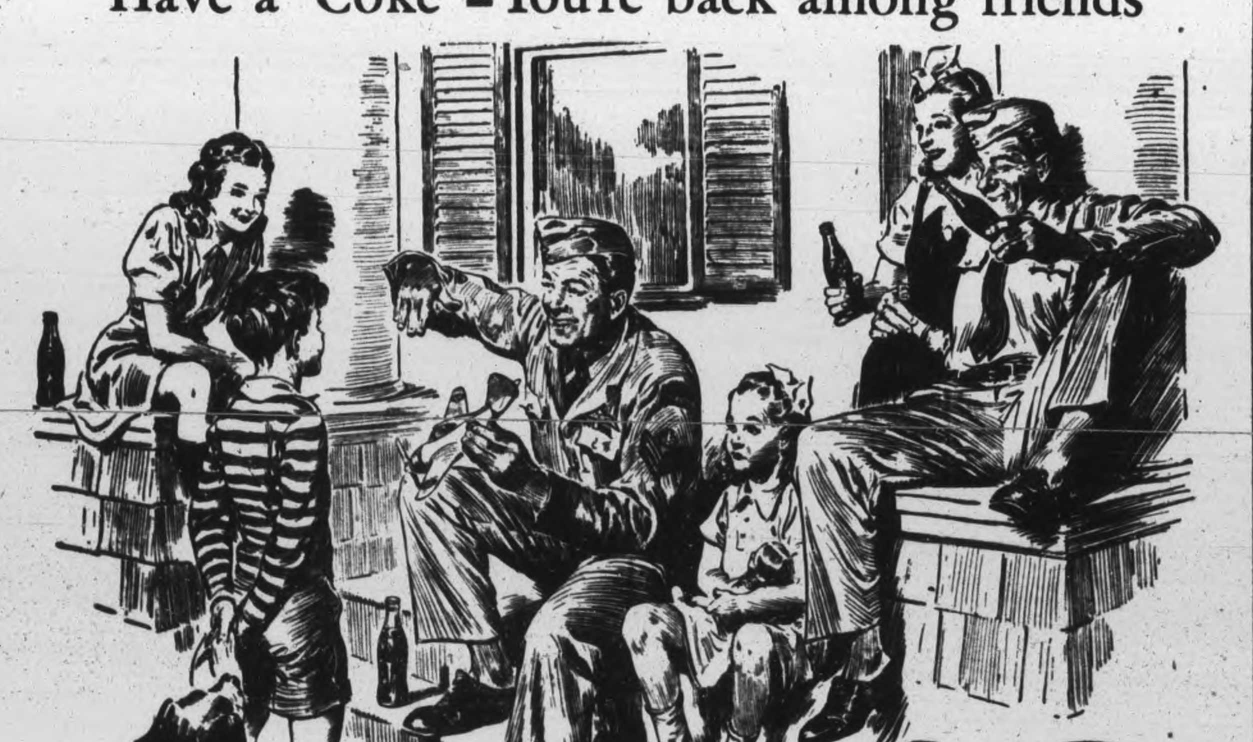
Have a "Coke" = You're back among friends



. . . or a way to put service men at ease

In its atmosphere of kindliness, home is hospitality headquarters with Welcome so often summed up in three words, Have a "Coke". To a service man it expresses a bond of understanding and friendliness. He hears it quite often at camp. It's one of his ways of saying You're my pal. Around the globe, Coca-Cola is spreading the custom of the pause that refreshes,—has become a symbol of friendly refreshment to folks at home and at war.

"Coke" = Coca-Cola

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

School Board Raps Sinatra's Singing

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13—(CP).—The Vancouver School Board has postponed discussion on whether Frank Sinatra's singing has a demoralizing effect on the city's school children.

A report on the radio and screen crooner was asked last night by Trustee James Blackwood and will be prepared by the music supervisor.

"Suppose we did find Sinatra had a bad effect," said Trustee Thomas Brooks, "what are we going to do?"

"We'd try to educate them along different lines," Mr. Blackwood countered.

Labor Is Seeking To Improve City

If a trades council is organized in Peterborough its interests would be largely confined to community affairs, according to the opinion of some of those promoting it.

Union labor's affiliations now reach out in two directions, A.F. of L. and C.I.O., as distinct from conditions of twenty years ago when the trade organizations all stemmed from the American Federation. Because of this divided allegiance "only local community affairs could come under the jurisdiction of such a council." This observation is quoted from a letter to the local unions from H. J. Pearce, chairman of the piloting committee that was named two weeks ago to canvass possibilities of bringing the labor family together in one household for more active participation in local affairs.

The Memorial Centre Committee asked for labor's representation in their campaigning, and that action accentuated contrast with other local bodies in which labor is the "forgotten man." At a recent discussion of this proposed trades council it was said that probably the overlooking of labor in various local organizations might be due to the attitude of local labor to stand aside and leave projects to other citizens, instead of seeking to take part, help carry the load and generally have a voice in affairs.

It was also said that apparently most citizens were well disposed to labor sitting in with community groups and thereby obtaining direct information and experience in various matters which affect the citizens as a whole.

The action of J. A. Jebson of the Memorial Centre made a favorable impression, but it was also felt that Labor should have representation on the hospital board, re-habilitation committee, city planning committee, victory celebration committee. A meeting of representatives of Peterborough labor unions will be held some time next week to discuss the trades council idea.

It was recalled that organized labor had a representative for years on the Public Library Board. In the first place, the late Joseph Crowe was appointed, and the present union trustee of the library is Albert Borland. Sharing in the administratio of the library had been a service which had continued through the years harmoniously, and it was felt that such experience was a distinct advantage to any members who might be appointed to such bodies of citizens. Mention was made with disappointment and some resentment that labor had been left off the Soldiers' Rehabilitation Committee.

Swine Breeders Hold First Field Day

Men in the cattle business in Canada should not take the attitude that this country is in favorable position with regard to cattle farming, because in the state of Wisconsin alone, there are approximately as many dairy cattle as in the whole of Canada, declared W. P. Watson, well-known member of the Ontario Department of Agriculture speaking before a large gathering at the first field day of the Quinte-Kawartha Yorkshire Breeders' Club held at Nicholls Oval Tuesday afternoon. One of the prime reasons for the meeting was to show breeders of pure-bred hogs the kind of carcasses the hogs made when killed.

Mr. Watson who is with the Livestock Branch of the Agricultural Department of Ontario described to the meeting the modern trends of agriculture.

He said he had recently made a study of artificial livestock breeding science and from what he learned two outstanding points were emphasized. He said that artificial breeding is the most expensive method but at the same time it is the most efficient for improving the quality of cattle. "When the great mass of farmers really show a desire to want to improve their cattle," he said, "and when they act in unison, then probably, this method will be widely adopted."

The livestock expert has made a study of agricultural work in the United States, and he told the meeting that in the States, the majority of farms have several silos, while in Ontario and Canada, the opinion seems to be spreading, silos mean too much bother in filling. He said he had been told by men in the business in the States, that they could not carry on their business without the silos filled with corn, and clover.

Mechanical Trend

With regard to the relationship between the Western Canadian provinces and Ontario, Mr. Watson pointed out the westerners are emphasizing the use of mechanized equipment. He told of meeting a man who with one son, operated a farm of 800 acres successfully. Mr. Watson said this is eight times the crop production of the same help here, and as farmers in the West figure they can make a profit on wheat selling at 50 cents a bushel, the inference seems to be that Ontario farmers should by all means continue to buy Western grain for livestock, he declared.

He observed that in the financial and farming columns of the daily press, thousands of cattle are being held over week-ends, because, the truth is they are almost unmarketable. It does not under any circumstances mean there is plenty of good beef; but rather, there is no market for poor beef.

"It is not the function of the Quinte-Kawartha Yorkshire Breeders' Club to merely sell pigs," he said, "but to sell good pigs!" The attending members, who come from Northumberland, Douro, Peterborough, Victoria and other points, showed a great interest in Mr. Watson's complete demonstration of choosing good breeding stock.

Mayor James Hamilton attended the meeting and welcomed the members.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the judging of hogs, before and after they were killed at Canada Packers, and the carcasses thoroughly inspected. The amount of lean meat and fat meat was seen, and parts of the carcasses were cut into sections for a more complete inspection. It is difficult to judge pigs while they are alive, and the members of the club displayed a great interest as the dead hogs were examined.

Max Humphries, of Hastings, was awarded first prize in the judging competitions, and Ed Hogg, of R.R. 5 Peterborough, took the second prize. A draw for a sow was won by George Weaver, R.R. 3 Stirling.

30-Foot Lots Remain Problem For Council

"What are you going to do with a single lot of thirty feet frontage, between two houses?" Alderman Glover asked at the council meeting Monday night.

"Give it away," Alderman Curtis suggested.

Alderman Glover admitted that his inquiry arose from personal interest in a lot "on which I was stung."

A motion by Alderman Bradburn, seconded by Alderman Ovens, requested the assessment department for a report on subdivisions in the city and suburban North Monaghan in which lots are less than forty feet frontage.

City Treasurer Shaver and Welfare Officer Metheral were appointed trustees of an allowance to the family of the late Mrs. A. Harte-Maxwell, who died recently, of the amount of her salary for six months. This money is to be used at present for the purchase of Victory Bonds but is available to the family when required.

Mrs. Harte-Maxwell was employed for years at the city hall in detail of caretaking.

HAMILTON, Sept. 13 (CP) — Professor Chester W. New of McMaster University was chosen Progressive Conservative candidate for Hamilton West in the next Federal election at a nomination convention last night.

NOW IN FRANCE—Gnr. Walter Lane, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lane, 413 Bethune street, has arrived in France, according to word received by his wife. Before enlisting, he was employed at Jopling's Meat Market and the C.G.E. Gnr. Lane's wife and daughter, Shirley, live on St. Mary street.

Alleged Slasher Given Remand

Suggesting that an interpreter who could speak Hungarian should be secured in order that a plea might be obtained from the prisoner, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning remanded Joseph Nazeon, 60, of Gatineau Mills, Que., until to-morrow on a charge of having wounded Pte. Chas. Richer, Ottawa, on a C.P.R. train recently.

Richer was slashed across the back of the neck with a razor and was a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital here for some time, while Nazezon has been held on a charge of committing the assault.

The accused intimated to the court this morning that he wanted to see a lawyer.

Youth Ordered To Take Job

At the suggestion of W. F. Huycke, who prosecuted the case, David Peters was allowed to go on suspended sentence in police court this morning after he had pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to a charge of having failed to accept employment under the Selective Service regulations.

One condition was that the accused should accept a job secured for him by Selective Service officers.

Mr. Huycke told the court that Peters, who had been in the army, had been ordered to report to the Canadian Raybestos Company and that instead he had made an application for a transfer which had been refused. The accused had failed to turn up for the work to which he had been assigned. Mr. Huycke said that Peters had a heart condition and that the work at the Raybestos plant was probably too strenuous for him. The accused, he said, had agreed to go to work if some other employment were found for him, and the Selective Service officials were willing to secure another job for him.

Magistrate Langley said that he was usually opposed to suspended sentence for offences under wartime regulations but that under the circumstances he would allow the accused to go on probation, provided that one condition of the bond should be that he accept employment as offered to him.

Denis Plumpton, arrested in St. Catharines, on a charge of having failed to provide for his wife and family and brought back to Peterborough last night, pleaded not guilty this morning, and at the request of the prosecution the case was enlarged until next week.

Robert McMillan, Elm street and Michael Patton, Indian River, who pleaded guilty to drunk charges were each fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Peterborough Soldier Suffers Chest Wound

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. R. Edgar, 391 Dobbin avenue, that their son, Pte. Earl Edgar, who has been serving in France with the Algonquin Regiment, is now in hospital wounded in the chest by shrapnel fragments.

When war broke out, Pte. Edgar left school to enlist and he has been serving overseas for two years. He wrote his parents that his injuries were not serious and he hoped to be back with his unit before too long. A brother, Kenneth, is in France doing reconnaissance work.

Ross Thompson Gets Promotion

Ross Thompson, serving overseas as an administration officer with the R.C.A.F., has recently been promoted to the rank of Wing Commander, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Thompson, 416 Park street. He has been in England since November, 1942.

He enlisted in the Air Force in 1940, and was commissioned a pilot officer in the same year. Later he was picked to command a detachment at the University of Western Ontario at London, with the official title of Commanding Officer R.C.A.F. Detachment, Western Ontario. He went overseas direct from London, Ontario.

Wing Commander Thompson was educated at Peterborough Collegiate, and the University of Toronto. Before enlisting, he worked in his father's George street insurance office.

Victory Workers Give $30 To Robot Victims

When people set to work with a very definite object in view and then because at the start the task ahead loomed very large and big, there must be at least some jubilation when they begin to see their hopes show good signs of being realized.

When the Victory Workers of which Mrs. Bruce L. Fowler is the president first commenced operations, the name they choose declared their intentions from the very outset, their work being particularly in that field of endeavour so capable of being excelled in by ladies, and their objective one of giving a hand in the many field of service where in the need of the moment seemed to be of paramount importance.

In this manner they have on a number of occasions given assistance to the sufferers from air raid attacks over Britain through the local and district fund operating for that purpose, and now another and perhaps one of their best in an amount of $30 has been given to assist the victims of robot or flying bombs through the same fund.

Just now there happens to be a number of various worthy efforts to which financial support would be welcomed, and at the meeting which the Victory Workers held most recently, various proposals were made by the members in rgeard to this donation listed to-day, it being a natural thing to assume that each person of course has their own preferance in such matters.

In spite of this however, it can readily be seen that there was also a desire to see that their money was utilized for the most pressing war need in this field at the moment, and to Mrs. Nelson who has five sons in the active services, goes the credit of making the motion that this fund should receive the full amount they now had available, because of the huge devastation caused by the robot bombs in Britain.

The overall picture of the journey towards victory is enchanced and advanced considerably, when people can be prompted to forgo their own first preferences, and act in an unselfish manner towards that which may be considered as requiring the most support at the moment.

Millbrook Dance Wednesday.

Those who love to trip the light fantastic should have ample opportunity this Wednesday evening at Millbrook, where a street dance follows the Donnybrook Fair in their exhibition ground in the afternoon and for those who prefer games of bingo or chance, these are also being provided with a view to both giving pleasure and at the same time raising money to help this fund which is now on the last half of the next donation.

Belmont Boy Suffers Leg and Head Wounds

HAVELOCK, Sept. 13 —(ENS) — In a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Dafoe of Belmont township, written since he was wounded, Pte. William R. Defoe with the 48th Highlanders in Italy stated that he had a slight wound in the head and one in the knee and was progressing nicely. He expressed the hope that he would be able to re-join his unit soon.

Seeks Information About Relatives

An item in the Weekly Examiner published in the city of Cork, Ireland, is an echo of the Irish Emigration to Peterborough and district back in 1825.

The item is an enquiry from one Robert S. Doman, 527 Ocampo Drive, Pacific Palisades, California, who is seeking information about his relatives who may be living in Mallow, County Cork. This man is a descendant of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Doman or Dowman who emigrated from Mallow, County Cork in 1825 as a farmand settled in the Peterborough district.

About 60 years ago, when the C. P. R. was being built through this district, there was a boarding house near the Sixth Line in Otonabee where a great many of the railway workers lived, and at that time one of the waitresses employed at this boarding house was named Ella Doman. However, this man is interested not in relatives here but in relatives in Cork, and it is unlikely there are any people in this section who can claim relationship.

PROMOTED — Serving overseas as an R.C.A.F. administration officer, Ross Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Thompson, 416 Park street, has recently been promoted to the rank of Wing Commander. He has been w. h the R.C.A.F. since 1940.

Bicylists Who Ignore Lights Given Warning

Bicyclists who fail to obey the traffic lights are liable to have the same penalty handed them as motorists who are guilty of the offence, it was intimated in police court this morning.

Donald Ferguson, a Collegiate pupil, who pleaded guilty to riding through the traffic lights at Hunter and George streets was fined $2 and $1 costs today, but it was stated that other offenders might not escape so lightly.

Robert A. Fair, who pleaded guilty to driving his automobile through traffic lights, was fined $5 and $2.50 costs, and a similar levy was made on Clark Haig who entered a plea of guilty to a speeding charge.

Dora Pulver, Lindsay, was fined $2 and $1 for illegal parking.

OBITUARIES

MRS. J. ARMSTRONG

A resident of Peterborough for 37 years, Mrs. James Armstrong, 217 London street, formerly Mary Frances Latimer, passed away Tuesday at Nicholls Hospital after an illness of length. She was in her 73rd year.

Born in Fraserville, the daughter of the late James and Annie Latimer, she attended school in South Monaghan Township. While in Peterborough, Mrs. Armstrong attended Murray Street Baptist Church.

Surviving are a sorrowing husband, two daughters, Mrs. Grant Palmer, Peterborough, Mrs. Ralph Cox, of Oshawa. A son, George, predeceased her.

The funeral will be Friday at 2 o'clock, from her late residence, 217 London street, to interment in Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist will officiate.

ROBERT FREEBURN

The funeral was held Tuesday of Robert Freeburn, who died in his 78th year, at his residence, lot 37, concession 15, Young's Point, Saturday morning. He had been ill a year and interment was in Hillside cemetery, Lakefield, and Rev. J. Blackwood, of Peterborough, officiated.

Pallbearers were William Lane, Ernest Harvey, George Davis, William Tedford, Sam Bullock, John McIlmoyle. The flower bearers were four nephews, D. Dunford, Cameron Freeburn, James Armstrong and Trueman Crapp.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 13—(CP).—Allied spies inside of Germany are so efficient and speedy the Germans are having a difficult time keeping their fuel dumps secret from the Allied Air Force, reliable sources said here yesterday.

Wool Theft Case Being Tried At Fall Assizes

Trial of Frederick Smith on an indictment of having stolen wool and burlap wrapping from G. Whitaker and Company, Limited, agents for the Melbourne Merchandising Company, Toronto, a Crown company for the storing of wool used in the manufacture of military uniforms, was proceeding this afternoon before a jury and Mr. Justice Plaxton in the sittings of the Supreme Court.

The thefts were alleged to have taken place last May and June. Smith was foreman of the wool storehouse at Auburn, a comparatively new building that was a unit of the old mills owned by Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited.

Gordon Monkman, manager of Whitakers, testified that Smith had no authority to sell anything from the warehouse, nor did he turn over to the company any of the money which Smith is alleged to have received.

Frank Petersiel, a local dealer in scrap materials, gave evidence that on May 24 this year he received a call from some one at Auburn. He later recognized the voice as Smith's. Petersiel said he was told on that occasion there was some material for sale at the warehouse.

Witness said that when he went to that place, Smith was in the building and appeared to be in charge. Petersiel bought half a ton of burlap wrapping for $20, and 200 pounds of waste wool at 10 cents a pound.

On June 2 Petersiel answered another telephone call from the warehouse and bought 600 pounds of waste at 10 cents a pound; June 17 he bought 800 pounds of the wool and 500 pounds of burlap for $90.

Petersiel said the total payments to Smith were $270. He paid cash without receipts.

The prosecution is being conducted by Crown Attorney McElderry, with John A. Bradshaw counsel for the accused.

Several Nabbed For Trespassing

Peterborough citizens who have developed the habit of trespassing on the tracks of the C.P.R. should not fail to realize that the procedure is liable to prove expensive for another checkup is being made by railway police and prosecutions will follow.

One man, Sam Donovan, who pleaded guilty in police court this morning was fined $2 and $1 costs and it was intimated that a number of other cases are to be heard next week.

Officer Walter Ramsay of the C.P.R. police in announcing that a drive against trespassers is under way remarked this morning that only recently a train had to be brought to a halt because of a pedestrian walking on the track who apparently was so deaf that he failed to hear the locomotive whistle.

Louis V. McCoy Retires From Quaker Oats Co.

Alderman J. E. Sullivan, credit manager of the Quaker Oats Company, is now the sole survivor of the original staff of the company in Peterborough, still in its employ, and that applies also to the entire Quaker Oats Company of Canada.

This fact of personnel was mentioned to the Examiner by Louis V. McCoy, production foreman in the package department, whose superannuation took effect August 31, and who is leaving Thursday to spend the winter in Timmins with his daughter, Mrs. Frank Thompson.

"I received a letter from Douglas Stuart, president of the Company, expressing appreciation of my service with the Quake Oats Company since 1902, and wishing me well in retirement," Mr. McCoy said. "In that letter he pointed out that J. E. Sullivan and myself were the only members of the original staff still with the company. I came here in 1902 from Tweed to play lacrosse with the old T. A. S. team, and went to work immediately with the Quaker Oats, then a new industry in Peterborough. My old home, was at Campbellford. I have been in the package department all the time, and I well remember, after the big fire, the only premises we had were in the Bank of Commerce building.

My first foreman was Robert Stuart, a cousin of the former president of the company, who came here from Chicago when the mill was being started.

Superintendents of the plant were: Alex MacDonald, Wm. H. Denham, Robert Cormack, George Edwards, Tom Gentles, and P. M. McCarrell. The first general manager was G. A. Macdonald who was succeeded by Leroy A. Cutting, and now Reg. R. Faryon."

Mr. McCoy's daughter, Mrs. Frank Thompson, came down from Timmins to visit Peterborough and accompany her father to their northern home. Incidentally, Mr. Thompson is manager of the R. Neill Company store in Timmins.

WARKWORTH, Set. 13.—(ENS). —A pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. D. S. Thompson, president of the Ladies' Bridge Club, Monday, when a number of women were present to enjoy a social time and to honor one of their members, Mrs. C. J. Carlaw, before she leaves the village. During the evening arrangements were made to continue sending cigarettes to the boys in the armed forces overseas, and during the lunch hour Mrs. Carlaw was presented with a pressed wood tray and candlesticks.

Mrs. C. M. Scott Describes Palestine Trip

The regular fall rally of St. James W.M.S. Auxiliary and their annual self-denial meeting, was held Tuesday in St. James United Church. There were 19 members and two visitors present.

Mrs. E. M. Davis, president, was in the chair. Mrs. R. B. English gave the treasurer's report for July and August showing receipts to be $34.23. A splendid talk by Mrs. F. Craik on Christian stewardship, "Christ's Example of Giving" told that before people can truly give material gifts they must give themselves to Christ.

The new study book, "West of the Date Line" was briefly introduced by the president, and Mrs. Ernest Johnston was appointed to take charge of the study for the coming year. It was decided that the autumn thankoffering be taken at the November meeting.

Group leader for the day was Mrs. H. F. Doig and prayer was led by Mrs. George Rowe. The guest speaker, Mrs. C. M. Scott, took for her theme, "A Trip to Palestine".

She told of landing at Cairo and making an interesting visit to the famous pyramids, and later to Jerusalem. This city is partly modern and partly as it was in the time of Christ. From here they went out on tours to the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea. Mrs. Scott said that there is still much bad feeling between the Jews and the Arabs and that the reconciliation of these two races would be a real mission work for the post war era. She also spoke of their visit to Capernaum, and of the excavations being done there in an attempt to restore evidences of the past. This part of the Holy Land seemed to be spoiled in the way it was being commercialized, she declared.

The speaker brought a wealth of curios and snap shots to illustrate her interesting talk.

Mrs. James Goldie sang a solo, "Lord Let Me Live Today" accompanied by Mrs. Doig.

The self-denial offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. Craik.

Auxiliary Hears Story Of School

The September meeting of the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity United church, was held Monday evening in the ladies' parlor. Mrs. O. Smith took the worship period, and Miss H. Henry gave the Bible reading. Mrs. Grace Samson, guest soloist, sang two songs "The Holy City," and "Prayer," accompanied by Miss L. Brown.

The first chapter of the new study book for the year was taken by Miss I. Giles and Miss E. Preston, and Miss M. Richardson gave a brief interesting talk on the summer school held at Whitby. Refreshments were served after the meeting had been closed with a short prayer.

Board Lifts Ban On Women's Shoes

OTTAWA, Sept. 13.—(CP).—The Prices Board announced to-day that restrictions on two-tone and ornamented women's shoes have been lifted and that a number of other wartime orders governing the manufacture of boots, shoes and slippers also have been revoked.

The announcement said makers of women's footwear will be allowed two completely new patterns and may vary their present lines by substituting patterns used prior to October, 1941, when many of the existing restrictions were imposed.

Makers of men's and boys' footwear now may use white leather, previously allowed only for women's, misses' and children's footwear.

All production and styling restriction on leather slippers and babies' soft sole shoes have been revoked.

Deanery Meeting Plans Outlined

Plans for the forthcoming Deanery meeting, to be held Thursday, September 28, at St. John's church, were discussed at the opening meeting of the season of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's, Tuesday afternoon. All branch W.A.'s in the city, as well as in the Deanery, are urged to attend the meeting, which will open at 10.30 a.m. with the service of Holy Communion in the church.

An excellent report on W.A. work was read by the secretary, while the treasurer read a splendid financial report, proving the success of the efforts made by the members to raise talent money during the summer months. Members were asked to keep the fall rummage sale in mind, with the date to be announced later. Mrs. G. S. Cameron presided, and Canon W. P. Robertson read the opening devotions and Litany, and also welcomed the members, wishing them a successful season's work. Hostesses for the refreshments served at the close of the meeting were Mrs. A. W. Turner and Mrs. D. Eldred.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Larger shipments of molasses are now arriving in this country at fairly regular intervals and, with the return of these supplies, we naturally think of gingerbread. The following recipe makes a delicious gingerbread.

Plain Gingerbread

½ cup shortening, ¼ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup molasses, 1¾ cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk. Cream together the shortening and sugar, add the egg and beat well. Add the molasses. Sift together the flour and baking powder, cinnamon, cloves, ginger and salt. Add alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture. Pour into a greased pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degress F) for 45 minutes.

Pear Gingerbread

Use 2 tablespoons of lemon juice, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 4 maraschino cherries cut fine 8 canned pear halves. For the batter use 1¼ cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, teaspoon ginger, ¼ cup butter, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup molasses, 1 beaten egg, ½ cup boiling water. Blend the lemon juice and brown sugar and spread them in a well greased baking pan 9 inches in diameter. Arrange the cherries and the pears, cut in half lengthwise on the sugar. Measure and sift the first four ingredients for the batter. Cream the butter and vanilla and add the sugar. Add the molasses and egg and mix well. Add the sifted dry ingredients, alternately with hot water. Pour the batter over the fruit and bake the cake in a moderate oven for about 40 minutes.

Old Fashioned Molasses Coffee Cake

1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup coffee, 1 cup shortening, 4 cups flour 1 pound raisins, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda. Mix flour and soda. Beat in molasses, eggs, raisins and coffee. Flour the raisins. Bake in moderate oven 45 minutes. For a slow bake set heat at 300 degrees and bake 25 minutes longer.

Country Pound Cake Dessert

Thrift and good eating as old fashioned as grandma's lamp, light up the serving of country pound cake dessert. Slice bakery pound cake into squares and pile them up with butterscotch sauce between, shortcake style. Serve hot or cold.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, September 14

STIRRING events mark the day, according to the lunar and mutual aspects of major planets. While there may be a deep spading up from long static and crystalized conditions, yet the breaking away from radical fastnesses may be sectacular or sensational, affecting romance, celebrations, parties, possibly to announce engagements or weddings. There may be opposition from elders, with minor upsets or delays. Adhering to new, original procedures may placate antagonisms, with kindliness and good will Change, travel, dealing with the public should succeed but shun extravagances with funds as well as energies.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of commotion, change and spectacular doings, probably in connection with parties, engagements or weddings. While there may be much joy and good fortune yet it is probable there may be lack of approval from elders or the family. These may be compromised by a show of good nature and friendliness and not stubbornness. All forms of excess and extravagance should be avoided, for most lucrative and happy results. Innovation and novelty, with well organized plans should assist.

A child born on this day should have much originality with inventive genius, sustained by sound ideas and sturdy efforts. It should have a progressive probably spectacular and romantic career.

Missions Need Extra $100,000

Mrs. Irwin Oesch, 176 Stewart street, was hostess for the regular meeting of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United Church. As Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. Oesch read an appeal from the Women's Missionary Society for an extra $100,000 for this year. Mrs. Howard Clegg explained the need for this money in order to continue mission work in China and other war-torn countries, and said that, to comply with this request, each member would be asked to give an extra 92 cents during the year.

An account of the splendid work of the Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary was given by Mrs. I. F. McRae, and Mrs. Ross Williamson was elected to represent Knox Church on the Board. Plans for the October supper and Thankoffering meeting were made, with Mrs. H. H. Clegg being chosen as convener for the supper committee, assisted by Mrs. R. G. Goodfellow, Mrs. A. Sproats and Mrs. W. Dale. Miss Mary Morton and her committee will be in charge of the program for that meeting.

Mrs. D. Gourlay introduced the new study book, "West of the Date-Line," which is a study of missionary work in the islands of the southwest Pacific and Malaya, Burma and Thailand. Members were reminded of the Sectional Rally, to be held Wednesday, September 27 in Trinity United Church. Mrs. E. Mesley, presided, read the call to worship, and led in prayer. She was assisted by Mrs. R. G. Goodfellow, and Miss M. Morton, who gave Scripture readings. Mrs. H. Clegg led in silent prayer.

IODE Donations Help War Funds

Personal comfort bags for service and civilian women and children in Britain will be filled this month by members of the Jeanette Scott Chapter I.O.D.E., it was decided at the first meeting of the fall season held at the home of Mrs. James Archibald. Donations were voted for the Polish Relief, Sailors and Minesweepers, British Children and Clothing Funds and a sum of money was set aside for the purchase of new playing cards for the uptown canteen.

Empire study, under the direction of Mrs. J. Nornabell, was continued at this meeting and "Forms of Government in Canada compared with the other dominions" was the topic of discussion. Papers were given on Eire by Miss Isobel Weddell on the Union of South Africa by Miss Mary Medd, on Australia by Miss Catharine Hodgins and on New Zealand by Mrs. Robert McWilliams. Mrs. Nornabell sketched the government of Canada and drew a comparison between this and each of the other dominions. That voting is compulsory in Australia was an interesting fact learned during the study

Members volunteered for service at the Blood Donors Clinic during the month and November 4 was set as the date for the annual fall tea and sale of work.

Mrs. H. Alton Addresses George St. WMS

Mrs. H. Alton was guest speaker at the annual temperance meeting of the George Street Women's Missionary Society in the board room Tuesday afternoon, choosing as her subject, "Why Join the Women's Christian Temperance Union?"

She told her audience that as Christian women they loved their fellow citizens, and were therefore interested in their welfare. In addition to the temperance problem, the speaker also spoke of the narcotic traffic, and said that W.C.T.U. organizations were helping to fight this menace also. She closed by exhorting women of all creeds to unite to stamp out intemperance and the use of drugs.

Mrs. James Spencer, secretary of Christian stewardship and finance, explained that the Women's Missionary Society would need an extra $100,000 to carry on their work this year, and asked each member to increase her givings by 15 cents over the sum given last year. Mrs. R. Parnall, for community friendship, told of 20 calls made at the hospital and 20 in homes. Mrs. A. W. Hales, for the sick and visiting, reported 117 calls made during the summer, and Mrs F. Latimer asked for cooperation of all the members for the coming paper collection. Miss E. Might, secretary, read the minutes of the June meeting and an executive meeting, and said that Mrs. James Brown had been named as corresponding secretary. The treasurer, Mrs. James Fanning, reported the sum of $250 sent to the Presbyterial treasury during a six months' period, and a bank balance at present of $10.13.

Mrs. J. H. Rowe, who presided, opened the meeting by reading a poem, "Be Strong," followed by a prayer. Mrs. R. C. Boulter read the Bible lesson, and Mrs. A. Sandercock led in prayer. Names of missionaries chosen to be especially remembered were read, and Mrs. James Brown led in a prayer for them. A temperance questionaire "What Are the Benefits of Alcohol?" was conducted by Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. C. Renaud, pianist, played "Just As I Am" with variations, before the meeting came to order, and "Nearer My God To Thee" with variations, during the meeting.

The librarian for the Society, Mrs. W. H. Morton, said that members had read 103 books during the last six months, and it was announced that the George Street Society had read more books than any other society in the Presbyterial, and was therefore awarded a gift of nine books for the library. Members were told that a Japanese girl and an Ukrainian girl were in training at Nicholls Hospital, and would be attending George Street and were asked to make them welcome.

WMS Sectional Meeting Attracts Many Delegates

Representatives from Warsaw, Westwood, Millbrook, Centreville, Keene, Lakefield and Peterborough were present at a sectional meeting of the Peterborough Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society in Knox Presbyterian Church, Keene, Tuesday morning and afternoon. Mrs. Harold Tate, president of the Presbyterial, presided at both sessions.

At the morning session, the devotional was taken by the Westwood Auxiliary, Mrs. Fox giving the scripture reading and Mrs. Sharp the prayer. Reports from the various secretaries were given showing the splendid work being accomplished. Greetings to the ladies were brought from the Peterborough Presbyterial by Rev. W. Patterson of Millbrook. During the noon recess a dinner was served by the Young People of Knox Church.

At the afternoon session, the devotional was taken by Miss Helen Tedford of the Warsaw W. M. S. Mrs. C. E. Blewett of Peterborough gave an instructive demonstration of visual education as applied to Mission Band and Junior Guild Work. This was followed by a duet by Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Comrie accompanied by Mrs. John Renwick, all members of Keene Auxiliary. Mrs. E. H. Howson of Peterborough gave some interesting information on the activities of a missionary nurse in India who is working in the military hospital there.

The president in her closing message chose as her subject "The Consecration of Talent." She stressed the fact that "we must not let our ability be dormant, no matter how trivial it may seem to us. Among the many gifts, common to us all is the one of time so very important in these strenuous days, she said.

Mrs. Clifford Hall of Centreville expressed the appreciation of those present for the kind hospitality of the Keene W. M. S. and tendered thanks to all those who had helped in any way to make the meeting so enjoyable.

Airgraph Rate Cut On Civilian Mail

OTTAWA, Sept. 12 — (CP). — Postmaster General Mulock today announced a reduction from 10 to five cents, effective Sept. 15, in the airgraph rate for mail addressed to civilians.

The new rate puts civilian mail on the same basis as mail to the armed forces and applies to mail to any country in which the airgraph service is available. This includes Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, the Middle East and a number of countries in Africa. Mail to the armed forces may also be sent by airgraph to France and Italy.

MAKE ECONOMIC SURVEY

KINGSTON, Jamaica — (CP). — Sir John Huggins, Governor of Jamaica, has announced his intention of setting up a commission to make an economic survey of the colony.

Work-Saver Trick for Busy Women

1 MIXING — 2 HOT BREAD TREATS!

THE TRICK is to mix double the recipe and bake half as muffins and half in a loaf. Then you've got treats for two days—luscious hot muffins for supper and a grand loaf for lunch box sandwiches! You'll love the marvelously soft, light All-Bran texture, and that special, heavenly nut-like flavor only Kellogg's All-Bran can give! Clip the recipe and get All-Bran today. 2 convenient sizes.

ALL-BRAN MUFFIN LOAF

2 tbsp. shortening
¼ cup molasses
1 egg
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
¾ cup milk
1¾ cups sifted flour
½ tsp. salt
2½ tsp. baking powder

Blend shortening and molasses. Add egg; beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk. Let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together; add to first mixture and stir just enough to combine liquid and dry ingredients. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 25 minutes, or bake in greased loaf pan at 350°F about 45 minutes.

Yield: 10 medium size muffins or 1 loaf (9½ x 4½ x 3 inches)

Here's Protection FOR WARTIME CAKES!

WARTIME menus can be helped by the variety and wholesome nourishment that cakes provide: But with today's shortage of butter, sugar, etc., you need the baking insurance that Swans Down Cake Flour gives, if you are to be sure your cakes will be light, tender, digestible.

Swans Down is unvarying in its high quality . . . assures you of consistently good results. Sifted again and again through silk, until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. Yet costs only a few cents per baking! Try Swans Down for your next cake!

ACCUSE SOCIALITES—Accused of illegal possession of $150 in merchandise from a Fifth avenue department store, New York, Miss Emily Conningham Myles (Left), 18-year-old socialite daughter of Mrs. Van Henry Cartmell, of Glen Head, Long Island, is free on $2,000 bail until hearing on September 15. Denied bail after her arrest on a charge of stealing jewelry valued at $37,000 from the homes of three of her friends, Mrs. Job Taylor (Right), 24-year-old society matron, is in Riverhead jail, Long Island. Her income from a $400,000 trust fund is said to have been drastically curtailed a few months ago. One of the gems involved in the charge is a $25,000 ruby and diamond clip which was taken during a house party on August 12.

DOROTHY DIX

FRANKNESS OFTEN OVERDONE

Unnecessary Truths That Hurt Others Voiced by Those Taking Pride in Veracity.

DEAR MISS DIX: Why is it that I just can't hit it off with a group of women? I am a matron thirty-odd, have had a good education, have been a successful business woman as well as a home-maker. I can sit in with fifty men and pass orders on to them, have their admiration and respect, and be treated as a pal or as a mother, but put me with five strange women and I can't even thaw them out. I am simply not liked by women, yet I want women friends. But, no matter how hard I try, no go. I dont go over. Maybe it is because I am too darn frank. I tell them exactly what I think.

E.F.U.

ANSWER: You have diagnosed your trouble yourself when you say that you think that the reason you are not popular with women is because you are "too darn frank," and that you tell them exactly what you think of them. No person who does that is ever popular with either sex, because men are just as allergic to the truth about themselves as women are.

A mistake that practically all people make who pride themselves upon speaking the truth and being perfectly frank is that they tell so many unnecessary truths that hurt and say so many unkind things that would be far beter left unsaid. A young girl said to me not long ago that she felt like a hypocrite if she kept silent when she differed with anyone, or failed to express her opinion, but she was wrong in that. You don't have to argue with people unless a moral issue is involved.

I think that of you would only temper the truth to the occasion in dealing with women and say pleasant thing to them when you can honestly do so, and be chary of criticizing them, and if you will show them that you like them and want them to like you, you will have no trouble in making women friends.

DEAR MISS DIX: My trouble is that I married a widower and love him and could be very happy with him except that he is so much more married to the lady out in the cemetery than he is to me that I have begun to feel that I am haunted by her ghost. He spends all of his time talking about her. She was perfection in every way. She hadn't a fault or a shortcoming. Yet she was sick nearly all the time and he had to do all of the housework as well as make a living. He was always broke paying doctors and drug store bills. She always had to have her people around her.

Now I am much younger, I have a good job and bring in much needed money. I have helped him get a start again and I inflict no in-laws on him. Yet she is IT and I am nothing, and I am fed up with hearing about her. Please warn other girls not to marry widowers. There is nothing you can do when you have a dead rival.

NUMBER TWO WIFE.

Second Wife Treated Brutally.

ANSWER: A lot of men who were not particularly fond of their first wives, nor congenial with them, canonize them as soon as they are tucked away in their graves. That would not matter if only they would keep their illusions to themslvs, but it is certainly a brutal thing to always be throwing Number One in Number Two's teeth, so to speak. And I wonder that any woman has the patience to endure it.

Perhaps if you will tell your husband how you feel about this and that he has to decide whether he prefers dead wife to a live one, you would make him realize what stupid, blundering idiot he is, and cut out his panegyrics over the deceased.

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it true that when we place people under obligations to us by helping them when they need help that they end by disliking us? If so, why?

MARY S.

ANSWER: Such is generally the case, but always, and the reason for it is that for people to be under obligations to us makes them inferior to us, and they can't stand that. It takes more generosity of soul to be a receiver than it does to be a giver.

Girls' Class Has Pot Luck Supper

HAVELOCK, Sept. 13.—(ENS).—The Girls' Class of Knox Presbyterian church commenced the autumn activities with a pot luck supper in the basement Monday evening with a good attendance.

The devotional period was under the leadership of the president, Miss Essie McQuigge.

It was decided to hold a crokinole party in the school room of the church on Friday evening, September 29, when a short program will also be presented. Plans were made to send Christmas boxes to the boys from the congregation overseas, and the executive is to meet soon to draw up the program for the ensuing year.

You Can Have Brighter Teeth!

Impartial laboratories made hundreds of tests. Scientists checked their findings with photoelectric measuring devices and authorized this statement: PEPSODENT POWDER PRODUCES A LUSTRE ON TEETH TWICE AS BRIGHT AS THE AVERAGE OF ALL OTHER LEADING BRANDS . . . BRIGHTER THAN ANY OF THEM—BAR NONE! These results have been double-checked by identical twins who made practical in-the-home tests . . . by technicians in dental clinics . . . by dentists in their own offices. The result is always the same: Pepsodent Powder with Irium makes teeth far brighter.

You Can change a child's face!

This young boy, for example, had badly-arranged "baby" teeth that made his lower jaw protrude . . . threatened to affect his future looks. But modern dentistry, by corrective treatment, improved his looks . . . made the permanent teeth come in properly, too. Yes, dentistry can do wonders in straightening crooked teeth. Or, like the movie stars, you can have chipped or broken teeth recapped. So watch children's teeth carefully. Visit the dentist regularly. For it's the truth . . . a child's personality and future may depend upon the condition of his teeth and how bright and clean they're kept!

IN MEMORIAM

CHURCH — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who passed away on Sept. 13, 1942.

Memory wanders as twilight shadows fall
Back to the days of happiness
Days beyond recall,
And a vision comes before us
So calm, so dear, so sweet,
Of those, lips that now are silent
And whose lids are closed in sleep

—Ever remembered by husband and family.

SHADGETT—In loving memory of Mrs. Emma J. Shadgett, wife of the late James Shadgett, who died September 13th, 1943.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true;
There's not a day, dear mother,
We do not think of you.

—Ever remembered by daughter Madeleine, husband and kiddies.

Home and School

KING EDWARD SCHOOL

The list of officers for the coming year was read by the secretary, Mrs. F. Johnston, at the first regular meeting of the King Edward Home and School Association. Mrs. G. Harris was re-elected president, and her executive is as follows: Vice-presidents, Mrs. L. Gibson and Mrs. O. Laderach; secretary, Mrs. F. Johnston; treasurer, Mrs. G. MacMillan; executive members, Mrs. G. O'Dette, Mrs. J. Crocker, Mrs. R. Watson, Mrs. V. Reynolds and Mrs. J. H. Lawson.

Donald T. Crawford in a short talk explained to the parents that crowded classes would affect the speed of the children's work, and said that the teachers would do everything possible to give careful supervision. He then introduced the new teachers on the staff. The meeting was entertained by Miss Barbara Wallace, who sang three sacred choruses, accompanied on the piano by her mother, Mrs. G. Wallace, and by J. O'Dette, who played several musical selection on his accordion and mouth organ, accompanying himself on the guitar.

Members were reminded of the Regional Conference of Home and School Associations, to be held in Peterborough during the third week in October, and were told that further details in this connection would be announced. Mrs. G. Harris presided, and Mrs. L. Gibson gave the scripture reading, and Miss M. Nelson's room won the attendance banner. The vote of thanks to all taking part in the program was moved by Mrs. A. Ellis, and refreshments were served by Mrs. G. Stevens and her committee, during the friendly get-together which followed the adjourning of the meeting.

Teachers Strike Vote To Walkout

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Sept. 13 — (CP). — In an unprecedented move, teachers in Saint John schools dismissed their classes at 11 a.m. Tuesday and at a meeting of the Saint John School Teachers' Association voted in favor a walk-out Sept. 19 unless salary adjustments are made.

A resolution calling for a walk-out of grade and high school teachers was passed by a vote of 190-19. The teachers went back to their class rooms for afternoon sessions.

The salary increases, differing in various cases and largely connected with grade school teachers, would mean an increase to $47,000 to the city's $35,000 salary budget.

A. W. Tureman, superintendent of city schools, said he supported the teachers "desire" for higher wages, "but I cannot see how it can be done until the council can raise the necessary money by taxation."

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland's schoolboy rookie, Bob Feller, blazed his fast one past 16 Philadelphia Athletics to tie Dizzy Dean's major league strike-out record at Cleveland eight years ago to-day. The 17-year-old Iowa farm boy also eclipsed the American Baseball League mark of 10 set by Rube Waddell of St. Louis in 1908.

A Selling Job

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 13 — (CP Cable).—Dave Bailey, chief of the Australian News Bureau in New York, yesterday urged steps be taken to obtain greater publicity for Australia in the United States. Mr. Bailey, here to consult with government officials, said: "Unless we want to live isolated in our corner of the Pacific, we must get our way and our aspirations across to the American public."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

With The Armed Forces

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

SGT. FRED TANNER

A personal touch has been added to the war against Hitler, according to Sgt. Fred Tanner, formerly employed at Braund's Charlotte street store. He is an air gunner in an almost all-Canadian bomber crew and the boys recently decided to give Hitler a little memento of their visit.

Before setting out on their mission, the crew carefully painted their names on the bombs they were to drop. Now, they say, no one can say they are not helping to destroy Hitler and his henchmen. The only non-Canadian in the crew is the flight engineer and he is an Englishman.

Sgt. Tanner is the son of Pte. Frank Tanner of the Veterans Guard and Mrs. Tanner, formerly of Apsley.

Special Broadcast

A radio show, "Canadian At The Front" is honoring Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Moore, 43 Frank street, who have four sons serving overseas. It was broadcast over a Kingston station Monday night and will be broadcast again over CHEX on September 16 at 6.45.

The radio presentation centres around some letters received from Alden Moore, with the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers stationed in France. He describes lying under an apple tree in a pretty section of France watching the fortresses going over in what appeared to be a 1,000-plane raid. From all the reports, he writes, the Germans are picking up and getting out of this pocket, some distance past Caen and are travelling as fast as they can. Allied planes are having a picnic, in the words of commentators, blowing the lorries off the road.

In another part of the broadcast, a description of his visit to a Canadian cemetery in Normandy, is read.

"Frank and I walked back to a cemetery to visit some of the boys we had come over with. There were fresh Normandy flowers beside the white crosses. We came back and spent till about midnight going over everything in general, mostly about what a beautiful clean country Canada is, but most of all, we paid our tribute to those who had fallen in the battle of freedom."

Three other brothers are also overseas. Jack Moore is with the R.C.A.F. somewhere in Great Britain; Roy Moore is with the S. D. and G. Highlanders in France and Edward is with the Princess Pats in Italy.

Service Stars

Gnr. Milburn Sedgwick of Lindsay, who has served as a signaller for two years with an Eastern Artillery unit, has been awarded the 1939-43 Star for service in Sicily and Italy. He recently spent a leave in Rome after months of action. The same Star has been given to Pte. Stanley Dow, Fenelon Falls. He looks for a battery of anti-tank artillery from Ottawa and recently was on leave in Salerno.

Indian Warriors at Play

The Gurkhas, probably the most famed fighters of the Indian army, spent an hour or two in the nursery after several days of fierce fighting in the hills north of Citta di Castello.

A writer in The Maple Leaf, official organ of the Canadian army overseas, prints a story of how these fierce fighting men went into raptures over a demonstration by a Donald Duck which alternately opened its beak and wagged its tail.

They were very suspicious of these clockwork toys at first, but when their fears were allayed, they really settled down to enjoy themselves.

The box office draw, according to a Gurkha officer who watched the scene, was a Teddy bear with a musical abdomen. The entire battalion lined up for the privilege of an experimental squeeze of the Teddy's tummy.

Allied Attacks Terrific

Some of the strangest stories to come out of the war are being told by Canadians, who were captured in France during attacks, and who later escaped from the Germans. Here are some exerpts taken from the story about Rfmn. Arthur Davey of Oshawa. He was a prisoner for five days and when he eventually got back to Allied lines, he surrendered 20 Germans that he had gathered along the way, to the Commanding Officer of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

"We went into the attack at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and everything was going fine until I met one of our fellows who had been wounded. I stopped and as there was a lull in the firing I applied first aid to him. I had just completed this when a section of Jerries led by an officer came around the turn in the road.

They stripped me of my weapon and equipment and took me to their coy headquarters and searched me. They put me in a back room with an armed guard and kept me there until about dusk. At around 9.30 that evening they put a machine-gun stand on my back and took me outside where they had a cart with two of their wounded men in it. I was put between the shafts and told to start pulling while five Jerries started pushing. We went about three miles and then they put the wounded Jerries in an ambulance and turned me over to another S.S. unit.

I was put under guard and a half hour later they took me before their officer. He asked me what the Canadians were doing in France and what we hoped to gain. He then asked me a lot of questions as to what equipment and how many men we had. I just shrugged my shoulders, acted dumb and told him nothing. Around 3 o'clock that morning they put me on a truck and we all moved on to a fair sized town. We stayed in a German barracks that day and our artillery really blew hell out of us.

Allied Planes Attack

"After a couple of days we started to move off in a big convoy but didn't get far because our Typhoons let us have it. They made me sit in a truck while the Typhus strafed us. A Typhoon dived right at the truck I was in and I though I was done for but he blew up a half-track that was sitting in a gully at the side of the road. Those Typhoons are doing a wonderful job but I hope I never have to sit through their attack again. We holed up for the night and the next morning started off but had not gone more than five miles when our artillery started to shell us. We stopped for two hours and then decided to run for a little village. We pulled in there at around four in the afternoon and the artillery kept shelling us. We slept in the village during the night and I was left with a few of the S.S. men while the artillery unit I was with pulled out.

About 9 o'clock that night the two officers took me aside with an interpreter and gave me a drink of pure liquor. Then explained through the interpreter that they were going to shoot me. I ask him why and he said that when Canadians took prisoners they shot them. I told him that we did not shoot prisoners of war, but he said that we did and they were given orders by their general to shoot all Canadian prisoners of war. I don't know whether they were trying to scare me or really shoot me but I am not afraid to admit it that I thought my time had come.

Artillery Know Job

They then started to pack up and about midnight we pulled out. I asked them where we were going and they said that they were going to join their comrades. Our artillery shelled us all along the route and we had to stop a number of times. We pulled into the area where their comrades were at about 4.30 and it was just starting to get light. We had not been stopped more than two minutes, and we were still sitting on the trucks when our artillery let us have it. They must have had this area pin-pointed for they really gave us hell. I never want to be in one of our artillery barrages again.

One of the first shells landed right beside the half-track I was on and it blew us up into the air about a foot. I strained my back when I landed and I looked around and everyone was running for a slit trench. I made a dive for a trench and got in one with a Russian father and son who had been conscripts in the German army since 1942. They told me that they were Russians and wanted to know if I would take them back to Tommy as a prisoner-of-war. I explained to them that as soon as the "boom-booms" stopped we would go back.

We sat there a few minutes and then an S.S. private came and took me back to a trench about 15 yards away where there were six of us fellows. They asked me that if they went back as prisoners of war would the English shoot them. I told them that we did not shoot prisoners-of-war, so one of them pulled out a white cloth and asked if I would take them back as prisoners also. I said that when the shelling stopped we would go back.

We waited for a half-hour and then I started out with eight of them. I told them to take off their equipment and throw their weapons away as they might get shot. I strapped on one of their Lugers and started again. There were a few more in trenches on the way back so I told them to come out and come back as prisoners of war. They stopped at every Jerry truck and took clothing and food and I had a devil of a job to keep them moving.

"We kept gathering men on the way back and the last time I counted them I had 20 Jerries. I had no idea as to exactly where our lines were and we almost walked into a German jeep, but he did not see us. We stopped and I distinguished our gunfire from theirs and headed in that direction. We came to a small creek and about 200 yards on the other side I saw some men in our uniforms. They spotted us at about the same time and covered us with a Bren and rifles. They waved for us to come forward but we could not get across the creek so we waited till they came up to us. I asked the fellow if he was English and he said yes he was a Canadian.

I said "Thank God, Canadians at last". I asked him where his company headquarters were and he told me to cross the creek and follow the road to a small village. We had just crossed the creek when our fellows spotted a Jerry armoured car and went after it. I took the prisoners in and reported to the C.O. of the Glengarians and he said to wait around for an hour or so and I would be sent back."

DEFENSE DECIDES IT

WHAT THE defense does against you is frequently as important to the fate of your contract as anything you can do yourself, and often more so. Many a contract gets made merely because the opponents fail to find the right way to go about their job, and many a contract gets beaten by what the old-timer Whitehead used to call "quick tricks."

East passed as dealer at one table of a duplicate because he doesn't like to open hands that are predominantly minor suit propositions unless substantially above average. The bidding above was varied at the other tables, but all found this deal played at a spade game by South. One declarer made the contract, one was set two tricks by one method, and all the others were set two by another procedure.

At the first table West opened the club 9 though the suit had not been bid. East won with the J, scored the A and, having seen the 5 from his partner, returned the club 8 for West to ruff with the spade 2. Afraid to lead from his heart tenace, West tried his diamond 9. South won, dropped spades in three rounds and ran diamonds, making his contract.

At most tables where the contract was set two, East after the first two club tricks cashed his heart A and got a 10 signal from West, so returned a heart. Two tricks in that suit beat the declarer, and a trump trick came later.

* Where it was set two by a different means, East followed two club tricks with his heart A, and West was smart enough to play his 2. Discouraged, East then led a third club, which West ruffed, and the heart K made another trick for the side. The ruff, however, prevented a straight trump trick, so the result was the same as if no ruff had been scored.

South: ♠ A K 9 6 ♥ 8 ♦ 8 7 2 ♣ A K 10 9 3

What principle of defense should enable West to beat North's 3-No Trumps on this deal after East leads the heart 7?

Want Chaplains' Jobs Returned

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 13 — (CP) — The return of chaplains after the war to charges from which they have been given leave of absence Tuesday was urged by the committee on rehabilitation in its report to the general council of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. Harold Young, chairman of the war services committee and a member of the standing committee specially set up for the rehabilitation of chaplains, presented the report which was accepted with all its recommendations by the council. Among the recommendations was one urging that men who resigned their charges to be chaplains or otherwise take part in the war effort be found positions comparable to the ones they resigned.

The report also advocated engaging returned men as assistants in large churches so that the surplus of ministers be taken up. Dr. Young said that while at present there is a need for 137 ministers in Canada, after the war 300 will return thus creating a surplus. It was suggested these assistant ministers be engaged on a temporary basis.

Refresher courses for chaplains, particularly younger men, were advocated and the possibility of starting these courses was referred to the board of schools and colleges.

Red Cross Plans Bingo For Christmas Boxes

HASTINGS, Sept. 13 — (ENS).— The Cobourg Road Red Cross met at the home of Mrs. Donald Beamish to hold their September meeting. The president, Miss Clara Williamson presided and there were 16 members present. Mrs. Arthur Beamish gave the knitting report for the past month: 4 helmets, 1 pair of socks, and 1 long-sleeved sweater completed. The report for the sewing was given by Mrs. Cecil Oliver, 80 hot water bottle covers, and she handed out children's coats for this month.

Two quilts were quilted during the afternoon and letters were read from Philip Forde, Harry Porter, Elmer Richardson (overseas) acknowledging the June parcels and cigarettes they had received.

The main item of business centred around the planning of bingo to be held in the Hastings Town Hall on Monday evening, September 25. The proceeds are for Christmas parcels for the boys overseas. Committee in charge of the bingo: Mrs. Joseph Powers, Mrs. Ethel Lamey, Mrs. Arthur Beamish, Mrs. Howard Porter, Mrs. Cecil Oliver, and the president. Canadians Capture Important Ridge After Great Battle

8th Army Halted For Week In Thrust To Take Lombardy Plain Midnight Attack Routs Germans

By DOUG HOW—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Sept. 14—(CP Cable).—Canadian and British forces early yesterday drove against a 7,000-yard ridge that for a week and a half has halted the British 8th Army's Adriatic thrust for the Lombardy plains, and in day-long fighting seized their objectives.

The ridge was taken in an attack that followed days and nights of patrol activity, and a midnight infantry and tank assault that brought in 800 prisoners, as fighting developed in and around the battered villages of Coriano, San Savino and Pessano.

These developments brought a new phase in the fighting after the unanticipated holding role that befell the Canadian and British forces after the Gothic Line break-through August 31. The ridge now in Canadian hands had enabled the Germans to stem blows aimed at the plains of Lombardy only five miles away.

For Gen. Hoffmeister's division capture of this sector and shambled Coriano, six miles south and slightly west of the prized Adriatic port of Rimini, was a feat ranking with earlier achievements in the current campaign.

Heavy M.G. Fire.

Capture of the ridge enabled a Western battalion to push through to the north and mop up.

Along with tanks, Maritime troops and a Western Ontario battalion (possibly the Perth Regiment of Stratford, Ont.) took ground on the right and left flanks of Coriano between midnight and dawn. They met opposition from mines, small arms, and machine-guns but maintained the advance with the aid of artillery and machine-guns and mortars of a Maritime support battalion which fired tons of mortar bombs and more than 200,000 rounds of machine-gun ammunition.

By early morning a second Ontario battalion with a squadron of Maritime tanks entered wrecked Coriano, a target for days of Allied aircraft and artillery. Fierce house-to-house fighting developed and lasted throughout the day. Many Germans were killed and about 40 prisoners taken from a battalion of the 29th Panzer Grenadier Division.

One German tank was knocked out by a Piat (rocket anti-tank) gun. A Canadian tank blew up after being holed by a shell.

Later in the afternoon positions were firm in and around Coriano and more than 130 prisoners had been taken. Two more tanks were knocked out by Piat guns of Western Ontario troops and exploitation began by Western infantry and armor.

The Canadians moved north along the ridge, taking a considerable number of prisoners.

On the left, the lone counter-attack of the day was beaten off by fierce British artillery fire but heavy fighting continued around bitterly-contested Gemmano, about 4½ miles south of Coriano, and other features south of the newly-won ridge.

Chinese Retake Tengchung; Americans Aid

By SPENCER MOOSA
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHUNGKING, Sept. 14 — (AP). — The Chinese high command announced today the recapture of Tengchung from the Japanese, saying this "marks another high point in the effort to clear the area west of the Salween River and removes another obstacle to reopening of the Burma Road."

The fall of the city, held by the Japanese for more than two years and once their Yunnan province headquarters, was a significant gain in the first real Chinese offensive in more than seven years of war.

It was four months and three days ago that the Chinese, aided by American elements of the U.S. 14th Air Force, opened the Salween push. Clearing of Tengchung goes far toward accomplishing the purpose of the offensive — to reopen the Burma Road in China, join with Gen. Stilwell's forces in Northern Burma and open the land supply route to blockaded China.

Tengchung lies 35 miles from the Burma border and 65 miles west of the Salween River bridge.

Before the Chinese can effectively use the Burma Road they must wipe out the remaining opposition immediately west of the Salween bridge and eliminate the Japanese from the Lungling and Mangshih areas.

Prophesy Vote November 27

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Sept. 14—(CP)—Liberal members of parliament who have come to Quebec after talking matters over with cabinet ministers in Ottawa are prophesying that a federal general election will be held Nov. 27—the last Monday of the month—or at latest early in December.

The date will be largely decided by the progress of the war in Europe. If Germany collapses or is so knocked about as to be unable to carry on the fight on a substantial scale there would be nothing to prevent Prime Minister Mackenzie King from fixing an election date well before the Christmas holidays.

Reports from London yesterday said American war planning officers overseas are figuring that organized resistance in Germany will end by Oct. 31, at the "outside." If that proves true, the Canadian elections could be held at the end of November or early in December without conflicting with Prime Minister Mackenzie King's indication that he would not call an election before war was won unless he was forced to do so to avoid extending the life of parliament, which automatically ends in April.

Hurricane Sweeps Carolina Coast

WILMINGTON, N. C., Sept. 14—(AP)— Gales swept the entire north Carolina coast early to-day as a great tropical hurricane moved northward over the ocean but the centre of the storm appeared to have changed course so that it may not hit the mainland except for possibly the tip of Cape Hatteras.

The Wilmington weather bureau said early to-day that the centre of the storm passed northward possibly 150 miles east of Wilmington.

Winds of 30 to 50 miles an hour blew from south of Wilmington northward to Beaufort. The barometer started climbing here and the danger seemed past.

UNRRA Meets In Montreal

500 Delegates Discuss Problems

MONTREAL, Sept. 14 —(CP) — Montreal, as the spokesman for the Dominion which will have a major part in feeding and restoring war-shattered countries, to-day gave greeting to the advance guard of some 500 delegates who will attend the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration council sessions opening to-morrow.

Canada, by virtue of her monetary contribution, her stores of food and her interest in international welfare will be a major participant in the 44-nation meeting.

Some forecast have said that Hon. L. B. Pearson, Canadian Minister to Washington, will be elected chairman of the meeting at which vital decisions on international welfare in the wake of war must be made.

Some 120 newspaper men, radio commentators and newsreel cameramen were expected to cover the council meeting, a contingent almost as great as that at the Quebec Conference.

Canada has been a participant in the U. N. R. R. A. program since the start. Canadian representatives attended a Washington meeting on Nov. 9 1943, when the 44 nations established the administration and declared their determination to bring relief to the victims of war, immediately on the liberation of countries enslaved by the enemy.

Expect Eden At Quebec Conference

European Politics Likely Issue During War Talks

LONDON, Sept. 14 (CP).—Foreign Secretary Eden is expected to arrive in Quebec almost immediately, it was learned here today. It was made known Mr. Eden would participate in the Churchill-Roosevelt conference.

Mr. Eden's journey may mark a shift in emphasis of the conference to European political problems, which bulk large now that the Allied armies in the West threaten the Rhineland.

He conferred yesterday with two leaders of the Polish Government in London, Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk and Foreign Minister Tadewsz Romer.

With the framework of the overall military and economic plans being worked out at the Churchill-Roosevelt conference, Canadian and British chiefs of staff are getting down to the job of planning the division of work among Canadian and other Empire and associated forces, it is evident today.

Already the Anglo - Canadian phase of the second Quebec conference has started informally and, following yesterday's meeting of the cabinet war committee here, the Canadian chiefs of staff will meet more frequently with their British counterparts.

It is possible the Anglo-Canadian talks will end about the same time as or soon after the main Anglo-America talks since the two will proceed simultaneously to the extent that the British chiefs of staff are free.

Progress Good

Stephen Early, press secretary to President Roosevelt, announced the conference is making "excellent progress" and will be finished at the week-end as far as the president is concerned.

A hint of the nature of the economic discussions came in the announcement that the United States Treasury Secretary, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., will join the meeting. He is believed primarily concerned with the stabilization of currency in liberated and occupied enemy territories. His recent visit to Italy is understood to have resulted in increased attention to the importance of providing economic stability in the wake of allied victory to lay a sound foundation for peace.

The calling to Quebec of the Australian and New Zealand high commissioners to Canada, announced yesterday, indicates Pacific discussions have reached a point where definite information on plans and decisions is ready for communication to the Australian and New Zealand governments.

Make Own Plans

As in the case of Canada, the communication of the information will enable the two dominions to make their own plans within the framework of the over-all scheme for crushing Japan.

Nixon Favors Family Bonuses

TORONTO, Sept. 14 — (CP). — Harry Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, last night said his statement several weeks ago that he "would use every means in my power" to see that the Federal family allowances act becomes effective "still stands". The Liberal leader was commenting on the speech last night by E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader, who said the C.C.F. was prepared to form a government if the Drew government were defeated on the family allowances issue.

Mr. Nixon, whose 15-man Liberal group holds the balance of power in the 90-member legislature where there are 34 C.C.F. members and 38 Progressive Conservatives, said the Liberal attitude toward a change of government "would have to be discussed with all the Liberal members in every detail."

He described as "too hypothetical" a question as to whether the Liberals would co-operate with the C.C.F. if the latter group was called on to form a government. It would depend "on what ground the issues were made."

If Premier Drew were defeated in the legislature he could advise the lieutenant-governor to call an election, said Mr. Nixon. "That would certainly be his course."

His Lucky Day

KENTVILLE, N.S., Sept. 14 — (CP). — A low-flying airplane's propellor yesterday clipped the wires of a 23,000-volt power line supplying Kentville and left the town without electricity for five hours, but the plane apparently survived the mishap for there were no reports of any crash in Nova Scotia.

Armistice Terms Prepared For Bulgaria

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP)— Armistice terms for Bulgaria now are being put into final shape by the Anglo - American - Soviet European advisory commission, it was reported today. They are expected to be tougher than the terms imposed on Romania, because Bulgaria was slower to turn against Germany.

The 20-point Romanian document, signed in Moscow and made public by the three Allied governments, is considered here to be relatively lenient. The leniency is attributed to the fact that when Romania broke her alliance with Germany Aug. 24 her troops immediately lined up with the Russian forces fighting Germany.

This is regarded as being in line with Allied promises to Nazi satellites that their post-war existence would be made easier to the extent that they aided the Allied cause. Specifically it is expected to have some effect on Austria, which has become the target of Allied appeals to revolt.

Be Different For Germany

Although the Romanian terms offer general clues to the fate of the Nazi satellites, it can be stated on high authority that they bear little resemblance to Allied plans drawn up for the Germans. Germany will be under rigid military government and will be fully occupied by United Nations armies. She will have to pay stiff reparations. None of these conditions was applied to Romania.

Canadian Troops Tackle Formidable Water Barrier

By WILLIAM STEWART,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN NORTHEASTERN BELGIUM, Sept. 14 (CP Cable) — The Leopald canal is the most formidable water barrier Canadian troops have yet encountered in Europe.

Its double waterway is nearly 300 feet wide, having twin 120-foot water passages with a 30-foot bank between them.

The waterway which enters the sea east of Zeebrugge separates about 15 miles northwest of Gent where one branch runs to the Netherlands frontier and the Schelde while the other curves around between Gent and Brugge (Bruges).

The Canadian crossing of the Gent canal about four miles south Brugge was an example fo the stiff battles protected German demolitions can impose.

Lasted Four Days.

The battle of Gent lasted nearly four days after infantry crossed the slimy, 40-foot canal near the town of Moerbrugge. They used Belgian boats tied along canal's banks for the crossing.

The town's brick houses adjoin the canal banks and the hedges and orchards around them provided good cover for German rear-guards.

The infantry were able to push forward to protect the Canadian en-engineers who built a Baily bridge across the water, but groups of Germans from the Brugge area laid small fire arms on the sappers.

They were cleaned out but the engineers still had to work under the concentrated fire of enemy guns set up beside the German ammunition dumps on the east bank of the canal. The Germans also had mortars and their bombardment compared with the shelling which Canadian troops fighting in the Caen area had experienced.

It was slow and painful work for the sappers. In the meantime infantry ahead were engaging well-dug-in enemy infantry positions guarding the crossing, and some small-scale battles were fought.

When the Canadian tank crews finally got their Shermans across, the fight went out of the Germans.

Move Into Brugge

In the meantime another Canadian infantry force marched into the ancient, beautiful town of Brugge to the north and occupied it.

The Germans started to withdraw across the Leopold Canal where they presumably planned another rear-guard fight. Behind them they left few bridges intact.

There were still pockets of the enemy between the two canals yesterday north northeast and southeast of Brugge, and shells still were flying overhead.

While the German rear-guards have been fighting stubbornly, they seem to know their jig is up and give battle only as long as they are not threatened by being overrun. Then they suddenly drop their arms. In the battle of Gent Canal the Canadians took several hundred prisoners.

The Shermans supporting the infantry in this area have been operating under a handicap because of the sogginess of the ground which practically confines their movement to the roads.

North of Brugge some lowlands have been inundated and the Germans are reported flooding the Netherlands area — which they are evacuating—west of the Schelde.

The Canadians have artillery as well as armor supporting them and enemy artillery meets heavy fire from our guns. Reconnaissance formations are being used extensively to find centres of German resistance and race beyond once they are overcome.

Reds Reach Czech Border Area

Cossack Patrols Believed Across Frontier

LONDON, Sept. 14 (CP)—Massive Russian forces assaulting Warsaw frontally fought today into the streets of Praga, the industrial suburb of the torn Polish capital on the east bank of the Vistula river, the Berlin radio announced.

Far to the south, other Russian troops reached the Czecho-Slovak frontier in the Beskide mountains on the Carpathian range and one report said Cossack patrols were believed to have crossed the border within 50 miles of Kosice, sixth largest city of Czechoslovakia with 70,000 population.

Advancing five miles beyond the toppled Narew river bastion of Lomza, still other Russian troops drove to within 15 miles of East Prussia.

Yet another group of Red Armies moving swiftly through Romania was acknowledged by Berlin to have stormed through the Szekler corner of Transylvania, territory disputed between Romania and Hungary.

The whole picture of enlivened activity all along the front prompted Moscow reporters to cable there were indications Stalin had resumed his all-out offensive toward Germany itself.

Berlin's announcement that Russian troops were fighting in the streets of Praga meant that Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's tanks, artillery and infantry finally had gained the ascendancy in an embittered battle of attrition which has raged for many weeks within gunshot of Poland's leading city.

Southeast of Warsaw, fighting reached a new climax in ferocity and amount of material used by the Russians on Wednesday," a Berlin broadcast said. "Paying no attention to losses in man and material, the Moscow High Command sent ever fresh formations in to the battle so that the Soviet Russians finally were able, after a fierce ding-dong battle, to enter Praga, suburb

Bull Climbs Barn

PERRY, Okla., Sept. 14 — (AP).—Henry Gengler looked twice to make sure it was a bull's head and not a rooster's sticking up over the roof of the barn. When he investigated, he found the 1,000-pound animal had broken out of its pen and onto the roof of the basement barn. It climbed to the top, slid down the other side and jumped 16 feet, breaking several ribs.

Canadian Units Make Gains In Gothic Line

ROME, Sept. 14.—(CP).—British, Canadian and Indian elements of the British 8th Army have broken a stalemate which halted their advance on the Adriatic front for several days, and have advanced 1,000 yards in the Coriano-San Savino area, it was announced today.

Meantime the Allied 5th Army—which now is known to include several British divisions and the 6th South African division — cracked through German outposts all along the front between Pistoia and Lucca and is battering at the forward fringe of the main Gothic line.

On the Adriatic sector, further south, British forces recaptured two bitterly contested points about 1,000 yards northwest of Croce and continued to forge ahead.

Headquarters emphasized that the Gothic line is a defence zone several miles in depth studded with many concrete emplacements. Trenches, tank obstacles, mines and dugouts are ranged along the mountainsides "and everything conceivable has been done to make the position strong."

"It is so designed that in penetrating the line resistance increases with the depth of penetration," the headquarters said.

The location of the deepest Allied penetration was not disclosed specifically.

Allied forces yesterday had reached the threshold of two main passes through the Gothic line. There was no further word of their progress.

Allied medium bombers and fighters continued to support the attack, blasting rail bridges in the Po valley and positions in the Rimini area and north of Florence. Coastal aircraft attacked shipping in the Gulf of Genoa.

The navy announced the bombardment of Rimini was continued Sept. 12 with good results despite increased enemy counter-fire. The navy also reported sinking of an enemy convoy of several vessels in the Aegean by destroyers the night of Sept. 12-13.

Ukraine Poles To Return Home

MOSCOW, Sept. 14 —(AP) —The Soviet-sponsored Polish committee of National Liberation singed an agreement to-day with the Soviet Republics of the Ukraine and White Russia to exchange populations.

(Great sections of pre-war Eastern Poland, generally to the Curzon line, have been claimed by Stalin as part of the Ukraine in White Russia.

The agreement proves that all Polish citizens as of Sept. 15, 1939, living in the Ukraine or White Russia may move voluntarily to Poland. Ukrainians and White Russians living in Poland may move voluntarily to Russian territory. Hundreds of thousand are affected.

Under the terms, persons evacuating Poland may join collective farms or "receive a piece of land for the individual household." Persons moving to Poland "also will receive land in compliance with the Agrarian laws of Poland"— under which the committee already is splitting up great estates.

Gas Coupon Charge Brings $500 Fine

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (CP) — Magistrate F. C. Gullin today convicted Harold R. Pete, Toronto Gasoline Service Station operator, on a charge of depositing counterfeit gasoline ration coupons in his ration bank account.

The Magistrate sentenced Pete, who was tried yesterday, to pay a fine of $500 and costs or spend three months in jail. B. J. S. Pitt, Pete's counsel, said later he would appeal.

Nineteen other gasoline station operators face trial in similar charges.

New Large Scale Offensive Pushes Germans Back Canadians Cross Canal

Names Of Villages Not Disclosed Canadians Face Heavy Fire In Drive To Span Belgian Waterway

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN BELGIUM, Sept. 14 —(CP Cable).—Canadian infantry today forced a crossing of the Leopold Canal in the vicinity of Moerkere, five miles northeast of Brugge (Bruges) and two miles from the Netherlands border. Ontario troops who won the bridgehead met heavy machine-gun and mortar fire as they crossed the waterway.

Several more German villages near captured Rotgen fell to the United States 1st Army today while it drove into the dragon-tooth barriers of the Siegfried Line and undercut the great enemy communications centre of Aachen.

Names of the villages were not disclosed by Supreme Headquarters. A Paris broadcast said one was Lammersdorf, four miles southeast of Rotgen.

The Germans themselves said the Americans were beating forward in a large scale offensive in the whole arc around Aachen from Maastricht in Holland to the German frontier near Eupen in Belgium.

The United States 3rd Army broke into the open once more around the French city of Nancy in a gain of at least 30 miles to Charmes on the Moselle River. The German communique said the 3rd Army had cut all the way to Luneville, 15 miles farther to the northeast, between Nancy and the Rhine. Nancy was threatened from the rear, as well as frontally.

Some 500 miles behind the front line inside Germany, American troops smashed their way inside the long-besieged port of Brest. United States medium and dive bombers bombed the German garrison defences for 50 minutes, despite poor weather which limited air activity elsewhere, and pilots reported seeing the Americans fighting the Germans in the submarine pen area west of the city.

Security Blackout

A security silence blacked out most specific news from the front. It was emphasized, however, that the blackout did not imply any reverses.

The British 2nd Army thrusting through Belgium today was across the Escaut Canal in a drive apparently intended to flank from the north the German border city of Aachen, already besieged by the Americans from the south.

The Germans have blown up the Escaut Canal bridges and cut off some of their own troops still fighting in the area between the Escaut

American Army 20 Miles West of Belfort

By SID FEDER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 14—(AP).—French troops smashed up the Marne River today to within 15 miles of Chaumont, while the Allied assault on the Belfort gateway to southwestern Germany drew nearer with the American entrance into Villersexel and the fall of Pont de Roide to the French.

The break into Villersexel against apparently lessening resistance everywhere along the entire 120-mile front, except in the area of the Swiss frontier, put the Americans less than 20 miles west of Belfort.

Pont de Roide, 16 miles south of Belfort, was cleared of the enemy after a two-day street-by-street struggle, and the French fanned out and took nearby Autechaux-Roide.

A Tank Battle.

The Germans, battling bitterly in an effort to halt the southern spear of the three-pronged attack on the Belfort gap, last night started a strong counter-attack. For the sec-

12,000 Tons Bombs Dropped

LONDON, Sept. 14 — (CP). — Deteriorating weather kept Britain-based heavy bombers at home today after a six-day series of thousand-bomber smashes at Nazi war industries.

Last night R.A.F. Mosquitos blasted Berlin with two-ton block-busters for the fourth night in a row, rounding out a 24-hour cycle in which more than 12,000 tons of high explosives were dropped on Germany in four massive bomber assaults.

It was the 31st raid on the German capital since Allied troops landed on the continent June 6 and rounded out a 24-hour cycle in which more than 10,000 tons of high explosives were heaped upon Germany in four massive heavy-bomber assaults.

The Air Ministry announced that two planes were lost in the Berlin raid.

Allied aircraft operating from British bases alone have destroyed at least 347 enemy planes the last six days, a survey of official reports disclosed today.

In the same period, Allied losses have totalled 105 fighters and 225 heavy bombers.

The survey includes fliers from the R.A.F. and the U.S. 8th and 9th Air Forces but not from the 2nd Tactical Air Force, planes of which have been making dawn-to-dark sorties almost daily in support of Allied ground troops.

Smith Not Guilty

Fred Smith was found not guilty by a trial jury at the Fall Assizes this afternoon. He was charged with theft of wool from G. Whitaker Co.

John Bradshaw defended Smith.

Charles Ward was sentenced to 3 months in the county jail on conviction of a charge of unlawfully wounding Wm. J. Bolton with intent to cause bodily harm.

The Judge took into consideration that Ward had been in jail since March 24. T. J. Carley, K.C., defended Ward.

Making Wage Adjustments

Employees To Get Prevailing Rate

OTTAWA, Sept. 14—(CP)—Wages paid "prevailing rate" government employees across Canada, most of them engaged in construction work, have been reviewed and in many cases are being adjusted, to bring them into line with rates paid in the community in which the employees are working, labor department officials said today.

Under the government's fair-wage plan, workers employed on government projects of a temporary nature are usually placed on a "prevailing rate" basis, which means they are to receive the going rate for their type of job in the area.

Differences in the method of computing the cost-of-living bonus for government employees and for workers in private industry have been one of the factors that has put the wages of these workers in many cases out of line with those generally paid.

"In the majority of cases the workers affected by the revisions will receive increases," an official said today. "There will, however, be some cuts."

The workers are employed by a large number of departments and there was no estimate available of the number affected.

Prisoner Denies Knowledge Of Alleged Stolen Wool Deals

Frederick Smith enlarged Wednesday afternoon on his not guilty plea to the indictment of having stolen a quantity of wool from the possession of G. Whitaker & Company, Limited.

On the witness stand in his defense, he denied that he had ever sold any wool or burlap wrapping—"never received a cent for anything like that", and did not see any one or all three of the Toronto men who are alleged to have bought wool from the accused during May and June last from the Crown company's warehouse at Auburn.

John A. Bradshaw, defense counsel, and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., addressed the jury, and at 5.30 p.m. Mr. Justice Plaxton reserved his charge until the opening of court this morning.

An employee of the Whitaker Company, Smith was in charge of the wool warehouse at Auburn, remnant unit of the plant of the Auburn mills of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds.

Whitaker and Company are agents for Melbourne Merchandising Limited, a Crown company of the Canadian government for the storage of wool used in the manufacture of military uniforms.

Price Rises

Wool from the Peterborough warehouse snowballed along in price from 10 cents a pound paid by Frank Petersiel, local dealer in scrap materials to 75 cents a pound paid by the York Knitting Company in Toronto to Irving Koven.

The spread in price from the time the ball tops of wool were presumably plucked out of trade bales and pushed into potato bags and other empty gunny-sacks until they reached the textile mill was 65 cents for the best grade.

Purchase of wool at the warehouse were made by Petersiel, Hyma Albert and Sam Goldbach from the accused, according to the Crown's case which Smith disavowed in its entirety.

Petersiel's evidence has already been published. Hyma Albert and Sam Goldbach gave similar evidence of deals at ten cents a pound. Significant in their evidence, as later underscored by Mr. McElderry to the jury, was their statement that they drove up to the warehouse in a somewhat ramshackle red truck which was described as being of a red color, without boards on one side and at the rear. Albert testified that he saw his partner, Goldbach, talking to a man with a khaki colored shirt and overalls at the Auburn warehouse. Goldbach bought 850 pounds of burlap at two cents a pound and paid the accused $17.

Max Winkler, Toronto, in the junk business, said he came to Peterborough about once a week last summer. On June 27 he bought from Petersiel 737 pounds of wool at 37½ cents, $294.80; June 6, 800 pounds at the same price, $296.25; June 17, 767 pounds, same price, $287.62.

Good Business

Winkler sold all his wool to Irving Koven at 50 cents the pound, and Mr. Koven, designating himself a speculator, and obviously a nimble one knowing his way around, sold some of the stock to B. & M. Wool Stock Company, Toronto, for 75 cents a pound.

The B. and M. Company paid Koven $453.56 for 782 pounds of wool at 58 cents, a lower grade; and from York Knitting he received $575.25 for 767 pounds at 75 cents, June 19; $562.50 for 750 pounds on June 28.

"I am in contact with Winkler every day. When I learned from him that he had some wool, I enquired about a market for it. My line is speculative business. Whatever I think I can find a market for I buy."

Some one at York Knitting happened to notice a tag on some of the wool, and recognized it having come from Melbourne Merchandising. He began an enquiry at once with the result that Toronto police and Sergeant Detective Meagher of this city traced the material to the Auburn warehouse.

Come From England

Claude Kent, Oakville, wool expert with Melbourne Merchandizing examined the ball wool top exhibit in court and said it was worth around $1.15 a pound. It was part of a shipmen from Bradford, England.

Sergeant Meagher said he had 1,500 pounds of wool trucked from York Knitters to Peterborough.

Stanley Goodhall, employed with the accused Smith by Whitaker & Co., said he had been employed t the Auburn warehouse, Lakefield, and the main warehouse on Simcoe street, east of Queen street. He had never seen any wool sold by Smith, nor any dickering with buyers for wool or burlap.

Mr. Bradshaw: "Do you know any occasion when Smith was at the Auburn warehouse, and you were not?" — No, sir; not in May or June."

Mr. McElderry remarked that Mr. Goodhall, who was not subpoenaed, but attended the court to give evidence for his fellow workman and friend, was tall and lean, at least six feet, and that the description of one of the Crown witnesses would fit him. That evidence was to the effect that "a lanky fellow" was at the warehouse on one of the occasions of buying.

Smith On Stand

Mr. Bradshaw's first question to the accused was: "You have heard the evidence as to purchasing of wool from you, and paying you, what have you to say as to that?"

"I never sold any wool in my life, or burlap. I never received a cent for anything like that."

As to Petersiel, accused said: "I never saw him until June 29, when I was called out of the plant by Detective Meagher."

"What about Hyma Albert?" — "It is three years since I saw him. He was enquiring about some wire. . . ."

Mr. Bradshaw: "We don't need to go into anything three years ago."

Smith swore that he did not sell anything to those three men, Petersiel, Albert and Goldbach.

Did you see them around Auburn last May and June?" – "No sir."

"Did you see any strange trucks parked around there?" — No sir."

Smith declared that he had never worn a khaki shirt at Auburn. He had owned one of that color but it was down at the Simcoe street warehouse. He did not wear at Auburn a shirt of any light color. He said he was wearing a blue shirt last summer.

Mr. Bradshaw: "How did the wool get out of there?"

Smith: "I'm pretty well in the dark about that."

Came From England

To Mr. McElderry, the accused said he was born in Durham, England, forty years ago, and had come directly to Peterborough nineteen years ago.

Mr. Kent, recalled by the Crown, testified that on the occasions last June when he had visited the Auburn warehouse for inspection purposes Smith was wearing a khaki shirt and darker colored trousers.

Albert Radford, Whitaker's accountant, said there were occasions when he was at the Auburn warehouse in May and June. His recollection was that Smith was wearing a khaki shirt and dark trousers.

Mr. McElderry recalled too in his address to the jury the evidence of two C.P.R. truck drivers, Roddy Tippitt and John Lynch, as to the defense denial of ever having seen the wool buyers at Auburn.

Tippitt had testified, Mr. McElderry said, that he had seen Petersiel and Smith together on the platform at the warehouse; and Lynch had sworn that he had seen Albert and Goldbach there in company with the accused.

"You will remember that I asked Lynch about the red colored truck," Mr. McElderry said, "and he described it as being red with boards up on only one side, and being open at the end and the other side."

These were two independent witnesses who had no personal interest in the case, Mr. McElderry said. He also referred to the Smith statement that he had worn at Auburn only blue colored shirts, and yet two reliable witnesses, Mr. Kent and Mr. Radford, had both recalled Smith wearing a shirt of khaki during last June.

and Albert Canals, headquarters said.

Two crossings were made into the Netherlands, one by the British 2nd Army thrusting north of Bourg-Leopold and the second described in today's Allied communique as by "Allied" troops near Maastrict 20 miles northwest of Aachen.

This second thrust presumably was made by U.S. 1st Army forces which already had been reported operating near Maastrict.

As the 1st Canadian Army continued to draw its nets tighter about the Channel ports of Dunkerque, Boulogne and Calais, the British 2nd Army beat off renewed German attacks on its Albert Canal bridgehead. Other Canadians were last reported probing German defences on the Leopold Canal near the Belgian-Netherlands frontier.

There were no official progress reports on U.S. 1st Army troops who, according to field dispatches last night, penetrated the outskirts of Aachen and captured the German village of Rotgen. The daily communique, however, announced a widening of the Luxembourg positions from where the Americans first entered the Reich northwest of Trier.

Resistance was said to be surprisingly weak near the south of Aachen, a northern keystone of the Siegfried Line. Field dispatches reported the Germans might be falling back for a major stand on the Rhine—some 40 miles to the east in this sector. This suggested that the Germans were making another trade of space for time.

A Berlin broadcast this morning said a terrific aerial bombardment in the Metz area had touched off a new American offensive. There was no immediate official Allied comment, but field dispatches said American shell-fire in that sector had drawn no reaction.

5 Miles Beyond Border

The Paris radio said without any official confirmation that the American column which two days ago captured Rotgen, 3½ miles inside Germany and eight miles south of Aachen, plunged on beyond Lammersdorf, five miles from the border.

The Americans drew up to the German border near Clervaux at the northern tip of Luxembourg in widening their wedge northeast of the capital of the little duchy from which they first drove five miles into Germany northwest of Trier. It was emphasized at Allied Supreme Headquarters that although there is no news of progress by this spearhead it could certainly be assumed there had been no withdrawal.

Funeral Service Held For Frederick Miller

A large number of friends and relatives attended the funeral of Frederick Charles Miller, son of the late Col. J. W. Miller, which was held recently from his late residence, 212 McDonnel street. Mr. Miller passed away early Saturday morning, after only a one-day illness from a heart attack. His loss is keenly felt by many citizens of the city, and also his many business associated. The exceptionally large number of floral tributes received testifies to the esteem in which he was held by everyone who knew him.

Pallbearers were E. Bartlett, E. Wand, H. McCannan, F. Brown, F. Hills and C. Westbrook.

The funeral services at the home and at the cemetery were jointly conducted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, of Murray Street Baptist church, and Dr. E. W. Young, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Interment was in Little Lake cemetery.

of Warsaw on the eastern bank of the Vistula."

(A broadcast communique from Marshal Tito's Partisan headquarters said his troops had captured Negotin in Yugoslavia six miles from the Romanian and Bulgarian borders, and had made contact with the Red Army.

(A broadcast German war review commented dourly that "in the Balkans one cannot talk of battles, but just of Russian parades.")

Front dispatches said mauled Nazi armored forces fell back chaotically to the northern elbow of the Narew River, pursued closely by Russian tanks carrying swarms of Tommy-gunners.

Hungarian and German units lost Osorhei, 45 miles southeast of the Transylvanian capital of Cluj, and were retreating in confusion from the eastern Carpathian defences breached by the Russian capture of Campulung in northeastern Romania.

At midnight, the Kremlin announced capture of 30 settlements northeast of Warsaw, raising the flanking threat to the capital. Rokossovsky was supported in his frontal attack by the 1st Polish Army of Gen. Zygmunt Berling, while inside Warsaw, Partisans of Gen. Bor were reported still harrying the German occupants.

Train Collision Takes High Toll

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 14 — (AP). — Police Capt. Alex Irving said today that reports had been received by him that "probably 20 persons" had been killed early today in a collision of two Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad passenger trains near here.

Capt. Irving said Sheriff Ira Hall of Terre Haute told him that "bodies were lying all over" near where the crack Dixie flyer, south bound, telescoped into a mail and express train, standing idle.

The number of dead and injured, Irving said Hall told him could not be learned because of the confusion following the crash. Scores of injured were rushed to the city's two hospitals and others were taken to the Terre Haute Armory, quickly turned into an emergency hospital.

First reports were that the mail and express train was travelling north, but Irving said later reports were that it was not moving. He said the Dixie flyer, carrying several coaches, rammed into the standing train and many of the coaches left the tracks. The engine on the north-bound train, Irving said, exploded and the engineer, standing nearby, was seriously injured.

Irving said a navy shore patrolman who had been at the scene of the wreck told him that virtually all of the dead were soldiers. Neither train was a troop train, however, the patrolman told Irving.

The first Pullman, containing 39 soldiers, split open and some passengers were pinned in their seats, others were thrown out along the tracks and some were caught beneath other cars. Most of the soldiers and civilians were asleep at the time of the crash.

ond day in a row the Germans threw tanks into the fight.

The northward-plunging French on the left flank of the 7th Army front found opposition light for the third straight day and overran Langres, a town of 6,000, and an important communications centre 65 miles southwest of Nancy, then pushed ahead toward Chaumont.

Southeast of Langres, where enemy pockets remain to be cleared from the Plateau de Langres on the far southwestern edges of the Doubs valley, the French occupied the village of Genevrieres without resistance, and cleared the last snipers from Gray, a town of 6,000 on the Upper Saone River.

Americans maintained a steady, swift advance across the wide beaches of the flatlands area of Vesoul, which includes the valleys of the Doubs, Ognon and Saone.

Forward elements stabbed as far north as Curry-les-Faverney, 13 miles from Vesoul, in a seven-mile overnight jump. The Americans spread out and seized Calmoutier and Noroy le Bourg.

To the south and east the French battering ram aimed at Belfort not only had to beat off a heavy counter-attack at Pont de Roide but 10 miles to the northwest had to fight its way yard by yard to take l'Isle Sur Doubs, a village midway between Villersexel and Pont de Roide.

Youth Guilty Quit War Job

For the second successive day a youth was charged in police court this morning with having refused to accept employment under the Selective Service regulations.

This time it was William McIlmoyle, of Young's Point, and he entered a plea of guilty to the charge.

W. F. Huycke, K.C., who prosecuted told the court that McIlmoyle had been given an order to take employment at the Canadian Raybestos Company. He had complained that he could not do the work to which he had been assigned and that it was undermining his health, but a medical examination had shown that he was in good condition. His application for a transfer was rejected by Selective Service officials and McIlmoyle had then quit his job and gone to his home at Young's Point.

"He has only been doing odd jobs all summer" said Mr. Huycke. However he suggested leniency for the accused, pointing out that the boy would probably not be able to pay a fine and would have to go to jail. He added that other work might be found for McIlmoyle, who had agreed to return to the Raybestos plant for 30 days.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., said that he would adjourn the case a week to see whether the accused returned to work in the mean time. He warned McIlmoyle that the 30 day limit might not be approved by Selective Service and that he would not be able to leave his employment without the consent of the Selective Service office.

"With a war being fought we have to do what the government orders us to do" he reminded the accused.

N. Graham was fined $50 and $2.50 costs when he pleaded guilty as a second offender to an intoxication charge.

Berlin Rioters Seeking Peace

LONDON, Sept 14 — (CP) — The radio of the French Forces of the Interior at Lyon reported today S.S. troops had fired into a crowd of peace demonstrators in Berlin.

The broadcast did not indicate the source of the report and there was no information from other quarters concerning any such demonstration.

A similar report, however, was broadcast later by the French national radio at Lyon, the Ministry of Information said.

The United States Office of War Information quoted the Lyon radio as saying "riots are reported to have taken place in Berlin" and added, "during one fight a small group of rebels routed an S.S. formation and went back into hiding before the arrival of police reinforcements."

Community Honors Newlyweds

PLAINVILLE, Sept. 14 — (ENS)— —On their return from a short wedding trip, Sgt. and Mrs. Frank Bowman (nee Iva Campbell) of South Monaghan, were greeted at the home of the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ewart King of Plainville, where a reception was held. Nineteen close relations of Sgt. Bowman were present for tea.

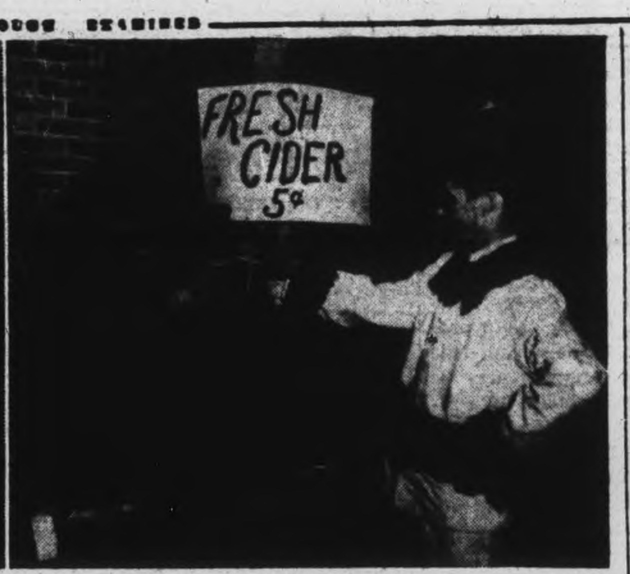
Later in the evening about eighty friends in the surrounding community came and presented the bride and groom with a gate-leg table and table lamp. Bill Benson read an address to which the groom responded.

Sgt. Bowman, third son of Archie Bowman, is stationed in Eastern Canada. Prior to joining; the army he was employed on the staff of the Dominion Bank in Cobourg, Peterborough and Toronto.

Personals.

Mrs. Knox of Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. T. A. McKinley and Mr. McKinley.

Plainville anniversary will be September 24. Morning and evening services with Rev. H. A. Mellow, of Leaside, a former pastor, the guest speaker.



BIG CARNIVAL—A highly successful street fair to raise funds for the Peterborough City and District War Victims' Fund, and to send boxes to the boys overseas was held in Millbrook Wednesday, and the three men who were kingpins in the arranging of the affair are shown above. Norwood IODE Regent Resigns

NORWOOD, Sept. 14.—(ENS).—The I.O.D.E. held a special meeting in the rooms over the bank Wednesday afternoon and the vice-regent read parts of a speech in which the I.O.D.E. all over Canada is urged to help the English women making their homes in Canada. They are also expected to help with reconstruction after the war.

The treasurer reported a balance of $133.42 and a tag day was planned for September 30 to raise money for overseas boxes. There are at least 100 to prepare.

Mrs. W. B. Tucker, after eight years serving as regent, handed in her resignation because of ill health. Mrs. Lemon also handed in her resignation as treasurer as she is moving from Norwood. The election will take place at the regular meeting to fill vacancies.

BABY'S CONSTIPATION SERIOUS IF NEGLECTED

BABY'S daily movements are something of which absolutely accurate track must be kept. When he misses, something must be done at once. Constipation is serious for baby.

Mrs. John T. Reid of Hespeler, Ont., has this to say: "Having had seven children and having used Baby's Own Tablets for all seven can say they are the best and gentlest regulator for children. During teething Baby's Own Tablets were a boon to me as they cleared up at once any digestive disturbance or fretfulness."

Equally effective for simple fever, teething troubles, upset stomach and other minor ailments of babyhood.

Quick in their action. Sweet-tasting—easily crushed to a powder, if desired. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Get a box today. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if not satisfied.

New Frequency Modulation To Improve Radio Post-War Item

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP)—Use of frequency modulation stations to improve radio broadcasting in Canada likely will not become widespread until after the war but experiments and public demonstrations will begin in Montreal and Toronto within a few months, Dr. Augustin Frigon, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said today.

Dr. Frigon told The Canadian Press the CBC believed frequency modulation—a new type of transmission which does away with static and interference in radio reception—should be introduced generally in Canada when conditions permit.

"However, we don't want to stampede or to be stampeded into the field," he added.

In Montreal, the CBC is preparing to build a frequency modulation station atop Mount Royal while a suitable site for a similar station is being sought in Toronto. When the stations are setablished in a few months, all CBC programs in the two cities will be broadcast over frequency modulation transmitters.

Need New Receivers

Listeners generally, however, will not note any difference in reception because the present-day receiving sets are not fitted for frequency modulation reception. A number of special receivers will be distributed by the CBC "among a few persons qualified to pass judgment," on the operations.

Dr. Frigon said it was expected some stores would put on demonstrations to illustrate the difference between ordinary reception and frequency modulation reception but it was unlikely that any new radio sets, fitted to pick up both ordinary and frequency modulation reception, would be built before next year.

The difference between ordinary and frequency modulation receivers was very technical. About the only similarity between the two was the type of loud speaker used. Some engineers have stated that it would not be economical to have present-day receivers rebuilt into frequency modulation receivers.

Commercial Basis

Dr. Grigon said frequency modulation stations have been operating in the United States for a few years, first on an experimental basis and then on a commercial basis. About 45 of the stations now were in operation and the federal communications commission had before it applications for approximately another 50 stations.

The CBC has received applications for licences for approximately 60 commercial frequency modulation stations, said Dr. Frigon.

"When matters have settled down in the United States the time will have come for Canada to take a stand because manufacturers in Canada will unquestionably have to follow the same standards as in the United States," said Dr. Frigon.

Dr. Frigon said that a radio technical planning board, composed of radio experts, was being established in Canada to go into the whole question of frequency modulation.

He said frequency modulation and television were two almost completely separated fields, although frequency modulation transmitters might carry sound for television. He said television probably would not be available to the public generally for another 15 or 20 years.

Bethany W.A. Decides To Cancel Supper

BETHANY Sept. 14 (ENS) — The regular meeting of the Women's Association of the United church met at the home of Mrs. Cumiskey on Tuesday with 15 in attendance. The scripture lesson from Psalm 119 was read by Mrs. Carr, and thoughts on the lesson given by Mrs. Henderson. The treasurer reported $160.04 in the bank, and the insertion of names on the honor roll was discussed. It was moved by Mrs. Veale and seconded by Miss Wright that Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Wright print the names. It was also moved by Mrs. Veal an seconded by Mrs. H. H. Ryley that they pay the church board $100. It was moved by Miss Staples, seconded by Mrs Pomeroy that the members raise the money by subscription, instead of a fowl supper this year. Eight collectors were then appointed.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Monk, leader of Group 2, who gave an excellent paper on the Bible; a duet "My Mother's Bible," was sung by Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Carr. An interesting reading was given by Miss Staples, entitled: "Is This Bible Yours Now," and Mr. Henderson spoke briefly to the society.

Mrs. Jackson moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Monk for her paper. The hostess, Mrs. Cumiskey, and her helpers were thanked by Mrs. Ryley.

Marmora Boy Hurt In Highway Mishap

MARMORA, Sept. 14 (ENS) — Frankie Leal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leal, received head injuries Wednesday evening when struck by a car on No. 7 Highway near Crowe River bridge. The injured lad received treatment in Dr. Crawford's office and was later conveyed to his home, his condition not being regarded as serious.

The car was allegedly driven by Edward Leonard of Marmora township. Town Constable W. D. Lavender investigated.

Choose a City Hall Site Now

On page 9 of this copy of the Examiner our readers will find a ballot which will enable them to make a choice among the four sites which are being considered for our new City Hall. As citizens of Peterborough, keenly interested in the advancement and development of this community, we ask you to make your choice carefully, mark your ballot, and hand it to your Examiner carrier when he calls at your home tomorrow evening. In order to help you in making a choice we have prepared a map, which shows where the four sites are, and we also give the assessed values of the four properties; an assessed value is not a buying price, of course, but it bears a relationship to it. We wish to stress the fact that householders living in areas about to be annexed to the city have also an interest in this matter, and should express an opinion on it. The result of this poll will be published in our Monday editions.

This newspaper has frequently pointed out that the first step in building our new City Hall is to choose and buy a site. Until the site is chosen it is impossible to judge what kind of building, and what style of architecture will be most desirable and suitable. Close to half a million dollars is available for the building, and the Hall which is built will be the centre of Peterborough's civic life for at least one century, and perhaps for more; it is important, then, that we should choose the site wisely, without consideration of personal interests, or business interests, or any interests save those of the whole community.

Nothing is gained by dawdling over this choice. If the City Hall is to be built as soon as possible after the war, the site must be bought and cleared, the plans must be drawn, contracts must be called for and sources of building materials must be consulted. These jobs all take time, and we have no time to waste; the war may not last much longer, and if it ends before any definite move has been made to meet this problem, the building of our new City Hall may be postponed indefinitely. Nobody wants precipitate, thoughtless action, but there is a great difference between that and no action at all.

The Examiner is undertaking this ballot entirely on its own responsibility, and not at the request of any public body. We are doing so because we feel that an expression of opinion from the people of this city on the question of a site for the new City Hall will be helpful to the City Council, and to the committee which is dealing with the matter. There has been a great deal of talk and many expressions of opinion on this matter of a City Hall site among the citizens of Peterborough, and by means of a ballot this newspaper is attempting to collect those opinions, and to discover the direction in which they point. We ask for your assistance in this undertaking.

Nonsense About Old Age

No one doubts that Sir William Osler was a great man and a great physician, but he was not omniscient, and sometimes he said very silly things. In particular we refer to that much-quoted passage in his valedictory address to Johns Hopkins University in which he said: "Take the sum of human achievement in action, in science, in art, in literature—subtract the work of the men above forty, and while we should miss great treasures, even priceless treasures, we would practically be where we are today. The effective, moving, vitalizing work of the world is done between the ages of twenty-five and forty". Ever since it was first uttered in 1905 this has been quoted by those who are eager to prove that men over 40 are on the downward path, and that men over 60 are dodderers—a point of view which simply does not accord with observable facts. Now we notice that Dr. Thomas Midgely, Jr., has added the weight of his approval to this stupid notion in his presidential address to the American Chemical Society.

The measurement of a man's age by his years rather than by his abilities is a pernicious custom leading to stupid misjudgements. In our opinion, nothing is more ridiculous than an arbitrary 'retiring age' applied to a whole class or profession. One man may be a first-rate administrator at 75; another may be past his best at 35; why should both retire at 65? Some men are obviously worth more than a dozen of their juniors when they are over 80; there are other men who, at 30, are clearly marked for a life of failure. Why not face these facts and stop this meaningless prating about age?

It is useless to consider a man's age in relation to his work without also considering his original mental endowment. It is obvious that in the world of literature Bernard Shaw, at 88, is still worth a hundred or more mediocre novelists; Sibelius, at 79, is of more value to the world than the youth of 18 who wrote a pretty tune yesterday; and Sir William Osler, in his 70th year, was a finer physician than the eager young men who came to him for advice. Age in itself means very little; it is what a man can do that matters. Youth or age are of trifling importance in themselves.

What Do You Know?

Quizzes are very popular these days, and we think that you may find this one interesting. It is reprinted from the magazine Britain and it will test your knowledge of Britain's part in the war. Give yourself ten marks for each question you answer correctly; a score of 80 is good, and you should not fall below 60. Here are the questions:

1. Who was the First Lord of the Admiralty at the beginning of the war?
2. How many V.C.'s have been awarded up to July 27th, 1944? 900—92—19?
3. To what do the following nicknames apply? (1) Faith, Hope and Charity, (2) The Old Lady of Jutland, (3) Waltzing Matildas?
4. What countries composed the Italian Empire in Africa in June, 1940, when Italy entered the war?
5. How many women are holding war jobs in Britain?
6. Which is the largest volunteer army in the world?
7. Give the name of the officer in command (1) at the evacuation from Dunkirk, after Lord Gort had been ordered to leave for England? (2) of British troops in Burma in 1942? (3) of the Middle East Command when Libya was conquered in 1943? (4) of the allied armies when Rome was occupied in June, 1944?
8. How many air raid alerts have been experienced by the island of Malta? 500—1800—3500?
9. What percentage of British Empire casualties during the war have been borne by Great Britain?
10. Are women conscripted into the armed forces?

And here are the answers, which you should keep covered if you want to make a completely fair test:

1. Churchill.
2. 92.
3. (1) The three superannuated Gloster-Gladiator biplanes in defence of Malta at the outbreak of the Italian attack. (2) H.M.S. Warspite. (3) Heavy infantry tanks. Used in North Africa.
4. Ethiopia, Eritrea, Italian Somaliland, Libya.
5. Nearly 8 million, full or part time, in the forces, civil defence, essential work (all paid). There are 17,200,000 women in England between the ages of 14 and 65.
6. The Indian Army, with over 2 million volunteers.
7. Sir Harold Alexander.
8. 3,500. Malta is the most heavily bombed area in the world.
9. More than fifty per cent. Including above 100,000 civilians, the percentage is much higher.
10. Yes. Single women between the ages of 19 and 31 are liable to be called up. However, only those between 19 and 25 have been called.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Barbers are sociable men. They have a way of scraping an acquaintance.

"General Eberbach was captured at breakfast", says a news dispatch. A queer meal at which to cook his goose.

There will be fifteen murder trials at the Fall Assizes in Toronto. Who called it 'The Good'?

Hitler is said to have been carrying on an affair with a Munich stenographer during the past four years. Perhaps she will be the last one to take dictation.

This is the time to be thinking about the Christmas parcels which you mean to send to men in the forces. If you want your parcels to arrive in time to be seasonable you should not wait too long before mailing them.

Making love is like making apple pie, states a prairie columnist; all you need is crust and lots of applesauce. Financial Post thinks the first assertion may be correct, but the columnist should know that applesauce does not make real apple pie. We wish a few restaurateurs of our acquaintance knew it too.

The New Drive For Competition

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

BEHIND the recent upheaval in the United States War Production Board lies a fact of importance to the future of the United States economy, the national policies of Canada and the trade of the world. Basically, the decision made by the United States government and translated into the policies of the War Production Board is that competition shall be re-established as soon and as fully as possible in American industry.

The theory of some large industrialists that wartime controls shall be lifted very gradually, that the government should parcel out future markets between various competitors on a kind of quota basis, has been rejected. The same government which sought to cartelize American business under the National Recovery Act and found it a hopeless failure, economically and legally, is not making the same mistake again. It is approaching the post-war period in the determination to let competition have the widest possible scope, to let any enterpriser, large or small, enter post-war business as soon and as extensively as he can on his own resources.

This plan to make competition the mainspring of the economy after the necessary period of government wartime controls is not confined to the present program for industrial re-conversion to peace. On another front the government is pressing ahead its drive for competition by a relentless pursuit of businessmen who try by illegal means to prevent competition. The most effective anti-combine campaign in the nation's history is now in full swing.

THE recent attack on a group of fire insurance companies and the indictment of a large railway group for violation of the Sherman Act are the largest and most spectacular enterprises of the anti-trust division of the government, but just as effective work is proceeding elsewhere. In the lower courts, "Fortune" reports, it has won a decree requiring the Pullman company to divorce its operating branch from its manufacturing unit; a judgment prohibiting motion-picture exhibiting groups from using their combined buying power to force distributors to discriminate against the independents; and an injunction restraining the Associated Press from enforcing bylaws that handicap non-member newspapers. It has prevented the organization of motor carriers into a national combine. In the year ending June 30 it instituted and terminated some eighty anti-trust cases in the courts.

Also, after a monumental study of this problem which revealed their vast international ramifications, the anti-trust division is attacking cartels on a broad front. Since 1939 it has brought proceedings against 25 cartels, and 30 more are scheduled for attack. Several suits have been settled favourably already, among which were those breaking up patent-monopoly restrictions on the production of military optical instruments, synthetic rubber and magnesium.

But the anti-trust division is not satisfied yet with its machinery of prosecution. It is seeking more drastic legislation against the abuse of patients and the operations of cartels, and it is receiving strong support in Congress.

In the House of Representatives a bill has been introduced by Representative McMurray, of Wisconsin, to forbid any firm to limit production, fix prices, establish quotas or allocate markets or trade territories much sterner than those of the Sherman Act.

A less drastic bill has been sponsored in the Senate to require any company doing business in the United States to register with the government any foreign contract restricting trade. Out of these proposals will probably emerge a strong new form of control over cartels. Another plan under active consideration calls for the creation of an economic court with technically-qualified personnel to replace juries in anti-trust cases.

ALL this commits the present United States government to competition everywhere and on the most vigorous basis, and already the Canadian government is moving, though more slowly, along the same line. The result, if this program succeeds, will be to create in North America the largest area of competition in the world after the relaxation of wartime government controls, and to throw against international world cartels the most powerful economic structure ever known.

This, in fact, is a declaration of war on such theories of monopoly and cartelization as that advanced by Lord McGowan, board chairman of the powerful Imperial Chemicals Ltd., of Britain. According to "Fortune," Lord McGowan said to Mr. Eric Johnston, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, in London last summer: "I see no hope for collaboration between British and American business unless the U.S. repeals its Sherman Anti-Trust Act. Can we in England look forward to that?"

The answer has been given to Lord McGowan and industrialists everywhere. The United States is going to strengthen, not weaken, its anti-combine regulation, and collaboration between it and all foreign nations in post-war trade must be on a basis of competition, the lack of which—through such devices as cartels, quotas, subsidies and tariffs—wrecked the economy of the world before this war.

Ghent

Ghent is purged of Nazis after a captivity of more than four years. When we are old enough to read Shakespeare we soon make the acquaintance of "old John of Gaunt, time-honoured Lancaster," third son of Edward III of England, born of Gand, or Ghent, in 1340, in the Abbey of St. Bavon, already seven hundred years old. Charles V also a native, is supposed to have said punningly to Francis I of France: "I will put Paris in my glove" (dans mon gant).

Unlike most English manufacturing cities, Ghent is both ancient and industrial. It was a famous commune like Ypres and Bruges. Its greatest days historically were in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, but it has preserved its old energies devoted to new purposes. It is rich in monuments, such as the Cloth Hall, the Belfry, the Cathedral of St. Bavon. The Oudeberg, or Castle of the Counts, founded more than a thousand years ago, was a cotton mill from 1789 to 1884, and is now a choice specimen of a medieval fortress. Of the Old Port, the guild houses, the museum, let the guide books tell. But we must not forget that Ghent is also a city of flowers, another Haarlem. If the people of the Netherlands remember the Pacification of Ghent, signed in 1576, Americans remember the Treaty of Ghent, signed in 1815. — New York Times.

Joe: "What's become of the Hikers' Club?"
Jim: "Oh, it disbanded. It was getting too hard to persuade passing motorists to pick us up and give us a lift."

WATCHING ON THE RHINE IS A REAL JOB NOW —By Thomas

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

THE VATICAN ATTITUDE

Sir,—In your evening paper of Wednesday, August 30, 1944, in the Editorial Page under the heading, 'Contemporaries (Vatican Conference)', the Windsor Star refers to Prime Minister Churchill and the Pope's meeting as significant, and each in his own way can do much for the betterment of the world. As for Mr. Churchill that is no doubt correct but as for the Pope, in my opinion, is open for criticism.

Apparently the Windsor Star and many more people have forgotten the time the British Government spent in trying to persuade the leader of the Vatican to use his influence with Mussolini at the time of his intervention in Spain, his bloodthirsty rape of Ethiopia, his stab in the back of fallen France, his attack on Albania and his slaughter of Greece, not saying anything of his designs on Egypt and his intention of bringing Palestine into the Roman Empire. All this, no doubt, was backed up by the leader of the Vatican although he did not come out and say so; but he blessed troops and sprinkled Holy Water on tanks going into these countries to kill and slaughter these people. Now that he sees the handwriting on the wall and which side his bread is buttered on he has turned the record over and is playing it on the other side to suit the occasion—and still people come out and call him a great man.

Personally, in my opinion, when war is over and criminals are brought to justice the leaders of the Vatican should be made to answer for their mistakes, because they did nothing to stop Mussolini but remained his silent partner until his downfall.—Yours truly,

A. G. WARREN.

Canadians Beat The Supermen

(ALAN WOOD IN THE LONDON EXPRESS)

THEY fought unknown at the time. But now the censorship has released the names of some of the Canadian regiments, mainly the Scottish-Canadian regiments, which led the attack south of Caen.

The names are being made known and honoured throughout Canada.

I think they will be honoured in Britain, too. For these volunteers every man of whom could have spent the war in Canada had he so chosen, had had their homes in Britain for three or four years before they came to France to fight and some to die.

This is the roll of honour:

The Calgary Highlanders.

The Royal Highlanders of Canada (The Black Watch).

The Royal Regiment of Canada.

The Royal Hamilton Light Infantry.

The Cameron Highlanders of Canada.

Of one of these regiments I have already tried to tell the story—the Battalion of Heroes.

The Canadians attacked over ground where the enemy had the advantage.

They went forward in the face of fire from 100 guns. They threw themselves against a crack division of the German Army—Nazi "supermen" or, as a staff officer put it at the time, they were "playing the German first eleven".

The Canadians do not call themselves supermen. They are tough. But theirs was not always the courage of men who knew no fear, but sometimes the courage of men who overcame it.

I think of the soldier who said how scared he was, but who swore and held on.

I think of the captain who told me:

"The major was the real hero of the piece. If I had been in command then, I would have gone up in the air, and if I hadn't gone too far up in the air, I would have tried to withdraw.

"But he walked about coolly in the open, getting things sorted out after we had been hit and then we went forward again".

If you ask the major, he will tell you what a grand job the captain did.

And I think especially of the ambulance drivers, the signallers, the men carrying ammunition, and all the others who went backwards and forwards along the shelled and mortared roads between our foremost positions and those just behind.

A few short weeks ago most of these Canadians had never seen action. Many of them young, many of them inexperienced.

They had losses. They did not win much ground. But today they are seasoned veterans who have mauled Hitler's strongest troops; they are ready to fight again, and in all this they are more than conquerors.

Advice To A Soldier

FIELD-MARSHAL VISCOUNT WAVELL in the LONDON SUNDAY TIMES

I HAVE soldiered for over forty-two years, of which nine and a half have been spent on active service—in two major wars, one medium war (South African), and two minor wars. I have fought in France, Belgium, Russia, Asia Minor, Syria, Palestine, Iraq, North Africa, East Africa, South Africa the N.-W. Frontier of India, the Dutch East Indies, Malaya, Burma. A more varied experience than even Frederick the Great's celebrated mule.

I have been a Regimental Officer on active service and have seen what absurdities the idle and luxurious Staff committed; I have been a Staff Officer in a war and have toiled night and day to help the Regimental Officer and keep him on the right lines; I have been a Commander-in-Chief and have sympathized with both the Staff and Regimental Officer. Throughout it all I have tried to think always of the welfare and point of view of the principal weapon of all wars—the man in the ranks. I must surely have learnt something I should be able to pass on.

Looking back on it all, I offer you the following four lessons; they may not take you very far in our complex trade of fighting, but you may find them useful to bear in mind:

1. The more I have seen of war the more I realize how it all depends on administration and transportation (what our American allies call logistics). It takes little skill or imagination to see where you would like your army to be and when; it takes much knowledge and hard work to know where you can place your forces and whether you can maintain them there. A real knowledge of supply and movement factors must be the basis of every leader's plan; only then can he know how and when to take risks with those factors; and battles and wars are won only by taking risks.

2. War is a muddle; it is bound to be. There are so many incalculable accidents in the uncertain business—a turn of the weather that could not be foreseen, a message gone astray, a leader struck down at the critical moment—that it is very rarely that even the best-laid plans go smoothly. The lesson is to realize and provide as far as possible against the uncertainties of war, but not to be discouraged if they happen; it is extraordinary how, if you carry on steadily with your job and use common sense, the worst-looking muddles will straighten themselves out.

3. The final deciding factor of all engagements, battles and wars is the morale of the opposing forces. Better weapons, better food, superiority in numbers will influence morale, but it is a sheer determination to win, by whomever or whatever inspired, that counts in the end. Fine feathers may make fine birds, but fine battleships do not necessarily make fine sailors or we could never have dominated the Mediterranean against the greatly superior Italian fleet. Study men and their morale always.

4. Lastly, when things look badly from your point of view, the best tonic is to think of the enemy's troubles; you may be sure that he has them, too, and they may be worse than yours. Anyway, train ourself to think that they are. As I wrote once elsewhere: "A last ounce of optimism is often a better general reserve than many men."

(This article was written before Lord Wavell became Viceroy of India.)

WRONG ENTERTAINMENT

If you wish to entertain a veteran, do not take him to see a sham battle on the motion picture screen. He may have seen the real thing. He may have ducked from shells that were live shot, listened to the moaning of real ricochets, bound up. Generally speaking that is what the returning veteran desperately is trying to forget. Why bring it back? Why regale him with a sham fight, in the middle of a world he will find sham and hollow enough for all of its protestations toward those who serve on the battlefield? —Victoria Colonist.

A Bible Message

And the hand of the Lord was on Elijah: and he girded up his loins, and ran before Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.... And he came thither unto a cave, and lodged there; and, behold, the word of the Lord came to him, and he said unto him, What doest thou here, Elijah? And he said, I have been very jealous for the Lord God of hosts: for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life to take it away.

And he said, Go forth, and stand upon the mount before the Lord. And, behold, the Lord passed by, and a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the Lord, but the Lord was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the Lord was not in the earthquake: and after the earthquake a fire; but the Lord was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voice. (I Kings 18: 46; 19: 9-12.)

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea; though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah.

There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most High. God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her, and that right early. The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved: he uttered his voice, the earth melted. (Ps. 46: 1-6.)

SYMPHONY IN THE EAST

Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, returned from Australia yesterday and announced he had accepted an invitation to lead the Manila Symphony Orchestra.

The booking was offered him by General Douglas MacArthur, who also gave him a tentative date.

Advance arrangements are being made by General MacArthur, as quickly as possible. Mr. Ormandy preferred to keep the tentative date a secret.—New York Herald Tribune.

LONDON'S DOCTORS

London's remaining doctors are having a tough time under the flying-bomb attacks. Hard pressed though they were before the assault began, through the absence of colleagues on war service, they are infinitely more pressed today. Many general practitioners seems to have adopted the public-spirited procedure of rushing at full speed to every incident occurring near their homes, and there working their hardest, amid indescribable dirt and no little danger, to relieve the immediate sufferings of the injured.—Yorkshire Post.

HOW MANY MEN

Names of British Army formations are familiar to all newspaper readers. But how many men does it take to make up these formations? Numbers of men vary from time to time according to varying roles which the unit has to play. In general the figures for British (and Canadian) units as as follows:

Company: 80-160 men.
Battalion: 1,000-1,500 men.
Brigade: 3,500-5,000 men.
(The Germans do not have brigades. Instead their regiment, roughly corresponds to our brigade, although rather smaller.)
Division: 12,000-15,000 men.
Corps: Two or three divisions.
Army: Three corps.
Army group: Two or more armies. — London Express.

Unconsidered Trifles

The park orator made frequent references to Darwin's "Origin of Species."

A tall man and his short companion hung on the outskirts of the crowd, but were unable to get near the speaker.

"What's his trouble, Bill?" asked the small man, tired of craning his neck to no purpose.

"Eat More Fruit I think," replied the other. "All he keeps talking about is Darwin's oranges and peaches."

"We were surrounded by natives," related the explorer. "They just uttered savage cries, danced madly and beat the earth with their clubs..."

"Sounds life golf," said the bored listener.

Robot Bombs Damage 800,000 Homes In London

LONDON, Sept. 14 (Reuter)—London's local authorities are hastening the task of repairing more than 800,000 houses damaged in the summer robot-bomb raids, as evacuees flood back in ever-increasing numbers.

London's winter housing problem has become acute in the 28 metropolitan boroughs and suburbs. Never before has this city of more than 8,000,000 people faced a task of such magnitude.

Despite official appeals to stay away to avoid any possible danger and also to give the local authorities time to make some repairs, London's main railway stations have been jammed all week with returning women and children.

Euston Station today presented a chaotic picture. A taxi queue stretched for 75 yards with weary-looking mothers and children, luggage, prams and cots waiting more than an hour for transport.

In London civil defense area 870,000 homes are classified as damaged, but reparable, but as yet reports have only reached the first-aid stage. In blitzed streets in South-east London there are rows of houses with blind windows and tarpaulins covering holes in roofs.

Families in many of these damaged houses have their ceilings down and are reduced to living in one room and sleeping in an Anderson shelter. Many of them are in vital work and local authorities are anxious that second-stage repairs should be begun as an acknowledgment of the way they have endured the robot blitz.

Sixty-two thousand builders have been toiling seven days a week, but small impression has been made on the general situation.

Although some 10,000 houses are being dealt with in a week, sufficient numbers still are not available for the homeless or those seeking accommodations.

Unless something can be done to speed work during the few remaining weeks before winter, the outlook for millions will be bleak. More than 40,000 workers have been brought into London from the provinces to assist in the work.

Health Minister Willink is being assisted by officers of the Ministry, who have divided the London region into five areas, and a co-ordinating committee of the four Ministers involved — Home Security, Health, Works and Labor—confers daily on the problem.

Grand Jury Says Hospitals Too Crowded

The two local hospitals are filled to capacity, with continuous waiting lists, "and it is apparent that Peterborough needs more hospital accommodation."

This quotation of observation and comment is included in the presentment to Mr. Justice Plaxton, presiding in the current assize of the Supreme Court of Ontario, by the Grand Jury this morning. Chas. H. Elliott was foreman.

The complete text follows:—

"Having completed our duties in compliance with the directions and suggestions outlined in your Lordship's charge, we hereby submit our report.

"The following public institutions were inspected by members of the Grand Jury:

"The Court House and County Gaol, Queen Mary Hospital, Nicholls Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital, Children's Shelter, St. Vincent Orphanage, House of Providence, Anson House, House of Refuge.

"As directed by your Lordship, a special inspection was made of the fire-prevention equipment in all institutions visited. In respect to this phase of the inspections, it is desired to report the following particular conditions observed, because it is considered that each warrants immediate attention:

"(1) The fire escape from the nurses' quarters on the third floor on the east side of St. Joseph's Hospital, is unsafe for use.

"(2) The canvas fire hose in several buildings have been left folded in racks for so long they have dry-rotted and would be almost useless in case of fire. One test was made at the Court House which proved to the Grand Jury that replacement was immediately necessary. In order to avoid flooding similar to that experienced in the Court House corridor the same experiment was not made in other institutions, but from our inspections it is apparent that the same condition would be found to exist in fire hose in the majority of the other buildings inspected. A test of all fire hose in each of the above institutions should be made immediately.

Homes for Aged.

"The three homes for the aged are well kept. The inmates appear happy and contented. An elevator would be a great convenience to those who are forced to remain on the same floor because they are no longer able to climb up and down stairs; and two of the homes reported a shortage of help.

"A number of easy chairs would add to the comfort of the old people in the House of Refuge at Lakefield.

Children's Homes.

"The Children's Shelter and the St. Vincent Orphanage are well looked after by officials who appear to be efficient and suited for their duties.

County Gaol.

"The County Gaol was found to be clean. The inmates, on the whole, had no justifiable complaints about food or the management.

"The Grand Jury recommends the installation of a toilet in each cell. They are of the opinion that the present facilities are altogether unsanitary. It is felt that in this day when such stress is laid on measures designed to promote public health, the present accommodation should not be permitted to continue.

Hospitals.

"It is apparent Peterborough needs more hospital accommodation. Both St. Joseph's and Nicholls Hospitals report that every bed is occupied; and that they always have a waiting list. At the same time it is a source of satisfaction to report that there are but three patients in Queen Mary Hospital, comprising two cases of contagious diseases and a suspect.

"The hospitals were neat in appearance and the staffs are to be congratulated for the work they are doing when short-staffed, and when always taxed to capacity.

"Before concluding, the members of the Grand Jury wish to express their appreciation to Your Lordship for your remarks relating to the history and development of the Grand Jury as a democratic institution. We also welcome Your Lordship to Peterborough on this your first visit as Presiding Judge of an Assize Court here."

Obituary

GEORGE WELLMAN

MARMORA, Sept. 14.—(ENS). — George Wellman, well known resident of Marmora, passed away at his residence on Forsythe street, at 5.30 p.m. on Wednesday, the eighty-fifth anniversary of his birth. Born in Rawdon township, he was the son of the late Nelson and Charlotte Wellman. His father died when he was three years of age. The early part of his life was spent in farming. In 1899 he took over the Bellview Hotel, at what is now Bonarlaw. He came to Marmora in 1910 to be the proprietor of the St. James Hotel for a number of years. He also became a cattle buyer and followed this calling after retiring from the hotel business.

A Conservative in politics, he was a past president of the Marmora Conservative Association and took a keen interest in the welfare of the village. He had only been ill for about two months before his death.

He is survived by his widow, who before marriage was Sarah Reid, also of Rawdon township, and an adopted son, Edward Hewitt. The funeral service will be held at his late residence on Friday at 2.30 p.m. Rural Dean W. J. Robinson, of Tweed, will be the officiating clergyman. Interment will take place in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

As a contrast to the present deplorable situation with regard to baseball in Peterborough is the fact that twenty years ago this week this city had no fewer than five clubs in action in as many O.B.A.A. series on the one day. The senior team had been ousted out of the picture but in every other division Peterborough clubs were staging a battle for provincial honors. The C.G.E. intermediates were in action at Deloro, the Lakeview Juniors played in Kingston and the Maple Leaf juveniles in Cobourg while the city's bantam and midget teams were facing Toronto Humewoods and McCormicks respectively in a doube-header at Riverside Park. And some of those games that day were standouts. In the intermediate series C.G.E. with Jeff Hardill on the hilltop and Bob Ross doing the catching had to go thirteen innings at Deloro to nose out the Smelters 3 to 2. Deloro led until the ninth 2 to 1 but the Electricians tied it up in that frame and finally were able to push the winning run across in the 13th. At Kingston in spite of fine pitching by Frankie Whitehouse the Lakeviews were blanked 3 to 0 by Kingston Circle Six, tieing up the round and making a third game necessary.

* * * * * *

Sacred Heart midget team, defeated in Toronto in the first fixture evened up the series by winning a sensational battle at Riverside Park 1 to 0 in 13 innings. "Casey" Masterson pitched the greatest game of his career, fanning 22 of the Toronto kids and holding them to three hits. In addition he had the satisfaction of carrying the winning run over the plate in the 13th. He got a life on an error, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and finally scored on an infield single. Duff who pitched for Humewoods was almost as good, striking out 23 of the Peterborough batters. Peterborough Kiwanis tussling with Toronto McCormicks in the bantam series, weren't so fortunate, losing 6 to 1 with Trebilcock and Jones as the Peterborough battery on that occasion. Meanwhile down at Cobourg, the Maple Leaf juveniles, with the crack young southpaw Chuck Bradley doing the tossing for them and Ab Delahaye, now manager of Westclox girls' team, behind the bat were nosed out 4 to 3 after beating Cobourg badly in the first game here. Cobourg cashed in on Maple Leaf errors to score four runs in one innings and took the verdict.

* * * * * *

A Flimsy Protest

President Gladys Mortimer of the P.W.S.U. has had a protest to grapple with recently as the result of the complaint of the St. Catharines Tee Pees that in the first game of their series with Brantford, the Plowettes' catcher had not worn the pad and mask called for by the girls' rules. Brantford nosed out St. Catharines in that game and although the winners claim that there was an agreement to allow the Brantford catcher to work without the equipment which had been left behind the Tee Pees filed a formal protest and enclosed the necessary deposit to back the kick. Brantford won the second game Saturday, cleaning up in two straight games and the Peterborough girl who is president of the provincial organization has decided to let the series stand as is, rightly deciding that while the rules call for the wearing of mask and pad as a protection for the catcher the failure of the Brantford catcher to don her equipment on this occasion would be too flimsy a reason for throwing out a game that had been won fairly by the Plowettes. The sporting public will undoubtedly support the decision of President Mortimer.

For example here is what Chick Appel, sport commentator of the Stratford Beacon-Herald has to say about the St. Catharines' protest: "There have been some peculiar protests lodged in sport circles around this neck of the woods within the last 25 or 30 years, one of them because Woodstock used a Negro pitcher, but the one announced by the management of the St. Catharines Tee Pees ladies' softball team, because the Brantford catcher didn't wear a mask, surely takes the cake. It seems Barbara Ott, of Brantford Plowettes, caught the first game in St. Kitts without a mask, while in the second game at Brantford, Saturday, she donned the wire cage. Miss Ott was taking chances by catching behind the batter without the protection of a mask, and perhaps was foolish to do so, but it is the height of something or other to protest her actions. The men's softball and baseball rules don't stipulate that a player must wear any of this equipment. All they say is that a player may wear them, (so far as this corner can discover) and when Barbara Ott elected to go behind the plate without a mask it was nobody's business but her own, although the practice is too dangerous to continue. Not being hep to the P.W.S.U. regulations, this observer isn't prepared to say what the girl players must wear, but if it is compulsory for a catcher to don a mask it still looks like poor sportsmanship to protest a loss on such flimsy grounds."

How It Happened

George Campbell, Oshawa sports scribe, has the following comment on the defeat of Main Office by Belleville Marines in the Ontario playdowns: "Victims of one of those tough breaks that so often make or bust a crucial playoff game, Oshawa Main Office went down 5-4 in Belleville on Saturday evening and thus faded from the O.A.S.A. Intermediate "A" race. "Dutch" Hiller, the tough luck pitcher of the local Big Four loop, once again was chalked with a loss when he had pitched well enough to deserve a win. Hiller outpitched Jim Hunter, the Belleville ace, giving up only 7 hits as against 10 garnered by Main Office. Main Office were never long in front. Twice they had a lead but the Belleville team tied it up in the other half of the same inning. In the 8th, Oshawa went out in front 4-2 and in the last of the 8th, LaBonne hit a homer, with one on, to tie the count at 4-4. Oshawa players and rooters and, according to their report, many of the Belleville fans thought that LaBonne should have been called out on strikes just before the pitch he got hold of for his homer. The tough break came in the 9th. Main Office had previously come close to getting another run in two different frames but in the last of the 9th, Hunter singled and Barriage bunted. Rockert fielded the ball nicely, but his throw to 1st base struck Barriage, the batter, on top of the head and bounded out into right field, with Hunter running on around the bases to score the winning run. The error throw didn't go outside the foul-line, but stayed inside, out into right field thus permitting the baserunners to go as far as they could and that "break" decided the game and series."

The St. Louis Cards who were picked to smash all kinds of records this season have apparently folded up. For the second night in succession the Pittsburg Pirates have taken both ends of a twin bill from the faltering champs. As a matter of fact the Corsairs have won nine games in succession from the Cards and cut their lead to 13½ games. Of course Musial is out fo the lineup but the absence of one player is surely not enough to make the Cards blow the way they have been doing lately with only four wins in 15 starts. In the only other big league games played yesterday the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago Cubs broke even.

One-Armed Boy Meets Baseball Hero

MEMPHIS, Sept. 14 — (AP). — A wide-eyed lad of three met his ball-playing hero yesterday.

"Hi, Pete—" little Nelson Gray, jr., of Los Angeles said — and then wonder and worship welled up in a tiny throat to choke off the words.

"Hello, youngster," smiled Memphis outfielder Pete Gray, who used to play ball in Quebec.

They shook hands — with their lefts. You see, they had no rights.

But that wasn't enough for Nelson. He leaped to plant a wet kiss on Pete's lean, flushed cheek — and squeezed his hero tightly with his single arm.

Young Gary lost his right arm in an accident a year ago. His father, a baseball fan, wanted to give him an objective in life — so he fed him on stories of the prowess of Pete Gray, the one-armed wonder of the Southern League.

Pete Gray soon became Nelson's idol. He had to have a Memphis uniform "just like Pete's and a miniature bat and glove.

Then he begged to see his hero in action.

The Memphis commercial appeal sponsored a fund to bring Nelson to Memphis for the Nashville-Memphis series, which opened last night. The fund was quickly over-subscribed.

A Dry V-Day

GUELPH, Sept. 14 — (CP). — The Ontario government will be petitioned by the Guelph Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church to order all beverage rooms and liquor and wine stores closed on the day Germany is defeated, it was decided by a meeting of that body here last night.

"A TRIP through the Gillette factory showed me why I always get clean, quick shaves with Blue Gillette Blades. I saw steel hardened in automatically-controlled electric furnaces ... saw the blades sharpened in grinding machines weighing several tons—yet so precise that they are adjustable to 1/10,000 of an inch. So my advice to any man who wants to enjoy shaving is to use Blue Gillette Blades."

Cards in Slump 5 Wins Shy Of 100 Mark

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14 — (AP). — The team that was picked to break the all-time record for total victories in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals, will have to rid themselves of a terrific slump if they are to win 100 games this year, considered easy pickings less than a month ago.

The 1944 National League pennant, which seven other managers awarded the Redbirds before the season started, is still mathematically within the reach of Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

All this trouble started 15 games ago, Sept. 1, in Pittsburgh. The Cardinals played four games with the Pirates — a vast mistake, for they lost them all.

Since then the league-leaders have won only four games for an average of .267. Over the season they have won 95, lost 41, and there are 18 to go. To win 100 games means the drooping Redbirds must take five of those 18, a .277 average, 10 points better than their September pace.

The Cardinal lead, once a haughty 20 games, has been cut to 15½ contests — and the remaining games are on the road. But Card officials have gone ahead confidently with plans for their third straight world series. Tickets have been printed, the park is a sellout, and you can't find anyone asking for his money back.

By HYE BOSSIN

Sir Edward Villiers, representing Ealing Studios of Britain, was in Ontario last week to find out why British films don't get into as many theatres as he thinks they should. "They are not getting the break they deserve," he told Canadian film men.

A tall and friendly man, he learned that Canadian theatre men think that British films are just as good as Hollywood's in a great many instances. Why don't the theatre men play them in their theatres? Well, American stars, through fan magazines and other publicity, are household names. The public is drawn by the star, not the film. The star system is stronger than ever, although it has been attacked for 30 years.

British stars are unknown. There are no fan clubs in their honor. They don't become popular idols until they go to Hollywood. And even in Britain Hollywood publicity serves to give American stars greater appeal than English players. Lack of publicity of a personal nature is the greatest drawback there is to the success of British films.

Sir Edward believes that films can offer democratic values of international appeal. Since Britain's support of parliamentary government and democratic ideals is older than other nations, he doesn't see why films made in Britain shouldn't carry these United Nations ideas in interesting dramatic form. British films will have a British slant which is at the same time international.

But personal appeal is the chief factor in bringing folks into the theatres in which they can be treated to these ideas.

"The children are studying the older folks through 'Are These My Parents?' and the parents are interested in 'Where Are Your Children?'" one fellow was heard to observe. . . They're trying to coax Kenny Baker back to films. They gave him such sappy parts before that he finally took a job with a Broadway show. He's terrific and they want him back.

Canada's greatest film pioneer is Ernest Ouimet of Montreal. In 1906 he opened the Ouimetoscope, offering two performances of films a day, each taking two-and-a-half hours. That was the first time in North America pictures were offered as competition to the legitimate drama. Movies were shown in stores and for five cents the patron sat on a kitchen chair and saw about four subjects in 15 minutes.

In 1906 Ouimet built a $50,000 movie house, offering also a seven-piece orchestra and singers. That was the first de luxe house on the continent, the father of the plush cinema palaces one sees in all big cities today. He also took the first Canadian newsreels for insertion in the Pathe issue of those days. Ouimet is still hale and hearty in Montreal and experimenting with the golden quest of the film world, three-dimensional photography.

He likes to tell about a young Montreal girl who had had a walk-on part in one short and wanted a movie career. She came to Ouimet for advice. He noticed that she had unusual eyes and thought they would photograph badly. So without telling her why he advised her to take up marriage as a career instead. The very next day a scout saw her in the short film and searched her out.

On the screen she had a rare beauty—one of the mysteries of photography. Her name was and is Norma Shearer.

Although Sal Maglie, ace twirler of Welland Atlas, held Hamilton to six hits and registered 12 strike-outs without issuing a pass, the Hamiltonians worked out a 3-2 victory at home last night to square the Niagara Senior Baseball playoffs at one game apiece. Harry (Deacon) Wasser, Niagara Falls, N.Y., import, was touched for eight safeties by the visitors but, after a bad first innings when Welland went into a 2-0 lead, he kept the blows well scattered.

Twice because of rain, the featherweight match between Chalky Wright and Jacky Wilson was ordered by the District of Columbia Boxing Commission to be staged indoors tonight at Washington. Eddie Walker, manager of Wright, refused to accept the order, however, saying the delay would hurt his fighter who has a scheduled title go with Willie Pep at New York Sept. 29. The Commission has promised disciplinary action if the bout is not held tonight.

Speaking at a Shrine club gathering in Philadelphia yesterday, Connie Mack of the Athletics declared Detroit Tigers were the best bet to win the American League pennant through their outstanding pitchers, Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouser.

Winning their fourth straight game, the Beavers, representing the Hamilton Police A. A., last night copped the softball title of Hamilton by defeating Slaters 2-1.

With Nelson Gary, Jr., 4-year-old one-armed lad of Los Angeles, as a special guest, one-armed Pete Gray sparked the Memphis Chicks to a 7-6 victory against Nashville last night at Memphis to take the first game of the Southern Association playoffs. Gray tripled in the 12th inning for his fifth hit to start a victory rally.

Creighton Mine defeated Coniston 6-3 last night at Sudbury to clean up the semi-finals of the Nickel Belt Senior Baseball League. The miners now clash with Copper Cliff for the circuit title.

Pirates Speed Nearer Coveted Crown

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

American League World Series stock gained a few points today as the four idle contenders analyzed the fate of St. Louis Cardinals who had lost their first season series since 1940 and dropped 11 of their last 15 games.

The Redbirds haven't beaten the Pirates in their last 10 meetings, a tie being their best effort.

Frankie Frisch has had the Pirates rolling at a .763 clip since Aug. 9 and at the .600 season mark for the first time as the Cards dipped below .700.

The National League leaders were having pitching trouble with Harry Brecheen failing to go the route in the opener and Max Lanier suffering his fifth successive defeat in the second. Rip Sewell and Xavier Rescigno took credit for the Pirate victories despite two Cardinal homers by Johnny Hopp and one each by Ray Sanders and Ken O'Dea. Johnny Barrett and Babe Dahlgren hit for the circuit for the Pirates.

Chicago clung to fourth place in the National by downing Cincinnati, 3-2, in the second game of a double-header, on Frank Secory's three-run homer after Harry Gumbert had turned them back in the opener, 4-1. Philadelphia at New York and Boston at Brooklyn double-headers were rained out.

Rain Washes Out First of Playoffs

By the Associated Press.

Rain forced postponement of the International League playoff schedule for the second consecutive time last night, as Buffalo was held idle at Baltimore and Toronto was washed out at Newark.

If the opening games get started to-night the Leafs will use Alex Mustaikis against the Bears' Ken Holcombe, while the Bisons are scheduled to start Smoky Joe Orrell against the Flock's Bobo Palica.

Rip Sewell and Babe Dahlgren, Pirates—Sewell held Cardinals to seven hits in winning his 17th game of the season in the opener, 7-3; Dahlgren drove in six runs, three in each frame and scored twice in nightcap as Pirates won second, 10-5, for clean sweep of series.

Harry Gumbert, Reds, and Frank Secory, Cubs—Gumbert won his 11th game of season, holding Cubs to eight hits in 4-1 Red victory; Secory hits three-run homer in sixth of nightcap to account for all Cub runs in 3-2 win for even break.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 14 — (CP).— Should a few days of school lessons interfere with East-West High School football competition when sportsmen are trying to put the game on a national basis?

That's the question posed to the Winnipeg rugby club officials, who are doing everything to promote minor leagues for a potential fall pastime rivalling the spring's Dominion junior hockey.

Just when the club was set to foot the bill for a two-game series between the Manitoba High School Leagues and St. Michael's College, Toronto, the Winnipeg Public School circuit poured cold water on the deal. It would take the boys away from study.

But will determination win out? Art Chapman, the club's vice-president, has another plan. It involves St. Paul's College, a private Winnipeg school. Now he is hoping for a single East-West game here October 14.

Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith asks why the High School League waited until this late date to make its decision. When the East-West game was first broached was the time to say it would interfere with academic studies.

Toronto Public School principals also turned down the proposal, claiming too much time would be lost from school. "What a lot of mealy-mouthing unadulterated succotash that is," wrote Jimmy (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman. "The educators of Toronto have done a distinct disservice to the youngsters under their care," he argued.

Whether schoolboys travel or stay home, senior East-West rivalry is certain to flourish after the war.

In Winnipeg, former Blue Bombers are tutoring the kids. Lou Mogul, Benny Hatskin, Norm Gellar, Don Durno spend hours on corner lots building brawn and planning strategy. Some 90 lads are trying to make a place on Kelvin Clippers, defending Manitoba school champions. The minor game now is a serious business with some 4,000 fans packing the stands every game.

Until the old Western Interprovincial Football Union operates again, the armed forces will carry the East-West senior torch. The R.C.A.F. has a four-team league in Manitoba and plans to tackle No. 1 Command, Toronto, this fall.

The senior gridiron is kept alive in Saskatchewan. The once-famed Regina Roughriders and Saskatoon University Huskies plan exhibitions. In Alberta, the school leagues will carry on in Edmonton and Calgary while the University of Alberta Golden Bears anticipate tussles with Saskatoon Huskies.

PACIFIC FRONTS ARE FAR FLUNG—Crushing blows being dealt to the Japanese by Allied forces are expected to increase after the Churchill-Roosevelt meeting in Quebec. Just how far flung the Pacific "front" runs is shown on the map. Powerful Superfortresses are raiding industrial centres in Manchuria (1), while Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten's fighting men of the China-Burma-India theatre have completed the liberation of one-tenth of Burma (2). The combined ground, naval and air strength under Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Adm. Chester Nimitz are mercilessly pounding the Bonin and Celebes Islands, Yap and Palau, as well as Davao in the Philippines and U.S. bases from which these operations are being carried out are firmly established on Saipan, Guam and Noemfoor (4).

Prisoner Mail May Be Delayed

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 — (CP). — The Allied drive through France has cut German mail connections with Portugal and letters from Canadian prisoners of war may cease to arrive for a time, post office officials said today.

As soon as the southern and central regions of France have been cleared of the enemy, however, it will be possible for Allied authorities to collect prisoner-of-war mail from Swiss postal authorities. Home mail will be delivered to prisoners by the same route, in reverse.

At present mail from Canadian prisoners is still arriving in this country, officials said. The latest bags consist mostly of letters written during the mid-summer.

Young People Organize Society

WARSAW, Sept. — (ENS) — The newly organized Young People's Society met in the United church basement for their first meeting, with Miss Trevor Watts presiding. This society has been formed among the young people of all churches in the village and they plan to meet fortnightly.

Other officers are: Vice-president, Edna Clysdale; secretary, Doris Clysdale; treasurer, Keith Clysdale. Leaders of the different departments: Missionary, Eva Bolton; Christian Culture, Raymond Clements and Jean Lonsberry; Social, Victor Clements; Recreation, Irene Sidey; Press Reporter, Noreen Clements; Pianist, Marion Davis; Citizenship, Howard Darling.

The meeting was in charge of the missionary group with Eva Bolton presiding. Mrs. Snelgrove read a devotional story based on the life of Jan Smuts; Barbara Payne read a poem and Mrs. Jean Bennett a poem about the fuzzy wuzzy angels of Australia. Rev. Snelgrove followed this with a summary of the book by the same name.

One feature of each meeting is to be a question box, where anyone may place a question that perplexes them and the answers will be discussed at each meeting.

Arrangements were made for two carloads to go to Carmel in the near future for a weiner roast under the auspices of the men's club. One interesting item of business was the club's desire to participate in a community gathering of prayer and thanksgiving to be held in the United church on the evening of the day that hostilities cease in Europe.

The next meeting will be held on September 22 under the leadership of the Christian Culture group.

FINE CATCH

Fishing at the foot of Crowe Lake on Wednesday, Dr. H. Crawford, of Marmora, and Walter Revoy, local guide, landed a fine maskinonge which weighed twenty and a half pounds.

FALSE ALARM

A pair of early season bowlers startled spectators Wednesday night when they chalked up the perfect score of 450. Further investigation however, showed the would-be experts when their score was untangled that they rang the gong at 100.

CHRISTMAS PARCELS

To be sure of delivery on or before Christmas Day, the Post Office advises that parcels to the forces in the Far Eastern sectors, Ceylon and Burma, be mailed before September 15. Parcels to the Middle East, Egypt and Iran, should be in the mail not later than October 5.

KIWANIS MEETING

At the regular weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club in the Empress Hotel Friday noon, a round-table discussion will be held. Members are advised if they missed the joint Kiwanis-Rotary meeting earlier in the week, they can keep their attendance by turning out at the weekly luncheon.

REPORTED MISSING

Pte. Edward Austin, of Port Hope, is one of the men reported missing when units of the Black Watch Regiment were cut off by the Germans July 28. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Austin, Jr., and is 19 years of age. The young soldier went overseas July 28, 1943, and he was missing exactly one year later.

EXPECTED HOME

Leading Stoker Alfred E. Marshall, son of Mrs. Marshall and the late George E. Marshall, 501 Bethune street, has arrived in Canada, and is expected home on leave in a few days. Enlisting in the R.C.N.V.R. in July, 1942, L-Sto. Marshall has been overseas since May, 1943, and had been serving on an infantry landing barge, during the invasion.

KILLED OVERSEAS

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gordon, formerly of Peterborough, have received word that their son, Donald J. Gordon, 20, was killed in action during July, while serving with the Royal Regiment of Canada. He was born on Park street south and attended the Sacred Heart church. The young soldier had been overseas two years.

TAUGHT LESSON.

A pretty little 3-year-old girl was taught via a spanking on Park street, opposite the C.P.R., that she should not go out for a walk alone. The little tot wandered down the street, into a store, looked around and continued her inspection of every store within her radius. Her mother finally caught up with her though, and her good time ended suddenly.

BASEBALL FANS

On Murray street Wednesday afternoon, a group of youngsters proved themselves to be real fans of softball, as without any standard equipment, they carried on an exciting game with an apple for the ball, and a piece of wood for the bat. They had plenty of fun, and one reason for it might be they didn't follow the rules. If a batter did not hit the ball in three strikes, he stayed at the plate until he did, whether it be 10 or 50 strikes.

BANK CLEARINGS

Clearings for the past week ending today as reported by the secretary of the clearings house totalled $1,117,197.

SAFE

Flight Sergeant Dwight Casselman, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Soule, 97 Princess street, is safe, after being reported missing June 15. Flight Sergeant Casselman lived in Peterborough for a year, working in the Wire Department of the C.G.E. His father lives at Williamsburg, Ontario.

NAVY TAG DAY

Christmas boxes for every one of the 1,140 sailors from Peterborough and district will be the result of a Navy Auxiliary Tag Day, this Saturday. The plans are complete for the Tag Day, and the money received will supplement that already made from the Field Day at the Riverside Park Monday, Labor Day.

INFORMATION WANTED

Mrs. Martha Keyes, Calgary, has asked the Peterborough police to try to locate Mrs. Grace Doherty whose husband was killed in an accident in the United States some years ago and who was supposed to have returned afterward to her home here. Any person who has any information in regard to the whereabouts of Mrs. Doherty is asked to communicate with the police department.

BLOOD DONORS.

At the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic on Wednesday morning, 77 persons donated blood to save lives on the battlefront and at home. Twenty-three people came from the C.G.E. Large groups also came Quaker Oats, Dominion Woollens, from Outboard Marine, De Laval, and also from Millbrook and Keene. Albert R Hall of the C.G.E., and Harry Platt of the C.G.E., and J. S. Cann of the Gann-Morrison Company, each gave their ninth donation.

THE LAST WORD

Angry at her husband, one woman Wednesday evening refused to go home in the same car with him. That was all right with the man too, and he blithely got into the car and started the engine. The woman repented, and asked to get in the car, but the man put his foot down and flatly refused. As the car began to drive off down George street, the woman got on the running board, and after a block of the outdoor riding, the man seemed to think he had won the victory, and let her in.

KNOCKED FROM WHEEL

Gerald Taylor, 433 Chambers street, suffered bruises on his left arm and left leg Wednesday when his bicycle collided with an automobile on George street between Simcoe and Hunter street. Taylor was riding north and in passing a parked car came into contact with another automobile, travelling south. The cyclist said that the motorist stopped, asked if he were hurt and offered to drive him to a doctor. Taylor did not think that he had been injured but later discovered bruises that required medical attention.

Rambling Reporter

ALSO-RANS

Three lads about town, one of them so long away from the native heath that he rates almost as an alien, betook themselves to Toronto Tuesday, expecting to knock about for three or four days. Rain pursued them all day, even after they had bought coats that duplicated the ones they had left at home; put in the afternoon at the Woodbine with net results rather doleful; and generally struggled through a cheerless session. Meantime they had convinced themselves by enquiry that there wasn't a spare bed in the big city. Some women's society in convention completed the normal wartime crowding, and finally they arrived home on the local with their bags, waited about forty minutes at the C.P.R. for a taxi that changes its mind, and at length got up town in a Mitchell bus. Wartime service in Toronto, and scarcely any better in Peterborough, except in Nick's restaurant, injected too much struggle into a vacation expedition.

Skunks Tenant Vacant House

That the present salary scale for public health nurses is interfering seriously with the operations of the local department of health was the conclusion reached at a meeting of the board of health Wednesday when the matter was discussed at some length.

The following resolution was passed and will be sent on to the city council.

"That this Board feels that the city public health services cannot be successfully or properly carried out unless salaries are set for public health nurses high enough in the present competitive market to permit the Board to secure the services of the additional public health nurses required and requests that the council take immediate action in connection with this situation."

The meeting also decided on motion of D. V. Canning and Mayor Hamilton to provide a scholarship to be competed for among graduating nurses from the local hospitals who are anxious to take a course in public health. The scholarship will be $500.

A petition was received from residents in the neighborhood of Oxford street asking that the abandoned house at 627 Oxford street should be torn down. The petitioners said that the house was a rendezvous for skunks. The matter was passed on by the Board to the city council.

Present at the meeting were Ald. James Dutton, chairman, Mayor James Hamilton, D. V. Canning and Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Kelly.

Where For City Hall?

Personal Gifts Swell Aid To Robot Victims

To some extent, good personality is linked with a good sense of personal responsibility that recognizes life cannot be one selfish road to travel, obvious to the fact that the many benefits one receives in one form or other come as the result of other people's endeavors. As such, every single person owes something to humanity in general which takes on added significance when one group happens to be in distress.

Going back to the early Biblical days, Jacob recognized the goodness of his Creator, and made the pledge that for all the benefits poured upon him, he would give one-tenth back, a sign of how thankful he was. Ever since, this has been recognized as a basis of what people could do in giving of the bounties they themselves had been blessed with, in the name of Him Who had so blessed them.

The Great Master said that "a cup of water given to the thirsty in His Name" was given as unto Him, so no greater form of giving of one's own means could be found in this particular sphere than that of assisting those whom the ravages of robot bombs in Britain have afflicted and deprived of their homes, for their need must be a desperate one.

Ever since the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund began to operate, one woman known to the readers of this column under the acknowledgment of "In As Much" has given on a regular monthly basis with a full sense of responsibility that has its roots in the foregoing Biblical teachings. In this manner it has now reached such proportions as to be outstanding, for with to-day's gift of $10—marking the 43rd donation—a total of $430 has been given by this person.

Day of Personal Gifts.

To-day another entire list of personal gifts is recorded marking the 11th such list to appear in the space of about two months. Since to a large extent those who are thus represented have given on more than one occasion, it would be natural to assume that they must have a sense of personal responsibility in giving a portion of the means with which they had been blessed, to assist the work for which the fund operates.

Among those is an old friend of the fund, John E. Parker of Norwood, whose record in one family achievement for the fund has been so outstanding in raising and giving a total of $1,160 to this date and the $5 given under "In Memory of Vina" reminds one of all the good that can be done in the name of a loved one who has passed on, which supercedes an inanimate reminder that might be erected to be commenced at once, two persons their memory.

Another list of personal gifts will be commenced at once, two persons already having signified their intention of helping in this form of personal sacrifice.

Police Seize Slot Machines

Several members of the anti-gambling squad of the Ontario Provincial Police visited this district last month and seized several slot machines.

As a result of that visit T. E. Curvin, Young's Point and Harold Weir, proprietor of the Burleigh Falls Hotel, faced charges in police court this afternoon of having operated common gaming houses.

At this morning's session of the court Joseph Nazazon, charged with slashing a soldier on a C.P.R. train with a razor, was remanded for another week, as the Crown was not ready to proceed today. W. J. Arthur Fair is now representing the accused.

Dr. Berry Checks Lake Pollution

Dr. A. E. Berry, director of sanitary engineering for the Ontario Department of Health, is making a complete survey today of the conditions in Little Lake as regards pollution of the water there.

Dr. Berry is here at the joint request of the city council and board of health and will make a report on his findings. For some time there have been many complaints as to the Little Lake water being polluted in a number of ways.

Only yesterday at the regular meeting of the Board of Health a letter was read from W. K. Meagher, complaining of the condition of the water.

Millbrook Carnival Success Helps Soldiers, War Victims

MILLBROOK, Sept. 14 (ENS) — Cavan and Millbrook people teamed up in a home front war effort on Wednesday that set a new record in rural endeavor and gave the Peterborough City and District War Victims' Fund, one of the most substantial contributions since the fund was started.

It was a gala affair smoothly arranged and carried out by enthusiastic workers, with that characteristic thoroughness which has marked the community efforts of these two sections, and was voted a complete success by those taking part in the festivities and by officials who worked hard to make money for the fund, and for soldier boxes.

The program included an auction sale, street dance, bingo, with several games of chance, a lunch room, and a band concert rounding out the money-making project.

Jack Reid, Gordon Hancock and Jim Roddy, three well known auctioneers sold everything in Millbrook except the Armouries, and the list of articles put up for sale would bewilder even the owner of a curiosity shop. Plows, straw-cutters, cutters, democrats, turnip pulpers, firewood potatoes, a Jersey calf, furniture, vegetables, musical instruments, bicycles, dogs and litters of puppies and a host of other articles. All went under the hammer and the good-natured crowd were in a buying mood.

Hooked Victims

They had another wrinkle for getting money. In the middle of the street was an old church organ. If anyone showed any interest in the harmonium they were told they had the choice of paying a dollar or taking the outfit home. They paid the dollar and it is reported almost $30 was raised in this manner.

Even F. G. Mann, the secretary of the British War Victims' Fund at Peterborough, was hooked.

D. B. Falkner, former manager of the Bank of Commerce at Peterborough had three roosters knocked down to him at the auction sale, so he promptly donated them to the seller, who proceeded to find another customer.

R. H. Blakely states that some of his certified seed with a ceiling around $2.25 brought $3.50.

The Midland Regimental Band gave a band concert in the afternoon, and at night Graydon Sheldons' orchestra provided the music for the street dancing with Stan Jackson as master of ceremonies. Hurrell Dodds of the Peterborough Lions Club was on hand with his booth games, and besides this there were dart games, wheel of fortune and others. A huge barrel of sweet cider found a ready market and the "keg tender" was kept busy filling glasses.

The plan to hold this carnival was born last June when Ivan Gray of Millbrook and Mervin Kinsman of Cavan, put their heads together and decided the two sections should combine in an all-out war effort for the fund, and to provide Christmas boxes for the boys overseas. The idea caught on like a prairie fire, and donations for the auction sale and of cash poured in. The handicap of the harvest season slowed proceedings somewhat, but arrangements were completed last week, and the carnival staged on Wednesday.

Those taking part in the carnival were as follows:

Millbrook War Service Committee—Hon. President, Lt. Col. A. H. Bounsall; pres., I. H Gray; vice-pres., M. Kinsman; sec., P. Stinson; advertising committee, H. Bigelow, P. Hamilton, J. Barringer, G. Harrington; sports, J. Anderson, A. Ford, J. McPherson, L. Rowling, L. Fallis; booth committee, C. Sutton, M. Ball, D. Sheppard, L. Bryan J. J. Powell, J. J. Allen, T. A. Campbell; music and entertainment, H. Oullette, P Stinson; finance committee, H. A. Kerr, P. I. Bentley, T. H. Collins grounds committee, L. Sutton Reg. Fallis, S. S. Staples, L. McNeil, M. M. McDowell; Women's Institute, President, Mrs D. Olan.

Examiner Takes Straw Vote On Four Sites

Believing that many citizens of Peterborough are interested in where the new city hall is to be built The Examiner is taking a ballot on the four proposed sites. The ballot is on this page and the four sites are marked on the accompanying map.

In order that the citizens can vote intelligently on the question it should be pointed out that while cost of the new city hall will be cared for from a bequest in the late W. G. Morrow's estate, the site on which this hall is to be built must be furnished by the city.

The assessed value of the four sites has been secured and while it is not expected that these sites could be secured for this money it permits a fair comparison.

Site Number 1 is the block opposite Confederation Square on George street and takes in the land bounded by Murray, Water, McDonnel and George streets. The assessed value of the land is $23,705 and the buildings $29,795 for a total of $53,500. This value includes the service station and property on George the property on Murray and the best of the property that would be required on Water street.

Site No. 2 is the Aylmer, King, Louis and Charlotte streets block. Here the land is assessed at $31,235 and the buildings for $53,855, for a total of $86,090.

Site No. 3, the Hunter, Water, Simcoe and Queen street block. Here the assessment on the land is $31,745, and the buildings $69,335, for a total of $101,080.

Site Number 4 is the northeast corner of George and Charlotte streets and north on George street as far as the Bradburn building, which is immediately south of the Centre Theatre. The land is owned by the city and the assessed value of the buildings is $80,650.

The Examiner has arranged with its carrier boys and girls that they will collect these ballots while on their routes on Friday (tomorrow evening). The carriers will be paid for every ballot they turn in properly filled out.

People in the area of North Monaghan to be annexed into the city on January 1 are interested in this question and thus they are entitled to cast their ballots in this vote.

PROMOTED — Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. John D. Sullivan, R.R. 10, Peterborough, that their son, Pte. Joseph Sullivan, has been made a Corporal. He has been overseas since March, 1941, and is now serving in Normandy with the S.D. and G. Highlanders.

79-Year-Old Woman Testifies To Injuries Received In Accident

A most unusual plaintiff in a court action to recover damages for injuries in an automobile accident was Mrs. Lily V. Stuart, 576 Division street, whose suit against Thompson Huggins, Jr., and Ellsworth Ingall before Mr. Justice Plaxton and a jury was begun here this morning.

The unusual tenor of Mrs. Stuart's testimony as the first witness called by her counsel, T. J. Carley, K.C., was what seemed to be a natural valiant spirit, a disposition to minimize the pain she suffered from severe injuries in an automobile accident on George street "in front of a vacant lot on which Mr. Graham's house is situated," north of the Dublin street intersection.

In the evening of August 15, 1942, plaintiff was crossing from the east to the west side of George street, accompanied by two grandnieces. Struck by a car driven by Ellsworth Ingall and owned by Thompson Huggins, Jr., who had acquired the Rose taxi business some time prior to the accident.

Multiple Injuries

Mrs. Stuart was thrown to the pavement, knocked unconscious, suffered an injury to her right arm, which was amputated above the elbow in a hospital operation, a double fracture of her right leg, broken nose and various bruises to her body.

And after that detailing of permanent disability, Mrs. Stuart replied to Mr. Carley: "I never suffered very much." That was during her stay in hospital; and at home—"I didn't experience very much pain."

"The only pain at the hospital was in my leg. It is stiff at times now. I don't think my nose hurt me very much at the hospital. I felt as if my right hand was there all the time. Yes, there was pain in my arm. Even now my right hand feels as if it was there. Of course it was amputated."

Is 79 Years Old

Mrs. Stuart was 76 years old that evening of the accident. The next day was her seventy-seventh birthday. She is now 79. Her grandniece Iris was 11 years old at that time and Moira 8.

Mrs. Stuart testified that in the evening of August 15 she was at her home. Accompanied by her sister, Miss Alberta Brock, and two grandnieces, Iris and Moira Crown of Reaboro, plaintiff went to the grocery store at George and Edinburgh streets "to do some shopping," and then called at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Brock at 540 George street. Fifteen minutes later, Mrs. Stuart and the two girls left the Brock house.

"I saw a car coming south at Edinburgh street. I thought I had plenty of time to cross George street to the west side. My grandniece, Iris, had hold of my right hand, and she had Moira by the hand. I was on the south side of us three. About the middle of the street or farther to the west side, Iris jerked her hand out of mine and jumped back. That is all I know of what happened. The night was not bright, but it wasn't raining, and the pavement was dry. The little girls were wearing light colored summer clothing."

Mrs. Stuart said she did not hear any warning sound from the automobile that struck her.

Plaintiff said she left the hospital September 10, but it was about Thanksgiving Day before she was able to be about in her rooms at her Division street home, owned by her sister, Miss Alberta Brock.

"My sister looked after me all the time I was at home in bed."

Mrs. Stuart said she was unable to tie her shoe laces, wash her left hand. She has learned to write with her left hand, "but not as good as with my right." She identified hospital bills amounting to $156.55; also medical and nursing bills totalling $346; for new bifocal glasses $16; and she estimated that her street clothing "which were destroyed by the accident" were worth about $25. All bills have been paid.

The trial is continuing this afternoon. Campbell Grant, Toronto, is counsel for the defendants. He mentioned the fact that Mrs. Suart was not tall. Her estimate of her height was four feet eleven inches; and the older grandniece at the time of the accident was about that same height.

SERVING OVERSEAS — Sgt. Robert Hayes, whose wife and baby daughter, Diane, live at 568 Bolivar street, is stationed overseas. He enlisted at the beginning of the war and was an instructor at Petawawa, Peterborough and Brockville before going overseas.

Victory Garden Winners Named

Awards in the victory gardens competition are announced to-day by W. C. Wilks of the Horticultural Society as follows:

Class 1— Best vegetable garden over 600 square feet—1st Mrs. Merrit, River Road, 77 points; 2nd M. Zaharuk, 418 Wellington street, 75 points; 3rd J. A. Smith, 150 Benson avenue, 73 points.

Class 2— Best vegetable garden under 600 square feet— 1st Frank Leach, 504 Water street, 67 points; 2nd Stroyan Leith, 517 Gilmour street, 59 points.

Class 3—Best vegetable garden, not situated on home grounds, over 600 square feet—1st Al Spencely, 103 Auburn street, 63 points; 2nd Oliver Steer, 4 Inverlea, 61 points; 3rd Terry Porter, 55 points, J. Johnston 55 points.

Class 4—Best vegetable garden, not situated on home grounds, under 600 square feet—Jas. Rigden 864 George street, 65 points.

The society gratefully appreciates the efforts of W. J. Smith, A. D. Butcher and John Jessen who acted as committee chairmen and judges.

Mr. Wilks' comment was:

"We have had a most successful year all round and the number of entries in all competitions and the flower show, prove an increased interest in gardening as a hobby. As these competitions were open to the general public, it was expected that many winners would be new or none members of the society. However, the older members held their own and competition was keen. In the larger plots situated away from home gardens, five out of six entries were received from the Utility Commission employees. We very gratefully appreciate the interest of these employees and the co-operation of the Utilities Commission. The ground as made available by the commission and the efforts of the employees is evidence of their appreciation. Competition was so keen in this particular class that a tie for third place exists. Both contestants will receive a duplicate award.

"The produce of victory gardens cannot be expressed in terms of dollars and cents alone. The efforts victory gardeners will go far to crease the nation's food lard Greater quantities of food stu will reach our fighting forces. lied nations are also assured of plentiful supply because of the forts of victory gardener all acr the Dominion."

Waste Paper Important In Front Lines

Thousands of tons of waste paper urgently needed for war purposes are finding their way each year into garbage-cans in Canada. It is a simple mistake, and a careless one. Throughout the weeks when there is no paper collection, the average person would appear to think waste paper is no longer as necessary to national defence as former....and so, into the can it goes.

Peterborough's big one-day waste paper drive, September 21, is designed to collect 10 pounds of paper from every man, woman and child in the city, and these ten pounds can be made up of paper saved day by day every day of the year.

The objective for this city alone is 150 tons of scrap and waste paper materials. In the interests of the war effort, 20 trucks and 75 men will collect the paper from one end of the city to the other. This equipment is donated and the men are voluntarily giving their services, because the collection of waste paper is a vital part of the job to finish the Hitler gang. Business firms and offices are requested to put out waste paper on the streets, tied in bundles, at the closing time, and the trucks will pick it up beginning at 6 o'clock in the evening. It is a one-day campaign, and for that reason it is imperative that paper be put out September 21, and not the next day.

Look Up Paper

Start rummaging through old files, bookcases, drawers, cupboards and particularly attics and cellars for old and useless paper now. Draw tickets bought two years ago will not win prizes for you now, unless they are turned in to the paper mills to be turned into fighting weapons, that can bring great prizes to Allied armies.

When it is realized that 20,000 tons of waste paper are needed each month to keep supplies streaming to the front lines in Europe, it can be realized that it is the job of every citizen to go "all out" in the effort to collect as much as possible.

A district drive, residents living in and around Millbrook, Norwood, Omemee, Lakefield and other points are requested to put their waste paper out at 8 o'clock in the morning.

If you have not already collected ten pounds of paper, there is no time like the present to start. The attic, for instance, is probably crammed with valuable waste paper. When you look at any waste paper collect it and tie it in bundles, remembering that some soldier on front line will live because sulfa drugs or blood plasma reached him in a paper container that you helped produce.

The need is great and the time brief. Clean out your office, home and school. Put your waste paper on active service, to save lives and bring victory closer.

School Board Requests Use Of Town Hall

HAVELOCK, Sept. 14.—(ENS).—A deputation from the Board of Education composed of Chairman B. Smith, Trustees R. Sayers, D. Plunkett, D. Mathison and F. McKenzie, interviewed the town council at their September meeting with two requests for assistance from the municipality.

The first was for the use of the town hall as a training centre and gymnasium for cadet work and playground during the severe weather the classes to be supervised by the teachers at stagger periods. The council moved that the matter be left over for further consideration. The other request was that the council provide a municipal skating rink and the reeve was authorized to get advice regarding the procedure in this matter.

A communication was read from B. W. Heise, Deputy Minister, Department of Public Welfare, advising that an agreement had been concluded with the Ontario Medical Association to provide medical assistance for relief recipients, effective from April 1, 1914, and as there had been misunderstanding in some communities about the agreement, this communication was for the purpose of clarifying the situation. Medical services will be provided by physicians who are prepared to participate through the Ontario Medical Association.

Patients will be treated by the physician of their choice from among the physicians of this group. This home and office service including the supplying by the physician of certain drugs from the approved list where in the opinion of the physician such medicine is necessary. The rate and municipal contribution will remain as heretofore. Payment for medical care in the hospital is not included in this agreement. The attending physician will continue to give his services free of charge to indigent patients in hospital; and the hospital will be assisted in giving its services by the municipal-provincial grants as made under the Public Hospital Act.

Need More Paper

A comunication from the National Director of hte Salvage Department of National War Services stressed the continued necessity of saving and collecting waste paper which was still the No. 1 war material shortage until such times as the supplies of waste paper are ensured or the war has been terminated. It expressed the fear that unless some committees were not properly forewarned as to the continued need they might automatically discontinue activities with the collapse of Germany.

A communication from the Aeronautical Institute of Canada regarding developing the aviation industry of Canada expressed the hope that returning airmen may find greater opportunities to put their training and experience to some useful purpose after the war was over.

Accounts Paid

The following accounts were authorized paid: W. J. Akins, salary, $89.50; Mrs. D. McMillan, ration board, $22.56; J. Scott, account direct relief, $8; H. Tinney, work on streets, $20.80; A. Predict Early Drive On Philippines

By W. L. BEALE, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Sept. 14 — (AP) — An Allied onslaught on the Philippines before the last echoes of this Roosevelt-Churchill Victory conference die away seemed possible Wednesday as the British and American commands discussed the shortest cut to global victory.

In President Roosevelt's map room on the second floor of the Governor-General's residence on the moated citadel, the European battle lines as well as those of more fluid naval attacks spearing toward Tokyo are carefully charted. But in all official statements, the gold-braid conference of staff officers in the 800-room Chateau Frontenac is nailed to the Pacific war and Britain's determination to help blot out Japanese agression.

International political relations across the narrow channel between Britain and France, involving the Dumbarton Oaks security talks at Washington and the future of the British-American - Soviet Advisory Commission in London, press for swift dispatch of purely military business.

In the Pacific Ocean, air and naval attacks set the pace for events to come.

Some military men say Allied troops will be in the Philippine Islands before next month.

The Philippines, Formosa, the Japanese homeland, presumably would be primarily an American show.

India, Burma, Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies would be assigned to British command—a job given Admiral Mountbatten at an earlier Quebec conference 13 months ago.

For Britain's part, reports from London relayed through Washington, put virtually her entire flete at the disposal of the Allied combined chiefs of staff once Berlin is occupied. But in the far reaches of the Pacific, supply is the initial worry, and this big factor could operate to limit the number of fighting ships.

PRESIDENT OF CUBA—President Ramon Grau of Cuba has been in Washington to discuss vital matters with President Roosevelt.

FRESHER, CHEAPER FOOD for your table by men who think of tomorrow

TOMORROW'S EVERGROWING GARDENS . . . Why should garden-fresh vegetables be available only in summer? Why should rich, ripe strawberries be a luxury in winter? Men who think of tomorrow are doing something about it. In Scotland, where seasons are short, it has been possible to grow six to eight crops of vegetables a year by heating truck gardens with underground steam pipes—under glass in winter, open to the air in summer.

MEN who think of tomorrow are planning to feed the world better than it has ever been fed before, to make it healthier than ever before. It is a glorious future to which we may look . . . but only after this war is won!

Are you working at your "war job" as hard as you can?

Are you saving and turning in wastepaper to help meet the serious shortage this country faces in the manufacture of containers for war materials?

Are you collecting and turning in every last drop of fat from your kitchen to help feed the hungry machines that turn it into TNT?

Are you heeding the Government's plea to curtail your personal travel so that troops and supplies can move freely over our already congested transportation systems?

Have you added your blood to that of millions of others to provide life-saving plasma for our wounded?

And have you increased your purchases of War Savings Certificates and Victory Bonds to the limit of your ability . . . and are you holding on to them?

Only by working hard at these and scores of other "war jobs" can we be sure of Victory . . . and the ever-ripening fruits of Victory. Let us all be MEN WHO THINK OF TOMORROW!

KIND WORDS BRING HAPPINESS

Give Discouraged Person Pat on Back and See the Gratitude in Their Eyes.

THE dumbest of us know the value of kind words. We know that they are the pacifiers that will stop any fight, domestic or global, before it really gets going. We know that they are first aid to happiness and that we crave them more than anything else in the world. Yet we are as stingy about handing them out to others as if they were thousand dollar bills that would leave us broke if we gave them away.

Suppose, for instance, you long for popularity, but Nature didn't turn you out a spellbinder. How, then, are you going to become persona grata with all with whom you come in contact? By using a few kind words. It is the one recipe that never fails, for there isn't a single one of us who doesn't seek the society of those who butter us up with flattery and tell us how beautiful and witty and wonderful we are.

Kind words do more to pave the way to success than ability. Some of the cleverest men in the world never get anywhere because they do not know how to say the kindly little things that make people give them a hand up. While thousands upon thousands of mediocre men get to the top of the ladder because they ask after our symptoms, and tell us how pretty our daughter looked at the ball, or beg us to repeat that perfectly corking story.

Bestow Kind Words As You Go

Even the most hard-boiled of us have philanthropic impulses. We would like to think we had scattered a few rays of sunshine along the pathway of others. The easiest and the cheapest way of doing this is by bestowing kind words as you go. People are just as hungry for appreciation as they are for bread and they are more grateful for a compliment than they are for a cheque.

But it is within the home circle that kind words have a chance to do their great and perfect work. They really decide the success or failure of every marriage. No husband turns philanderer as long as his wife tells him how big and strong and handsome he is and murmurs "how wonderful" when he goes through his parlor tricks.

No wife but who is happy and contented as long as her husband keeps up the tactics of courtship and continues to make love to her and notice what she has on, and who swears to her that she gets more beautiful every day. It is the silent, take-them-for-granted husbands and wives and the fault-finders who fill the divorce courts.

So if you know a discouraged man and woman who are getting the hang-dog look, give them a pat on the back and tell them how good their work is, and watch the gratitude that leaps into their eyes. If you know a boring man and woman whom everybody avoids, or a wall-flower girl, say something pleasant to them that will buck up their egos. Saving peoples' happiness is just as meritorious a deed as saving their lives.

When kind words are so cheap and buy so much happiness, why should we be so stingy with them? Released by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

W.I. Discusses Hospitalization

HAVELOCK, Sept. 14 — (ENS) — The Blue Cross Plan for free hospitalisation was again discussed at the September meeting of the Women's Institute and Mrs. C. Taylor and Mrs. W. Woodbeck were appointed to make a canvass of the member with the view of getting the required percentage of the membership to enrol in this non-profit community service.

The sum of five dollars was voted for the purchase of a silver cup as an award in the annual oratorical contest for public school pupils of this district and Mrs. C. Taylor and Mrs. W. Woodbeck were appointed to act in conjunction with the committee from the local Home and School Association in the furtherance of this educational project.

The president, Mrs. R. Jones stated that she had engaged an orchestra for the dance on Friday, October 27, under the auspices of the Institute.

Future Improvements

Mrs. G. W. Chiles was program convener. The roll call was answered by suggestions for town improvements and several timely hints given were: Waterworks for the town after the war, comparison being made to Stirling in this respect and the opinion expressed was that Havelock should be capable of procuring this improvement; scrap paper should be cleaned off the streets; dogs should be tied up and weeds cut on vacant lots. A vocal solo, "Help Somebody Today" was sung by Mrs. E. Gall, accompanied by Mrs. H. Watson.

Minister Speaker

Social Welfare was the subject of an address given by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, who said it was impossible to measure the work being done throughout the dominion in this community service and he quoted statistics from church reports covering the social work of several denominations and the Gospel he said has its place in aiding the moral and spiritual welfare of the nation by transforming the inner life of the individual to live worthily.

He paid tribute to the work of women's organizations and he thought greater success was achieved in raising the home life to a higher level as woman talked to woman. He gave a quotation from General Smuts of Africa who said, "that fundamentally the world has no need of a new order of a new plan only the courageous application of the teachings of the "Man of Galilee" and in conclusion he dealt with a portion of the Beveridge plan for the post war period.

Following a contest, "Name the Kings" won by Mrs. J. Freeman, lunch was served, the hostesses being Mrs. R. Jones and Mrs. W. Woodbeck.

Havelock Plans Salvage Drive

HAVELOCK, Sept. 14— (ENS) — The emergency waste paper drive which combines several municipalities in this district and takes place on Thursday, September 21, will be organized here by the same Salvage Committee composed of members of the local Red Cross Society and the Eastern Star Patriotic Association who handled the drive so successfully last month. This was the unanamious decision of the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society at their regular meeting. Mrs. W. Copp will again act as convener.

The paper, sorted and tied as previously is requested to be placed on the curb before 8 a.m. No rags will be taken at this collection. The provincial supervisor of the National Salvage Department stated in his communication that this emergency drive would in no way interfere with local plans for regular collection.

In order to bring the sewing quotas up to date it was decided to hold an evening sewing meeting each week for those unable to attend during the day the evening to be set later.

The following donations were received: Mrs. J. Holdcroft, $2 for salvage expenses; Mrs. R. Bonney $1.00 for local work. Penny-a-Week for July and August $3.95. An account: R. Sayers $2.00 was authorized paid.

Range Pals Meet

Activities of the previous month were reviewed at the regular meeting of the Range Pals, at the Larmer home recently. Miss Audrey Larmer's group was in charge, and the work period was spent in knitting for Christmas boxes for members in the armed forces. During the month, meetings were held at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. William Price, Misses Betty, Doris and Jane Sayer and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ballantyne, where a letter received from Gnr. Leo Meagher, now overseas, was read. Receipts from the corn roast, held on September 6, were announced, and a total of $5.80 was sent to the British War Victims' Fund. The next meeting will be held at the home of Misses Jessie and Daisy Bell.

Seek To Have Church Doors Left Unlocked

Mrs. G. R. Scott, president, conducted the regular meeting of the Murray Street Women's Missionary Circle, held in the church parlors Tuesday afternoon. She reminded members that Christmas cards for Bolivia should be sent in the near future, since the regular mails were slow at present. A few moments of silent prayer were observed by Dr. Jessie Allyn, a medical missionary to India, who died on August 27.

The book, "So Lives the Church" was reviewed by Mrs. H. H. Graham. She said that the world has become smaller through the medium of radio and aircraft, and all churches were closer together. No matter what upheavals take place, there is still a little group of people all over the world who still worship God, and so the church lives on. "The world wide church is not a dream, but reality," she concluded.

Mrs. F. M. Somerville, who took the devotional period, also read a poem, "Within the Gates", written by a young Lieutenant whose home is in St. Catharines. After a discussion, members decided that the church doors should be left open so that anyone who wished might spend a few quiet moments within the sanctuary.

Ration Book Plans Formed

The Peterborough Branch of the Women's Voluntary Services held its September executive meeting Wednesday evening, to plan for the fall work. Mrs. N. Seaton, the president, presided.

The W.V.S. office on George street will be open from now on each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, morning and afternoon. In case of emergency, the office will be staffed every day. Plans were made for the distribution of the next ration books, and Mrs. W. Fanning announced that the new books will be given out on October 16, 17, and 18 at the Market Hall. Mrs. Whalon announced the emergency waste-paper drive this month, when ten pounds of paper is requested from each resident. She stressed the serious paper shortage which Canada faces in the next months.

Mrs. H. Matthews reported that the Miss Canada Girls were resuming the sale of War Savings Stamps this Saturday. During the month of June, sixteen girls worked 96 hours and sold $94.25 in Stamps.

W.V.S. workers put in 250 hours as hospital aides during the month of June.

Army Auxiliary To Send 1,500 Overseas Parcels

Arrangements for packing and mailing Christmas boxes for Peterborough men and women on active service in Canada's army, either overseas or in Canada, was the main item for discussion at the regular meeting of the Active Army Auxiliary in the Armouries on Wednesday. The packing will take place on Wednesday, October 4, in St. John's parish hall, with as much of the preliminary packing as possible done the day before. However, the job might take two days. All members were asked to co-operate and turn out to help, and associate members and interested people were also asked to asist.

Convener of the Christmas box committee is Mrs. James Turnbull, assisted by Mesdames G. Moore, H. Mason, R. Bolton, M. Clarke, D. Loomis, J. Thompkins, K. Kingston and R. Allin. Mrs. Turnbull, who presided, stressed the necesity for accuracy in collecting the names, and pointed out that the numbers were important also. Mailing dates were announced, and members decided that the Auxiliary would take the entire responsibility for sending the parcels.

Mrs. H. G. Mason, in charge of the purchasing committee, showed a sample of the proposed box, which contained two chocolate bars, one package of cigarettes, two hot chocolate drinks, five razor blades, one pair of shoe laces, two packages of gum, one package of life savers, one package of Oxo one package of soup, one cake of soap, one pencil, one package of envelopes, one writing pad, one half pound of Christmas cake, and a package of peanuts. The estimated cost for the contents and mailing is $1.80 each. Christmas greeting cards will be enclosed in the boxes, and the secretary's name will be printed on the card, so that all acknowledgements will be sent to her.

1,500 Boxes

For a personal touch in the boxes, Mrs. H. Willis was named convener for a committee to collect and wax maple leaves to be enclosed. In addition, members were asked to collect as many story sections of the Star Weekly, as possible, so that one could be enclosed in each box. The Auxiliary is counting on sending approximately 1,500 boxes to men and women overseas.

In the regular business period, Mrs. D. T. Diplock gave the secretary's report, and Mrs. L. Bateman, the treasurer, stated that the Auxiliary's bank balance stood at $1,134.65 with approximately $1,700 to be added as the Army Auxiliary's share of the recent successful Labor Day field day. Members moved a vote of thanks to the Peterborough Business Men's Association for their interest and assistance, and for planning the event.

Mrs. B. D. Hall, for the visiting committee said that the casualties since the end of July were 11 killed, two died of wounds, two missing, 41 wounded, three ill in hospital, and two injured in accidents, with six returned to Canada. Members of her committee made 57 calls during the month. Mrs. J. Duncan said that cigarettes and airgraphs had been sent to 19 men since August 24. Mrs. H. G. Mason, convener of the knitting committee, announced that $50 worth of wool was now available for knitters. A total of 23 letters written during the month was reported by Mrs. W. Ovens, corresponding secretary.

Guest Speaker

Announcing coming events, Mrs. Turnbull said that Senator Iva C. Fallis would be guest speaker at the evening meeting of the Auxiliary in October. In connection with the salvage campaign, $24.17 was reported as the Auxiliary's share of the recent drive, and a new drive, concentrating on paper alone, was announced for September 21, starting at 6 p.m., with the Auxiliary getting a share of the proceeds. A letter was read from the Minister of National Defence, listing the war brides who had come to Peterborough, and arrangements were made for members to call on them. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the social committee, with Mrs. James Morley as convener.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Our space today will be taken up with recipes that are easy on the sugar, in fact they are all inexpensive to make and are most delicious. Your family will all enjoy them, from the oldest to the youngest, so try each one and see for yourself, how very good they all are.

Sugar Sparing White Cake.

½ cup shortening, 2-4 cups white corn syrup, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon flavoring, 2 cups pastry flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 egg whites. Sift dry ingredients together three times, cream shortening with sugar and add flour mixture alternately with syrup. Then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and flavoring. Bake in layers at 350 degrees F. for 25 minutes. Use any icing you like.

Pumpkin Chiffon Tarts.

1¼ cups canned pumpkin, ½ cup milk, 1-3 cup of sugar, 3 egg yolks (the yolks from the eggs used in the first recipe can be used for these tarts), ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon salt. Cook in double boiler like custard and add one tablespoon gelatine, dissolved in ¼ cup cold water. When cool, fold in whiteh of 3 eggs beaten stiff, and 1-3 cup sugar. Put in baked tart shells and place in the refrigerator.

Orange Fluff.

2 eggs, grated rind of ½ lemon, 1 tablespoon hot water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons orange juice. Separate eggs. Beat yolks with 2 tablespoons sugar. Add grated rind and the fruit juices. Add hot water, beating continually. Cook mixture in double boiler until it coats the spoon. Pour over egg whites which have been beaten stiff with remaining tablespoon of sugar. Pile into glasses, chill in refrigerator and serve.

Beef Volcanoes.

1 egg, 6 tablespoons dry crumbs, 2 tablespoons milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon sage, 1 teaspoon grated onion, ½ lbs. ground beef, 1¾ cups fluffy mashed potatoes, ½ cup sliced onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, salt and pepper. Beat egg, add crumbs, milk, ½ teaspoon salt, sage, grated onion and beef. Mix well. Shape in four three-inch circles. Place a spoonful of potato on each, shape meat up and around potatoes, leaving potato exposed at the top. Place in shallow baking pan, potato side up. Bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes. Lightly brown sliced onion in butter, add flour and mix well. Gradually add milk. Cook, stirring constantly until thick. Season with salt and pepper.

Home and School

QUEEN ELIZABETH

The unveiling of the honor roll, inscribed with 49 names, including those of boys and girls in the school section now in the armed services, was the highlight of the opening meeting of the season of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association. Rev. E. C. Moore of St. George's Anglican church, was guest speaker. He told of the sacrifices being made by members of the armed forces, and said that in the new world order which was hoped for after the conflict, the sacrifices would have been made in vain unless each person realized his own responsibility and did his part with courage and fortitude. A.B. William Cuppy, R.C.N.V.R., who served in the invasion and is now home on leave, unveiled the honor roll.

Mrs. C. Doughty presided for the regular business meeting, and announced the regional conference of Home and School Associations, to be held in Peterborough during the third week in October. Mrs. G. Simpson told of a ratepayers meeting to be held Wednesday evening, September 20, in connection with obtaining the services of the Victorian Order of Nurses for that district. Two new Union Jacks were presented to the school, and dedicated by Mr. Moore. L. Bird gave a reading, "Our Soldier," and Miss Marilyn Munro read a poem, "The Union Jack." A vote of thanks to the guest speaker and those taking part in the program was moved by Mrs. O. Deyell, and refreshments were served by the social committee, convened by Mrs. J. Johnston, during the social hour which followed the meeting.

Navy Auxiliary Shown Sample Christmas Bag

A sample Christmas ditty bag, submitted by Mrs. F. D. Craig, ditty bag convener, was accepted by members of the Navy Auxiliary at their regular meeting Wednesday evening in the Y.W.C.A. The necessity of getting names of boys and girls serving overseas with the R.C.N.V.R. or the merchant marine before September 30, and other names as soon as possible, was again stressed. Everyone with the name of a Navy boy or girl is asked to contact Mrs. Walter Wheeler, 29 Brown street; Mrs. Fred Board, 778 Water street, or Mrs. F. D. Craig, 544 Water street, either by mail or telephone, preferably by mail, so that lists can be completed and corrected as quickly as possible.

Members expressed their pleasure at the success of the recent Labor Day field day, and Mrs. F. Merrett, president, thanked everyone who had assisted at that time, and extended the Auxiliary's sincere thanks to the business men who had made the event possible. The date of the rummage sale to be held at the vacant store opposite Hood and Cummings' Motors was announced as October 12, and Mrs. A. Chartren said that she would be at the store on October 11 to receive donations of articles. A donation of $30 from a group of south-end women, who raised it through a rummage sale and bazaar, was gratefully acknowledged.

Final arrangements for the Navy Auxiliary tag day, to be held on Saturday were discussed, and members were given their times and stations for tagging. Mrs. J. G. M. Wilson, tag day convener, said that several other women's organizations had volunteered to help with the tagging.

Bride's Friends Tender Shower

Prior to her marriage to-day to PO. Robert G. Nattress, R.C.N.V.R., Miss Margaret Allen was given a delightful miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. George Beauchamp, Gladstone avenue. The rooms were beautifully decorated with pink, blue and white streamers and an enjoyable evening was spent playing games, after which refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. W. Nattress.

Those present were Mesdames R. Allen, W. Nattress, J. A. Marchen, W. Mantel, J. Marchen, McDonnel, S. Kerneghan, Saunders, A. Saunders, R. Allen and P. Cooper, Misses J. Allison, E. Wilson, B. Mantel, J. Mantel, M. Waterman, M. Gilbert, J. Hogan, G. White, B. Freeman, Detcher, M. Robertson, M. Mason.

Those who were unable to attend but sent gifts were: Mrs. H. McDonald, Mrs. S. Marchen, Mrs. H. Freeman, Miss L. Saunders, Miss B. Kerneghan and Master Billy Mantel.

IMPORTANT associations with strange, secret or obscure sources should move quietly ahead on this day, with intrigue, strategem and undercover activities based upon foundations of the unusual, unique or singular relationships, both in business and private matters. This may be in connection with political, diplomatic or fraternal bodies where the results may be idealistic or illusory. A well-thought-out plan of action from such hidden sources may be lucrative.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of strange or curious adventures, in which the emotions, ideals, intuition and imagination play a part. This may be in connection with diplomatic, political, fraternal or group interests, in which tacit agreements or undercover procedures are most progressive. It is probable there may be trivial upsets or anxieties, but with a sensible use of exceptional gifts or faculties there may be exceptional benefits. But don't be carried away by erratic propensities o[illegible] tical "hunches."

QUESTION: Last June you published a recipe for a bread. It contained raisins, cherries and grated orange rind, graham flour and white flour. I have lost the recipe and I want it very badly. Please publish it again as soon as you can. Thanking you, M.D.M.

ANSWER: This recipe for a fruit bread is good, and the one I am using at present.

Fruit Bread

One egg, ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup chopped cherries, ½ to 1 cup raisins (or ½ cup raisins and ½ cup nuts), 1 cup sifted white flour, 1½ cups Graham flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, grated rink 1 orange. Beat egg and sugar. Add prepared fruit and rind. Sift dry ingredients together, tipping the bran that remains in the sifter into the mix. Add dry ingredients to egg alternately with the milk, mixing well between additions. Turn into greased and paper-lined loaf pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 45 to 50 minutes. All dates or all nuts or a mixture of any fruits may be used.

QUESTION: I am very interested in obtaining some recipes for making jam or jelly from rose berries; if you have any that you can send me I would be grateful. M.J.K.

ANSWER: I am glad to print this recipe for these berries are very high in Vitamin C, and if the Canadian public could be urged to utilize these berries which usuall go to waste, their outlay for Vitamin C foods could be curtailed.

Roseberry or Rosehip Jam

Wash rosehips well and cover with boiling water and simmer slowly until tender. Rub through strong sieve. To each pound of pulp add three-quarters pound of sugar, after pulp has been brought back to boiling point. Boil rapidly, stirring frequently to prevent sticking — until mixture runs from spoon in a sheet or 2 distinct drops form on edge of spoon about 1 inch apart. A better consistency may be obtained if to each 2 lbs. of rosehip pulp one pint of commercial pectin is added,—just before jam is taken from heat. If commercial pectin is added increase sugar to one lb. sugar for each lb. of pulp.

QUESTION: May I come to you for help? I would like a bran muffin recipe calling for sour milk if possible. I used to buy cooking bran in a box which had a wonderful recipe on it (Natural Bran I think was the name), but now that I buy bran from the mill I lack a good recipe as I didn't think to save that one. I have tried several but no one will eat the results. They are like sawdust.

Also how to obtain a hard, crisp piecrust (top crust)? I make a good rich crust with ...... shortening, which my husband thinks is the best ever, but I have tasted crusts which are crisper and yet are plenty rich enough too. Is it in the baking? How may one tell if the oven thermostat is registering correctly? I have an idea mine is not as hot as it should be. Also, how does one make good pie-crust with all-purpose flour? Is the proportion different? and for tea biscuits, is it pastry flour or all purpose that is used, Polly J.

ANSWER: Bran Muffins comes first.

Bran Muffins

One cup sifted flour, 1 cup bran, 3½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons brown or white sugar, 1 egg well-beaten, 2-3 cup milk, 3 tablespoons melted shortening or cooking oil, ½ cup raisins (or ¼ cup raisins and ¼ cup chopped dry prunes). Mix and sift dry ingredients and add bran. Combine egg, milk, and shortening and add to flour mixture. Then add fruit, stirring only until mixed. Use tablespoon to dip batter into greased muffin tins and fill them 2-3 full. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 25 minutes, according to size of muffin tins.

Regarding the oven thermostat: It is easy for me to say check it against a portable oven thermometer, but you would almost have to buy one to do this,—unless you were lucky enough to know someone you could borrow one from. One method one of our readers tried was to bake a standard recipe of average size teabiscuits, setting her thermometer at 450 deg. Fahr. The biscuits should be done through and light gold in 13 minutes. If they do not bake this fast raise the thermostat to 500, and try baking another batch. If they bake in the prescribed time, you could assume that your thermostat was registering 50 deg. too low, and govern your future temperatures accordingly. I shall print an article next week on pie pastry, attempting to answer your enquiries in it—please watch for it. Use all-purpose or cake flour for tea-biscuits.

JERSEY SWEATER DRESS—That old standby, wool jersey, isn't so easy to find as it was, which makes the new rayon tow jersey a sensational find. Here it is made into a jumper dress, both shirt and skirt of this fabric, in what we might call a complete sweater costume. Fine packer, this cloth, and it can take steady wear.—By Prunella Wood.

Cucumber Rings Famous To All Pickle Fanciers

By MARY MOORE

Minnie has come back into my life. Dear old Minnie — our deaf cook of over a decade ago?

I received a note written in her lady-like handwriting saying because this was the second week in September she thought I'd be doing my cucumber rings, and she wanted the recipe again. She said she'd been making them on and off ever since she left us but thought she must be getting careless as hers were soft last year.

Now these cucumber rings have become famous over the years and make a particular success of a chicken salad when it is garnished therewith—and also many other less elegant dishes.

I'd advise pickle fanciers to hold on.

Emem's Cucumber Rings

(There are two ways to do them: if they are peeled they are better looking; if they are not peeled they are crisper—take your choice—I do them 'arf-n-'arf.)

If you use ordinary slicing cucumbers cut them in halves crosswise; if using Chinese Long cucumbers cut them into thirds or quarters crosswise. Now to remove seeds (which remove after peeling if you decide to peel): if using slicing cucumbers remove seeds with apple corer; if using Chinese Long cucumbers remove seed with paring knife, working from both ends toward the middle of the cut section, working carefully to keep thickness of wall symmetrical.

Cut seeded cucumbers in even ½-inch slices. Over 2 quarts cucumber rings pour cold water to cover and add 1 teaspoon baking soda and let stand overnight. In morning drain, cover with water and add 2 tablespoons powdered alum, boil 10 minutes. Drain. Cover with cold water, add 1 tablespoon powdered ginger. Boil 15 minutes and drain again but measure this liquid and discard it. For each discarded quart of liquid measure out 1 quart cider vinger (2 quarts cucumbers require about 1 quart vinegar). To each quart vinegar add 3 lbs. sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ cup each whole cloves and broken cinnamon bark (spices should be tied in bag). Put cucumbers in this vinegar-syrup and boil until cucumbers are clear (about 30 to 40 minutes) when the syrup will begin to thicken.

Lift cucumbers when clear into sterile jars, fill jars with boiling syrup and seal. If what syrup you have will not quite fill jars to overflowing it does no harm to fill jars with an additional tablespoon or so of boiling water.

These Cucumber Rings are delicious on a platter of hors d'oeuvres.

Damson Jam

Wash Damson plums, and cut from stones, cutting each plum into about 4 or 5 pieces. Boil 8 cups prepared plums with 1 cup water until tender. Measure. To 9 cups boiled fruit pulp add 6¼ cups sugar; boil, stirring very frequently until when tested on cold plate it jells a little. Pour into Sterile jam jars, sealing with 2 coats paraffin adding second coating when cold.

Grape Conserve

Wash grapes, remove from stems, weigh, slip off skins and keep pulp and skins separate. Boil pulp until seeds show, stirring almost constantly, then push through sieve to remove seeds. To strained pulp from 4 lbs. prepared grapes add 2 lbs. sugar, 1 cup raisins, 1 orange, finely cut rind, pulp and juice, 1 cup walnuts or almonds, 1 teaspoon salt, and the skins. Boil till thick enough to pour into jars. Seal with two coats paraffin.

Fashions

A frock to win compliments, Pattern 9266 is designed with slimming surplice bodice, supple side-closing. Use cotton or rayon fabrics.

Pattern 9266, in women's sizes: 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48. Size 36, 2¼ yards. 39-in.; ⅞ yd. contrast. Applique transfer included.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore: I use my corn soufile as a main supper dish or for lunch and the family thinks it is a great dish. I double the recipe I am giving you because there are seven of us, but most families would find this one big enough.

Mrs. Jaffrey's Corn Suffle.

Two tablespoons drippings, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon parrika, pepper to suit your taste, 1 pimiento or ¼ cup minced green pepper, 2 cups fresh corn cut from the cob (if you want to make this in winter use kernel canned corn), ½ cup to 1 cup grated cheese (if you have meat at the same meal you won't need the cheese). Make a white sauce of the fat, flour and milk and seasonings. add the pimiento or pepper, the cheese and corn and mix. Then add the beaten egg yolks. Finally stir in the beaten whites and pour into buttered baking dish and stand in pan of hot water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 35 minutes.

I hope you like it. M. A. J.

Thanks—we did, and hope other readers take the tip.

BIRTH

KELCEY—Sgt. F. R. Kelcey and Mrs. Kelcey (nee Verna Bolton), are happy to announce the arrival of a son, Francis Leslie, at Nicholls Hospital, Sept. 12th, 1944.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fergus, Smiths Falls, Ont., wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Grace Reta, to Sgt. Lawrence Johnston, R.C.E.M.E., younger son of Mrs. James H. Johnston, and the late Mr. Johnston of Sherbrooke St. Peterborough. The marriage will take place in Smiths Falls the latter part of this month.

DIED

FONGER—At St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday, September 13, 1944, Mary Ryline, infant daughter of Private C. R. Fonger and Mrs. Fonger (nee Jean Allen).

HAMILTON, William Thomas — In Powasson on Saturday, September 9th, 1944, William Thomas Hamilton, husband of Eva M. Garland and father of Claude Hamilton of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Max Comstock of Peterborough and Marjorie Hamilton, R.N., at home. Service was held in Powasson on Tuesday, Sept. 12 at 2.30 p.m. Interment Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

IN MEMORIAM

EVANS — In loving memory of our dear friend, Mrs. R. Evans, who passed away Sept. 14th, 1940.

Within our hearts lives a picture of a dear friend gone to rest in memory frame, we will keep it because she was one of the best and while she sleeps a peaceful sleep, her memory we will always keep.

—Ever remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Smith and family.

McLEOD—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Alex McLeod, who passed away two years ago today, Sept. 14, 1942.

Until the day breaks and the shadows flee away,
We shall meet on that beautiful shore.

WITHERS—In loving memory of our dear friend, Madge, who passed away Sept. 14, 1943.

The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved
From memory pass away.

—Ever remembered by Harry, Jennie and Eileen, Long Branch.

WITHERS—In loving memory of Margaret, Vallance Withers.

Our mother is sleeping, so free from all pain,
Oh wake her not, sweet spirit, to suffer again.
She slumbers so soundly, oh let her sleep on,
Her sickness is ended, her troubles are gone.
Just think how she suffered and moaned with pain
In the long night hours we soothed her in vain,
Till God in His mercy sent down from above,
An angel that whispered a message of love.

—Fondly remembered by FO. J. P. Withers, R.C.A.F. and Wesley.

WITHERS—In loving memory of Margaret, Vallance Withers, who died September 14, 1943.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.

—Lovingly remembered by her husband, J. Withers.

IN MEMORIAM

EVANS—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who passed away September 14th, 1940.

Though tears in our eyes do not glisten,
And our faces are not always sad,
There is never a night or a morning
But we think of the mother we had.

—Fondly remembered by husband and family.

All members are asked to be at the starting tea promptly at the time specified so that all matches may get away with the minimum of confusion.

Games will be match play with ¾ of the difference in handicaps being allowed the player with the bigger handicap.

And, incidentally, you fellows, don't forget the big corn roast and dance to be held on the Club property Saturday night. These events are really worth taking in. Better arrange to attend with your wife.

R. A. Scrutton Named Head

At the call of the secretary, R. K. McKee, the Peterborough Public School Athletic Association met on Tuesday at 4.30 p.m. at Central School. The president, Mr. Noftall having left the city Robert A. Sutton, the vice-president, called the meeting to order.

The minutes of the spring meeting were read and adopted. The new men on the staff, Mr. McNeil, Mr. Drury, and Mr. Hancock were introduced. In addition those present were: Messrs. F. H. Dearborn, P. Windrim, J. Telford, E. G. Wagar, George Ball, R. W. Rutherford, C. A. Bullock, C. D. Munro, R. A. Schutton, R. K. McKee, J. M. Burns and A. Olmstead.

The election of officers for 1944-45 were as follows: President, R. A. Scrutton; vice-president, Geo. Ball; secretary, A. Olmstead.

Mr. Rutherford moved that a senior soccer series be carried on, seconded by Mr. Bullock, carried.

Mr. Telford moved that a junior series with grade 6 as the highest form be introduced, seconded by Mr McKee, carried. It was decided that players could not be used on both teams.

Senior league will be comprised of teams from: 1. Queen Alex. 3. Prince of Wales, 5. Central. 2. Queen Mary, 4. King Edward, 6. King George.

Junior league comprised of teams from the following: 1. King George, 2 Central, 3. Queen Mary, 4. Prince of Wales, 5. King Edward, 6. May's, 7. Confederation.

The following rules were adopted: Single schedule to govern both. 2 points for a win. 1 point for a draw. Sudden death game between the two top teams for city championship in each league. In case of a tie in the play-offs 2 ten minute periods to be played.

Worker Charged With Tool Theft

ORILLIA, Ont., Sept. 13 —(CP)— Several charges of theft, involving about $1,000 worth of machinists' tools from Otaco Ltd., Orillia's largest war plant, and four tires, tubes and wheels have been laid against Norman A. Moore, age 38, employed as set-up man at Otaco.

Moore was arrested on Monday by Provincial Constable D. Vern Whitely, on a warrant held by Owen Sound police department on a charge of "dangerous driving" alleged to have taken place in the Owen Sound district on Saturday last.

When Moore was arrested he claimed that his car had been taken to Toronto that afternoon by his brother-in-law, but refused to tell police who his brother-in-law was or where he lived.

Principal Reports School Attendance

HAVELOCK, Sept. 14.—(ENS).—At the meeting of the Board of Education, Principal W. M. Patterson stated that the average attendance in his room was 31, in Mrs. R. W. Goheen's room 37 and the junior rooms ranged from 30 to 33. Plans were being made he said to supervise the recess periods.

Principal A. C. Reid of the High School suggested that it would be wise to have the teachers in the school twenty minutes before opening in order to supervise the behavior of those arriving early.

The board made the following grants to the schools: Public School library supplies, $25; Field Day, $10; High School library supplies, $25; Field Day, $15. Principal Reid was also authorized to purchase the necessary number of geography text books. The public school field day is to be held the last of September or first of October.

Accounts authorized paid were: teachers', caretaker's and secretary's salaries, $1,179.48.

When the meeting adjourned the board met with the town council in the council chamber to request the use of the town hall, except on days when in use, for school recreation purposes during the severe weather. The matter was laid over by the council for future consideration.

Extend Facilities

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 14 — (CP). — It was learned here last night that hospital facilities at the R.C.A.F. technical training school here are being expanded to take care of 700 to 1,000 patients and that the school will be used to relieve the situation at Toronto's Christie Street Military Hospital.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

CAN YOU COUNT NINE?

IF YOU can count as high as nine, it will pay you to do it sometimes when defending against a No Trump game contract as well as when you are the declarer. If you see the declarer is pretty sure to have within one of the number of tricks he requires, you may decide that continuing your own suit is likely to build the one additional trick he seeks. If that is the case, a switch to whatever seems to be the weak spot of his hand may turn the tide.

Pursuant to his partner's bid, East led the heart 7, and West quickly took the Q K and A, then led the 9 to the J. North had nothing left to do now but score five tricks in clubs and three in spades, making his game without effort.

West could have beaten that contract. After two hearts, a bit of counting could have shown him the danger that the declarer might have a total of eight tricks in sight in the black suits, and that setting up a heart trick for him might settle the issue. Had he done this, he might have considered it prudent to whack at the diamond weakness in the dummy, leading his own diamond Q, in the hope that North held just what he did, the guarded K. That would have given his side a chance to score four tricks in diamonds and three in hearts, and anyway a certain three in each if the diamonds got played so that the suit blocked.

Minister Appeals To Council To Begin Waterworks System

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 14 —(ENS) — As a result of an appeal by Rev. S. A. R. Wood, the Village Council sanctioned a motion "proposing that the village favor establishment of a waterworks system in the village and recommends that citizens seriously consider supporting this project in the interests of health, post-war employment, and in order to encourage industrial and residential development.

Mr. Wood, in his plea at the Council session held this week, stated that they have a beautiful village, but that in this day and age they should not have to carry their water from wells that were very often polluted. He claimed that many of these water sources were dry in summer and citizens had to be supplied with water hauled in barrels. He felt that action should be taken in the interests of health and general standard of living.

Do It Now.

Pointing out that now was a grand opportunity for action, Mr. Wood said that many post-war projects would be under way throughout the country, all hope very shortly, and that in all likelihood Government assistance would be available. He felt that some move towards this should be taken now in order that plans be ready when the Government was ready to offer aid.

One of the feature attractions of the project, Mr. Wood believed, would be the building of many new homes in the village as a result, bringing a reduction in general taxation.

Reeve Agrees.

Reeve Scriver stated he felt the same way, had always favored the former plan, and believed the Government would be prepared to assist with the project, but it was unlikely to give any estimate as to what percentage they would pay.

Councillor Grant was oft he opinion that the last project fell through due to the fact that the idea was not properly publicized and benefits were not adequately explained to the citizens in general. He suggested that public meetings be held in order that the citizens could voice their views and the whole matter be properly discussed so that the plan receive the support it would need.

Councillors Graham, Doubt, and Charlton favored general meetings of the citizens to be called as soon as facts and figures regarding the project could be obtained. The Reeve felt that the inclusion of sewage disposal would be too costly, and Councillor Graham agreed that it would be above the village's pocket.

Councillor Grant thought a central line for sewage might be established with others to go in later.

Away Behind.

George Baker, proprietor of the local News, stated that practically all villagesi n the province of any size and many with only 500 population have waterworks, with most of them paid for, and stated it seemed a shame that a village like Lakefield should have gone without for so long.

A rather stormy interlude occurred when the Reeve announced that Gordon Holden, District Ration Officer, had telephoned him that morning requesting the village to supply a petty cash account for the local ration office.

Clerk E. H. Northey flatly refused, stating that it would add considerable to his duties in having to open and keep track of a separate ledger in order that the government be fully informed so that the village could be reimbursed. Councillor Graham was of the opinion that the Ration Board should provide it and handle it themselves.

Councillor Reg. Doubt thought the Board should not only handle the matter but should pay the local officer a salary sufficient, instead of the pittance now paid for work covering the village and entire north country.

Like to See Order

W. C. Grant claimed he would like to see the order-in-council authorizing the Ration Board to force this on the village and was of the opinion that it was not the village's obligation.

Need Surveying

George Graham reported that he had an inquiry from a resident regarding the purchase of a village lot at the rear of John Sanderson's but it appears that the majority of the seven village lots purchased at various times at tax sales, cannot be sold due to the fact that no clear deeds can be given, and considerable surveying will need to be done before any can be sold. Action in this line in the near future was proposed.

Numerous complaints about the village dump were reported due to the careless dumping of refuse much of it on the driveways. The clerk reported that $40 had already been spent this year on the dump with very little to show for it. George Graham stated that the condition that dump was in, it is not safe for truck tires to back to the edge.

George Charlton proposed that a man be put at the dump to supervise reloadings half a day a week and the Reeve went a step further and proposed that it be fenced, with the result that the council decided to have the dump covered with Nepheline dust, the property fenced and a man put in charge for dumping on certain days.

Fair Grant

Herbert Abbott, president of the Fair Board, was granted the usual $50 for the annual fair.

Chief Garnet Samis in his report for August showed three court cases, two for vagrancy settled with 6 months suspended sentences, and one for breaking and entering given two years less a day. One case of a theft of corn from Stanley Richardson was settled with the boys agreeing to pay the costs.

The theft of a bicycle from Maryalyce Renwick on August 18, is not yet cleared up.

Accounts Paid

Accounts were passed as follows: N. A. Moore, park lumber $37.85, Mrs. Martin, park wash $6.83, Chief Samis, 1st half August salary $51.20, weed cutting $32.55, J. Syntona Proves Big Help Second Time In Four Years

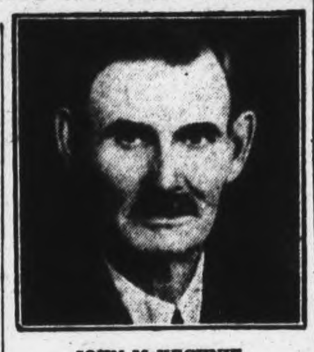
"First Relieved Me Of Stomach And Kidney Disorders And Now Again It Has Come To My Aid In Relieving Nervous, Rundown Condition," Says Mr. John McKechnie.



JOHN McKECHNIE

"After the good experiences I have had with Syntona I feel that I cannot speak too highly of this herb and root medicine," said Mr. John McKechnie, 72 Clements St., London, Ont., recently.

"I first became acquainted with Syntona when I was suffering with stomach and kidney disorders. I had a dull aching pain across my back and was compelled to rise three or four times each night to relieve my kidneys. My stomach was so upset that I could seldom enjoy a meal without suffering with gas, bloating and acidity.

"I had tried many remedies but got no real relief. Then I started taking Syntona. Gradually my troubles began to disappear. The backaches went away. I could eat without any digestive trouble after, my sleep became sound and restful and in a few weeks I was feeling fit and well again.

"I remained in good health up to a few months ago when I became badly rundown. I felt weak and tired and my nerves were such that I thought I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. I'd get terrible dizzy spells and aches and pains all through my arms and limbs. Remembering how Syntona had helped me before I decided to try it again and now for the second time it has given me wonderful results. After taking it faithfully for six weeks I am like a different person, I have regained my lost strength and put on some much-needed weight. My nerves have calmed down. I do not get those sickening dizzy spells any more and the aches and pains have gone away.

"Syntona is the best medicine I've ever found, and I highly endorse it to everyone."

Rely upon Syntona. It contains 12 herbs and roots, which act on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels It aids assimilation of food for increased energy and resistance and in ridding the system of excess acids and poisonous waste matter.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott'sDrug Store.—(Advt.)

Gale Sweeps Across Nova Scotia

Believed Heading Out To Sea; No Damage Yet

HALIFAX, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Nearing the end of its gigantic swath of destruction along the continent's eastern seaboard, the roaring tropical hurricane is expected soon to head into the North Atlantic away from land.

Meteorological Bureau officials, hampered by lack of communications with some Maritime points, say the centre of the storm passed through Pennfield Ridge, N.B., and will pass within 20 miles of Moncton this afternoon. They predict the big gale will just skirt the north-west edge of Prince Edward Island and pass up the Gulf of St. Lawrence into the open Atlantic.

The centre of the storm was computed to have passed almost directly over President Roosevelt's famous summer camp on Campobello Island off the New Brunswick coast about 10 o'clock this morning, passed within 15 or 20 miles of Saint John city, officials said.

Farmers Uneasy.

No reports of storm damage in the Maritimes have been received yet. Communication lines are down in a number of areas.

A wind speed of 64 miles per hour was registered at Debert Military Camp, near Truro, N.S., while at Halifax the winds reached 55 miles an hour. No word has been received from meteorological stations in New Brunswick. In Prince Edward Island the wind was reported increasing in velocity.

Department of Agriculture officials said this afternoon damage to the Annapolis Valley's $6,000,000 apple crop was not disastrous, although valley farmers had sustained "quite a loss." No estimate of the damage was available. An estimated 90 per cent of the apple crop was still on the trees when the fringes of the hurricane struck the famous fruit-growing belt.

Vessels scurried frantically to Nova Scotia's fishing ports last night and this morning, battening down everything that was loose.

Bombs Riddle Huge Transports

LONDON, Sept. 15 (CP) — American heavy bombers from Italy blasted three airdromes today in the Athens area—all crowded with German transport planes rushed to the south for the evacuation of military personnel in Greece—a few hours after the R.A.F. had raided the same fields for the second successive night.

Between 250 and 500 American heavy bombers showered fragmentation bombs, which are particularly destructive to aircraft, on Eleusis, Tatoi and Kalamaki airfields and obtained good results, it was announced.

R.A.F. Beaufighters and Mosquitos from Britain blew up an escort vessel and set afire three merchant ships in a Germany convoy surprised off Kristiansand and in southern Norway early last night. Lancasters pin-pointed their bombs on an ammunition depot in the Netherlands in the only heavy-bomber operation from Britain yesterday.

U.S. 9th Air Force fighter-bombers bagged 14 locomotives, seven Rhine barges and 20 horse-drawn troop wagons.

Dive bombers worked over 10 German troop trains behind the Siegfried Line east of Aachen, where horsedrawn reinforcements were also shot up.

Russians, Poles Penetrate Defences Of Warsaw Proper

By DANIEL DE LUCE—Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 15—(AP).—Russian and Polish troops were believed storming into Warsaw proper today across the broad and swift Vistula from the captured industrial suburb of Praga. Front dispatches said four Vistula bridges still were standing. Pravda said Russian batteries had been warned not to fire at the bridges because "we are going to need them."

Another Russian force 30 miles to the south was across the Vistula in the Warka region threatening to outflank scorched ruins of the capital city of 1,265,700. No crossing of the Vistula has been reported north of Warsaw. Between Praga and the city proper, the river is 500 to 600 yards wide.

The climatic battle for Warsaw, besieged from without since summer and from within by Polish Partisans, was directed by Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, himself Polish-born.

The assault on Warsaw surpassed in importance other Red successes on the eastern front, although these included:

Many Successes.

1. Capture of a third to a half of the 16,642 square miles of Transylvania which Hitler assigned to Hungary. The provincial capital of Cluj, the 1,000,000 population of which makes the largest Romanian-claimed city still in enemy hands, was outflanked and within artillery range of Russians 13 miles to the south.

2. A thrust across the Narew river from captured Nowogrod, Polish railroad town 15 miles south of East Prussia.

3. The thrust of strong patrols into the East Beskid mountains of Czechoslovakia, seeking to link up with Slovak Partisans.

4. An increasing penetration into Northern Serbia, where Marshal Tito announced his Yugoslav Partisan army already has joined forces with the Red army near Negotin.

Police Seeking Murder Weapon

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP) — A party of Ontario Provincial Police today searched rivers and swamps in the Trenton area for a .303 calibre rifle officials believe was used in the killing of Mrs. Austin Smith of Detroit at Port Franks on Lake Huron last weekend.

The police were accompanied by Private Irwin William Stata, 16-year-old native of Chesterville in Eastern Ontario, who was arrested yesterday and charged with murder in Mrs. Smith's death. He was arrested by Provincial Officers who had been watching the home of his mother, a Toronto war worker, on Euclid avenue in the west-central section of the city.

Police did not say where in the Trenton area they would search for the rifle except to say they were going to that area. One said "we have a rough idea where it is" and another said "we believe it was thrown in the river."

Stata was arraigned briefly in a Toronto court late yesterday and remanded. He will be taken to Sarnia in a few days for preliminary hearing.

The youthful soldier, still in uniform, was calm as he was taken from the Parliament Buildings. He appeared before Magistrate R. J. Browne, and was remanded to the Don Jail. Stata will be sent to Sarnia within the next few days to face a preliminary hearing on the murder charge.

The authorities were silent as to the motive for the murder of Mrs. Smith, who was Canadian born. The woman was shot twice through the back. Robbery may not have been the motive, as valuable rings had not been stripped from her fingers, as first reported. Entry into the summer cottage was made by slitting the screen door, permitting the door to be unlatched.

Stata made no effort to escape when confronted by Inspector Arthur Palmer, C.I.B., and Special Officer Osborne Dempster, who had been keeping watch on the Euclid Avenue house. The loaded automatic was found in a trouser pocket.

Canadian Tanks Cross Marano

ROME, Sept. 15 — (CP). — Canadian troops of the British 8th Army on the Adriatic sector of the Italian front have crossed the Marano River with tanks and infantry after hard fighting and driven to within a mile of the Rimini airfield, it was announced today.

The 8th Army also cleared the Coriano-San Savino Ridge and smashed Nazi tank-supported counter-attacks.

Allied 5th Army troops have seized Monte Calvi and Ponte Di Moriano, both about four miles north of Lucca in an area 15 miles from the west coast of Italy.

16 Miles Beyond Arno

This advance, the deepest northward penetration in the west coast sector, carried British and American troops some 16 miles beyond the Arno River, from where they jumped off in the present offensive.

Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans on the whole 8th Army front in heavy fighting Sept. 13, it was announced.

Headquarters said air reconnaissance showed clearly that the Germans were using the neutral republic of San Marino in eastern Italy for supplies, gun areas and motor transport.

"Guns within the republic are being engaged by our air force and artillery as on other sectors of the

Conference Reaches Final Phase

Future Meetings Likely Between 2 Chiefs

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Sept. 15 — (CP). — The second Quebec conference is in its "closing phase" and will conclude tomorrow after reaching world-changing decisions relating to the final phases of the European and the intensification of the Pacific War.

Future meetings of President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, however, may take place. At today's press conference Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, emphasized that it is the "conference at Quebec" which is ending tomorrow but declined to elaborate on the possibility of any future meeting.

"I can't say," was his only reply.

It was also disclosed today that the Canadian conferences being held in conjunction with the direct British-United States talks are being broadened to include discussions by the Canadian chiefs of staff with American as well as British chiefs of staff.

Canadians' Job

The Canadian-British discussions have been in progress at intervals and are believed to concern the relative roles of Canadian and British forces with in the framework of the over-all military plan approved by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill.

"It's news to me," said Mr. Early when a reporter asked if there was any truth in a published report that Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec who is on his way to Rome, was carrying a message to the Pope from one or both of the principals at the Quebec conference.

Foreign Secretary Eden sat in on the Quebec Victory Conference deliberations to-day as Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt apparently switched other deliberations from the Pacific to the speedy downfall of Germany and means of curbing any war-making tendencies by that nation in future.

There were indications before Mr. Eden's unexpectedly-early arrival from Britain last night that decisions relating to the war against Japan had been made in short order by the president and prime minister. Now it is taken for granted that the plans for moving great Allied forces from the European theatre to the Far East are virtually complete.

Grateful Britain Recalls Great Air Battle Of 1940

By ALAN RANDAL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Sept. 15 —(CP Cable) —Four years ago at this time and on this side of the English Channel only "the few" of the R. A. F. stood between the world and the conquering Nazis.

Those are the men—many of them Canadians— a grateful Britain is remembering to-day with a commemoration parade at which Lord Dowding, then Commander-in-Chief of Fighter Command, is taking the salute their accomplishments will be remembered again Sunday with a special anniversary service in Westminster Abbey.

Some still are operational pilots. Others are in high spots in ground jobs. A good number of the few died in the very air battles that meant eventual doom to German hopes of conquest.

Exactly four years ago to-day those men of the battle of Britain had their greatest day, shooting down 185 German aircraft.

As pilot officers during the battle of Britain, R. C. A. F. fighter pilots who now rank as wing commanders and group captains flew side by side with Britons and men from other commonwealth countries in the tumbling dog-fights which changed the course of the war and saved millions of lives.

One of them was Wing Cmdr. Dal Russel, D. F. C. and Bar, of Westmount, Que., who now leads an R. C. A. F. Spitfire Wing in France. This Montreal ace, with Group Capt. Ernie McNab of Regina and Group Capt. G. R. McGregor of Montreal, then respectively Squadron Leader and Flight Lieutenant, were the first three Canadian Air Force men to receive decorations from the King in this war. Each had at least four enemy aircraft destroyed that time.

An R. A. F. squadron which had an important battle of Britain role was the famed all-Canadian Squadron formed in the Fall of 1939 with pilots from among scores of Canadians already serving in the R. A. F. and number one Canadian Fighter Squadron under McNab took part in the battle during that summer and autumn of 1940, the forerunner of Canadian fighter squadrons which later wrote a blazing chapter in to the history of air warfare.

A pilot officer, Stan Turner, of Toronto, was awarded the D. F. C. three weeks after the Sept. 15 battle for shooting down two Germans with his own aircraft partially disabled. He is still fighting in a leading wing in Italy in which the Canadian City of Windsor squadron flies, and holds the D. S. O. and a bar to his D. F. C. after fighting in the battle of Malta and in the African desert.

Canadians Lose Bridgehead Along Canal

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN BELGIUM, Sept. 15—(CP Cable).—In the face of strong German opposition Canadian infantry have been forced to give up their narrow bridgehead over the vital Leopold Canal at Moerkerke, near Brugge (Bruges), as enemy resistance stiffened along the most formidable water barrier Lt.-Gen. Crerar's troops have faced in Europe.

The Canadians were stubbornly clinging to their toe-hold over the 270-foot-wide canal when enemy resistance suddenly surged up in a blaze of artillery and mortar fire while German machine-gunners along the flat ground beside the canal opened up with fierce machine-gun fire.

For several hours there was heavy fighting. Then the Canadians were ordered back to the west of the canal and by late yesterday afternoon had completed their withdrawal.

Today the Canadians were faced with the problem of cracking open the tough defence of strong, well-placed German rearguards seeking to hold open an escape corridor to Holland for several thousands of their troops still between the canal and the Scheldt.

A Fierce Battle.

The Canadian crossing of the Gent Canal about four miles south of Brugge was a pointer to the stiff battles the Canadians may have to fight to get across the Leopold. The Gent Canal is only 40 feet wide, but the battle there lasted four days.

Engineers had to build a Bailey bridge across the Leopold in the face of the concentrated fire of artillery and mortars that compared with the shelling Canadians had experienced at Caen.

The Leopold is a double waterway, nearly 300 feet wide in places, with twin 120-foot water passages running astride a 30-foot bank. Every

Allies Smash Ashore On Two Islands

Americans Drive Closer To Philippine Target

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY
Associated Press War Correspondent

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 15—(AP) —American assault forces converging on the Philippines from the south and east landed at unidentified points on the fortress-like Palau Islands and at Morotai in the Halmahera Islands to-day (Manila time) on the heels of a crushing aerial bombardment.

(The Tokyo radio said to-day the invasion of the Palau Islands took place on the south-west coast of the Island of Peleliu. Peleliu is at the southern end of the Palau Islands.)

Marines and Army assault forces from Admiral Nimitz's Central Pacific Command landed on the Palau group, 600 miles east of Mindanao Island in the Philippines, while Gen. MacArthur's landing troops made a surprise attack on Morotai, 300 miles south of Mindanao.

Both commanders, now operating their forces as a co-ordinated team squeezing Japan's prize conquest of the Pacific War, announced the invasions a few hours after they were accomplished, indicating initial success and confidence in the outcome.

(The Tokyo broadcast, as recorded by the Associated Press, claimed without any confirmation that 2,500 American troops were killed in the first 2½ hours and that the "enemy was repulsed" after a landing in which the invaders used "more than 40 ships of all tonnage," in the Palau attack.

All Cut Off.

(Tokyo thus far has not made any reference to the invasion of Morotai Island.)

Japan's ability to send immediate aid to the invaded islands was knocked out by the crushing aerial battle of the Philippines which in four days of U. S. carrier plane attacks wiped out 501 enemy planes and 173 surface craft.

Invasion of Palau represents an 825-mile advance from Guam.

Japan had developed the islands as a powerful naval, air and seaplane base, but their defences were badly battered under an almost continuous nine-day American air bombardment. Surface ships shelled the islands repeatedly during this period, finally moving in for the barrage immediately preceding the invasion.

Conquest of Palau will cut off the 2,000 mile Caroline Island chain which has been bombed from end to end, and leave its large garrisons, including Truk, faced by the prospects of surrender as the only alternative to starvation and continued bombings. Palau was the Japanese headquarters for the mandated islands.

German Troops Battle Finns

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 15 — (AP). — The Finns announced today that the Germans, their former partners in arms on the eastern front, attacked the Finnish island of Hogland during the night after a surrender ultimatum was flatly rejected.

A Finnish communique said the assaults were repelled "except at one point, where the mopping up of the German bridgehead is continuing this morning."

The German attack was the first outbreak of hostilities between the Germans and Finns since the Finns broke diplomatic relations with Germany Sept. 2 and ordered the Germans to quit all Finland by Sept. 15.

A Key Island

The garrisoned island, also known as Suursaari, is in the Finnish Gulf about midway between Kotka and Narva. It is important as a control point for German attempts to blockade the Russian Baltic Fleet. The island also has protected the northern flank of German forces trapped by the Russians in Estonia and Latvia.

A Finnish broadcast said the Finnish cabinet and officers of the diet were summoned to an emergency meeting today to consider "matters connected with Premier Hantti Hackzell's illness." The broadcast was reported by the office of war information. Hackzell, head of the Finnish armistice delegation, was stricken in Moscow last night with a brain hemorrhage which was said to have left him paralyzed.

Seek Rustlers

HAMILTON, Sept. 15 — (CP).—Days of the old West were recalled this week with the information that Provincial Police here are hunting for eight cattle, believed by them to have been stolen from a farmer at East Flamboro. The cattle were at first thought to have strayed but investigation has led police to believe that they were stolen.

The great Atlantic hurricane blew out to sea off Maine to-day and headed toward Saint John, N. B., leaving in its wake death and wide-spread damage throughout the northeastern United States.

Twenty death were attributed to the storm and damage was estimated to be in the millions, Long Branch, N. J., alone reported more than $2,000,000 destruction.

Gales of 80 to 100 miles an hour whipped heavy rains, ripped buildings, snapped power and telephone lines, uprooted trees and disrupted transportation services.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company reported 300,000 telephones out of order from Pennsylvania to Maine.

The storm on Long Island and in New England was exceeded in violence only by the devastating hurricane of Sept. 21, 1938, which battered the same area, taking more than 600 lives and causing damage estimated at $500,000,000.

Atlantic City and neighboring New Jersey coastal resorts appeared to have suffered the greatest damage. Mountainous waves struck the board-walk sections of these cities while a 90-mile wind tore off roofs of some apartment houses and damaged other dwellings, leaving hundreds homeless. Both the famous large piers at Atlantic City suffered heavy damage from high seas and a smaller pier was reported almost destroyed.

Ocean City, Md., another resort community, was awash in a foot of water before the storm advanced northward.

Long Island, southeastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island also bore the full brunt of the gale, but its force was not as great as had been anticipated.

7 Die in New York

A majority of the smaller towns of Long Island were without light and power after the storm, communications and transportation were almost completely disrupted and roads were littered with torn wires and toppled trees.

The New York city area and Connecticut escaped with comparatively little damage, although seven of the recorded deaths were in greater New York.

The storm winds reached a record of 96 miles an hour in New York, a 100-mile reading was recorded at Camp Edwards, on Long Island and Boston reported a wind velocity of 96 miles an hour.

Water rose to a depth of two feet

Russians Drop Supplies In Warsaw

LONDON, Sept. 15 — (CP-Reuter) —General Bor, commander-in-chief of the Warsaw insurgents announced today that the Russians have dropped their first help to Warsaw.

In today's communique on the fighting of the Polish home army he says:

"On Sept. 14, on the 45th day of the fighting in the capital, the Russians dropped small amounts of food and arms on the suburbs of Warsaw.

"It is the first attempt of this kind from the Russian side."

Allies Push 10 Miles Into Reich

First Complete Belt Of West Wall Hurled By Army

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 15 (AP) — The cities of Nancy and Maastricht, strongholds at opposite ends of a 180-mile front, fell today to the battering offensive of Allied armies which had driven with shattering force into the depths of the Siegfried Line at three places.

Nancy, a famed French bastion of 121,000 on the banks of the Meurthe in a crook south of the Moselle, fell in the southern onslaught of the United States 3rd Arm at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. E.D.T.)

EXTRA!

IN THE SIEGFRIED LINE, Sept. 15—6:40 p.m. — (AP) — Slashing through the first belt of the Siegfried fortifications, American troops drove today 10 miles into Germany, north of the ancient city of Trier.

Maastricht, Netherlands city guarding the Meuse canal where the Germans made their fateful crossing into Belgium in 1940, fell during fierce penetrations of German defences north of half encircled Aachen, the German high command admitted.

Nancy, 14th city of France and historic scene of some of French resistance both in ancient times and in the First Great War, is 68 miles from the Strasbourg crossing of the Rhine.

Allied announcements and dispatches said three penetrations from two to eight miles deep and six to nine miles wide—one of them completely through the first belt of fortifications—had been made in the line toward the Rhine cities of Cologne and Coblenz.

British 2nd Army units to the north were mopping up the last pockets of German resistance in a new slaughter-ground between the Escaut and Albert Canals.

Dispatches reaching here indicated the Germans had helped to close the Escaut-Albert trap on themselves by blowing up all bridges

Chinese Join Forces In Burma

CHUNGKING, Sept. 15 —(AP)— Chinese forces in North Burma and China's Yunnan Province have established contact somewhere in Yunnan and the Chinese now are in full control of a trail between Myitkyina and Tengchung, a Chinese army spokesman announced today.

The two Chinese forces have been driving over wild, mountainous country in an attempt to open an over-land supply route to China from India.

Myitkyina, the former Japanese stronghold in North Burma, has been in Allied hands for some time. Tengchung, 70 miles southeast of Myitkyina, fell to Chinese troops yesterday following a siege which began last June 26. Preceding the final assault American bombers had skip-bombed holes in its ancient walls. Tengchung is 35 miles from the Burma road and for two years was a Japanese base on commanding Allied aproaches to the Burma Road.

Farther east Japanese troops surging down the Hunan-Kwangsi Railway now are just a little more than 60 miles from Kweilin, the army spokesman said.

Hurricane Delays Delegates

Premier King To Open UNRRA Group

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (CP) — Opening ceremonies of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration, scheduled for this afternoon, probably will be delayed until Monday owing to delay in the arrival of 350 delegates from United States points.

A special train carrying the delegates was expected to be at least 2 hours late arriving here, due to damage caused by a hurricane along the eastern seaboard of the United States.

Under tentative arrangements made here, there would be two short business meetings held tomorrow to appoint committees, and the actual official opening, to be addressed by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, would take place Monday.

It was understood here that Mr. King who has been at Quebec in connection with the conference of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, will not arrive here until Monday.

The meeting to be "wide open for discussion" on the relief and restoration of nations where war has brought privation, is to be attended by 500 persons although only 44 with voting powers will sit around the U-shaped table in the main assembly hall.

Canadians In South Pacific

10 Officers Study Battle Technique

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Sept. 15 (AP)—Ten Canadian army officers went ashore with American combat troops today in the invasion of Morotai Island in the Moluccas. They were the first Canadians to study American battle technique in the Southwest Pacific.

Led by Lt.-Col. Henry F. Cotton, the group went along not only as observers but also as members of combat teams.

Majors D. M. Ramsay of Calgary R. J. Wild of Prince Albert, Sask., and B. L. McGreevy, already had studied warfare in the Marianas.

Col. Cotton, whose wife and son live at Vancouver, B.C., said "We haven't much respect for the Jap except for his tenacity. He will dig in every chance he gets and he's hard to dig out. We think he's weak in the upper."

Others in the group included Majors J. R. Boulanger of Montreal, S. F. Turner of Toronto, and Captains Alfred Fortier of Ottawa, J. E. Hudson of Winnipeg, Roy M. Wild of Victoria, B.C., and G. J. Piggott of Hamilton, Ont.

Unusual Courage of Plaintiff, 79, Rouses Admiration in Court

An eloquent tribute was paid to a little old woman, maimed of body but stout and sterling of heart, in Mr. Justice Plaxton's court Thursday afternoon.

Probably its full and inner significance escaped Mrs. Lily Stuart, plaintiff in a suit for damages, and the small audience of undramatic litigation, even the trial jury, more or less unseasoned to the atmosphere of a county seat of law and unperceiving of its subtleties and overtones. But, it was actual and authentic and rare.

Mrs. Stuart was critically injured by an automobile as she crossed George street, north of Dublin street, at 9.20 p.m. August 15, 1942. Death was repulsed only by injection of blood plasma, according to the statements of Dr. Robert Young, and Mrs. Margaret Helson, attending nurse. In the suit for damages against the owner and driver of the car, jointly, Thursday morning, Mrs. Stuart was the first witness called by her counsel, T. J. Carley, K.C.

Now in her seventy-ninth year, Mrs. Stuart declined the suggestion of Mr. Carley that she might prefer to sit on the witness stand. At seventy-seven her right leg was fractured in both bones below the knee, her nose was broken, her face torn and bruised, both eyes blackened, and she had suffered body bruises, especially on the right chest, and shock. And her right arm was so badly crushed by the automobile's blow that it was amputated above the elbow an hour later at Nicholls Hospital.

Walked Spryly

It might be truly said of the plaintiff that she was hardly a potent witness for Mrs. Lily Stuart. At least that might be a superficial impression. She had walked spryly to the witness stand, with scarcely an accent of lameness or other effect of that double fracture of the leg, two years ago when she was seventy-seven. And then she proceeded in reply to Mr. Carley's examination to discount the pain and suffering caused by that crushing impact of a big taxi car....It wasn't much, so she said, during the first month of recovery at the hospital....and later until Thanksgiving Day in her rooms at her sister's house, 578 Division street .. Oh, well! There had been some pain at the hospital and afterwards, but the strongest memory and the strangest, was the sensory illusion of full possession of her right hand; as if it were still at her side, but bent slightly at the elbow.

The plaintiff emphasized that phenomenon of her nervous and muscular system, the continuing feeling of wholeness of the arm so long habituated to its place at her side and at her service in all her manual doings, even to such an essential action as washing her hands. But she eventually found herself with only one; and one hand cannot wash itself...Not much pain to her broken nose and bruised body, at 77, crashed to the street.

Possibly Mr. Carley felt that he had to fix the fences of his case where his plaintiff had neglected to nail on some upper boards. In examining Dr. Robert Young he dwelt on the element of pain Mrs. Stuart had suffered, receiving ample confirmation from the physician who is obviously still surprised at this patient who was thrust so suddenly into his case one summer night two years ago, and particularly at the lightness of her step today....Dr. Young would probably say that he had an excellent patient.

And Mr. Carley called Mrs. Margaret Helson, and was going about the business of reminding the jury that his patient had suffered a great deal—although she had brushed the recollection aside—because, in these cases, it may be said, damages are claimed for shock and suffering in addition to more tangible losses and disabilities.

Lot of Suffering

"She suffered a great deal," Mrs. Helson was saying, and with factual positiveness that left no doubt about the sincerity and sympathy of her evidence. Mr. Carley was seeking something to impinge upon the sensibilities of the jury—something impressive to remain in their feelings when they were approaching their decision as to damages. He was asking Mrs. Helson how the suffering was manifested; and the witness replied, "the pain was manifested by moaning and groaning, and by her appearance; you can tell from experience."

If Mrs. Stuart had scorned a justifiable "build up," then her counsel was evidently going to prop it up here and there, and fill gaps Mrs. Stuart had left unsaid, certainly unemphasized.

That phrase "moaning and groaning" by Mrs. Helson, natural and unstudied, must have been grateful sound to Mr. Carley. He possibly winced a bit himself, vicariously for his client.

"I really think the injection of plasma saved her," Mrs. Helson was continuing as Mr. A. A. MacDonald, defense counsel from Toronto, quietly intervened. His method is gentle and suave and considerate, especially questioning an old lady of 79 years but of head unbowed, for whom he must have formed an immediate respect.

"We have the evidence of Mrs. Stuart herself, on this point," Mr. MacDonald said to Mr. Justice Plaxton, and behind his words was the fact that Mrs. Stuart had avoided any expression of sympathy for herself. Perhaps never in her life had she retreated behind such weakness...And Mrs. Stuart told us that she had not suffered much pain, Mr. MacDonald was saying, but he did not finish the sentence, because Mr. Carley indicated by returning to his table that he was through tending to that "pain and suffering" aspect of the case... albeit quite a proper aspect.

So, that was the tribute to Mrs. Stuart, and its eloquence was heightened by the very restraint of her own words and attitude, obvious understatement, that might have been translated into the light gesture of snapping of fingers at that factor of pain and sufering.

When in that court room was there a plaintiff like this little old lady of seventy-nine, only four feet eleven inches tall, her estimate, seeking damages and making light of her hurts and bodily impairments for the rest of her life? Not a word of bitterness against anyone! Imagine that natural expression of a sturdy and still battling spirit—her smiling refusal to sit down on the witness stand...And then compare Mrs. Stuart with the counterfeits in exaggeration of injuries and magnifying of right to damages, who had preceded her through the local court. Man or woman, young or old,—scan them all and then assay the quality of spirit of this little woman of seventy-nine. There may have been some, for the Peterborough court is now an old institution, but extremely few of such rugged character, downright honesty and integrity.—A woman who can take such blows at seventy-seven as Mrs. Lily Stuart suffered throughout that late summer and autumn and on into the winter two years ago, must have gone all the way through life with rare relaxing into self-pity. It is probably foreign to her nature.

When counsel in a damages action has to call up reserves of evidence to wring for his client the sympathies of the jury, that is news, and worth elaborating. The tribute to Mrs. Stuart came by indirection both from Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Carley, and from their opposing interests; and the resident spirit of the big court room must have smiled amiably on Mrs. Lily Stuart —in the recollection of preceding obvious shams and falsities in both word and act—as she walked back from the witness box to a chair near Mr. Carley, almost jauntily, certainly without accentuation of halt or lameness in her steps.

Past the twelve jurors, arbiters of her suit for damages, so honest and far above deceit, that it never occurred to her to falter or limp,—at least a little for sympathetic effect. Strong men have done it, upright of body but crooked of conscience; the parade of perjury and falsehood and deception in the hope of gain by jury's verdict or judge's decision.

The jury may not give her a dollar's damages. No one can surely predict what any jury will do. Possibly the law does not provide for compensation in whatever were the circumstances of this accident—. But if the old court room and its crowded memories will only keep fresh an orchid remembrance of Mrs. Lily Stuart it will be a felicity she deserves. That room sees and hears not frequently a plaintiff so refreshingly genuine as Mrs. Lily Stuart. And still pleasingly feminine, too, at seventy-nine, in a blue figured dress she wore Thursday afternoon; a different one from the morning...and behind her at home, a sister, solicious, helpful, according to bits of evidence,—but that is peering beyond the revelations of the court room scene.

Maj.-Gen. Vokes Awarded Medal

OTTAWA, Sept. 15. — (CP). — Appointment of Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, 40, of Ottawa, commander of the 1st Division in Italy, as Commander of the Order of the British Empire and mention in dispatches of Maj. Allan Gordon Magee, 24, of Montreal, were announced today by Defence Headquarters.

Gen. Vokes has served through Sicily and Italy and was awarded the Distinguished Service Order for his gallantry in action during the battle for Leonforte in Sicily in July, 1943.

Maj. Magee has served with the Canadian Infantry Corps since entering the service, July, 1940. There is no citation accompanying his mention in dispatches. 5

Three Homers Feature Game

Although they scored 10 times in the last three innings, Nashau dropped an Industrial League Softball game to Quaker Oats at Memorial Park Thursday evening, as the Porridge boys nosed them out with a 13 to 11 count, in nine-innings of play. Nashua couldn't seem to get started during the first six innings, when the Quakers scored 11 of their 13 runs, and the rally in the last stages of the game proved not enough to take the tilt.

The game was a home-run festival, with the elusive circuit blows making three appearances, first by Quakers' Ash, in the fourth, and Nashuas' Locks, in the seventh, and Lewis, in the ninth.

Hurling for the Nashua boys, Montgomery whiffed 6, walked 2, but the opposition pounded 14 blows. Horton held the mound for Quakers, striking out 3, walking 6, and allowing 11 hits.

For the Quakers, Horton made four hits out of six trips to the plate, and with Weaver's 3 smacks, and a homer by Ash, they made up the Quaker hitting stars for the game. Nashua's Maudsley got on more times than any other player, with four hits out of five times at bat. Lewis, Loucks and Martyn completed the hitting roster for Nashua.

The teams:

Quakers—Sullivan 2b; Roote ss; Weaver 3b; Horton p; Fisher lf; Townsend c; Ash 1b; Willshaw cf; Tice rf.

Nashua — Rowe 2b; Loucks ss; Martyn lf; Montgomery p; Maudsley 1b; Creary 3b; Lewis cf; White rf; Gilmour c.

Obituary

MRS. L. J. MURRAY

ENNISMORE, Sept. 15 —(ENS)— One of the oldest residents of Ennismore, Mrs. Liza Jane Murray, formerly Liza Jane Perdue, passed away here Thursday after only a brief illness, at the home of her son, Patrick Murray R.R. 2, Ennismore, Lot 1, Concession 5, where she has been living for the past seven years. Well-known in and around Ennismore, Mrs. Murray was in her 86th year.

Born and educated in Ennismore, the daughter of the late Thomas Perdue and Katherine Harrington, she has lived here her entire life, except for a brief period when she resided in Peterborough. Her husband, the late Michael Murray, predeceased her some time ago.

Mrs. Murray, a devout member of St. Martin's Catholic Church, belonged to the Altar Society, and the League of the Sacred Heart.

She leaves to mourn her passing, one son, Patrick, at home, and a sister, Mrs. Maria Gannon, of Ennismore.

The funeral will be Monday from her late residence, R.R. 2 Ennismore, Lot 1, Concession 5, to St. Martin's Church, for a requiem mass at 9 o'clock in the morning. Interment will be in St. Martin's Cemetery.

from the captured industrial district of Praga on the Vistula's east bank, another Russian-Polish column closed in on the capital from the south, where a bridgehead was won on the west side of the river in the vicinity of Warka early in August.

Volunteered for Job.

The Warsaw zone, proclaimed by Hitler as the "interior defence line of Germany," was the objective of an all-out offensive aimed at reaching Germany itself.

Rokossovsky's 1st White Russian Army and the 1st Division of Lt.-Gen. Zigmund Berlin's 1st Polish Army seized Praga after an all-night battle, much of it hand-to-hand fighting.

In addition to Praga the Russians and Poles captured 15 villages and railway stations up and down the Vistula for a distance of 25 to 35 miles.

City Schools To Celebrate Buying Plane

In recognition of the hard work done from January until June by pupils of the city schools who were helping to purchase a $25,000 Hurricane fighting plane by selling war saving stamps, the Board of Education Thursday night, granted the schools permission to forget their books for a half a day and celebrate.

The motion, made by J. T. Carley and D. V. Canning said that the Board granted permission to the schools to take part in any celebration that was planned for October 4. This was in answer to a request from G. Monkman, chairman of the Stamp Sale Committee.

Inspector Keith Wightman pointed out that the pupils had worked very hard to reach their goal and he thought some recognition of their efforts should be made. Mr. Carley declared that he thought the Board should cooperate with the authorities in their celebration.

Leave of Absence.

Two teachers applied for a leave of absence and after some consideration, this was granted. Miss Mary Squire asked to be relieved of her duties until the new term in September 1945 and Miss Francis Boneycastle asked for a leave until January 1, 1945. It was moved by Mr. Carley and Dr. C. M. Scott that Miss Squire be given time off until January 1, 1945, when a further report would be requested on the state of her health, while Mr. Carlev and Mr. Canning moved that Miss Boneycastle's leave also be given.

Two supplies were named to fill the posts vacated, Mrs. Leo Copp has been assigned to King George School to substitute for Miss Squire and Mrs. Helen Kidd will take over at Prince of Wales for Miss Bonneycastle.

There was some division of opinion on the matter of salary. Mr. Carley pointed out that last year, when these experienced teachers taught for the entire year they were paid $1,050 and $100 bonus, not a great deal more than the minimum salary. He emphasized that some teachers without city experience had been hired at a larger amount, and he felt that their experience and willingness demanded a more just settlement.

Valuable Work

"We'd have been on the spot if they hadn't been willing to help us," G. Wilson Craw, chairman declared.

A motion was made by Mr. Canning and Mrs. F. Harris that the supply teachers be paid at the same rate as last year.

An amendment was made by Mr. Carley and Alex Sollitt that they be paid $1,250 plus the bonus.

The amendment was put to a vote and Mrs. R. Parnall and Messrs. Carley, Scott, Reed and Sollitt, voted for it. The motion supported by Mrs. Harris and Mr. Canning was lost.

H. G. Walker, member of the Board of Education, requested a three months release from his duties because of ill health. This leave of absence was granted on a motion by Mr. Canning and Dr. Scott.

Switch Pupils.

Inspector Wightman reported the public school attendance for the new term totaling 3,491. Because of badly crowded conditions, certain redistribution of pupils was necessary and an approximation of this division is as follows: Grade 7 and 8 classes from Confederation and May's schools have been transferred to King Edward and Prince of Wales together with a small number from other grades. Chamberlain street has been set as the tenatitve boundary between Prince of Wales and May's. All the children living north of this street are now at Prince of Wales The total number of North Monaghan pupils transferred into other schools is 148; 50 at King Edward, 90 at Prince of Wales and 8 at Queen Mary.

The attendance at the public schools at present is: Central, 512; King Edward, 483; King George, 444; Prince of Wales, 680; Queen Alexandra, 373; Queen Mary, 510; Park Hill Road, 81; May's, 180; and Confederation, 228.

"Were there many objections about the shift in attendance, asked Mr. Carley.

"Oh yes, but nothing serious," Mr. Wightman countered.

Open New Class

The increased attendance in Grade nine at the Collegiate and the curtailing of space in the class rooms featured Principal C. S. Browne's report. He recommended to the Board that another Grade 9 form be opened and a temporary teacher be procured to act from October 1 until the end of June, 1945. The Principal explained that in such crowded conditions the best instruction could not be given the pupils, and if another teacher was put on the staff, the teaching would be divided between Grade 9 and Grade 10 teachers so that the pupils would have a variety in staff members.

It was moved by Mr. Carley and Mr. Sollitt that the Board advertise for another teacher for the remainder of the school year.

A total of 1,016 pupils is reported at the Collegiate, an increase of 93 over a year ago. Of this increase, 65 students are in Grade 9, and the combined Grade 9's have 374 pupils in Academic and Vocational forms.

Some of the members were interested in the attendance of the Household Economic classes in which 24 girls are registered. Mr. Browne admitted that this was lower than in pre-war years.

"Is it lower because the girls think it is something that they can pick up at home?" queried Mr. Canning.

"That may have something to do with it. They may think they can get it at home, but some don't. Too many girls won't take things which would benefit them," Mr. Browne replied.

He explained that it was being planned next year to bring girls from the Public Schools to view an exhibition of work done by Household Arts classes in the hope that it would create some interest and boost enrolment.

"What does this training lead to?" asked Mr. Canning.

"To a happily married life," quipped Mr. Carley.

"It trains these girls for places in millinery and dress making departments in stores," Mr. Craw explained and Mr. Browne added that the graduates were much in demand.

In explaining the curriculum studied in this department, Mr. Browne said that 50 per cent of the work was academic. The girls took English, mathematics and some science. They missed foreign languages, algebra and geometry, but got some chemistry—chemistry of food and fabrics. The latter is especially valuable for girls who go into stores, he said. They know about weaving and dyes and are an asset to a store staff. In his opinion, the Collegiate principal felt the increase in academic attendance was due to the fact that more money was in circulation.

Due to the resignation of Mrs. H. W. Cooper as janitress at the Collegiate Institute, a motion by Mr. Carley and Mrs. Harris appointed Mrs. Gertrude Nicholson, 129 Maude street, in her place.

Miss Marguerite Rome, Sherbrooke street, applied for permission to teach piano lessons at King Edward and Queen Alexandra schools. Since Mrs. W. H. Moore (Miss Laura McFarlane), wished to be relieved of all schools but King George and Central, it was decided on a motion by Mr. Canning and Dr. Scott, to allow Mrs. Moore to retain her two schools and Miss Rome to commence teaching.

but one across the Escaut before they retreated from the Albert Line. The single remaining bridge, at Degrotte, was seized by Tommies driving toward the Netherlands.

To the northwest the 1st Canadian Army closed in all along the Leopold Canal north of Brugge (Bruges) on a line virtually on the Belgian-Netherlands border.

Last night's front reports said Canadians were fighting hard to retain a bridgehead they had thrown across the difficult Leopold barrier late Tuesday night, but today's Allied communique No. 160 made no mention of such a bridgehead.

German resistance stiffened along the southern outskirts of the fortress city of Aachen, key to the western approaches to Germany's rich industrial Rhineland, which was shelled and being by-passed. Units from the south had approached to within a mile of this partly-ringed city.

Lack Heavy Guns.

Forty miles to the south-east at the German road-junction town of Prum and 30 miles farther south in the north-west outskirts of Trier the Germans had only rifles and machine-guns in a thinly-manned defence zone to pit against tanks and mobile artillery.

The Americans were capitalizing on their advantage in fire-power along the 90-mile assault front extending southward from Aachen. On this front some 1st Army troops had bitten into the Siegfried Line and others were deployed close to the German border.

These were the three great zones of penetration:

1. A nine-mile-wide breach of the German border from a mile south of Aachen to south of captured Rotgen, where U.S. 1st Army swept through the Belgian border villages of Hergenrath and Gemmenich and reached or captured the German towns of Forstebach, Kovshen, Ormhof and others not yet named.

2. A six-mile-wide pathway eight miles deep into the outer concrete pill-boxes of the Siegfried Line to the outskirts of Prum, seven miles east of the Belgian town of St. Vith and 11 miles northeast of the Luxembourg town of Clervaux.

3. A two-mile-deep wedge into the defence zone just northwest of Trier, near the southern end of the 90-mile section. A front dispatch said the Germans fought like fanatics in that area but their pillboxes were lightly-armed and thinly-garrisoned.

Farther south U.S. 3rd Army units slashed east and north from a half-dozen firm bridgeheads across the Moselle River near Nancy. The southernmost of these bridgeheads was at Charmes, 25 miles south of Nancy.

Threaten Nancy

Mirecourt, 10 miles southwest of Charmes, was occupied. Fighting edged closer to the Moselle west of Metz and in Thionville to the north. Infantrymen pushed east of Pont A Mousson between Metz and Nancy.

The Germans said 3rd Army spearheads had reached Chateau Salins, 20 miles southeast of Pont A Mousson, and Luneville, 16 miles southeast of Nancy. Drives across the river to such depths could threaten Nancy from the rear. The Germans said Metz was under heavy attack.

advantage lies with the German defenders.

It is almost impossible to outflank the Leopold Canal in this sector and the Canadians are committed to keeping up the pressure with frontal assault.

Despite their setback along the Leopold, 1st Canadian Army forces today were tightening a long arc running along the strip of Holland south of the Schelde River and it seemed unlikely that the enemy could continue to resist there for long.

In a sector to the east, Polish troops under Gen. Crerar pushed north from St. Nicolas to the Netherlands border at Zandloopet, three miles south of Hulst and 10 miles from the Schelde.

Some Germans were still resisting in the outskirts of Gent and the Poles were engaging them there in fierce local skirmishes.

Gnr. W. Freeburn Dies Of Wounds

YOUNG'S POINT, Sept. 15. — (ENS). — Twice within a few days death stalked the Freeburn family, Young's Point. Robert Freeburn died a few days ago and three hours before the funeral service Tuesday the family received word that his son, Gnr. Wellie Freeburn, had died of wounds received in Italy.

The young soldier, who was acting as a signaller with a light artillery unit, was reported seriously wounded September 5 in the right chest and arm. He died a few days after as a result of these injuries. Gnr. Freeburn, 23, had been overseas 2¼ years and had been in Sicily and Italy since last November. Prior to enlisting, he worked on the farm.

Besides his mother, he leaves to mourn his death, six brothers, and eleven sisters.

HASTINGS, Neb. — A blast at the Hastings Naval Ordnance Depot, which shook communities as far as 125 miles distant, took at least eight lives and more casualties are expected, Mayor Roy Carter estimated this afternoon.

WINDSOR—Three persons were killed and several were belived to have been injured in an accident at nearby Essex. No details were available immediately.

LONDON— To-day's German communique reported another great Russian offensive with 40 divisions up to 600,000 men in "the northern sector of the Eastern front"—possibly in Finland.

New Export Date For Potatoes

TORONTO, Sept. 15 — (CP). — A new export quota date has been set for shipments of potatoes to the United States it was announced Thursday by J. T. Cassin, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The announcement added that shipments would resume next week. Shipments were stopped when the former quota expire on Sept. 1.

Under the Canada-United States trade agreement Canada was to export one million bushels of table potatoes to the U.S. at half the regular tariff of 75 cents, Nr. Cassin said. That quota was exceeded two weeks ago and duty automatically went up to 75 cents.

Under the agreement the quota year ran from December 1943 to Nov. 30, 1944, but due to a potato shortage in the United States the quota date has been advanced and next year's quota date will start Sept. 15.

Between 700 and 800 carloads of potatoes has already been shipped by each Ontario and Quebec. It is expected that another 25 to 50 carloads will be sent from Ontario. Potatoes will also be exported from the Maritime provinces, Mr. Cassin said.

There is no scarcity of potatoes in Canada, the Department of Agriculture reports, and export from the Maritimes will help stabilize the market and prevent such a danger in the future.

L. Cpl. Bruce Menzies Slightly Wounded

HAVELOCK, Sept. 16 —(ENS) — L-Cpl. Bruce Menzies, on active service with the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment in Italy, has been slightly wounded according to word received by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Menzies of Belmont township.

L-Cpl. Menzies enlisted in March 1942 at the age of 21, training at Peterborough, Camp Borden and Sydney Mines, N. S. He served for nine months in Newfoundland prior to going to England in November 1943. He has been in Italy since last April and received his stripe in June. Before enlisting he was employed in the nickel mines at Sudbury.

His brother Driver Donald Menzies, R. C. A. S. C., has been in France since last July. He enlisted in July 1942 at the age of 19, going overseas in April 1942.

ONTARIO FARMERS

1000 MEN WANTED

Now!

THIS is an appeal to THE FARMERS OF ONTARIO. The Packing Plants of Ontario, which process and ship your livestock for export, ARE SERIOUSLY SHORT OF MEN. Every available Farmer of Ontario is urged to offer his services for employment in one of the Packing Plants in this province as soon as the essential work of the farm is completed. OVER 1,000 men are required to start in the month of September alone. Good hourly wages will be paid. Transportation to the plant will be provided. Assistance will be given in arranging board and room.

With full staffs, the Packing Plants of Canada have ample capacity to handle even the tremendously increased numbers of cattle, sheep and swine, which Canadian farmers have ready for market this year. When operating to capacity the Packing Plants can keep the market cleared and livestock can be slaughtered, processed and shipped at its most profitable time, when it is at its market peak. Thus, losses which occur when animals are held beyond the peak—through additional feeding costs, through falling away from peak condition and through the danger to price structures when supply threatens to exceed demand—are avoided.

Last year several hundred Ontario farmers volunteered for work in the plants in processing their own products and protecting their own interests. Production for export this year has increased by 40%. Available man-power has shrunk by 28%.

The Ontario Farm Service Force, in conjunction with Employment and Selective Service has undertaken the task of raising sufficient help from Ontario Farmers to keep Packing Plants operating to capacity this year. This department of the Ontario government's Department of Agriculture feels that this extension of its service is as vitally important to the interests of the farmers of this province as anything it has yet undertaken. The need of meat as a primary essential food to our Allied Armies, to the people of Great Britain and to the starving millions in countries being liberated by our victorious armies, is the basic consideration. In addition, efficient operation in the processing and marketing of livestock is necessary in protecting the greatest export market ever opened to Canadian farmers.

Your services are needed from now until spring. If you cannot devote that full period of time, a month or more will be of great assistance.

OFFER YOUR SERVICES AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. If you cannot go to work at once, call or write, stating that you will come, and at what date you will be available. Remember you will be serving your own best interests as well as playing a vital patriotic part in serving your country.

Rfm. Charles Jacobson Killed In Modern Light Brigade Charge

COBOURG, Sept. 15 — (ENS). — Rifleman Charles Jacobson of Cobourg, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jacobson, who was killed last June, lost his life in the modern version of the "Charge of the Light Brigade." In a letter from Lt.-Col. J. G. Spragge, commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, Mr. and Mrs. Jacobson received further details in regard to their son's death.

"It is with great regret that I have to inform you of the death of your son while on a special operation with this battalion," stated Lt.-Col. Spragge. "The situation was a counter-attack which was being formed up against a thinly-held point of the line, which, if broken, would have allowed the enemy to break through the beaches. 'D' Company went into this attack well-supported by tanks, and although suffering heavy casualties, the counter-attack was broken up and during the next several days the enemy did not attack this particular front.

"This action has already been quoted in the papers as 'The Charge of the Light Brigade' and, I feel with full justification. We pride ourselves on the fact that we have never been given a job that has not been completed and the ground held, and I am sure it was with this in mind that your son went forward into battle.

"Through the action of your son, this operation was a success. His loss is greatly felt by myself personally, and the battalion as a whole," stated Lt.-Col. Spragge.

FAREWELL TO BACKACHE!

Her back ached—she felt miserable—no pep—she couldn't be "bothered" to go out—lost contact with her friends and was lonely. Her sister advised her to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Her backache soon vanished—enthusiasm and energy returned—her eyes sparkled—her step was sprightly—and once again she was her "old self." 115

Pte. W. Rowe Wounded

COBOURG, Sept. 15 — (ENS). — Pte. Willis Rowe, son of Mrs. Gladys Rowe of Cobourg, has been wounded in action in Italy, his mother has been informed. Beyond the fact that he is in hospital in Italy, no further details have been given. He was born in Manitoba, 22 years ago and was educated at Norquay, Saskatchewan. He came to Cobourg from Norquay and worked for a time in Port Hope and Cobourg before going overseas in 1943.

LINKED WITH KENT—Anna Wolkoff, Russian-born naturalized British subject who is now serving 10 years in a British prison for espionage. Once a friend of royalty and a London leader of fashion Miss Wolkoff was closely linked with young Tyler Kent, former U.S. Embassy code clerk who is also serving a prison term, according to a State Department report.

Pte. Tim Crough Misses Pals Overseas

"Although it's swell to be home again, if the doctors could fix me up I'd go back with the boys tomorrow," declared Pte. Tim Crough, who with an arm and eye injury has been invalided home from England.

"Every so often the blues sort of hit you. There are none of the boys I knew here now, they're all across the water. I miss them badly and I miss the bands and the work. We all looked forward to the invasion, but I guess my number was called and I wasn't supposed to go."

Pte. Crough, who had been working long hours overtime, preparing for the invasion doesn't recall a great deal of his accident. He was driving a "four by four," a little larger than a jeep, going down hill when he had a head-on collision with a seven-ton truck, loaded with lumber. This was May 17. He had concussion of the brain until June 10, and a badly mangled arm and an injury to his right eye. He blamed the accident on the loss of sleep which all the drivers sustained.

He had high praise for the Army medical doctors and a nursing sister from Vancouver, who he declares kept him alive. At the beginning when he was taken to a civilian hospital, the doctors were doubtful of the outcome. But the Army doctors somehow managed to patch up the arm, which had been badly smashed. At the end of his furlough, he reports to Kingston where the doctors will operate on his eye. The nerve in his eye is dead, but they plan to remove a nerve from the hip and so restore the eye to its normal functions.

Not Much Chance.

"Buzz bombs have done more than the bombing to upset English morale, but they're still taking it," Pte. Crough said. "It is hard to distinguish these bombs from the ME 109's. The only difference is the exhaust. The buzz bombs have a streak of fire about 2 feet long streaming behind. When the fire is cut off, it explodes. They are much more dangerous than the bombs dropped by planes because they never go in the same direction. Sometimes they sail along straight other times they go left and sometimes right. When you hear the bombs, it is almost too late to get out of the way.

"The manner in which they explode are different from the ordinary bomb. Buzz bombs explode sideways and up, never down like the bombs dropped from planes. You can never find any holes in the ground where they have hit."

Terrible Sight.

Men who have served overseas have seen many strange things, but one memory still has the power to make the chills run up and down his spine, this casualty recalled. In the fall of 1942 in one section of England there was a particularly heavy raid. After it was over, Pte. Crough was one of those who volunteered to help rescue victims trapped in the wreckage. In one building there were 40 children and they brought out 20 alive. The remainder were so badly mangled that there was nothing but pieces to collect.

When asked what the Canadian soldiers thought of the invasion, Pte. Crough replied enthusiastically, that the men were raring to go, because they had been waiting so long doing nothing.

"They promised us that when the Allies invaded France, Canadian troops would be used as spearheads, and they kept their promise."

Prior to enlisting, this boy who is one of 17 children living, worked at Genelco with the T. A. Robinson Construction Company. He went overseas with R. C. O. in September 1941. One brother, Urban, is with a motor ambulance unit in Italy, and another, Peter is in the active army and stationed at St. John's, Que. A third brother, Vince, is honorably discharged from the Army.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Crough, RR 7, Peterborough, Pte. Tim Crough was married overseas in April, and expects his wife to be joining him soon.

Important Job On Home Front

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15 (ENS) —In response to a stirring appeal by Major Charles E. Godden of the Salvation Army, Toronto, at their banquet on Wednesday, the Kinsmen's Club of Campbellford decided to sponsor the home front appeal. Major Godden who has been 32 years with the Army spoke on "An International Army for Reconstruction".

He drew a comparison from the methods attempted after the last war to bring peace and goodwill to men and that which will have to be attempted after the war. After the last war the League of Nations was set up as an international police force. This failed because of lack of cooperation but was and will be a necessity he declared. What is more essential is an army for peaceful reconstruction with facilities for promoting a fuller life rather than destroying it. He felt that people cannot go through another war without facing extermination.

Obviously arms are not the solution. Education will not do it. Legislation will not change the hearts of men and social schemes failed in Italy, Turkey, Spain and Russia. Canadians must be internationally minded. Jesus taught one flesh and blood and Christians must be color blind. Life must be changed, and fear, the arch enemy of mankind, must be driven out. This can be done by love alone.

The Salvation Army was founded in 1865 as a small mission in East London. Before the war the Army was active in 97 countries. The speaker said he had attended the funeral of the founder, General Booth, which was attended by two million people. There was a five-mile funeral parade. He spoke of the vast work carried on by the Army among the unfortunates of India, Burma, Ceylon, Japan, Dutch East Indies, China, Korea, Nigeria, South Africa and Australia.

Need Funds

The "Home Front" appeal for $2,000,000 is for work in Canada—work which has been multiplied many times by the war. The Salvation Army maintains 15 maternity and three general hospitals and last years these treated 22,601 patients and 12,234 babies were born. No one is refused attendance because of finances. In the Rescue Homes 2,504 mothers were taken care of. Every day representatives of the Army attend police court and obtain paroles or suspended sentences for erring boys and girls. These are given a new lease of life and a chance to make good in some useful employment under Army supervision. They maintain a "Fresh Air Camp" for boys and girls and "homes" for children as well. Industrial homes also are provided where gainful employment provides the impetus for rehabilitation of both mind and body. All these are in addition to the regular work of the women's organizations, the "League of Mercy" and the "Home League".

With regard to the war work of the Army, he mentioned the 50,000 "Red Shield" workers in Canada and the "Sally Ann" services overseas.

The speaker was introduced by Kinsman Jack Fink and Capt. Earl Jarrett voiced the great appreciation of the army when President Forrest Dennis announced the Kinsmen would sponsor the campaign.

A grant of $15 was made to the Canadian Institute of the Blind in response to a written request by H. W. Henry, field secretary.

Judge German Chairman Of Navy League

COBOURG, Sept. 15 — (ENS). — Judge J. C. M. German was elected chairman of the Navy League here at its annual meeting. He succeeds the late T. H. McClelland. Charles Adcock was elected vice-chairman; C. P. Jones, treasurer and Madeline Rooney, secretary.

Dr. George Kidd and Robert Holland were appointed co-chairman of the committee in charge of the collection of literature for the men in the navy. Judge J. C. M. German was appointed chairman of the speakers' committee and the sea cadet committee liaison officers appointed were Don Bolster, W. H. McGuire, T. F. Hall, K.C.

Education and publicity was placed in charge of a committee made up of Frank Lapp, Ken Pritchard and Murray Smith. A tentative finance committee was appointed, composed of C. Adcock, R. Freeman, R. Love, G. Mitchell, H. Cooey, Dr. L. Jordan, Dr. W. Kells, L. Caughey and L. Anderson. The tag day committee is made up of Mrs. E. MacNachtan, Miss H. Grimmon, Mrs. L. Caughey, Mrs. B. Johnstone and others to be added later.

Acting president, Lorne Anderson, expressed the thanks of the League to Judge German for his work as chairman of the corvette committee. During the meeting a minute of silence was observed in memory of the late president, T. H. McClelland, who died last year.

Youths Sentenced For Stealing Car

COBOURG, Sept. 15 —(ENS) — Appearing for sentence in police court Thursday, Dean Summerville, age 20, of Brighton and Evans Jones, age 20, of Hilton, were sentenced to consecutive terms of one year and six months on charges of car theft and assault causing bodily harm. They pleaded guilty last week to the charges.

The pair stole a hired taxi on August 5 at Trenton, which was owned by C. B. Graham. After being driven out of town they slugged the taxi driver, Isaac Cook, dumped him out and took the car. Later that night they were involved in an accident at Hastings, leading to their arrest.

Humanity has but three great enemies: fever, famine and war; of these by far the greatest, by far the most terrible, is fever. —SIR WILLIAM OSLER.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1944

What Donald Gordon Foresees

Mr. Donald Gordon's statement in Toronto on Monday night last has cheered the hearts of many men of business who have found the orders and restrictions of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board irritating. The history of WPTB might be divided into three phases: the first, when the Board was set up and few people thought that it would work; the second, when it was obvious that it was going to work and when those who tried to discount it suffered for their folly; and the third, when business learned that the WPTB was tough, and suffered a nagging fear that they would never be rid of it. It is curious that as these stages succeeded one another Mr. Donald Gordon's personal prestige rose enormously; at first many people looked upon him as a tyrannical theorist, but in time it became apparent that he was very practical, and was bent on preserving, rather than destroying, Canadian business. It cannot be said that Mr. Gordon is looked upon with affection at present, but most business men recognize that he is a man of integrity, iron will, and unimpeachable patriotism. He has brought Canadian finance through the worst of the war without any serious mishap, and his concern now is to take Canadian business unharmed into the postwar period.

On Monday Mr. Gordon announced that certain restrictions had outlived their usefulness, and were to be discarded, making certain commodities available to the public as soon as they could be manufactured. He gave us to understand that this would be the procedure followed in all cases. The Government will retain its control of everything which is essential to the war effort, but it will not prolong controls after Government needs are filled or have ceased to exist.

But after the control on all commodities has been relaxed, there will still be a need for price control. We have averted inflation during the war by this means, and we shall have to retain our price controls unless we are ready to face inflation after the war. People who recall the First Great War will remember that inflation was at its worst 18 months after the Armistice; there was still plenty of money circulating, and a shortage of goods; the result was inflation which caused great misery, and led directly into the depression of the early 'twenties. We can avoid that sort of trouble this time, and price control will help us to do so.

The portion of Mr. Gordon's announcement which was most immediately encouraging to business men was that in which he said that:

> "The board takes the view that its activities in this field are dictated by the emergency conditions of a wartime economy and that it is not appropriate for the board to continue any orders or regulations which have the effect of restricting competition when the emergency conditions have passed. On the contrary the interests of the people of Canada will be seriously prejudiced unless the board clears away as soon as justifiable all regulations which might prevent civilian production from taking up the slack when war production begins to decline".

This is a promise that the WPTB will do all that it safely can to hasten the return of a free economy in Canada. Because this country has been involved in a world upheaval which has affected every aspect of human life, that return may not be completed for some years after the war ends officially. But we know now that wars do not end when the last shot is fired; they end only when normal, peaceful life can be taken up again, and normal, peaceful life does not allow for inflation and depression. An orderly reconversion is what Mr. Gordon foresees, and we think that Canadian business will support him in that as it has in his wartime measures.

A janitor in the West robbed a bank recently. He has his own ideas about cleaning up.

Greeting The Conquerors

Since the first American tr... made their way into Germany th... have been several dispatches purporting to give information about the German attitude toward the conquerors. The dispatches are contradictory: some say that the Americans have been met with hatred and fear; others tell of cordial welcomes, and offers of hospitality.

The likelihood is that both attitudes have been encountered. If we use common sense in thinking about the matter, we shall see why. If the Germans appeared in Canada, would we not receive them with hatred and fear? Would we not dread the months to come? Would we not be gravely apprehensive for our personal safety and that of our families and neighbours? Of course we should feel all these things. And does anyone doubt that if Canada were invaded there would be people who would attempt to curry favour with the invaders by offering them special attentions. And would there not be a proportion of disgruntled and disaffected people who would take a perverse pleasure in the downfall of their own country? These questions need hardly be asked, for we know that these things would be discovered quickly in the event of invasion.

The Germans are responding like any other people faced with an invading army. They are desperately apprehensive, and some hate the conquerors, while others try to placate them. There is nothing unusual about this, and it is fruitless to attempt to deduce anything about the German mind from it. It is the attitude of conquered peoples everywhere.

In Defence Of The Male Leg

Some men have extremely handsome legs: we wish to establish that fact firmly before we go on. But there are other men who have miserable legs, and these keep up a continuous campaign to deride and asperse male legs in general, thus behaving like the fox in Aesop's fable, who lost his tail.

Recently a physician in Chicago gave it as his opinion that men had finer legs than women. The latter, he said, deformed their legs by wearing high-heeled shoes, which tended to give them bulging calves and mis-shapen feet. He was willing to back a good pair of male legs against any such monstrosities. And recently J. H. Gray, writing in the Winnipeg Free Press, became lyrical about the legs of Jesse Owens, the great runner; Owens' legs, in Gray's estimation, are as pillars of marble, set upon sockets of fine gold.

Of course the legion of men with funny legs have hastened to shout down these speakers of truth. The editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard, whose legs we have never seen, but whom we now suspect of advanced storkism, says this:

> "We decline to argue the case against these gentlemen. There's no need to; they haven't any case. If there was a vestige of truth in their contention, we would have male choruses, male bathing beauties, male beauty contests, male cheesecakes, and the modelling of masculine underthings would be of greater general interest than a display of comparably apparelled feminity. Nothing these gentlemen have said or may say can make the male shanks more popular than the female; mankind in general has held the opposite belief for a few thousand years now, and it's a bit late to change".

You can see from this extract what kind of man he is. He thinks in terms of cheesecake, and he refers to Goddard, Grable and Dietrich, Hollywood gam-champs who appeal to the vulgar taste. These young women's legs cannot be considered merely as legs; they are incitements to riot; they appeal, not to the mind, but to the baser senses. For sheer aesthetic perfection, for cool Greek beauty of proportion, they cannot compare with Jesse Owens, or the late Lord Willingdon, who often showed his magnificent legs in Court dress. But the Kingston writer, we fear, does not think on the aesthetic level. He is the slave of his passions. Hence his jeers at the male leg.

New Secret Weapons

(By J. H. GRAY)

DURING the last week the United Nations have unwrapped for public gaze a number of new secret weapons. Included in the list are a tank which can throw a flame a hundred yards, a tank destroyer which can do 30 miles an hour and fire a 90 millimeter anti-tank gun on the move, an air-borne tank which can do 40 miles an hour on an open road and 25 miles in the roughest terrain, and a 60 millimeter, one-man, trigger-firing mortar which is better than the famed Japanese knee-mortar.

Taking these weapons off the secret list means simply this: The enemy has captured specimens, is now feverishly trying to improve them and devise countering weapons. The need for keeping them a secret no longer exists.

Behind these facts lies one of the most intriguing phases of modern war—the never-ending efforts of both sides to find out what the other is up to. It is as well one of the most important phases because the side which does its best has the best chance of winning the war. One of the reasons why the Germans were able to blast their way through to the Channel coast in 1940 was because they had obtained models of the latest French artillery before the war began.

Knowing the exact range and power of French anti-tank weapons, the Germans proceeded to build tanks which would withstand these guns. When put to the test, the French had no anti-tank artillery capable of stopping the German tanks. This of course was remedied by the British, who invented a new gun which could penetrate the armor of the German tanks. The Germans then changed their tank models, and increased their armor to make this weapon ineffective.

And so it went. Whenever a new weapon is introduced on the battlefield great effort is made to prevent it from falling into enemy hands. The longer this can be done the more prolonged will be the effect of the weapon. And, of course, as soon as a new weapon is introduced by the enemy our army makes it somebody's job to capture one, and quickly.

IN North Africa, when the Germans put their biggest tank into battle for the first time, one fell into our hands almost immediately, and undamaged. It was hurried to the rear for study, but the German air force was sent out to destroy it. Bombers and fighters followed the tank clear to Suez, and even tried to sink the vessel upon which it was loaded for shipment to the U.S.

Whenever the Germans sent out new bomber or fighter planes, specially trained squadrons of R.A.F. fighters were sent aloft, not to shoot them down, but to force one of them to land, undamaged, if possible. Then the plane would be minutely examined for few wrinkles which could be adapted for use in our own planes.

When the new jet-propelled plane was announced some months ago it was widely heralded as the best-kept secret of the war. The Germans quickly punctured that myth. It was, indeed, no secret at all. It had been discussed in detail in a British technical journal before the war started. It was not long after we announced our jet-propelled plane that the German unlimbered their rocket guns and buzz-bombs.

NOR was the buzz-bomb a weapon completely unknown to us. A Canadian, at least a dozen years ago, tried to sell the idea of a pilotless bomb-carrier to the Canadian government. It was no sale. But another weapon, the self-propelled 25-pound field gun, which Canada developed in its own tank arsenal, has been one of the most effective new weapons of the war. Artillery specialists in the field eyed it with considerable suspicion. But after it had been tried out in North Africa, orders poured in with such speed that we have been building them to capacity ever since.

Not all our secret weapons have been founded on new ideas. Indeed, one of the most effective—the rocket-gun bazooka—was the adaption of an idea that had been kicked around for years. The rocket-gun not only defanged the tank, but it has been used extensively in France to destroy German pill-box fortifications.

When the full story of the development of new weapons is finally written, the scientists in the explosive plant laboratories will have a great yarn to spin. They have so succeeded in stepping up the penetrating and explosive power of our shells that reinforced concrete defences built only two years ago, to withstand anything then being fired can be quickly blown apart. The Siegfried line, where the Germans must now stand or fall, was built almost six years ago. The lot of its occupants when our guns start to fire will not be an enviable one.

Hidden Makers of Opinion

Under rules laid down by General de Gaulle for the French press it will be necessary for newspapers and periodicals hereafter to publish regularly the source and amount of their revenues.

Commenting on this, Andre Geraud (Pertinax), famous French journalist, says:

"Why was it so difficult for the French press to be independent? Because the advertising business was not sufficiently developed, papers had to look to other sources for their revenue. The French people will have to develop the advertising habit or be prepared to pay much more for their papers."

In other words, failing revenues from advertisements clearly labelled as such, the newspapers were compelled to obtain money from undisclosed and frequently doubtful sources. Newspapers in France have been almost entirely "organs of opinion" presenting views rather than news. Publications sprang into existence that had no visible means of support, lasted only as long as the necessary funds were forthcoming from special interests but long enough to bedevil the public mind.

Advertisers buy space in newspapers because it pays them in business returns, not because they love the publishers, and the only reason it pays is that advertisements are read. An advertisement-reading public is created by attractive commercial advertising; the revenues from it are used by publishers in presenting true and unbiassed news creating thereby the reputation for honesty. In France one of the biggest news agencies was also an advertising agency; the newspapers paid the news agency with advertising space. The whole method of newspaper publication was defective and wide open to dishonesty. It will be interesting to watch whether the new De Gaulle regulations bring about the desirable change.—Ottawa Journal.

A Power In The World Of Learning

MANY people have written about the riddle of Oxford. To many serious academic minds it has been a mystery that this odd collection of separate colleges, without alumni organizations and without advertising, with antiquated prejudices and mediaeval buildings, should continue to be a power in the world of learning. To an outsider, and especially to an American, Oxford is a mess of paradoxes stirred together by a spoon. It is something as if one had a whole group of our small colleges in one town, each competing with all the others in scholarship and athletics, in general prestige. There must be a secret to this University....

Dr. Johnson's college still uses candles. And Oxford flourishes on an endowment that would hardly keep the wolf from the door of a small American college. There are no campaigns launched to make "the sunset years" of the faculty secure. Yet men with fame in their names teach there while their hairs grow white and their names grow golden, and their books go around the world. Many a don on a salary of an American high-school principal fills shelves of our university libraries with sound learning.

And there are more paradoxes than this of lean purses and rich scholarship. Some of these dons write books that children love, that men who come home with grime on their hands enjoy. Others give their names to the world on a new kind of pun. Some of them, authorities on the morphology of Homeric verbs, catch astounding fish or climb all manner of Alps. They put off gowns and play Homeric tennis....

Oxford is the home of such paradoxes. There are no "drives" for new equipment. Yet the old place grows, is full of the youth and the promise of the best of England and the Colonies. No great alumni bodies with secretaries and reunions assist in keeping alive an Oxonian tradition. But the tradition is there, and the old men come swarming back to college cups and college boats from the underside of the earth, from India and Manitoba, from veldt and pampas. Poets write verses about Oxford; all her sons bring their renown home to her towers and green gardens....

The University is one without classrooms, without quizzes, without lectures if you wish; each college has its own tutors in subjects offered elsewhere; there is no close co-operation of departments as we have it; dons overlap and contradict one another; it is their glory....

It is no wonder that the newly matriculated man from overseas goes about with a smile on his face the first week. And yet that smile changes, grows into the smile of the believer, stays on his face for better or for worse to the end of his Oxford days, stays to sweeten all the days and the ways of his life.—From "A Book of Crowns and Cottages," by Robert P. Tristram Coffin.

Better Maps and Atlases Needed

(WALTER MILLIS in the NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE)

I SHOULD like to enter a protest against the "new" geography and the "new" cartography that seem to be suddenly sweeping our map-making, aviation advertisers, publishing houses and drugstore book counters. In my time I have belabored the Mercator projection with the best of them.

But now that even the Office of War Information, following in the wake of the geo-politicians and the air enthusiasts, has sponored a global "War Atlas for Americans" which is neither global (no flat page can be) nor an atlas nor of much practical use in following the war, it seems to me that this thing is going too far.

Or, if it is not going too far, then it is going in the wrong direction. Americans have long been notable for their want of interest in and appreciation of the beautiful and useful science of the cartographer. To the average American, a map is—or until recently was—either a dull and more or less intelligible diagram in a school geography book or else a decoration, a spot of "quaint" colour to be pasted on a lamp-shade or a waste-paper basket, the more highly valued the more it was filled up with the "quaint" sketches, scrolls and other useless junk wherewith modern artists are wont to demonstrate their total ignorance of what a map is and should be. And the average American has long been getting the kind of cartography which he deserved.

Maps and atlases have been foisted upon him which were the merest trash, while the products of even our leading map-publishing houses normally cannot compare with the careful, beautiful and serviceable work to which the British and German publics have long been accustomed. Now that war, strategy, global communications and the air age have combined to drive home the sudden realization that a map is not only an object of interest and beauty in itself, but is also a necessary tool for the understanding of our times, it is clear that something should be done about it.

But the remedy surely does not lie in providing the public with these handsome picture books, which do not contain real maps and can not be employed for most of the purposes for which a map is required. What is wanted is not another capsule substitute for good maps, but an inculcation of a knowledge of maps, of how they are read and what they are good for. And that can be achieved only by good maps themselves.

But world maps and maps representing large sections of the earth are a special problem, as has been said, and one which covers only half the subject. Two things such maps cannot do: they cannot accurately represent the surfaces they embrace and they cannot give the detail which is essential to any useful understanding of human affairs—whether those be the affairs of war, politics or economics.

For most purposes in wartime—and in peacetime as well—what one really wants from maps is a tool which will enable one to scale distances, to ascertain directions, to locate positions, to understand topography and to follow the communication nets. None of these things can the "global" maps, however constructed, do well, and most of them they can not do at all. But all should be provdied by an atlas worthy of the name and all can be supplied today, just as good atlases have always supplied them in the past—by including, along with whatever world maps or orthographic projections may be put in to indicate the large relationships, a numerous assortment of intelligently drawn detail maps of the several countries and strategic areas.

A Tip for Apple Growers

Apple growers may be afflicted by barren trees; either one here and there, or a whole orchardful. Here is a remedy from Scotland.

A Lanarkshire grower had several barren trees. So he reverted to an old Scottish trick. In the late autumn, after there was no prospect of growth, he drove a rusty nail into the trunks about one foot from the ground. The following year there were no results. The year afterwards the trees blossomed as if in the full burgeoning of their youth. The yield of apples was equal to the best the grower ever had. His explanation is that some trees are non-fertilizing, and as the rusty nail has ferric-oxide properties it fertilized the sap and set things going again.

Of course it is also an old trick on the farm to put a rusty nail in the drinking water of the poultry to "tone them up" when they are not laying well.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Canada's Stature

In industrial production Canada already ranks fourth among the United Nations and she has by no means reached the limit of her expansion. The facilities which her geographical position gives for the development of air transport and the proved skill of her airmen make it certain that Canada will have a leading part to play in the future of civil aviation. The establishment of air bases in the Arctic Circle will continue to bring her into increasingly intimate contact with Russia; her special and cordial relations with the United States, to which President Roosevelt alluded recently in a message to the Canadian Prime Minister, will obviously be an important factor in the destinies of both countries. In every field the broad outlook for the Canadian people is well adapted to that new conception of empire which is giving purpose to the policies of all the nations of the Commonwealth.—The Times, London.

A Bible Message

And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people.... And seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain: and when he was set, his disciples came unto him: and he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying....

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also....

No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? (Matt. 4: 23; 5: 1, 2; 6: 19-21, 24, 25.)

FIX INITIAL SALARY

Young British doctors just qualified will ask for a starting salary of £560 ($2,240) a year if the Government creates a National Health Service on the lines it has suggested.

This was the figure proposed by the British Medical Students' Association. It was arirved a[t] by a ballot of members on the scheme for sta[te] doctors.

SOLDIERS AND THE C.C.F.

For some time now Socialist orators and pr[o]pagandists have been telling us that "the so[l]diers are going to vote C.C.F."

Well, in the recent New Brunswick provinc[ial] election 12,625 soldiers cast their votes, and th[is,] according to the official tabulation, is how th[ey] cast them:

For the Prog. Conservatives	5,32[illegible]
For the Liberals	5,05[illegible]
For the C.C.F.	2,24[illegible]

No one knows, or can know, how members [of] the armed forces are going to vote. What ev[ery] sensible person must know is that the Social[ist] claim about their overwhelming preference [for] the C.C.F. is just trumped-up nonsense.—T[he] Ottawa Journal.

Letter To The Editor

THE MORALITY OF LETTER-WRITING

Sir,—There are moral issues in which th[ere] exists only a thin line separating right f[rom] wrong and good from evil and it is often [ex]tremely difficult to decide where the line sh[ould] be drawn.

An enthusiast for a certain political par[ty] the name of the party shall not be mentio[ned] for it does not matter in the least—wrot[e a] letter to the editor of a city daily, claiming [that] if this particular party were elected there w[ould be a] chance of an average income of $5,000 [per] worker, per year, in Canada.

The average industrial worker in Canada, [and] this includes those on salaries as well as w[ages,] now earns about $1,200 per annum. The [total] wage bill in Canadian industry in 1940 [was] $920,800,000. There were 762,000 workers [em]ployed. With $5,000 payment per worker, [the] wage bill would be $3,810 millions which[, of] course, would close every factory in Canada[. In] fact on this basis there have been years, [...] is an example, in which the total wag[es] would be greater than the entire value o[f] products produced, leaving nothing for the [cost] of raw material or other items of cost.

The question I now raise is this: Shoul[d the] editor publish that letter?

If he does it may induce people to vo[te on] the basis of a pure fabrication, for this pa[rticu]lar party. On the other hand naturally h[e likes] to have, in his columns, free discussion, [and if] the letter be published the chances are [that] someone may answer it and thus bring o[ut the] facts.

Or should he publish it with a footno[te ex]plaining the difficulty and making cle[ar his] own point of view?

Greystock—Shepherd

A marraige of interest took place in St. John's Anglican Church, recently, when Margaret Shepherd, daughter of Mrs. Shepherd of Warsaw and the late Mr. Shepherd, became the bride of Russel Greystock, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Greystock, Warsaw. Canon W. P. Robertson officiated.

Given in marriage by Bruce Garbutt, of Lakefield, the bride was charming in a dress of pale blue chiffon and lace, and matching shoulder-length veil falling from a coronet of flowers. She carried a bouquet of roses and baby's breath, with a long pale blue ribbon streamers. She was attended by Mrs. F. Herrington of Peterborough, her aunt, as matron of honor. She was frocked in pale pink, and carried a bouquet of roses and Maiden Hair fern. Fred Herrington, uncle of the bride, was best man.

Folowing the ceremony, twenty-five guests were entertained at a wedding supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herrington, Charlotte street. Later in the evening, the couple left for a wedding trip to Toronto, Niagara and points west, and on their return will live on the groom's farm in Warsaw.

Lakefield Girl Entertained At Five Showers

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 15 — (ENS). — Miss Doreen Northey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Northey, whose marriage to Roger Charlton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Charlton, takes place Saturday, has been the guest of honor at many showers recently.

Thirty-five neighbors gathered at the home of her parents and after an evening of games and contests, Miss Eva Higgins read an address and Misses Peggy Holmes, Hazel Northey, Doreen Hawthorne, and Edna Higgins presented Doreen with a fourteen piece set of kitchenware in red and white enamel. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The staff of the Royal Bank, where she was formerly employed, gave her a hassock and cushion. Mr. J. McKerchar, president of the Bank, read the address and presented the gifts. Miss Northey entertained the staff at her home for dinner. Those present were Misses Winnifred Murphy, Jean Orr, Jean Millar and Joan Pue.

Mrs. Clarence Coons was hostess to a large number of Miss Northey's friends at a miscellaneous shower, and Mrs. Nelson Coons and Mrs. Sherman Northey tied for first place in the contests. The bride elect was seated in the bride's chair, decorated with blue streamers. Mrs. Coons read the address and Iva Jackman and Cora Webdale presented the gifts in a large basket prettily decorated with blue crepe paper. A feature of the evening was the mock wedding enacted by Iva Jackman and Cora Webdale. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Misses Frances Clark, Iva Jackman and Cora Webdale.

Mrs. J. Millage also entertained at her home this week at a miscellaneous shower. After an evening of games, Mrs. Alex. Rosborough read an address and Jo Ann Rosborough and Glenda Armstrong drew in the gifts in a decorated wagon and refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Rosborough of George street, Peterborough, were also hosts to a number of relatives and friends of the bride-elect at their home. Games and contests were played after which Mrs. Carman Bell read an address and Allen Bell and Elgin Northey carried in a basket full of lovely gifts. Miss Olive Bell played the wedding march for a mock weddding with Wesley Bell as the minister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Northey as groom and bride, Miss Irma Rosborough as bridesmaid, Earl Rosborough as best man and Fern Vannest as flower girl.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ernest Rosborough and Miss Irma Rosborough.

57th Chapter Plans November Tea

Plans for the annual Remembrance Day tea, sponsored by the 57th Regiment Chapter, I.O.D.E., were discussed at the first meeting for the season, in the Armouries Thursday afternoon. In addition to the tea, to be held November 11 in the Y.W.C.A., a sale of small useful articles will also be conducted.

Mrs. F. Haggart, treasurer, announced total receipts from the recent carnival as $1,108 and substantial donations were voted to the following funds: British Children and Clothing, Sailors and Minesweepers, and Prisoner of War. The Chapter officially adopted another ship, and money was voted to begin supplying comforts for the men. In connection with a complete trousseau which I.O.D.E. Chapters of the city are preparing for the use of English brides, it was announced that the 57th Regiment Chapter would supply the wedding dress.

Other reports presented to the regent, Mrs. A. W. Turner, included an account from the Chapter's adopted school, read by Mrs. Max Swanston, who also read letters from children at the school who had won silver dollars donated by the Chapter as prizes for regular attendance. Mrs. J. Black reported 262 visits to the hospital during the summer months, and Mrs. Brown saaid the 90 knitted articles had been sent to headquarters. It was decided that Mrs. Turner would represent the Chapter at the semi-annual meetings of the provincial I. O. D. E. Chapter, in Windsor on October 18 and 19. A committee of members was formed to pack 50 personal comfort bags for women serving overseas in Canada's armed forces. A minute's silence was observed for the late Mrs. Marjorie Thompson, a former member of the Chapter.

Peterboro Man Weds Warsaw Girl

A pretty wedding of interest took place in Warsaw United Church, when Iris Irene Darling, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Darling, of Warsaw, became the bride of Arnold Cecil Ferguson, son of Mrs. Mary Ferguson, 261 Hunter street, and the late John Ferguson. Rev. E. D. Snelgrove officiated. The ceremony took place under an arch of evergreen, set with gladioli. Mrs. George Taylor played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Wesley Chamberlain and Miss Muriel Andrews sang, "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white chiffon with soutache trimming. Her finger-tip veil of white net was caught to a halo of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of red roses. She was attended by Miss Lenore McIlvena, frocked in Heaven blue triple sheer with matching shoulder-length veil and carrying pink roses.

James Andrews was best man, and the ushers were George Bennett and Wesley Chamberlain.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received the guests in a gown of Miracle blue crepe with brown accessories, and a corsage of gladioli. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore a gown of orchid crepe with black accessories and a corsage of glodioli.

During the wedding dinner, Rev. Snelgrove was toast master, and toasts were answered by the groom, the best man, and the bride's father. The bride's table, centred with her three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a small bouquet of baby 'mums was decorated with pink tapers, white bells and pink and white streamers.

The groom's gift to the bride was a double strand of pearls. The bridesmaid received a set of gold earrings, and the best man's gift was a gold tie pin set with an amethyst, while each usher received a marble ash tray.

For a motor trip to Toronto and then by 'plane to Buffalo, the bride chose a two-piece dress of turquoise wool crepe, with black accessories. On their return, the bride will resume her teaching duties and at a later date the young couple will make their home in Peterborough.

Couples Honored By 75 Friends

INDIAN RIVER, Sept. 15 — (ENS). — Over one hundred guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Reid this week. It was the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary and friends and neighbours presented them with a silver tray and silver compact in honor of the event.

At the same time their two daughters, recently married, L.A.C. Paul and Mrs. Evans, also Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Calmer, were each presented with a purse of money.

The evening was spent in dancing and playing cards.

Shower Given For Newlyweds

Mrs. Francis Watson, Prince street, and Mrs. Roy Watson, Maude street, were joint hostesses for a party in honor of Mr. Ken Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, nee Vivian Watson, whose wedding took place recently. Highlight of an enjoyable evening spent in amusing games and contests, was the presentation to the bride of a miscellaneous shower of gifts, by little Pat Watson, her cousin. After the bride had opened her gifts, the hostesses served refreshments.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Alex Innes, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Watson, Mrs. George Rogers, Mrs. Howard Blewett, Mrs. A. Hubbel, Mrs. Rod. Barrie, Mrs. Gene Rogers, Mrs. Francis Watson, Misses Greta Kirk, Helen Watson and Pat Watson, and Russel Thompson and George Elliott.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 15—(ENS).—About 75 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kidd and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Ivey gathered in honor of their recent marriages at the home of Mrs. Ivey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Northey, on Tuesday evening. Euchre was played during the evening and the young people danced.

Gordon Carveth read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kidd and Mrs. Jack Harrison and Melvin Northey presented them with an occasional chair.

Miss Bernice Slater read the address to Mr and Mrs. Ernie Ivey, and Hazel Northey and Ralph Beavis carried in an artistically decorated pink and white wishing well, containing a large number of miscellaneous gifts, including many pieces of red and cream enamel kitchenware.

The couples thanked their friends for the gifts, and Mr. Kidd thanked Mr. and Mrs. Northey for their hospitality. Lunch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Carveth, Mrs. J. Harrison, and the Misses Hazel and Hilda Northey.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(AP).—Prexy Ed Barrow of the Yankees is threatening to introduce legislation which would forbid major league baseball clubs to lease their parks for football before the end of the season....That's contrary to the Branch Rickey-Phil Wrigley theory of supplying year-round activity for ball parks, but it helps bring out the fact that pro football is old enough to control its own fields....The ball parks, except maybe the Polo Grounds and Cleveland Stadium, aren't suited to football ...There has been talk of building new stadia in Philadelphia and Washington and one story has it that the National Football League delayed awarding a Los Angeles franchise because Bing Crosby plans to build a plant for a team there after the war....So if the baseball clubs shut down, maybe the footballers will build their own—and lease the premises to colleges for Saturday afternoons.

Athletics Beat Brampton Team

BRAMPTON, Ont., Sept. 15—(CP)—St. Catharines Athletics last night won an easy 22-15 victory over Brampton Excelsiors in the first game of a best-of-five semi-final series in the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association playdowns.

Winner of the series meets Mimico Mountaineers, who recently eliminated Toronto Lakeshores in the other semi-final bracket.

Second game of the series will be played at St. Catharines Saturday night with the third game here Monday.

Playing before more than 700 fans Brapmton went into a nearly lead before their defence broke down and allowed St. Catharines to fire six consecutive goals past goalie Cecil Chambers without a reply. The smooth-working Athletics maintained the advantage to the finish.

Half time score was 15-5 for St. Catharines.

Manager Lester Patrick yesterday announced at New York the signing of Frank Boucher of Ottawa for another year as coach of the Rangers and stated the N. H. L. team would train at Winnipeg for the 11th consecutive season. A hockey school will get under way October 3 in the western Canadian city and the regulars have been ordered to report October 11. The pick of the school are to be assinged to the New York Rovers in the U. S. Eastern Hockey League, he said.

Taking two of the three heats, Billie Patch, owned by H. McLean, Port Elgin, yesterday captured the 2:26 pace at the Hanover, Ont. Fair while Dr. Simpson's Lady Peters from Harriston won two of three dashes in the free-for-all, her best time being 2:15. Ex-ra, owned by G. S. Elliott of Clinton, was second. George McMull won the special prize for the best driver.

Hamilton Juniors squared the Ontario Softball playdowns at one game apiece in taking the second game, 3-2, from Windsor Dayus Mic Macs at Hamilton last night.

Playing in Toronto on a stopover before competing in the U. S. Women's National Softball tourney at Cleveland, Vancouver Neons bowed to the Sunday Morning Class nine at 4-1 last night.

Westclox Girls Defeat Quaker Team

Although absent from softball for several weeks, Westclox Seconds team proved the lull in activity did not bother them, as they edged out a 10 to 9 victory over Quaker Oats at Ashburham Bowl Thursday evening, firing the opening gun of the two-out-of-three series between the rivals, for the Girls' League junior championship. Despite the early dusk, nine full innings were played, as the two teams each led the scoring, then fell behind in turn. The Westclockers, although behind in the early stages of the game, fought back, aided by a renewed effort by pitcher Alice McIvor and completed the hit with one-run up over the Quakers.

Quaker maintained a healthy edge over Westclox until the ninth ining. At that time, they were leading by 9 to 8. Two runs in the first half of that frame by Westclox, established a one point lead for them, and in the last of the ninth, the Quakers were unable to score the run to tie the game, the side retiring in order. In the ninth, Westclox started the winning runs when Elaine Townes and Florence Hanwell each came down the home stretch on a lusty smack by Dorothy Starr, which, when coupled with an error, allowed the batter to advance to second base.

McIvor Good.

Alice McIvor went the entire course for Westclox; although wild in spots, tightened down during the last three frames. Fanning 7, she walked 2, and held the Quakers to 8 hits. Gertie Masters pitched for the Porridge team, allowing 15 blows while fanning 3, and walking 3.

One of the hitting features of the game was Gertie Masters' home-run in the seventh inning, with one on base. Another Quaker girl, Helen White, contributed some heavy slugging, including a triple in the seventh also with a runner on the bases. For Westclox, Elaine Townes, Alice McIvor, Rita O'Heron and Dorothy Starr held the hitting spotlight.

The teams:

Westclox II— Millie Miller 3b, Florence Robinson lf, Verla Ferguson c, Rita O'Heron 1b, Laura Storey ss, Alice McIvor p, Elaine Townes 2b, Florence Hanwell rf, Dorothy Starr cf, Mina Dunford lf.

Quaker Oats— Phyllis Thackeray rf, June McGregor 3b, Helen White c, Gertie Masters p, Velma Crane cf, Marie Williams ss, Gladys Brown 1b, Phyllis Koebel lf, Irene Gandy 2b, Betty Arnold 2b.

Umpires: Payne, at the plate; Ab. Delahaye, Bill Bennett at the bases.

It will be mixed rinks this evening—same time, same fee— same system.

To-morrow at 1.30 p.m. we hold our annual trebles tournament for men. Please be on time.

On Monday night at 7.00 o'clock, all players who are left in the club singles are requested to be on hand. At 8 o'clock, same evening, Groups No. 3 and 4 of the schedule will play postponed games. This will be the third time that the committee has tried to have these games played.

It has been suggested that there be men's doubles next Wednesday afternoon and evening.

On Tuesday evening, we continue with the extra series games.

The ladies held a local tournament yesterday and the new idea of individual counting seemed to go over good. There will be a series of six games and those bowlers who have the 10 highest individual scores receive the prizes. These games are held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoon and evening.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Stratford Kroehlers and Brantford Plowettes will settle the Western Ontario P.W.S.U. intermediate semi-finals in Stratford this Saturday when the second, and if necessary the third game in the series will be played. The winners will meet the Westclox in the final round for the Ontario title but just what the setup will be depends upon which team happens to win out in Western Ontario. If Brantford should emerge victorious it is probable that the Big Bens will play there a week from Saturday, with the second game and if necessary the third to be staged here on the Saturday after. On the other hand if the Kroehlers earn the right to represent Western Ontario in the finals the arrangement will be reversed with the first game here a week from tomorrow and the second and possibly the third billed for Stratford a week later. Last year Stratfgord had to settle the championship on the diamond of the Big Bens so that if the Kroehler girls reach the finals again this year it is only fair that they should have the opportunity of finishing the season at home They are favored to win but the Plowettes have an impressive record on the season's play.

* * * * * *

Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald discusses the series with Brantford as follows: "So far Stratford Kroehlers, reigning champions, have survived rounds with Preston Rivulettes and Fergus Maple Leafs, but basing an opinion on the showing of the Brantford girls to date, without having witnessed them in action, it would appear as though Kroehler girls have their work cut out for them. St. Catharines gave Stratford a real tussle last summer, actually winning the first game in Stratford under questionable circumstances, only to have Kroehlers reverse the outcome in two games played in St. Kitts on the same day. Whether the St. Catharines teams is the equal of last year's is not known in these parts, but the fact remains that they had won something like 22 consecutive games in their own league and two more in the playoffs before they ran into the Brantford snag and dropped a pair, which shunted them to the sidelines. In ousting St. Kitts Tee Pees two straight, Brantford Plowettes demonstrated that they must have something besides a group of young ladies in softball uniforms, and Kroehlers, who admittedly are not the equal of last year's team, may encountered plenty of trouble retaining their provincial honors."

The Old Guard

The argument as to the merits of Scottish and English football has stirred up a lot of real interest and with any kind of weather conditions at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon there will be a huge crowd on hand to see the old guard of English and Scots players battle for the honor of their native land. The kick off will be at 2.30 o'clock. Meanwhile the adherents of both teams are busy trying to prove that their own brand of football is the best. The English supporters even bring up the fact that 30 years ago this week in a similar game at Riverside Park staged in aid of the Canadian Patriotic Fund won 3 to 0. The Scots, while admitting that some of the players who figured in that game at the beginning of the First Great War, will be in action again tomorrow, declare that you can't prove anything by talking about a defeat that happened away back in 1914. "Just watch the Scots lads play fitba' tomorrow" they are telling all and sundry. Anyway it should be an interesting battle so long as the supply of subs lasts and it is being played in aid of a fine cause, the Norwegian Relief Fund. The Norwegian people have suffered terribly at the hands of the Nazis and Peterborough folk should be glad of an opportunity to do something to make conditions a little easier.

* * * * * *

Speaking of the N.H.L. ruling that has hit the Canadians so hard Mike Rodden says in his Kingston Whig-Standard sport column: National League teams still play in major league arenas and attract major league crowds but what they are selling is a long way removed from being major league hockey. Canadiens have every right to feel aggrieved. The Montreal Club has been in the National League longer than has any other organization and there were years when its representatives were kicked around without fear or favor. Other clubs tossed in the sponge but the Frenchmen hung on grimly and kept Montreal in the vaunted National. They should have received applause instead of bitter criticism when they paraded to the cup last winter. If Canadiens had broken any rule or rules regarding the employment of players surely National Selective Service and not opposing National Hockey League club owners should have been the first to draw this matter to their attention. And now the $100,000 question is: "If Canadiens had performed the greatest miracle of the ages and had finished behind Rangers in last position would their opponents have introduced the only ruling in history that ever knocked "Tay Pay" Gorman almost speechless?"

Not Very Likely

"Boston Red Sox were supposed to have forfeited their chances of annexing the 1944 pennant when their ace thrower, Tex Hughson, was drafted into the Navy, but the way those two coast recruits, Rex Cecil and Clem Dreisewerd, have been behaving, there's no saying that the Cronin forces are outside the contending class," says Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Gazette. "Each of the rookies has come up with a couple of important victories at this writing and three of the four triumphs were registered against the red hot New York Yankees. The beginners have looked very much in place against the faster opposition, and although neither is a Hughson, each might prove mighty troublesome on the coming western jaunt. The Yawkey owned outfit, which had been hit harder than any other nine as far as draft requirements were concerned, took another solar plexus blow when Bobby Doerr, the game's premier second baseman and number one American League batter, was inducted, but they still possess much offensive power, such regulars as Bob Johnson. Lew Finney, Pete Fox, George Metkovich and Jim Tabor, being mighty poisonous with the stick, so if the two western kids can continue to pour up good pitching, the batting power of the lineup, might bring this dark horse entry all the way."

* * * * * *

The National League held down the boards alone yesterday in the big show and the day's card had a number of features. One was the fact that Ray Mueller, the Cincinnati Reds durable catcher broke a record that has lasted for many years and was held by a Canadian, Mooney Gibson, when he caught his 134th consecutive game of the season. Mueller went on to add another to his string by working the second half of a double-header and incidentally celebrated the occasion with a homer, his tenth of the season. At New York Billy Voiselle became the first Giant pitcher in seven years to win 20 games. The rookie pitcher has been carrying a big load for Mel Ott's club all season as his record of 20 wins and 15 losses shows. Big Ernie Lombardi helped him no end yesterday by kissing the ball out of the park with the bases loaded. Red Durrett who has been playing in Montreal all season helped Brooklyn to beat Boston 5 to 4 by cuffing a circuit clout to tie up the score.

Westclox Beats Marine Squad

Aided by home runs by Joe Blewett and Billy Millen, Westclox grabbed off the first game in the Industrial League play-off semi-final series at the Bonner Field last night turning back the Outboard Marines in a well-played battle 13 to 8.

For the Big Bens Hopcroft struck otu three and walked one, holding Marines to seven hits. McDougall yielded 13 blows, issued four passes and fanned the same number.

Westclox scoring four runs in the first inning led throughout.

The home run wallops by Blewett and Millen were real blows. In both cases the batter had crossed the plate before the ball came back into the infield. The score:

Draft Board Nabs More Ball Players

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Draft board calls and a professional football exhibition added further confusing overtones to the American League chase today as three of the four contenders went back into action after a four-day "holiday."

Dick Wakefield, Detroit's slugging left fielder, was notified by his Chicago draft board he had passed his army physical and was subject to call at any time. He said he did not expect to be called before mid-October. Notice also was sent to Pitcher Denny Galehouse of the St. Louis Browns to report Monday at Camp Blanding for his pre-induction physical.

Philadelphia's pro grid exhibition Tuesday had an indirect bearing on the race. Steady rains coupled with the condition of the field forced two successive postponements of a scheduled Athletic-Yankee game resulting in a transfer to New York to be part of a Sunday doubleheader.

If Sunday's game hit bad weather, they will be taken off the books. At this stage, one game less than the regular 154 might make the percentaeg point difference that could win or lose the flag.

Although the Philadelphia game probably would not have been played because of the hurricane, even if no football game had been held, President Ed. Barrow of the Yanks was prepared to ask the Majors for legislation at the December meetings, forbidding any team from renting its park for football before the close of its home season.

Bill Voiselle became the first New York Giant pitcher in seven years to win 20 games as he stopped the Phillies, 12-1, yesterday, to tie Chicago for fourth place. The Cubs bowed to Cincinnati, 3-2, in 13 innings but got an even break in the nightcap, 4-2, as Ray Mueller of the Reds stretched his record to 135 straight catching jobs. Brooklyn climbed into sixth place by stopping Boston, 5-4.

17 Top Horses Named For St. Leger Race

NEWMARKET, England, Sept. 15.—(CP-Reuter).—The names of 17 highly expensive three-year-old horses and their all-star jockeys were issued here last night as the probables for Saturday's classic race at Newmarket, the St. Leger.

Bookmakers were in an almost electrical state of anxiety to-night as the British public poured more and more money on four favored horses.

Tehran, owned by Ali Khan, son and heir of the Aga Khan, was backed to win more than $1,000,000 in pre-race bets alone, apart from the "bobs" and "quids" which will be laid on its nose on the day of the race. Gordon Richards, England's champion jockey, is slated to ride the colt.

The three other popular fancies in the long-distance race for three-year-olds will carry around $1,000,000, too, and will be mounted by some of the leading money-making riders in the country.

The Derby winner, Ocean Swell, is second favorite and will be ridden by E. P. H. Smith. Lord Deby's Borealis, carrying a small fortune in bets from the hard-headed north, has the veteran Harry Wragg in the saddle, and Hycilla, pre-race selection in thousands of English back-street pubs, will be whipped along by G. Brigland.

The rest of the field for Saturday is as follows:

Fair Glint, D. Smith; Triona, Arthur Wragg; Causeway, W. Pearson; Hunsingore, Sammy Wragg; Happy Landing, T. Lowrey; Hyder Ali, Cliff Richards.

Orests, T. H. Carey; Renwood, C. Jarvis; Red Fife, C. Elliott; Glide Away, M. Beary; Growing Confidence, K. Mullins; Monsoon, P. Maher, and Model, R. A. Jones.

EX-BOXER REOPENS IN PARIS—Andre Routis, 44, the Bordeaux, France, bantam who went on to win the world's featherweight championship by decisioning Tony Canzoneri in New York in 1928, is shown in Paris after he had reopened his bar which was closed during the German occupation. Routis lost his crown to Battalino at Hartford in 1929 and fought in the U.S. the last time in November of that year.

Omemee Winner Of Playoffs Against Lindsay

OMEMEE, September 15—(ENS).—Omemee Creamery copped the play-off series by defeating the Livewires 12-3 in Lindsay Wednesday night. The series went to five games, Omemee taking three, Lindsay one, and the other resulting in a tie.

"Curly" Stephenson pitched for the winners and played a good game both on the mound and at bat. He walked two men, struck out three, and allowed eight scattered hits. Eakins on the mound for the Lindsay team, yielded thirteen hits, struck out one and walked three.

Omemee pounced on Eakins' delivery for four runs in the first inning and their lead was never threatened. Brooks, who has caught every game for the Creamery boys this year had a great night at bat, getting three for four, scoring three runs himself and driving in two more. Stephenson, along with his good pitching, drove out a triple and a double, scored twice, and batted in four runs. Williamson and Weir had two hits each, the former driving the ball out of the park for a home run in the fifth. McQuade, centre field for Omemee, had four put-outs, and collected a single at bat, scoring two runs. Crawford and Russ Devell gathered one safety each, while Parsons had one single and walked twice.

Eakins, Lindsay's pitcher, was the only one to get two hits off "Curly" Stephenson. Schell clouted a triple, Parish a double, and Campbell, Green, Coombs, each one single.

Manager "Tim" Stephenson, brother of the left handed pitcher, has in his own unspectacular way, played a big part in Omemee's success this year. He has coached on third all season and twice played when Omemee was short handed, once on first and again in right field.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 — (CP)—The new ruling by the National Hockey League's board of governors, barring players who have deferment from military service for other than physical reasons, drew plenty of adverse comment from Montreal sports writers but apparently the league management doesn't plan to get into an argument about it.

"I have no intention of getting into any imbroglio on the subject," said General Manager Lester Patrick from New York after N. H. L. headquarters here had sent him some of the local clippings. President Red Dutton, home in western Canada was unavailable for comment.

The champion Montreal Canadiens are commonly regarded as hardest-hit by the new regulations but the the Montreal Star has reprinted comment of Jim Coleman of the Toronto Globe and Mail and Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle to show that the opposition isn't confined to Montreal.

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll makes probably the strongest attack on the new set-up in an article asking: "will National Selective Service come to the defence of those to whom it has granted deferments; or will a wartime governmental agency permit a particular industry to make its own rules about jobs and deferments.

Dink asks if the N. H. L. had in mind "a rejection of the whole conception of Selective Service," says the ruling "tends to bring into contempt all those who for special reasons, unknown even to the N. H. L. governors, may have been granted deferments," and hints that he thinks the stand of the league has taken it into the field of political action.

Bas (Montreal Star) O'Meara said "There is a pretty wide-spread feeling that some of the hockey heirarchy in the Maple Leaf Gardens who are political opponents of the government inspired this plan with the two-fold purpose of hamstringing Canadiens and rejecting the government policy regarding hockey which was to the effect that they could go along the same as last year."

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson concedes that he has no quarrel with the rule in principles —" in fact it is a very good rule"— but finds it "passing strange, or even stranger than that, that the governors of the National League waited until the sixth year of the war...."

Meanwhile Senator Donat Raymond, president of the Canadiens hockey club, remarks soothingly that "one should not be unduly alarmed...."

Storm Delays Playoff Games

By The Associated Press

After rain had forced two consecutive postponements of the International League playoffs, last night's hurricane delayed the start of the big show once more.

As a result, Newark and Toronto will try to hold their first game at Newark tonight at 8.30.

The pennant - winning Orioles, however, will not meet the fourth-place Buffalo Bisons until Sunday at 2.30 p.m. Playing tonight at Baltimore would necessitate a Sunday game at Buffalo, conflicting with the Chicago Bears-New York Giants football game at Buffalo's civic stadium that day.

Baltimore announced that Charles (Red) Embree, its pitching ace, would start, while Buffalo's choice will be Forrest (Joe) Orrell.

England Awaits Title Match

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MANCHESTER, England, Sept. 15.—(CP Cable.)—A one-time booth boxer and a balding giant with a 35-pound weight advantage battle for the vacant British and British Empire heavyweight titles in a 15-round bout here to-night, but many in the crowd won't believe it until they see the thing begin.

This clash between favored Freddie Mills, "the Bournemouth bomber," and Jack London, has the dubious disinction of being probably the most-postponed title fight of all time.

This is the fifth attempt to stage it after a series of setbacks ranging from training injuries to buzz-bomb attacks.

Wild-swinging Mills, who used to take on all comers at county fairs and learned to hit but not to box, already holds the British and Empire light-heavyweight crowns. Some ring experts figure he will knock out the former West Hartlepool truck driver in quick time. London is 35 and five years older than Mills. Both are sergeants in the R.A.F. physical training section.

London has been chasing a title bout for years and already has been beaten once by Mills. That was three years ago when Len Harvey won the title.

London has not had a serious contest for a year. Mills has had only a few in the last two years and the most recent fight was when he knocked out Al Delaney, mediocre Canadian light-heavy from Windsor and Oshawa, Ont., a copple of weeks before D-Day.

United Church Favors Closed Shop

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) — Motion in favor of a closed shop for the United Church Publishing House was accepted by an overwhelming majority today by the 11th General Council of the United Church of Canada here today.

The Council, however, approved addition to the motion adopting a special committee report regarding the signing of an agreement with the Toronto Allied Trades Council (A.F.L.), stating that acceptance of the report was for the Church Publishing House alone. The report did not make a pronouncement regarding the closed-shop policy generally.

Debate on the report was reopened this morning after a lengthy session yesterday. One spokesman said that by aligning itself with the closed-shop policy, there was danger that the United Church would support the C.C.F. through Church funds, thus backing a political party.

An amendment recommending that the United Church accept collective bargaining independently of the closed or open-shop policy was defeated by a 134 to 64 vote. The amendment also recommended that further investigation be made into the agreement with the Printing Trades Council on behalf of employees of the United Church Publishing House in Toronto and that findings be presented by the Board of Publications at the 1946 meeting of General Council.

SPOTTING GERMAN MINES IN FRANCE—The Nazis in their headlong retreat through northeastern France had little time to plant mines or booby traps to slow the Allied advance, but Royal Canadian Engineers took no chances and here they locate a box mine on the road to Puits, near Dieppe. The mine detectors are Pte. J. Lafferty, Saint John, N.B., and Pte. C. A. Shaw, Arthur, Ont.

Church Observes 50th Anniversary

BANCROFT, Sept. 15 —(ENS)— An outstanding event of the weekend was the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the erection of the Egan Creek United church. It was decorated for this occasion with many floral bouquets in memory of the older members of the church who cradled it through its pioneer days. An anniversary cake with 50 golden candles commemorating the event added to the decorations. Also displayed was a large honor roll draped with flags, bearing the names of all Egan Creek and Detlor boys who are now on Active Service overseas.

There were two services during the day, one at 2 p.m. in the afternoon in charge of Rev. Robert A. McLauchlin of Bancroft with Rev. Kemp of Havelock as guest speaker. Rev. Kemp was clergyman in this same church and district some 43 years ago and his talk was interesting in relating events of some two decades ago. A quartet from St. Paul's United church, Bancroft, was present to assist with the musical program. Members of the church fifty years ago who were honored on this occasion included Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. August Rupnow, Mrs. John Smith and Miss Lena Smith.

Out-of-town guests included Rev. and Mrs. Kemp of Havelock; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Alec McGuire, Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Cole of Belleville; Mrs. A. H. Lloyd of Hillier; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Smith of Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Flower of Renfrew; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Schutt and family of Schutt, also several friends from Bancroft, Hermon and Fort Stewart.

Rev. McLauchlin read letters from interested friends who were unable to attend the services which included one from Mrs. Wolfinger of Florida, formerly Barbara McGuire; also one from a friend with an enclosure of a $25 cheque as a gift to the church.

The evening service at 7.30 p.m. was in charge of N. R. Flower of Renfrew and formerly of the Bancroft field. Rev. Kemp also was guest speaker at this service. A letter read by Mr. Flower from Mr. and Mrs. James Smith of Fort Francis was interesting in that they are one of the oldest families now living who were present at the erection of the Egan Creek church.

The women of the church sponsored a supper in the Detlor Hall on Monday evening which was well patronized. Following supper, a short program was given which included a talk by Rev. Kemp, who related his trips and experiences when he was in the Fort Stewart and Egan Creek charge.

Swamp Fires Bother Council

MILLBROOK, Sept. 15 (ENS) — Cavan Council met recently, with Reeve John Smith in the chair. The members were all present except Deputy-Reev H. Cathcart. Communications included: From Planning and Development re the Ganaraska Advisory Board. On motion of Councilors Thorn and Armstrong the Reeve was appointed a member of Ganaraska Advisory Board. From Ontario Safety League re control and reduction of traffic accidents. This was ordered filed. One from the Department of Highways, Gasoline Tax Branch, re tax on fuel oil, was left with the clerk. From Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, re admission of Mr. Wake. Clerk to advise that John Wake was a resident of Manvers.

Other letters were from S. R. Hart & Co. re assessment and collector's rolls. The clerk is to order necessary supplies From C. A. Poynton, Department of Highways, re engineer for proposed bridge. This was ordered filed. R. Hutchinson addressed the Council about opening a ditch. The matter was left with the road superintendent. B. Fee presented a claim for damage to car, and the clerk is to notify the insurance company.

Mr. Wood and Mr. Whitfield addressed the Council about fire in their swamp. It was left with Councillors Earle and Armstrong to place a man to watch this, and the clerk to write the Fire Marshal's Department for advice.

S. S. Staples addressed the Council about a ditch on the Quarter Line. This was left with the road superintendent. Robert McCamus asked that gravel be placed in the building on Exhibition Grounds, and the Council agreed to do this. Dr. Temple addressed the Council about the Bowmanville Training School boys being brought into the township, and advised that some action be taken by the Council. The Council agreed to consider the matter. Mr. Fox met Council at the request of the Reeve to discuss timber on road allowance, but as Mr. Syer was not present it was arranged to meet both next week.

On motion of Councillors Armstrong and Earle, the Reeve was instructed to sign the following orders:

S. Pritchard, school money S.S. 14, $300; M. Thexton, school money S.S. 13, $150; Docon Telephone Co. account, $4.03; L. W. Smith, valuating sheep, $4; Morris McGee sheep killed, $12; W. F. Hun Atrocities Bared In Belgium City

By HAROLD MAYES
Reuter War Correspondent

BRUSSELS, Sept. 15 (CP Reauter) —Atrocities committed by the Germans were described vividly when I visited the former Gestapo headquarters in a peaceful Brussels street.

Men were herded into tiny compartments measuring only three feet square, by three feet deep and subjected to torture if they refused to talk.

Mothers were placed 40 and 50 in a room only nine feet by seven.

Pregnant women were kicked in the stomach and burned with lighted cigaret ends.

This was the Gestapo headquarters for the whole of Belgium and northern France and in dungeons, comparable only with those of bygone ages, thousands of citizens were subjected to horrible treatment.

In one small room with light and air from only one small grating in the pavement 24 people were herded.

One person was allowed out each day to be given an opportunity to talk.

There was no light, no comfort of any description and their only contact with their guards was through a small grill in the heavy steel door.

Their daily food was a small piece of black bread and a mug of thin soup not much thicker than water.

One of the men who was in prison there for four days last July told me his story.

The prisoners were strung to the ceiling by their feet and blugeoned with metal-loaded rubber truncheons. Their fingernails were pulled off.

Anglicans Make Addition To Canon Law

SHERBROOKE, Que., Sept. 15 — (CP) —An addition to the canon law of the Church of England in Canada was approved at the 26th Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada which concluded yesterday at Bishop's University at nearby Lennoxville, whereby non-Anglican clergymen will be permitted to preach in Anglican churches. The supplement, introduced by the Lord Bishop of Halifax, passed the Synod almost unanimously.

It said that " in the case of special occasional services, a Bishop may at his discretion permit a clergyman to preach in a non-Anglican church or invite an non-Anglican minister, recommended as a friend of reunion, to preach in an Anglican church; it being understood that such occasional services shall not conflict with the regular and accustomed services in any parish."

Rule Was Clear.

The original canon stated that "no person shall be permitted to celebrate divine service, or perform any office of the church, permanently or occasionally, except he shall have been espiscopally and canonically ordained and it shall be the duty of the incumbent, or, in his absence, of the church wardens to demand proof of such ordination and of the good standing of the clergyman before permitting him to officiate."

Rev. W. W. Davis of the Diocese of Quebec said that with many Anglican servicemen being administered to by chaplains of other denominations, "when these boys come home, they would be disappointed if their favorite chaplain, perhaps a Presbyterian were unable to preach a special sermon in their own Anglican church."

The new supplement to the canon law would prevent this situation from arising, he added.

The Synod passed a resolution urging the provincial council "to take all possible steps to promote christian education in the day schools and universities of the provinces of Canada." It also suggested that the matter of definition of jurisidiction of general and provincial synods be sent to the provincial council. An alternative order of holy baptism was drafted and it will be submitted to the Dominion House of Bishops.

The group also approved a motion opposing anti-semitism and 'other forms of racial animosity" as being "contrary to the principles of our Lord."

Bomb Hurts 17

WINGHAM, Ont., Sept. 15 ((CP) —Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Pyn of Wingham said last night they have received word that their son, John Warren, was one of 17 members of a Canadian parachute corps in training at Shilo Camp, Man., injured when a mortar bomb exploded while training with live ammunition. One man was reported killed in the accident. Details of the tragedy were not available.

NEW RECRUITS.

Recruiting officers of the 4th (R) Heavy Anti-aircraft Battery report two new enlistments this week. They are Gunner A. Steven, 700 Park Street, and Gunner N. L. Rendell, 12 New Chamberlain Street. Both men enlisted at Monday evening's parade.

AIRMEN DECORATED

Among 52 airmen whose decorations were announced today, the names of Flight Lieutenant A. G. McCauly, of Marmora, and Flying Officer F. D. Jackman of Stirling, have been announced as winning the Distinguished Flying Cross.

SEEKS HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. R. Glover of Hastings has asked the assistance of The Examiner in trying to get in touch with her huband who is supposed to be in Peterborough. Mrs. Glover says that her baby is very ill and that the husband is wanted at home at once.

SEASON OPENS TODAY.

The duck shooting season in the district north of No. 7 Highway opened today, and will continue until November 30. The season south of No. 7 Highway will begin on September 25 and last until December 10. War activities and the scarcity of ammunition is expected to cut down the number of hunters materially.

ONE ENLISTMENT.

The Active Army Recruiting Centre reports that Raymond M. Cockerill, of 190 Auburn Street, enlisted in the Canadian Active Army recently.

WAS CRYING

Although the saying is "there's no use crying over spilt milk," a youngster was seen on Charlotte street this morning crying hard, over a bottle of milk, dropped on the sidewalk and smashed.

PLANE WRECKAGE

The two R.C.A.F. trucks which passed through Peterborough Wednesday were seen again on Reid street this morning, carrying what is believed to be the wings and cabin of the Avro-Anson that crashed in Lindsay last Saturday.

NOT WOOL BUYERS.

In fairness to Hyma Albert and Sam Golbach, witnesses in the wool theft case, it should be corrected that they did not purchase any of the wool in question. The report did correctly indicate that Albert and Goldbach said they bought 800 pounds of burlap at two cents a pound, but later their names were linked with that of Henry Petersiel as buyers of wool. Their testimony related only to an alleged burlap deal.

Testify Blood Plasma Saves Life of Woman Accident Victim

Transfusion of blood plasma, the emergency recourse that is being used so generally and successfully in the war, was ascribed a major factor in saving the life of Mrs. Lily Stuart, plaintiff in a suit for damages against Thompson Huggins, Jr., taxi proprietor, and Ellsworth Ingall, driver, in the Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Plaxton and a jury Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Stuart narrowly escaped death, Dr. Robert Young testified. "As it was she nearly died at the hospital. I arrived at the scene of the accident about 9.30 p.m. Her right arm was so badly crushed that I had to amputate it about an inch above the elbow, an hour after Mrs. Stuart was hurt."

Other injuries were a double fracture of the right leg below the knee; her nose was broken, and her face bruised and lacerated. She had a crushing injury on the right side of the chest and could hardly breathe. She was treated seven days for shock, and was given a blood plasma transfusion."

Mr. Carley: "What do you say as to her present health?"

Dr. Young: "Not too bad for her age, but she's not very strong. She gets along pretty well on her leg; there may be some permanent arthritis in her knee."

Glass Strewn 25 Feet

Gordon Hardy, former local police constable, said he reached the place of the accident about 9.30 p.m. He noticed two areas of bloodstains on the pavement, the larger about 20 feet from the west curb and 75 feet from the north limit of the Dublin street intersection. Headlight glass was strewn twenty-five feet north of the larger bloodstain.

The right front wheel of the car, which was driven by Ellsworth Ingall, was touching the west curb; and the right rear fender was five feet from that curb. The left headlight of the car was broken.

Arthur Duckworth, 640 George street, said that at the police station he had asked Ingall, driver of the car, what had happened. "He told me he had seen the people start to cross the road from the curb and blew his horn." Witness added that visibility up and down the street was quite good.

To Mr. MacDonald witness said his wife was a niece of Mrs. Stuart. It was at his home Mrs. Stuart had called just before the accident.

Margaret Helson said Mrs. Stuart nearly died in the first stage of her hospital treatment and suffered a great deal of pain.

Batley, Harold Ray, Clayton Sanderson, John McCall, Roy Davidson, Norman Gainor, Arnold Everett, William Levall, Harold Bolton, John Gough, Roy Bullock and Sylvester Hickey, foreman.

The other trial jury, the twelve men who declared Charles Ward guilty of having shot W. J. Bolton with intent to do bodily harm were: Clayton Sanderson, Melville Stewart, George Buller, Milford G. Hardill, Alvin H. Davis, Fred Kiley, William Brown, Joseph Detcher, William Levall, Sidney Goldstone, Harold Ray, Sylvester Hickey.

The foreman of that jury was Mr. Hardill.

Pte. Raymond Miles Has Shoulder Wound

Another soldier in the Essex Scottish Regiment serving in France, Pte. Raymond Miles, has been wounded in the shoulder, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Miles, Lakefield.

The young soldier has been overseas since January 1943 and prior to enlisting worked in Fanning's Laundry. He was doing work in the medical section and found one grateful German in his travels. Pte. Miles bound up his wounds and the Nazi soldier thanked him and handed him his wrist watch as a token of appreciation.

He is the second son to be wounded. His brother, Pte. Clifford Miles, was wounded in Italy some months ago, but is now back in action, and his brother-in-law, Lawrence Charlton, was recently reported killed overseas.

LATEST ADDITION TO C.G.E. — It has been announced that a new factory building (above) to house the fractional motors department of the Canadian General Electric Company here is to be built on the Wolfe-Park street area of the company's property. The building will be 420 by 177 feet and when fully equipped will cost $300,000. Work is expected to commence early in October.

Canadian General Electric Plans $300,000 Factory Building In City

Ian F. McRae, works manager of the Canadian General Electric Company here, announced today that his company intends to erect a new factory building at an estimated cost of $300,000 when equipped. This latest addition to the big plant in the south end of the city is to be built on the Wolfe-Park street area and the contract will be let in the very near future with work commencing early in October.

At a time when there is in both industry and business a certain uneasiness as to the immediate future the steps being taken by the Canadian General Electric Company is considered the best tonic that any city could get at the present.

While no doubt the large Genelco buildings will some day become available for use by the electric company, at present they are owned by the government and plans of the company for a new building mean that the future of the C.G.E. in Peterborough is going to be bigger than ever.

The building is going to be 420 by 177 feet and will have a floor space of 60,000 square feet. It will be one storey structure of fireproof brick and welded steel construction and will house the fractional motor, aircraft generators and automatics departments, thus going a long way to relieve a serious bottleneck in the main plant at present.

It is natural, Mr. McRae said, that some increase in employment may be expected and this alone will be welcome news at a time when a change over in industry is to be expected. The building is going to be the most modern small motor manufacturing set up in Canada and it will compare very favorable in size to the Genelco building which is nearest Monaghan Road.

Schools Want Place In Victory Doings

Forseeing that Victory for the Allies will be an epoch making day in the lives of school children, as well as adults, teaching staffs are anxious to know what steps they can take for some kind of celebration, it was reported at the Board of Education meeting, Thursday night.

The question was broached in a report by C. S. Browne, principal of the Collegiate Institute. He asked what action he and his teachers might be expected to take the day that Victory was announced.

"I think the action will look after itself," laughed D. V. Canning.

"If the news came at 10 o'clock we would like to be in a position to leave immediately," Mr. Browne suggested.

"If you once let the children go, you'd never get them together again. I think it would be nice to find out what the city is planning and then keep the students for a short time and have them participate in the ceremonies," Inspector K. Wightman added.

"I'd like to see an orderly celebration to start with, but I won't guarantee what will happen after the announcement is made," declared T. J. Carley.

It was decided on a motion by Mr. Carley and Mr. Reed to contact the city clerk and assure the Council that the Board would like to cooperate in any plans the city may formulate.

Appoint Janitor

C. Runnett, who has been a member of the school caretaking staff, handed in his resignation and a recommendation of the property committee naming S. T. Castle as junior janitor at a salary of $1,080 a year, plus bonus, was adopted on a motion by Mr. Canning and Mrs. F. Harris.

The Supervision committee recommended that the request from the city clerk asking for the use of the public schools on election day in December, be granted. This would mean a partial holiday from 10 o'clock in the morning, on December 4. The suggestion was also accepted that permission be given the teachers to act as polling officials. This was adopted on motion of Mr. Carley and Dr. C. M. Scott.

The installation of a floodlight at Central School and the extension of water facilities at Confederation school were approved by the Board, and a resolution will be sent the Chief of Police requesting that he consider the matter of window breakage in the schools.

Quebec Man Given Reformatory Term

George Houde, St. Prosper, Que., who pleaded guilty in police court some time ago to two charges of car theft and a third count of stealing a quantity of clothing from Isadore Black was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning.

On a charge of stealing an automobile from W. E. Leonard, Houde was sentenced to 18 months definite and six months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory and he received a similar sentence for the theft of a car belonging to Fred Vivash. On the charge of stealing clothing from Isadore Black the sentence was four months definite and two months indeterminate.

All three sentences will run concurrently and will date from August 30.

When Houde appeared for sentence this morning his record was handed to the Magistrate by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

"You are on probation now," commented Magistrate Langley after glancing over the document.

Houde said that he was sorry for what he had done and asked the court to be as lenient as possible.

Albert Marcoux and Leopald Gingras were remanded on similar charges.

Lawrence Wildfong, 36, refrigeration service man with Johnston's Furniture and Electrical Sales and Service, was charged with the theft of $16.65, and at the request of W. J. Fair, who appeared for him this morning, was remanded without plea or election until next week. The Crown was not ready to go ahead with the case today.

Sgt. R. Willshaw Badly Wounded

Sgt. Robert Willshaw, who has helped write bloody history at Caen, Falaise and Rouen with the Glengarrians, has been reported severely wounded September 5, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Willshaw, 721 Elcome Crescent.

About a week ago, the Examiner announced the 22-year-old soldier had been promoted to Sergeant, after being in the Army four years and three months. His brief references to the war in letters home recently indicated that they were advancing so fast that mail and boxes couldn't keep up with them. Two Peterborough boys, Allan McQuarrie, killed and Jerry Woods, wounded were with him when the Nazis got them.

War service runs in the family. In the last war, his father, and uncles served overseas, and to-day their sons, beraing the same names are also fighting in foreign lands. Two cousins are overseas— Jimmy Willshaw with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Italy and George Willshaw, with the R. C. A. S. C. in France.

Two Fined $100 Had Slot Machines

Possession of slot machines cost T. E. Curvin, Young's Point and Harold Weir, Burleigh Falls, fines of $100 in police court Thursday afternoon when the two entered pleas of guilty to charges under the anti-gambling laws.

Magistrate O. A. Langley ordered the confiscation of the machines and also of the money contained in them.

The machines were seized in August by two members of the provincial police anti-gambling squad who were checking up in this district at that time.

P. D. Scollard appeared in behalf of the accused at yesterday's session.

Walter Belleghem Laid To Rest

The funeral of the late Walter Belleghem took place on Thursday afternoon from his own funeral parlor, and was one of the most largely attended funerals here in recent years.

Born in Peterborough and having lived here all his life, Mr. Belleghem had made many friends, not only here but out-of-town as well, who were shocked by the suddenness of his passing. Coming in contact as he did with sorrow, sickness and death all his business life, he had performed many acts of kindness and thoughtfulness known only to those who were afflicted.

Floral tributes from his friends, expressing the loss the latter had sustained in his death, were many.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist church, a personal friend, assisted by Rev. Dr. Cooper, acting pastor of George Street United church.

Out-of-town attendants at the funeral included many members of Mr. Belleghem's profession, including President O'Hagan of the Canadian Funeral Directors' Association.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Roy Young, Fred L. Roy, Charles Cummer, Ira Robson, J. K. Hughes and C. M. Moncur.

Left to mourn the loss are his sorrowing wife, formerly Alma Knapman, one son, Jack Tovell Belleghem, and two daughters, Berta and Frances at home, one brother Arthur W. Belleghem, Toronto, and two sisters, Mrs. T. H. Prust and Miss Laura Belleghem, Peterborough.

LAKEFIELD BOY KILLED—Pte. Bernard McFadden, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McFadden, of Lakefield, has been officially reported killed in action overseas, according to word received Thursday by his parents.

Navy Tag Day On Saturday

Hundreds of navy photographs in the centre window of the Grafton store today call attention to the part Peterborough is playing in supplying men and women for Canada's naval services and also to the fact that tomorrow, all day, the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy is holding its annual tag day. The proceeds will be used in supplying Christmas parcels for Peterborough sailors.

Although the Auxiliary shared handsomely in the proceeds from the Labor Day celebration, the amount received is not enough to take care of all the parcels that will have to be sent this year and much will depend upon the response made by the citizens to tomorrow's appea.

The number of Peterborough boys and girls in the Navy has increased so much during the current year that the task of supplying Christmas parcels to them all is going to be much more expensive than in 1943 and the support of citizens generally in connection with tomorrow's tag day is urgently requested in view of the urgent need for additional funds.

ITALY CASUALTY—Pte. M. D. Knott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Knott, Curve Lake, is reported to have been slightly wounded while fighting with an infantry unit in Italy. Prior to enlisting he worked at the C.G.E.

Pte. B. McFadden Reported Killed

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 15—(ENS).— Overseas a few months, 19-year-old Pte. Bernard McFadden, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McFadden, of Lakefield, has been reported killed in action in France, according to word just received by his parents. His father is the lockmaster at Lakefield and is a veteran of the First World War.

He enlisted about a year ago, and when in Canada was with an infantry unit. Overseas, he was transferred to the Essex Scottish Regiment. Pte. McFadden was born and educated in Lakefield.

He is survived by his parents; five brothers: Francis of St. Catharines, honorably discharged a year ago; Jack, wounded in Italy and honorably discharged only a week ago; Pat, in Italy, a driver with the Royal Canadian Dragoon Guards, and Billy, S.D. and G. Highlanders, who is in a hospital in England, wounded; and Jerome, who has been honorably discharged from the H. and P.E. Regiment; also by four sisters: Mrs. Thomas Watts and Mrs. Donald Tasse, both of Toronto; Mrs. Vivien Payne and Teresa McFadden, both of Lakefield. There are two brothers-in-law, Pte. E. T. Tasse, who was wounded in Italy, and is now in Christie Street Hospital, and Thomas Watt, R.C.A.F. mechanic, overseas.

No-diphtheria Record Set In Hamilton City

Hamilton's excellent record of having no diphtheria cases for the last 11 years is probably due to an excellent number of immunizations and isolation of previous cases, according to Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H.

In Peterborough, there have been no cases of diphtheria since 1942, when two cases were reported. In 1941, a total of nine cases were treated, and in the two years, there was one death, he said. While records of years before 1939 is not available at the present, there were no cases of the disease in 1939 or 1940, and the last two years have been completely free of diphtheria, he said.

Hamilton is believed to have established a world's record in 11 consecutive years of freedom from diphtheria.

$470 Required To Complete Next Donation

The work of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund has been one continuous round of seeing one objective completed, and then immediately commencing on another symbolical of everything that pertains to a successful prosecution of the whole war effort, for to relax in any one sphere would really be tantamount to leaving some loophole which might profit the enemy, no matter whether it might be in a remote sense or not.

So far some thirty donations have been cabled over to the Lord Mayor of London, totalling in all a sum of £17,700 which required nearly $80,000 in Canadian currency, so the present effort represents the fund's 31st, which it is proposed to make one of £300 or some $1,345.00 of which the sum of $875.00 is now tucked safely away in the bank, leaving a balance of $470.00 still required to make this latest objective possible of fruition.

Relying entirely on the goodwill of all its supporters, it can readily be seen that this continuous work of the fund has only been made possible by the continuous work of the many individuals and groups whose record of achievement has repeatedly appeared in this colunm, numbers of whom in both classes could be cited as coming back time and again with further help to assist the worthy cause for which it operates.

Two Repeats To-day.

The Range Pals, a group of young people centering around the Rifle Range of No. 7, Peterborough have assisted on many occasions in a really substantial manner, and despite the heavy inroads that war has made into their membership (as it has with all organizations in their group age due to the challenge of war needs) this group keeps up their good work, and to-day a further $6.00 is recorded in their name

Then the Peterborough Chapter, No. 161 Order of Eastern Star, who also have staged special efforts for the fund, besides giving from their own funds for the same purpose, have also came back with more assistance, to help with the needed cause by the heavy damage incurred through the recent robot bomb attacks.

Just to point out how members of this group had kept the need to relieve the distress thus caused in mind, may be shown from the fact that a Euchre Club was formed among the members from this city and other places at Belmont Lake, where the W. M. Miss Vera Squire has a summer home, and when they resumed their regular meetings after summer recess last Monday, the money raised in this manner was voted to the fund, and was handed in by Mrs. W. Beggs, their treasurer.

Grace Marshall Wins Prize For Photograph

Almost one hundred photographs are on exhibit at the Roy Studio in its first public exhibition of the Peterborough Camera Club since its inception more than a year ago.

Premier award went to Miss Grace Marshall, Reid street whose picture "Water Lilies near a sunken log" is a masterpiece of outdoor photograph. Seven other entries are given wards of merit, and these are Sunset, Milford Bay, Muskoka by Miss Marshall; Happy Days and Snow-capped, two photos by Arthur Jenkinson, Pigeon River, by D. Batterbury, Silver Birches by George W. Green and Peter, by B. K. Scarlett.

The craftsmanship indicated by the quality of the prints is of a high calibre, and the members of the club reveal a broad knowledge of this art. Composition, lighting, background, choice of subject, and detail are all covered in a professional manner by the entrants.

There are several outstanding landscape and pictorial shots, and the close-ups and portraits studies are particularly good. Some of the members made clever use of filters to enchance the beauty of their photos, while other incorporated a clever use of natural backlighting to get unusual effects. Shadow detail in snow pictures is illustrated in at least two exhibits.

This exhibtion is open to the public on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Members of the club who entered photos in the exhibition are: G. D. Bard, Mrs. G. D. Bard, D. Batterbury, Sid Bond, Oliver E. Braley, Robert G. Brook, Jim Choate, Mr. Curran, Gil Downer, Miss Mary Easton, E. W. Glover, George W. Green, R. P. Halladay, Jack Hamar, George Hutchinson, Ruth Hutchinson, Arthor Jenkinson, Fred Jenning, Mr. Karits, Grace Marshal, Floyd Mathers, J. McGrath, Ethel Monks, Miss Margaret Parker, W. J. Riddle, B. K. Scarlett, Walter J. Smith, Mary Stevens, Jack Taylor.

Miss Mamie McCarthy and Fred L. Roy were judges.

IN MEMORIAM

HEARD—In loving memory of a dear father, Mr. Richard C. Heard, who passed away one year ago today, Sept. 15th, 1943.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who though absent, is just as dear,
Hundreds of lambs in purple clover
But only one daddy the wide world over.

—Sadly missed by his family.

JOHNSTON—In loving memory of Arthur T. Johnston of Peterborough, who passed away September 15, 1942.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days.
Sincere and kind in heart and mind
What a beautiful memory he left behind.

—Ever remembered by his wife Sarah, sons Arthur and Edwin.

NOTICE

Monaghan Ward Voters' List

While the Annexation to the City of Peterborough of the Suburban Area of North Monaghan Township does not take effect until January 1st, 1945, the Council of the City of Peterborough sought and has received authority to grant Full Municipal Voting and Election privileges in the City Elections to be held on December 4th, 1944., to the Municipal Electors of the Annexed Area.

Since the Assessment for 1945 taxation purposes of the Area, called Monaghan Ward, will not be completed for some time, the City Clerk was authorized to prepare a Voters' List for use in the Election based on the North Monaghan Township Voters' List of 1944.

This Voters' List has been prepared and printed, and has been posted in the City Clerk's Office. Copies will be placed about the Area.

Voters are invited to examine the List. Complaints for its correction must be made to the City Clerk.

An Index of the Streets is provided in the List to assist Voters in finding their names.

DATED at Peterborough, September 15th, 1944.

E. A. OUTRAM,
City Clerk.

Defense Finishes Evidence At Stuart Trial

Hearing of Mrs. Lily Stuart's damages action against Thompson Huggins, Jr., and Ellsworth Ingall for injuries suffered by the plaintiff in a traffic accident in the evening of August 15, 1942, on George street, north of Dublin street, reached the stage of conclusion of defense evidence at noon today before Mr. Justice Plaxton and a jury.

Mrs. Stuart was struck by an automobile owned by the defendant Huggins and driven by Ingall with extensive injuries including the subsequent amputation of her right arm above the elbow. T. J. Carley is counsel for the plaintiff, and Arthur A. MacDonald, Toronto, for the defense.

Ellsworth Ingall, driver of the car was examined by Mr. MacDonald. He said he had been driving cars 17 years, and was fully licensed. The night of the accident he was returning from a taxi trip to the north end of the city.

"The view toward the east side of George street, north of Dublin was obscured. There was a dark section emphasized by lights on the west side and the light from the corner store at Dublin street corner. There are spirea on the east boulevard which is about six feet wide from curb to sidewalk edge, witness said. The spirea bushes seemed "bushier" two years ago than at last July when exhibit photographs were taken by Fred A. Cripps.

In Front of Car

Mr. MacDonald—"Where was Mrs. Stuart when you first saw her?"

"She was right in front of the car. I was driving south. Three parts of the car were to the right of the centre line of the road."

Witness said he was driving at 20 miles an hour.

"Why didn't you see her before striking her?" "On account of the darkness in the area to the east side of the street north of Dublin."

Ingall denied that he had told the witness Duckworth that he "had seen the people start from the east curb and blew my horn."

"Duckworth says you were pretty shaky at the police station. I suppose that is correct?" "Yes sir; very much."

"Did Duckworth speak to you?" "Yes."

"Are you able to tell us what did occur between you?" "No, I can't."

"Is it a fact you did see the people leave the east curb?" "No, I did not."

Ingall said the front left hand side of the car struck Mrs. Stuart, and he stopped at once. After the accident Mrs. Stuart lay on the road at the left hand wheel.

"And your car was still out near the centre of the road, with most of it to the west side of the centre?" "Yes."

Sounded Horn

Ingall told Mr. MacDonald he had sounded his horn before he saw her, because he knew he was approaching the Dublin street intersection.

To Mr. Carley witness said he was employed by Mr. Huggins as a part time driver.

"And this was only the second trip you were making in that car?" "Yes."

"And you were not particularly familiar with the car?" "I was capable of driving it."

"I suggest you drove it only once before that night?" "Yes."

Mr. Carley—"You say you blew your horn at every intersection?" "Yes, I did, just touched the button."

"You mean to tell us it was for the intersection at Dublin you blew the horn 150 feet north of the interection?" "I did."

"And you saw no one?" "No."

Ingall said he "passed off" the 150 feet a week ago.

Saw No One

"Did you see the two little girls in light colored dresses, who were with Mrs. Stuart?" "No."

Mr. Carley suggested that the lights of the 1936 Buick, on high beam, would light up the whole width of George street.

"You said in examination for discovery that you were looking straight ahead, and did not look to right or left. Are those answers correct?" "To my knowledge, yes."

Mr. Carley—"You say it was dark to the east side; that would be the most dangerous part of the road?" "Yes."

"But you didn't even look there?" "No."

Ingall said that with the high beam of the headlights one could see pedestrians only 75 feet ahead of the car. "That is my own estimate."

Fred A. Cripps, photographer, identified photographs of the George street between Dublin and Edinburgh streets.

THE STARS SAY . . . .
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 16

A VERY interesting chain of lunar transits indicates lively and profitable activities in the direction of placing the future and its fortunes on a sound and enduring basis. It is a time for accepting every possible opening for furthering said prospects, even though there may be certain devastating situations to cope with. There may be sudden and precipitate changes, journeys with complete about-face of old ties, environ and prospects. This should be managed with discrimination, prudence and common sense and no impulses or emotionalism. The private, effectional, as well as business life may be at stake.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves precipitated in a strange exciting, and radical set of circumstances, demanding complete reversal of the life and its culmination. There are excellent prospects for placing the fortunes on a sound secure basis, which reason and common sense may prove the determining factors. There are some indications of sudden turns, which must be met with composure and logic and not impulse or emotionalism. With prudence and exceptional talent there might be surprising gains. The romantic, domestic and social as well as intellectual should be discreetly handled.

A child born on this day will have much sound reason and sound sense in spite of erratic or emotional urges. Its fine talents should assist to a very progressive and stable place in life.

COMPTON DIES

CROWBOROUGH, England (CP). — Col. Lord Douglas Compton, C.B.E., of the 9th Lancers died here recently. He was in India from 1895 to 1896 on the staff of Lord Wenlock, Governor of Madras.

Warm Welcome Given Italy Veteran

A veteran of blitzes and heavy fighting from the days of Dunkerque to the capture of Rome, Cpl. Richard A. Seal, 157 Hart avenue, received a heart-warming welcome when he arrived in Peterborough Tuesday for a 28-day leave. Fellow employees of his wife, who works at Zeller's, turned out en masse with confetti and celebrating horns in the drizzling rain, to give him a handshake of welcome, and cheer home after more than four years overseas service.

Cpl. Seal's service with the Canadian Active Army began on a frosty day in December, 1939, just three months after the Dominion entered the war against Germany. Little time elapsed before going overseas, and he arrived in England in January of 1940.

The first action he saw was in France, in those hectic days of the Battle of the Bulge, and of those times, he says, "It was just a case of getting out as fast as possible". At the time of the evacuation of Dunkerque, he made his way to Brest, where a small freighter took him back to England. He said it seems funny to think of how dark those days were, when contrasted with how well the war is going now.

All, through the Nazi Luftwaffe's blitz of 1940-41, Cpl. Seal was stationed at Croydon, London, reputedly England's "hot spot" during the bombings.

In Two Invasions

Serving with artillery and anti-tank regiments, he was in the assault scale that invaded Sicily, landing immediately the infantry had set foot on the beaches. After hard and tiresome fighting in Sicily, he landed in Italy with the invasion forces also, and of the two campaigns, Cpl. Seal says there was much less opposition to the Italy invasion, during the first few hours, than experienced at Sicily.

From that time, until July of this year when he left the actual fighting in Italy, he has been in continuous action in that sector, taking part in such famed campaigns as Salerno, Cassino, Naples, Rome, Moro River Crossing, and Ortona.

About his days in Italy, Cpl. Seal gave the Examiner a picture of a country devastated by war. Cassino, he said, was as "flat as this floor", with not a building or house standing for miles. Rubble was all there was left of the city, after that terrific artillery barrage, and the bombing attacks. On the other hand, Rome escaped damage completely, except for the suburbs. The main religious, theatrical and cultural sections of the city were untouched and German snipers who remained behind to harass the conquerors, hid-out in the suburbs. A meeting with the Pope, and a visit to St. Peter's Cathedral are two points that will stand out about Rome for a long time, he said.

At Ortona

Ortona and the crossing of the Moro river were victories that were fought for every inch of the way, and the Moro River, featuring not much water, but plenty of mud, necessitated the "skidding" of big guns across it. This meant erecting a type of rails over the mud, and sliding the field pieces across. Following the capture of Ortona, Canadian troops enjoyed motion pictures in theatres, even with heavy shelling being directed at the town at the time.

Cassino came next, and Cpl. Seal saw action in the smashing of both the Hitler and Gustav lines. German booby-traps, scattered all over in the shape of watches, fountain-pens and souvenirs, were numerous in these sectors, and every window or door had to be carefully examined before being opened.

Then, just one day after Rome fell to Allied forces pressing north, he left his regiment and began to start for home. It was in July when he left Italy for England, and from England, he sailed as a prisoner-of-war escort for home.

During his stay in England, after the doodle-bugs made their initial appearance, he saw several of the bombs land, and said as far as he could observe, there is absolutely no hole left in the ground where one explodes, and that the explosion shoots upwards and outwards, breaking glass in windows of a large surrounding area. It is believed that many casualties from the robombs are caused from flying glass, as the force of the explosion is very great. Strangely, there is only a slight noise from the exploding bomb, he said.

Now, back in Canada, Cpl. Seal said his days away from home did not seem anything. Over there, while the blues and homesickness get you now and then, one is usually too busy keeping in one piece to worry or be blue, he said. Italian drinks consisted of mostly white wine which was very good. Cpl. Seal stated some wine was very poor to taste, but that the odd bottle of vermouth made appearances.

There will always be reminders of days in Italy in the Seal household though in the large number of souvenirs brought and sent back to his wife, and son, Jack, who attends Prince of Wales School. One is a medal, obviously issued German soldiers for some winter service. A daughter, Mrs. Frank Coy, is living in Halifax, where her husband is with the Navy. While there were no Peterborough boys in his regiment, Hon. Captain V. E. R. Zufelt of Peterborough, was the regimental chaplain, and accompanied the troops to Sicily from England.

Never Wounded

In more than four years of action in various war theatres, Cpl. Seal has never been wounded. Asked whether or not he carries a lucky charm, he said the number "13" happened to be his lucky number all his life, and in Italy, he picked up several charms ornamented with a large "13".

Formerly of Toronto, Mrs. Seal came to Peterborough to live with her husband went overseas. He for-Armstrong, of 157 Hart avenue, after her husbandw ent overseas. He formerly worked at Canadian Breweries.

General Council To Stabilize Pension Fund

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 15 — (CP) — The 11th general council of the United Church of Canada in session here today unanimously agreed to a nation-wide campaign among church members to raise $3,500,000 to stabilize its pension fund.

Dr. Leslie Pidgeon of Montreal, chairman of the Board of Finance, indicated the campaign would be launched next year and was being undertaken in accordance with expert financial advice "at what is probably the most propitious time likely to come in the next quarter-century."

Council also made provision for a large increase in ordinary revenue by ordering its board of finance to allocate 15 per cent of missionary and the maintenance fund revenue (with a guaranteed minimum of $250,000 a year) and by passing an assessment of pastoral charges to bring in an annual minimum of $200,000. This assessment is to be based on ministerial salaries. Both these sources of income are in addition to the direct payment of pension dues by the ministers themselves.

A graduated scale of charges was set up ranging from 2½ per cent where charges pay a minister up to $800 a year, to 7½ per cent where they pay more than $3,000.

Sharp Upturn In Building For The Spring

OTTAWA, Sept. 15. — (CP).— Construction in Canada has zoomed to new highs during the war period but there is still a hefty backlog of blueprints waiting to be transformed into buildings, Munitions Department officials said today.

Since the outbreak of war the Government has placed contracts for construction and equipment installations with a total value of $1,381,300,000. Of this actual construction contracts amount to more than $455,000,000; yet plans deferred because of labor and material shortages are estimated to have a value of more than $325,000,000, apart form Dominion or Provincial projects which have been postponed.

In estimating the postwar construction possibilities the $175,000,000 to be made available under the Government's housing plans can be added to that figure giving a total of $500,000,000 — more than the equivalent of two years' normal operations in the construction industry.

Sharp Drop For Winter.

Wartime construction is regarded as virtually at an end and from an average of $100,000,000 a year spent on construction in the previous war years total expenditures are likely to be more in the neighborhood of $40,000,000 for 1944.

In the overall expenditure on both construction and equipment the largest share, $755,400,000, has gone into new and expanded industrial facilities. Money spent on barracks, hangars and similar buildings comes to $393,700,000 and covers among other things more than 700 hangars.

Wartime Housing, with an expenditure of something over $79,000,000, ranks as one of the spectacular construction jobs of the period. In big cities and in war-created communities these houses have sprung into being—17,700 of them which with staff houses and hostels provided accommodation for more than 100,000 people.

Materials and labor continue to be in short supply, but general expectations are there will be an abnormally sharp upturn in building activity in the spring. One factor construction men are taking into consideration, however, is that along with big demands for materials for construction in Canada will come the heavy requirements for rehabilitation in Europe.

Obituary

THOMAS EGBERT RITCHIE

The funeral of Thomas E. Ritchie, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ritchie, 441 George street south, whose death occurred this week, took place from the family residence Wednesday morning to the Church of the Sacred Heart, where Rev. John Coughlin offered Requiem Mass in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Monsignor O'Brien, pastor of the church, was present in the sanctuary.

Many people called at the home to extend their sympathy to his parents, brothers and sisters and the floral and spiritual tokens presented gave testimony of the esteem he enjoyed.

Born in Peterborough, September 1, 1924, he received his education at Sacred Heart school and was a member of the Boy Scouts of Sacred Heart church and during the past three and a half years was an employee of the Canadian General Electric Co. and would have completed his trade as a fitter in the course of a few months.

Interment was made in St. Peter's cemetery, Rev. Capt. F. M. Grant conducting the services at the graveside.

Pallbearers, all close friends of Thomas Ritchie, were Keith Ferguson, Egbert Duffus, Mitchell Herron, William Soule, Gerald Pagett, and Pte. James Vincent Duffus, who arrived home from St. John's, Quebec, in time for the funeral.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

SLEEPINESS AN ASSET

YOU NEVER can tell what is going to pay you a profit. Failure to pay close attention, perhaps because you are tired—"or something"—may cause you to do almost anything, and in odd spots the most bizarre bid or play may pay a dividend. It is such things that keep the game from ever becoming machinelike.

North: ♠ 9 8 ♥ 10 4 ♦ A Q 8 4 ♣ Q 7 6 4 2

West: ♠ 4 ♥ A 9 8 7 6 2 ♦ 7 6 ♣ A J 8 3

East: ♠ A K Q J 6 2 ♥ K J 3 ♦ J 3 ♣ K 5

South: ♠ 10 7 5 3 ♥ Q 5 ♦ K 10 9 5 2 ♣ 10 9

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass

After a long evening of play, this deal found everybody at his worst and paying almost no attention to what was going on. That made it natural to expect East to bid his forcing 2-Spades on a deal which did not have a chance to make game if his partner was too weak to answer 1-Spade.

West had a whale of an amount of stuff to hold opposite a game-guarantee call like that, and quite properly made a positive response of one of his suits. East by now realized vaguely that he had bid a bit too strong in the first place. Wondering what to do, as his head rolled around, he decided that jumping at once to game might shut out any more bidding from his partner. It did, but not because of any logic on West's part—only because he was tired, "or something."

South did not notice particularly what the contract was, but was informed that it was his lead. So he picked the fourth-best diamond 5, sure that he was leading against 3-No Trumps. As a consequence, his side took two diamond tricks. If he had thought about it, he said the next day, when a kibitzer showed his hand and told him all about it, he would have led the club 10, and the declarer would have taken all of the tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ K 9 8 7 ♥ A ♦ A 9 5 ♣ A 10 9 7 5

West: ♠ A 5 3 2 ♥ 10 7 ♦ K 6 4 ♣ K J 8 2

East: ♠ Q 6 ♥ K Q 9 8 4 3 2 ♦ Q ♣ Q 4 3

South: ♠ J 10 4 ♥ J 6 5 ♦ J 10 8 7 3 2 ♣ 6

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

Following a heart lead, if South had ruffed out his hearts, also had scored the diamond A and then leads the diamond J to the K, what play should West try in an effort to beat 5-Diamonds?

Crerar Presents Plaque To City of Rouen

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

ROUEN, France, Sept. 15 —(CP-Cable.)—Presenting a plaque to the people of Rouen, liberated by troops of his 1st Canadian army, Lt.-Gen. Crerar yesterday stressed the unity existing among the Allied nations, and said their struggle against Nazism is "rapidly approaching a victorious conclusion." Gen. Crerar delivered his address in French.

Rouen, ancient capital of Normandy, was freed by the 3rd Canadian Division last Aug. 31. A plaque commemorating the liberation was made by a Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineer unit and placed in the Rouen city hall.

Addressing his remarks to the mayor of Rouen, Gen. Crerar said: "I deem it a great privilege to meet with you this afternoon in marking the newly-gained freedom of this historic city of Rouen after four years of oppression so heroically endured by your citizens.

Lauds Canadians.

"This notable military event was attended by circumstances of which I feel mention should be made. The 1st Canadian Army, to which fell the task and honor of freeing Rouen, had within its ranks not only Canadians but famous divisions of the United Kingdom and brigades of the forces of Belgium and the Netherlands.

"The air force which supported operations at Rouen comprised squadrons representing not only the United Kingdom, but also France, Czechoslovakia, Norway and Poland.

"There surely can be no clearer proof of the unity of the United Nations, whose long struggle against Nazism is now so rapidly approaching a victorious conclusion.

"It is also interesting and significant that many of the Canadian troops who took part in this operation are descendants of those Norman pioneers who wrote the earliest chapters of Canadian history.

"I trust, Mr. Mayor, this simple plaque may remind those who see it of the unity which is so essential to the victory of justice and freedom.

"We must resolve that the same unity of purpose and willingness to sacrifice shall continue into the years of peace, to restore the ravages of war and to assure us of lasting peace and justice."

Anglican Group Meets In Quebec

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que., Sept. 15 (CP).—Twenty-five Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of England in Canada met in closed session in this college town to-day, the first meeting of the House of Bishops in the Montreal district in a decade.

The sessions of the House of Bishops inaugurated a week of Anglican meetings here. The committee on the revision of the prayer book will meet in closed sessions to-morrow and Saturday, while next week the annual meetings of the departments and committees of the General Synod will start at MacDonald College.

More than 100 clerical and lay delegates are expected to attend the meetings next week. From Monday through Friday sessions of the Pension Board, Missionary Society, Executive Council, Board of Management, Basic Clerical Stipend Committee and the National Laymen's Council will be held.

Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Primate of all Canada, is president at the meetings of the House of Bishops. Many visiting Bishops will preach in Anglican churches throughout Montreal Sunday.

Those attending the sessions of the House of Bishops in addition to the Primate include: Rt. Rev. A. R. Beverley, Suffragan Bishop of Toronto; Rt. Rev. L. W. B. Broughall, Hamilton, Bishop of Niagara; Rt. Rev. Robert Jefferson, Bishop of Ottawa; Rt. Rev. J. Lofthouse, Kenora, Ont., Bishop of Keewatin; Rt. Rev. J. Lyons, Kingston, Ont., Bishop of Ontario; Rt. Rev. R. J. Renison, Cochrane, Ont. Bishop of Moonsonee and Rt. Rev. W. L. Wright, Sault St. Marie, Ont., Bishop of Algoma.

Allied Armies Ahead Of D-Day Schedule

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The United Nations' success in Europe continues to pile up so consistently that you knock wood on learning about each successive gain, for fear luck just can't continue to be so good—but the most significant news is the word from Quebec conference circles that Allied armies are driving into Germany ahead of D-day schedule.

This means that at the time of the invasion, more than three months ago, the Allied High Command did such a remarkable job of crystal-gazing—calculating weather, military progress, supply problems and what not—that they're still on the beam for Gen. Eisenhower's prediction that the war is likely to end this year.

Things are going so well that London says United States war-planning chiefs are reported to have established Oct. 31 as the tentative "outside" date for the collapse of organized resistance in Germany. Not being a prophet I won't argue that point, but merely reiterate that anything can happen at any time when German fortunes are in such critical state, though there's likely to be some tough fighting yet.

Fight to Finish

We must keep in mind that the Germans thus far have given every indication they intend to battle to a finish. Their military operations show this, and Hitler has given fresh sign of his own determination in a warning to the people to "fight to the bitter end" and not bow to any Allied ultimatum for surrender. The Nazi dictator tells his people that there's "no difference between these so-called 'liberators' and the blood thirsty Russians."

This sort of talk apparently has registered with at least part of the population, judging from the glances of bitter hatred which the German people have been giving the Allied troops who already have reached Nazi soil.

The Nazi will to fight on is there. That's the known quantity. The unknown element is how much strength remains to implement this determination. It's clear Germany is close to collapse, but Hitler may be able to put up a stiff final battle after shortening his fronts and concentrating his depleted manpower.

While there's vast encouragement in the news that the Allies have reached German soil, and even have cracked the outer defence of the Siegfried Line at one or two points, we aren't entitled to reach sweeping conclusions from this. The Nazis won't try to defend all points of the frontier, and it must be remembered that the Westwall isn't a solid line of fortifications, as its name suggests.

Reds Tighten Grip On Warsaw City

110 German Tanks Destroyed In Praga Sector

By EDDY GIMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 16.— (AP). — Red army patrols have crossed the Vistula from captured Praga and scouted German positions at Warsaw while Russian and Polish troops hurled back the first heavy German armored attack upon their positions in the east bank suburb, field dispatches saaid to-day.

Eleven localities north of Praga were declared seized by Russian and Polish units, increasing the pressure upon Warsaw.

The patrols were reported to have brought back information on the dispostiion of Nazi defences in the besieged Polish capital, but Moscow had no information on whether a crossing had been accomplished in force.

The army newspaper Red Star said the Germans sent numerous tanks and self-propelled guns to aid their troops between the Vistula and the western Bug, "but nothing helped."

City In Ruins.

Tank warfare in the Praga sector is becoming the most severe of the entire war. Most of the 110 tanks which the midnight Russian communique reported destroyed were in the Praga area.

The Red Star dispatch said the blazing, smoking city of Warsaw was in full view of the Russian forces on the banks of the Vistula at Praga.

First photographs flown back from Praga to Moscow showed that many of Warsaw's buildings were shattered and where the flames and smoke were not billowing the buildings looked gutted and ruined.

Reconnaissance disclosed that Red Army artillery and air power had already driven Nazi troops from a 100-yard strip between the west bank of the Vistula and the first line of buildings in Warsaw.

Meanwhile there was reason here to believe that violent fighting was breaking out in many new sectors of the eastern front, with the initiative completely with the Red Army.

Winter Push Looms

Preparations were said to be complete for the Russians' autumn and winter campaign. It was believed to be only a matter of days before German forces from Finland to Yugoslavia will bear the brunt of

Canuck Units Regain Ground

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY IN BELGIUM, Sept. 16—(CP Cable)—Polish forces of the 1st Canadian Army have sent patrols across the Netherland frontier southwest of Hulst while Canadian infantry gained a strong new bridgehead over the western branch of the Leopold canal near Eekloo.

The Polish patrols were the first units of Lt.-Gen. Crerar's army to enter the Netherlands after Polish infantry and armored forces operated beyond St. Nikolas and up to the frontier yesterday.

In the Dunkerque area Canadian infantry reduced two of the enemy strongpoints on the northeastern perimeter of the port and maintained strong pressure elsewhere while other infantry forces gained positions astride the coastal routes south of Cap Gris Nez.

AFTER TRAIN COLLISION KILLED 25—A view of the scene where two crack trains of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad crashed head-on near Terra Haute, Ind., killing 25 and injuring an estimated 65 persons. Most of the victims are believed to be soldiers. Some were wounded veterans of the European theatre, wearing Purple Heart ribbons on their tunics. Some were fliers on furlough. The crash took place during a dense fog.

Start Co-ordinated Drives To Clean Out Palau Isles

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 16—(AP).—Veterans of Guadalcanal drove against 8,000 Japanese today on Peleliu in the invaded Palaus, closing in on a big airdrome within 515 airline miles of Davao to the west. Nearer that principal city of the Southern Philippines, American conquerors of Morotai, 375 miles south of Davao, worked on air bases within fighter-plane range of Mindanao.

These co-ordinated drives of Admiral Nimitz and Gen. MacArthur were launched simultaneously Friday (Manila time) against bases from which it will be possible to launch an all-out push into the Philipp'nes.

Marines of the 1st division hurled back counter-attacking Japanese soldiers and tanks to gain 1½ miles of beachhead on Peleliu near the south end of the Palaus. Capture of Peleliu promises to unlock all the Palau islands, a big naval base Japan spent 25 years building which is defended by an estimated total of 40,000 enemy troops.

Could Dominate Area

From Peleliu airdrome, American planes could prevent reinforcements from being sent to the Palaus and interfere with enemy regrouping attempts among those islands known as "Japan's Singapore". One of two usable airfields in the Palaus, its capture would isolate the other on Angaur to the south.

On Morotai, northeast of Halmahera in the Moluccas, where Gen. MacArthur landed with his men, he announced today all objectives were won in a matter of hours. MacArthur put ashore army engineers with the assault troops and they are expected soon to have Pitoe, an unused enemy airfield, ready for powerful blows against Mindanao, 300 miles to the northwest.

Overwhelming air and naval cover at both invasion scenes helped hold down American losses.

A field dispatch said only one American casualty was suffered in the initial landing on Morotai.

Bombers Smash Kiel Sub-Pens

LONDON, Sept. 16.—(CP).—More than 800 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers unloaded tons of explosives and incendiary bombs on Kiel, Berlin and Lubeck in Germany last night, the greater part of them going to the naval base of Kiel, where fires still smouldered from an attack earlier in the week by the U.S. 8th Air Force.

New fires sprang up in Berlin. Improving weather today gave promise of a resumption of grand scale Allied air attacks. The German radio interrupted morning programs and reported fighter formations were penetrating to Central Germany.

In addition to Kiel the R.A.F. hit objectives in Berlin for the fifth night in a row and carried out what was officially described as an "extensive minelaying operation." No further details were given. Eleven planes were lost, including two Canadian craft.

U.S. 9th Air Force Thunderbolts flew 363 sorties in spite of rainy weather yesterday and destroyed 441 trucks and 10 armored vehicles, and damaged or destroyed 125 railway cars, 17 locomotives and 15 artillery pieces between Strasbourg and Cologne. One Thunderbolt was lost.

Spitfires patrolling over Holland last night smashed at a concentration of barges near Veere.

Rocket Typhoons and bomb-carrying Spitfires of the 2nd Tactical Air Force provided close support for ground forces in going after selected targets at Dunkerque.

The Berlin radio said German guns shot down two Lancasters which attacked a naval strongpoint in Northern Norway. The planes came from Russian bases, the report added, and claimed also two more planes were brought down off the east coast of Northern Norway.

Speculation On New Chief

Pacific Leader May Be Named Soon

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(Substituting for DeWitt MacKenzie)

Emphasis on the Pacific war at the Quebec conference has led to speculations about a supreme commander for the final haymaker against Japan.

From London comes the suggestion that the Prime Minister and the President may have picked Eisenhower. Nimitz. MacArthur, Stilwell and others are mentioned. Mountbatten, already chief in the China-Burma-India theatre, would appear another possible choice.

But we don't know what the situation will be when the time comes for joint British-American-Chinese operations in real force. (I omit Russia because, on the basis of present information, I don't think Russia will be in it).

MacArthur now is headed for the Philippines, Nimitz for China and Japan, and British forces for Malaya, the Indies and China.

Only when they converge would an over-all command seem indicated. By then we may have seen new men emerge, or old men who have gained experience, in new places.

Fierce Fight Rages For Rimini Town

8th Army Crosses Marano River 3 Miles From Target

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 16.—(AP).— Canadian and other Allied tanks and infantry of the British 8th Army have broken across the Marano river on a wide front, with Greek units pushing to the edge of the Rimini airfield, less than three miles from the town of Rimini guarding the entrance to Italy's industrial Po valley, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

On the western sector the Allied 5th Army reported only slight gains in its broad advance against the Gothic Line north of Florence.

"Resistance has stiffened considerably," in the 5th Army area and every approach to the Gothic defence zone is bitterly contested and mined, Gen. Alexander's Headquarters said.

Fight to Last.

German defenders of the Adriatic sector—most of which were left without transport and therefore have the alternatives of surrendering, fighting to death or trying to get away on foot—were putting up a terrific fight between the Marano river and Rimini.

A Canadian spearhead was the first to stab across the river engaged in a tough fight with Panzer Grenadiers, and 150 prisoners were taken, including a battalion commander.

The Greeks fighting their way up the coast captured San Lorenzo and Instrada, five miles southeast of Rimini, then forged on across the Marano river to the airfield.

British tanks and infantry striking across the river seized the twin villages of Ospedaletto and Patrignano five miles south of Rimini, a mile apart.

Farther inland other British troops drove back the German 98th infantry division, which has now been reduced to a few hundred combat men. British forces captured Montescudo, less than a mile from the eastern frontier on the tiny state of San Marino.

5,500 Prisoners.

West of Gemmano British units took Zollara and Taverna across the Conca river.

Prisoners captured in the Adriatic sector since the start of the present offensive rose to 5,500.

Gen. Alexander's Headquarters reported the Germans were using Mark IV and Panther tanks, as well as self-propelled guns to compensate for the shortage of infantry.

The British 46th Division, commanded by Maj.-Gen. "Singer" Hawkesworth, scored the preliminary break-through of the Gothic Line positions in the Adriatic sector which paved the way for the present thrust on Rimini, it was disclosed. The division captured Salerno when it first landed in Italy as part of the 5th Army assault force Sept. 9, 1943.

Czechs, Russians Form Junction

LONDON, Sept. 16. — (CP). — Czechoslovak forces fighting in Eastern Slovakia were reported officially to-day to have established contact with advanced elements of the Red army.

A communique from the commander of the Czechoslovak forces said Russian units had crossed the Slovak border and that for the first time Czech planes had participated in the battle against the German air forces in Slovakia's skies.

The bulletin, broadcast from Czech Headquarters, said heavy fighting was continuing in the Nitra Valley where German tank attacks, with artillery and air support had been repulsed with heavy enemy losses.

On the Warsaw front a communique from Gen. Bor, commander-in-chief of the Polish underground forces, said the Germans had stepped up their campaign of death and

Blind Barber

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 16—(AP).—A sign on the door of Vito A. Carey's barbershop here read, "Closed temporarily for an operation." A few days later, after the barber had recovered from a cataract operation, the shop was reopened. Carey said during the past 18 months he had been tending his steady customers while blind. His faithful dog barked a welcome to each comer, and when some one appeared who was unfamiliar to the barber, Carey said he found an excuse to turn him away.

Expect Finland To Declare War On Germany

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 16—(AP).—Finland apparently was moving today toward a formal declaration of war against Germany, her former ally.

The Finnish newspaper Vaestra Nyland declared the Nazi invasion of the Island of Suursaari (Hogland) in the Gulf of Finland had converted "the question of diplomatic relations into a direct act of war."

(A Finnish declaration of war on Germany "is expected after the rupture of diplomatic relations between the two countries," the BBC said in a broadcast heard by CBS.

(The German radio indicated today Soviet troops are attacking in Finland, saying German disengaging movements in Finland are proceeding according to plan, despite Soviet attempts to impede the movements.")

To Close Border.

The Swedish Foreign Office confirmed that German troops intended to close the border of Northern Finland effective to-day. The Finnish Parlaiment was scheduled to meet in secret session as the deadline for the Nazi withdrawal from Finland under the terms of the Russo-Finnish armistice agreement which expired at midnight last night.

A well-manned Finnish garrison aided by Russian planes, apparently had the situation well under control on Suursoori, the invasion of which was described by Vaestra Nyland as resulting in "strong and clear reaction" among the Finns.

The newspaper Fulukuriren reported from Helsinki late last night that the Finns had completed liquidation of the German beachhead on the island, but there was no official confirmation.

Russian aircraft helped the Finnish soldiers repel the attack, said the Finnish news agency, and 700 prisoners were taken. A number of buildings were damaged at the Pori airport on the Bothnian Gulf by the explosion of time bombs left by the Germans, and the Germans have mined the waters of the Gulf of Finland at Kotka, additional reports said.

Communism Showing Gains Across Industrial France

By JOSEPH DYNAN
Associated Press War Correspondent

LYON, France, Sept. 16 — (AP). — The breath-taking liberation of France is winning new friends and regaining old ones for Democracy, but the French Communist party still is aggressively on the upgrade in the southeastern sector.

"The French people have long been thankful for an influence by the Russian victories on the eastern front," said one official member of the right-wing of the resistance movement. "Now the western Democracies are showing that they also are powerful and able to win victories. They are restoring the confidence of many Frenchmen in Democratic ways."

This official added that the Communists, nonetheless, are probably the strongest single bloc in his area, which is highly industrial, and also form the core of the Partisan organization.

"If an election were held today the Communist probably would get 40 per cent of the votes," he said. "In the rural sections they would not be so strong—probably only 30 per cent."

Other persons corroborate these statements in general, placing Communist strength at anywhere from 30 to 60 per cent, including followers who are not party members.

The Communists, who took an active role in resistance, now are bent upon a leading place in the reconstruction of France. With Frenchmen generally determined to restore Republicanism, the Communists are adopting their program accordingly.

Fourth Army Crosses Border Robots Batter London Again

Believe Germans Using Planes To Deliver Robots

LONDON, Sept. 16 (CP). — German robot bombs which may have been launched from airplanes smashed into southern England and the London area shortly before dawn today, underscoring the government's warning that evacuees should not flood back to the capital.

One flying bomb wrecked seven houses. In one of them five children and an adult were killed outright. Four others in the same area were seriously injured.

Today's buzz-bomb attack followed one last night, first launched in more than two weeks.

Some persons here said the bombs appeared to be the type discharged from aircraft. A few flying bombs previously are said to have come from due east on pick-a-back planes. This form of attack could be carried out from airfields in the heart of Germany.

The last flying bomb raid on southern England took place the afternoon of Aug. 31.

The 1st Canadian Army is overrunning most of the coastal regions of the continent from which the flying bombs were first launched, but the Germans still hold Calais, Boulogne and Dunkerque on the French coast, unspecified areas on the Belgian coast and all the Netherlands coastal regions.

Last night Lord Woolton, Minister of Reconstruction appealing to those who have been evacuated from London to stay put, declared "we should be foolish to assume that the enemy has exhausted his capacity to invent devilish instruments of destruction, which can be discharged from a safe distance, until the time when the R.A.F. finds out their hiding places."

UNRRA Feeds 54,000 Refugees

MONTREAL, Sept. 16 — (CP). — First meeting of the United Relief and Rehabilitation Administration Council has been postponed until 2.30 p.m., E.D.T., today, officials announced this morning and registration was not expected to be completed before 1 p.m.

The agenda will be drafted during the week-end and the 44 council members expect to be well under way with their discussions early next week. The session may last two weeks with much of the work being done in committee.

Although UNRRA will come into full activity only when military authorities in liberated areas decide that the transfer to the civilian organization may be made, officials cited its present activities as follows:

The Program

1. Development of the detailed program under which assistance will be given where needed as soon as the military situation permits.
2. The care of 54,000 refugees in six camps in the Middle East.
3. Arrangements with military authorities to provide relief and rehabilitation services in Greece, Yugoslavia and Albania, have resulted in the establishment of a Balkan mission headquarters in Cairo.
4. Commission of experts has presented a report on health problems of displaced persons in Europe, and a similar group appointed to survey and make recommendations on health problems arising from unauthorized mass migrations.
5. A special mission has made a preliminary exploration of relief and rehabilitation needs in China.
6. Purchases of stocks of food and other supplies are being made and stock piles created to be drawn on as the liberated areas needs are met.

EXTRA!

LIVERPOOL, Eng. — England and Wales drew two-all in their International football match here today. No goals were scored after each side had scored two goals in the first half.

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS—Germany's Siegfried Line had been "completely penetrated" 24 hours after the United States 1st Army battered into its outer defences, headquarters announced today. Headquarters emphasized, however, that this did not necessarily mean that a break-through had been accomplished. But it strongly suggested that one was likely.

A Hero Dies

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16 — (AP). — Francis E. Kelly tried for nine months to squeeze his five-foot-two frame into the United States Marine Corps, but repeatedly the recruiters rejected him for lack of height. Finally he obtained a special waiver and enlisted. The Navy Department has notified his family that Philadelphia's shortest Marine has been killed in action on Guam.

Canadians Swim Retreating Across Canal

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN BELGIUM, Sept. 16—(CP Cable).—The battle of the Moerkerke bridgehead across the Leopold Canal northeast of Brugge (Bruges) from which Ontario troops withdrew Thursday was one of the stiffest engagements fought by Canadian forces since the attack into the Lalonde Forest on the Seine River south of Rouen.

Later field dispatches said Canadian patrols Friday night recrossed the Leopold Canal in six positions and added the position since the earlier withdrawal was "greatly improved."

The bridgehead was held for about 14 hours from the time the first infantry moved across the 300-foot-wide Leopold Canal in darkness on Wednesday night until they were ordered back to the west bank of the double waterway.

The Canadians were under fierce enemy shelling and mortar fire. They were in the midst of cross-fire from German machine-gun positions and even shot at by some Germans who remained in pockets on the west bank.

Outnumbered.

The men in the narrow bridgehead were outnumbered at least two to one but they believed that the Germans opposing them, because of their lack of fieldcraft, were only half-trained and cut them down like experienced farmhands mowing ripe wheat.

The toll of German casualties were heavy and although the Canadians lost men killed, they brought back most of their wounded.

The withdrawal across the dual canal, with a bank dividing the two channels, was carried out hastily and in good general order although some of the men didn't wait for the shuttle service of assault boats and swam for it.

Some of the Canadians regard the withdrawal from the bridgehead as a defeat. Some platoons wanted to stay and fight it out although ammunition was running short and other troops wanted to go right back. Some of the troops were reinforcements in battle for the first time and battle-wise troops who fought alongside the newcomers said they bore up well.

Tough Fighting

Lieut. Dick Steenberg of Kitchener, Ont., and commander one of the forward platoons on the bridgehead, which at no time was more than 500 yards deep, said the battle involved practically all types of fighting infantrymen can encounter

Aachen Surrounded Fighting Rages In City Streets

LONDON, Sept. 16 (CP) — U.S. 1st Army troops drove into a 10-mile breach of the Siegfried line today, deepened two other penetrations and threw a fourth force across the border. Canadian infantry units of the 1st Canadian Army gained a strong, new bridgehead over the difficult Leopold canal barrier barring their path to the Netherlands-Belgium border.

Latest bridging of the formidable double channel 270-foot water barrier came after six Canadian patrols had crossed the canal last night. Previously Canadian troops, in the face of extremely bitter German resistance, relinquished a bridgehead they had won late Wednesday, in a withrawal the following day.

In the meantime Polish patrols of the 1st Canadian Army crossed the border for the first time, moving into the Netherlands southwest of Hulst.

British 2nd Army forces were reported still mopping up shattered German units trapped between the Albert and Escault Canals farther to the east.

In the drive beyond encircled Aachen by the American 1st Army the front was widened to 15 miles with capture of Lammersdorf to the southeast. German broadcasts reported street fighting in Aachen.

Big Conference To End Today

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Sept. 16—(CP)— The second Quebec Conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill ends today with a noon-hour press conference at which a generalized summary of conference deliberations will be announced.

But while the meetings here are finished at noon, further talks apparently are in prospect between the two western leaders and there are indications a meeting with Marshal Stalin of Russia is on the card.

On the terrace at the stone-walled Citadel over the St. Lawrence river, Mr. Churchill, Mr. Roosevelt and their host, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, will meet newspaper and radio correspondents to describe their meetings of the last six days.

Russia's part in the final acts of the European war and her possible participation later in the Pacific war were believed to have been major subjects of discussion during the final phase of the conference.

(An Associated Press report from London said the decision of Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, to fly to Quebec, was prompted by his desire to see Mr. Churchill and the President use a stronger hand and reach a clearer understanding with Russia at a moment when elements of Soviet discord were reported to have crept into Anglo-Soviet relations.

(One reliable London informant said the lack of complete understanding resulted from the Polish-Soviet dispute, uncertainty over Soviet war aims in Europe and some military problems upon which Britain and Russia do not see eye to eye.)

To Glamorize Policewoman

Recruits Rebel At Sloppy Uniforms

LONDON, Sept. 16 (CP Reuter)—London policewomen, whose formidable appearance in doube-chin-making strapped helmets and ankle-touching hip-waisted uniforms, has scared the public more than any "bobby" ever did, are about to be glamorized.

It has all come about since the girls of the services who are being released to join the police force got a scandalized look at the policewomen's frumpish uniforms and almost knee-high laced boots. As one, they shook their heads and said "We won't wear that."

Home Secretary Morrison and his parliamentary secretary Ellen Wilkinson, faced with this crisis in their recruiting drive, decided to look over the policewomen in the provinces.

A mannequin parade featuring policewomen from Portsmouth to Birmingham revealed that these female law-keepers eclipsed the Londoners in form-fitting uniforms topped by military looking hats and knee-revealing skirts.

London policewomen have a new gleam in their eyes with a positive yearning to be called by their prospective nick-names "Morrison's glamor gals" because, as one policewoman summed it up, "Any woman on earth is miserable in a unbecoming hat and a uniform that would have been okayed by Victorian Mistress Grundy."

Belgians Start Cheers Too Soon

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

BRUGGE, Belgium, Sept. 16 (CP Cable)—The people of Brugge broke out the flags three days too soon when false reports of the approach of the Canadians spread through the streets of this ancient town, I was told today.

The Germans still in occupation were so incensed by the demonstration that few civilians dared to leave their homes until they actually saw Canadian infantry walk in on Tuesday.

The French and Flemish-speaking Belgians laughed about it yesterday as they sought out soldiers on whom to bestow hospitality, and many of them told how some Germans showered their windows with machine-gun fire whenever they saw a black, yellow and red tricolor hanging out.

Until the Canadians did arrive a bedraggled stream of Germans passed through the town for days heading east. They blew up bridges around the town one by one and even damaged the ancient gate at the western approach to the city. Nearby homes were heavily damaged by the explosions.

When the first Canadians arrived the Belgians swarmed into the streets to meet them.

drives by veteran Russian armies refreshed and eager to march into Germany.

Moscow reports said the Soviets were particularly eager to resume their Baltic campaign.

(A Berlin broadcast said the Russians in a new offensive crossed the Nyemanek river 37 miles south of Riga, the Latvian capital on the Baltic Sea. There was no confirmation from Moscow of the new drive, aimed at crushing two German armies of the north.

(The German report said the Russians employed 40 divisions, upwards of 400,000 men, on a curving 150-mile front extending from Bauska, south of Riga, into Estonia on both sides of the key rail junction of Valga.)

Fighting along the Warsaw-Danzig railway on the east bank of the Vistula, the Russians captured Apollo, 2½ miles northwest of Praga, and a series of other towns stretching 12 miles up to the Narew river at Rynia. The Germans were pushed back into an 18-mile funnel formed by the juncture of the Narew and Vistula rivers at Modlin, 20 miles northwest of Warsaw.

Reach Border

In Southern Poland another Red Army column drove 10 miles southwest of Sanok in the Carpathian foothills, taking Plonna, nine miles from the Czechoslovak border. Other localities were seized on a 17-mile front south of Sanok as the Russians headed toward Lupkow Pass into Slovakia. Other units have reached the border near Dukla pass, farther west.

Several Russian columns were converging on the German-Hungarian stronghold of Targu-Mures in Transylvania, snaring Sangeorgiul de Padure, 14 miles on the southeast, and Chibed, 17 miles on the east. More than 40 places fell to the Russians in Transylvania, including Topolita on the curving Brasov-Targumures railway skirting the western side of the Carpathian mountains.

Tremendous Sum

TORONTO, Sept. 16 — (CP) — The Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, has remitted to the National Hearquarters of the Society during the first eight months of this year more than $3,600,000 it was announced at a meeting of the executiev committee of the division here yesterday.

man frontier came 63 miles south of Aachen, and about midway between the thrusts already denting Nazi fortifications near Trier and Prum.

Supreme headquarters declared a grand Allied drive was beating eastward along a curving 500-mile front from the Swiss frontier south of Belfort to the Channel coast around the Schelde Estuary near the Dutch border.

The drive beyond Aachen apparently contained the gravest threat to the Germans.

Cut Main Wall

Although there was no doubt that the main steel and concrete defences of the Siegfried Line had been breached, headquarters took the official view that more of the line's positions lie ahead of the U.S. 1st Army spearhead which was driving the last 30 miles toward Cologne and the Rhine River and pointed toward Berlin 315 miles away.

It was said to be difficult to tell immediately when the American troops actually were through the last of the deep defence zone. At least one more belt of mine-fields, pill-boxes and gun-posts may be found west of the Rhine.

Aachen itself, the first great centre to be pinched out and a guardian of the invasion route to the German capital along the northern European plain, was closed in a tightening iron ring and appeared about to fall.

German broadcasts said there was fighting inside the city, indicating the American clean-up assault has broken through its last line of defence.

A front line dispatch said Field Marshal Von Rundstedt, Prussian strategist, was believed to have returned as the top German commander in the west, apparently replacing Field Marshal Von Model. This was viewed as possibly a desperate attempt by Hitler to reorganize his battered forces.

Wallendorf, one miles inside Germany, was captured. A front dispatch said it was reported at U.S. 3rd Army headquarters every building in Wallendorf was burned yesterday because of persistent sniping and that a nearby village was subjected to a similar scorching for the same reason.

The German radio said German and American forces clashed heavily east of the Sure River in the direction of Bitburg, 12 miles inside the German frontier. Bitburg is 15 miles northwest of Trier. Front reports previously placed American units 10 miles inside Germany in that general area.

Still farther south the capture of Nancy crumpled the Germans' last stand in northern France. There American 3rd Army tanks racing 10 to 15 miles eastward on a 30-mile front sent the Germans reeling back to the Rhine. The German defenders of Metz, the last important enemy-held city in France, were faced with possible encirclement or a retreat to the rich Saar industrial basin 20 miles away.

The Germans put up an unexpectedly weak defence of the Siegfried Line in the Aachen sector where they left only part of the formidable forts occupied by machine-gunners and had comparatively light artillery.

In the break-through area the Americans were almost exactly the same distance from Berlin as the Red Army was on the eastern front.

WMS Planning To Attend Rally

HAVELOCK, Sept. 16—(ENS).—Mrs. P. Haig was hostess for the September meeting of the W.M.S. of Havelock United Church, when the society commenced new study book entitled "West of the Date Line," which covers South-east Asia and the South-west Pacific. The introduction to this new sphere of study was given by Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson. Psalm reading was led by the president, Mrs. G. W. Chiles, and Mrs. J. Freeman led in prayer. Plans were made to have a good representation from the Auxiliary in attendance at the W.M.S. fall sectional rally to be held in Norwood United Church on Friday, October 6, when two sessions will be held and dinner will be served by the Norwood Auxiliary. Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson, who is the fourth Presbyterial vice-president will conduct both sessions of rally. It was also decided to hold an afternoon tea on Thursday afternoon, September 28, at the home of Mrs. G. W. Chiles.

Heavy Hun Losses

LONDON, Sept. 16 — (CP). — Marshal Tito, leader of the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation, announced last night that 24,000 German and satellite troops had been killed and 11,900 captured by his partisans in the first 10 days of September.

Ground Crews Move Often As Armies Speed

By Sqdn. Ldr. R. D. FORESTER, R.C.A.F. Public Relations Officer.

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN FRANCE, Sept. 16 — (CP) —Maintaining its mobility without dislocation of operational continuity, Air Vice-Marshal Harry Broadhurt's Fighter-Bomber group of the Second Tactical Air Force, composed largely of Canadian wings, has been leap-frogging eastwards across France in close support of the British 2nd Army.

It has not only been confronted with the mammoth task of providing air cover for the ground forces in their lightning dash towards Germany, but it also has been faced with the necessity of moving its airfields continually forward to keep within fighter range of the battle zones. The group has been faced with a test of its mobility without parallel in war.

Top Scorers.

Highest-scoring R. A. F. unit in France, both in aircraft victories and the destruction of motorized transport, Group Capt. G. R. McGregor's wing led in the air by Wing Cmdr. D. B. Russel, Westmount, Que., presents a typical example of the gypsy life these fighter-bomber airmen now live. They occupied three different airfields with 10 days.

Ground crews which did so much to contribute to the air victory of Aug. 18 when the group destroyed 1,074 German vehicles, damaged a further 1,929, in addition to 73 tanks destroyed and 91 damaged, have enjoyed the opporunity of seeing the fruits of their labors.

Rolling eastward in tremendous convoys through the country, they have passed along roadsides littered with burned-out tanks and vehicles. They have been jolted over filled-in craters on the roadways where their own fighter-bombers had dropped their explosives to impede enemy retreat. They have seen for themselves the havoc wrought by the aircarft they service.

Life has been one constant succession of packings and unpackings, pitching tents, pulling stakes, long hours of toil, meals hastily prepared. They haven't been staying long enough in one place to really get settled.

1 Killed, 3 Hurt In Auto Crash

KINGSTON, Sept. 16 — (CP). — Three persons seriously injured in an automobile accident at Belleville early today were brought to hospital here.

Mrs. Alma Skinner of Kingston, suffered injuries to both arms, chest and head. Mrs. Ida Ashley of Kingston suffered a fractured right arm and lacerations to her face and legs, and William Dolan, also of Kingston, suffered severe back injuries.

Driver of the car, Clarence Hartman, 32, of Kingston, was instantly killed when his car collided head-on with a truck.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Sept 16 — (CP).— Trade was light in rye futures yesterday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, but in a late rally prices closed ⅜ to ⅞ cent a bushel higher. Prices were irregular most of the session, dropping to near seasonal lows early in the day.

Trade was also light in oats futures, with minor elevator hedging and small shipper support.

United States buyers took 100,000 bushels of oats in the export market, while shippers purchased 600,000 for Lakehead accumulation.

destruction within the city as the Red army slugged its way toward the long-bleeding capital.

Gen. Bor's communique said Polish troops had frustrated efforts of the enemy to establish strong points on the Vistula's banks to meet the Soviet onslaught.

"The enemy is constantly shelling the suburban district unmercifully" the report said. "The Germans are carrying out widespread demolition and blowing up barracks, factory buildings, utility works and big office buildings. We are establishing closer contact with a Soviet division in Praga."

Flier Takes Forestry Job

TORONTO, Sept. 16.—George H. R. Phillips, one of the best-known airmen in Canada, and a former winner of the McKee Trophy for an outstanding contribution to Canadian aviation, has been appointed district forester of the Algonquin area and superintendent of Algonquin Park, it was announced at Queen's Park. The appointment will be effective October 1.

Joining the R.C.A.F. in 1940, Phillips served as an instructor at Camp Borden and as a ferry pilot on the Atlantic run. On his initial flight to Africa he landed on a Vichy French airport and was interned along with his crew. He was freed when United States forces landed in North Africa. Later he was appointed officer commanding the R.A.F. Transport Command in Natal, Brazil.

For many years Phillips was connected with the Provincial Air Service and built up a reputation as a brilliant flier.

Death Toll 39 In Hurricane

By the Associated Press.

At least 39 persons lost their lives in the hurricane which swept up the Atlantic Coast on Thursday, causing damage estimated between $30,000,000 and $53,000,000 in northeastern coastal states.

The tail-end of the storm was reported to-day to be blowing across the Maritime Provinces and losing its force although causing some damage in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

The storm took 15 lives in New England States where extensive property damage occurred in the coastal sections. New York's loss of life stood at 17.

Tropical Course To Aid Doctors

MONTREAL, Sept. 16 (CP)—McGill University and the Aluminum Company of Canada announced in a joint statement Friday that "for the first time in the history of medicine, a diploma in tropical medicine has been instituted which requires clinical training in tropical diseases on the spot."

The announcement said that under an agreement between the university and the company, three medical officers of the Royal Canadian Navy had left for British Guiana, where for a few months they will undergo clinical and pathological training under tropical conditions.

"This training, the first of its type ever received by any doctor, and part of the postgraduate course in tropical medicine instituted at McGill University a little over six months ago," the announcement said. The three men are Surgeon-Lieutenants John W. Hackey, H. H. McKinnon and Robert H. Lennox.

"The three surgeon-lieutenants had previously taken a course in parasitology under Dr. T. W. W. Cameron, director of the Institute of Parasitology, at McGill .... besides the Navy, which has already sent some of its doctors to British Guiana, the Army and Air Force have sent some of theirs to the Institute of Parasitology prior to further training under tropical conditions under the doctors attached to the Demerara Bauxite Company a subsidiary of the Aluminium Company of Canada."

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 16.—(ENS).— News has reached Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McFadden that their son, Pte. Billy McFadden, has been wounded serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in France. He is now in hospital back in England, where he was stationed for the past three years with his regiment prior to the invasion of France.

Memorial Centre Campaign Opens Monday

The financial campaign of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre for Health and Recreation will get underway this coming Monday and continue for a two-week period closing Sept. 30. The appeal to the public begins on an inspiring note, as it was stated Friday that all indications appear to substantiate the hope that the city's larger industries will go over the top in their division of the campaign.

A comprehensive organization, the result of weeks of effort of committee heads and a hard-working staff, will start to function early Monday morning; and a thorough-going canvass of plante employees, retail merchants and general householders has been planned to get underway from the moment of the firing of the opening gun.

Work Well Planned.

Canvass of the manufacturers is in charge of Ian McRae and John Keyes, who is chairman of the Finance Committee; Ross Dobbin heads a committee which will handle Special Names, and Ed. Riley one whose work will deal with the retail merchants; Sam Whitehouse is charged with organization of the Employees Canvass, which in each plant will appoint a certain number of employees to present the campaign to their fellow workers; and the City General Canvass, a house-to-house endeavour to contact every adult citizen not already reached through his or her place of work, is headed by Art Lewis, president of the Kinsmen Club. Setting up of the finance records and auditing of accounts is being handled by Ed. Humpage, city auditor.

"We are going to make a complete coverage of the entire city, even though that obviously will entail a certain amount of overlapping" Mr. Keyes said Friday to this reporter. "This is necessary to give every citizen a chance to make a contribution, and we ask that those who have already been approached in the industrial phase of the campaign good naturedly make allowance for the fact of overlapping if it occurs in their case."

The City General Canvass has made provision for the division of the city into 26 sections, in each of which a team captain will head a group of three or four canvassers of his choice in making the rounds. The workers, consisting of members of service clubs, members of the Canadian Legion Branch No. 52, and representatives of various women's organizations are nearly 150 strong; and the example they are getting in devoting time and effort to the Community Centre's financial campaign should add a further strong incentive, if more were needed, to citizens who will be requested to make at least a modest gift from their resources.

What organization of the campaign has entailed in the way of preliminary work may be witnessed by a visit to the headquarters of the Community Centre Campaign at 414 Water Street, quarters formerly occupied by the Association of Medical Services, Inc., and kindly donated for this occasion by Dr. H. M. Yelland. Here, since the 31st of August work has been going forward on the preparation of the almost innumerable details that attend an all-out campaign of this kind—preparation of canvassing lists, various literature and sets of questions and answers pertaining to every angle of the whole project to provide contributors with any article of information they desire on the nature and purpose of the Centre. And along with goes other working equipment of the many canvassers, who will work from the Water Street office and daily report back to it the results of their individual progress. As Mr. Keyes put it, "Everything emanates from here and comes back here."

One Year Plan

He emphasized as well that contributions need not necessarily be made in cash, though naturally the more that can be obtained in this matter the better. Gifts may, he added, be paid over a period of a year in instalments. At the time of the contribution temporary receipts will be issued by he canvassers; and then later an official receipt will be mailed from the Community Centre's office. This will serve as evidence of the contribution and suffice for the purpose of income tax deduction. As has been previously publicized, all gifts to the Health Centre's funds have been declared free of tax by the authorities at Ottawa.

Mr. Keyes added that every canvasser for the centre will be provided with an identification card; and that citizens should feel at liberty t ask whoever appears at their door to produce it.

Further progress has been made in the publicity committee's plans to bring the proposed centre adequately before the public eye and to keep it there, familiarizing all with the many services it is planned to give through the various facilities incorporated in the design. Friday morning Alderman Bradburn reported on the results of a trip to Toronto where he conferred with Herb Webb, former Peterboroughite, who is an advertising executive with the firm of Cofield-Brown. Mr. Webb has arranged through the manager of Sir Ernest MacMillan, conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, to have the eminent musician and his organization play here, Mr. Bradburn said.

Also under consideration are plans to have recording made of various well-known personalities in the field of sports and possibly to get an interview from the Maple Leaf hockey team. It was thought that the aid of famous radio stars might be enlisted and that a former Peterborough man, Ernie Bushnell, now general manager of the program division, CBC, would give the Community Centre's campaign valuable help.

Team captains in the different districts are as follows: Woods Roberts, Fred Revoy, John Nornabell, Fraser Watson, Quirt McKinney, Arnold Shallhorn, Pat Scollard, Lawrence McCarthy, Norm Elliott, George H. Moore, Wilf. Langan, Norris Williamson, Ken Sloan, Bill Saunders, Bruce Sargent, Dick Raine, William Osborne, Nels. Hills, Frank Weart, Bill Moorehead, Norm. Giles Bill Quinlan, Max Comstock, Doug. Anderson, Eric Howard.

The furniture and equipment in the Water street office were kindly donated for use in the campaign by the Canadian General Electric Company, Dominion Life Assurance Co., St. Paul's Presbyterian church, the Bank of Commerce and E. C. Braund.

GREATEST PILOT—Named as "probably the greatest bomber pilot of any air force in the world," Wing Cmdr. Geoffrey L. Cheshire, above, of the British Royal Air Force, has been awarded the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest award for gallantry. Cmdr. Cheshire, who is 27, also holds the Distinguished Service Order with two bars (equivalent to winning it three times) and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Ontario troops started across the canal at about 10 p.m. in pitch blackness and had to find their way to the bank through bushes and ditches and across fences.

They made the crossing in assault boats and some infantry were under fire from the time they got into the boats until they were back in them again, returning to the west bank.

There were German snipers on an island between the canal waterways and in several places the Germans had compact concrete positions topped with wire as well as the usual slit trenches.

The Germans on the east bank of the canal realized the attack was developing and kept up a stream of fire. From some positions they opened up with 20-mm anti-aircraft guns.

Infantry companies were in command of Majors George Cassidy, former Cobalt, Ont., school teacher, Jock McLeod, also of Cobalt, Keith Stirling of South Porcupine Ont., and Wally Johnson of North Bay, Ont.

The crossing was preceded by a barrage from 25-pounders and self-propelled guns set up behind the west bank gateway and infantry support weapons were also in position there.

Twin Canals

The twin canals represented the most formidable obstacle the Canadians had yet faced, not only because of the breadth of the canals—which are approximately 120 feet across—but also because they flow between dikes high above the ground level and during the withdrawal particularly the troops moving over these banks had to silhouette themselves against the skyline.

Engineers who tried to throw bridges across the water gaps while the infantry held the bridgehead were heavily bombarded and exposed to small arms fire and had to give up the attempt.

Cassidy's Company got to the eastern bank of the waterway without great difficulty and formed the bridgehead during the night. The foremost point of the Canadian perimeter on the east bank was a crossroads outside Moerkerke, wh[illegible] some of the heaviest engagements were fought against the Germans, who crawled in to attack in waves.

Nazis Muster Forces

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16— (AP) — Secretary of War Stimson said yesterday "the Germans are doing their best to muster larger forces for a desperate stand" at the Siegfried Line, before which the Allies are deployed on a broad front. The Nazis, he told his weekly news conference, are looking to the shifting of troops from Norway, Denmark "and any other possible source" to strengthen the garrison of the west wall.

Claims Cancer Caused By Diet Deficiency

WINNEPEG, Sept. 16 (CP)—The Manitoba Medical Association in annual convention here Friday heard Dr. J. R. Davidson, 74-year-old Winnipeg physician, explain a cancer treatment which he claimed when administered to a patient who retains the full set-up of natural organs "almost invariably cracks the disease."

"It offsets the cancer condition sufficiently to enable the patient to enjoy normal health," Dr. Davidson, former Associate Professor of Clinical Medicine at the University of Manitoba, told the convention.

He resigned his faculty post 1[illegible] years ago to start cancer research carrying it on mainly at his home with facilities he improvised himself.

Dr. Davidson's theory is that cancer is caused by a nutritional deficiency.

He suggested today that future research into the nature of cancer should start with the study of endocrine glands of cancer patients.

Injections of pituitary gland extract are used by Dr. Anderson as an accelerating factor. He also uses Young Tissue extract, prepared from the Newborn Young of cancer-resistant mice, and a high vitamin diet.

Research convinced him, he said, that cancer occurs because the body lacks some potent factor essential to normal development of health cells.

A four-man commission, appointed by the Manitoba Government, is conducting an investigation of Dr. Davidson's research work.

Spr. Vincent Quinlan Slightly Wounded

NORWOOD, Sept. 16 —(ENS)— Word was received here Thursday that Spr. Vincent M. Quinlan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Quinlan, R.R. No. 12, Indian River, was wounded slightly while in action in France. With the Royal Canadian Engineers, he has been serving in France since D-Day. A former employee of the C.G.E., Spr. Quinlan enlisted in December, 1941, took part of his training in Peterborough and embarked for overseas in August of last year.

Strong Kingdom Grows Up Under David's Guiding Hand

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 17 is II Samuel 1-5, the Golden Text being Psalm 125:1, "They that trust in Jehovah are as mount Zion, which cannot be moved, but abideth forever).

A WAR WEARY David came to Ziklag, and he knew not that Saul was slain and his beloved friend Jonathan, Saul's son. A man came to him, however, saying he was an Amalekite and that he had killed Saul when Saul asked him to He brought with him Saul's crown and bracelet which he thought would give him favor with David.

His story was only partly true, as you will remember from the last Chapter of I Samuel, where we are told that Saul committed suicide. Instead of being pleased with the fellow's story, David was horrified, and had the man slain forthwith. Then David mourned deeply and sincerely for Saul, the glorious king as he was when he first was crowned. He forgot the suspicion and jealousy with which Saul had treated him in his later days; and for Jonathan he lamented unrestrainedly, and this song of lamentation is one of the most wonderful in all literature. It is sad that we have room only for an infinitesimal part:

"How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battle! O Jonathan, thou wast slain in thine high places. I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan: very pleasant has thou been unton me: thy love to me was wonderful passing the love of women.

"How are the mighty fallen and the weapons of war perished!"

David Goes to Hebron.

David asked the Lord where he should go and the Lord told him to go to Hebron, which he did, and the men of Judah there anointed him for the second time. the king of Judah. Then David sent a messenger to the men of Jabeshgilead, who had buried Saul and Jonathan and blessed them.

Now Abner, captain of Saul's army, took a son of Saul, Ishbosheth and made him king of all the rest of the tribes. Ishbosheth was 40 at the time and seems to have been rather a weak man. David reigned over Judah for seven years and six months when Abner and some of Ishbosheth's servants met some of David's under Joab, David's captain by the pool of Gibeon. The two groups of young men arose and fought and there was a "very sore battle" that day and David's men beat those of Abner. There were three brothers on David's side, Joab, Abishai and Asahel, and the latter was "as light of foot as a wild roe."

Asabel pursued Abner who tried to make him turn aside, but he would not, and finally Abner turned and killed him. Joab and the other brother went down, when her until the sun went down, when they came to a hill, and the Benjamites stood with Abner who called to Joab asking him to stop the fighting. So Joab blew a trumpet and all the people stood still. Abner and his men went one way and the servants of David another. When they counted the spoils they found that Abner's men had been defeated and had lost more men than David.

David Grows Stronger.

There was a long war, but the house of David grew stronger and that of Ishbosheth weaker. The latter accused Abner of being intimate with one of his father's women, and that made Abner angry, so he went to David and made a league to help him. David made a feast for Abner and his men and made the covenant that Abner help David to reign over all Israel, and Abner started away at peace with David. When Joab heard of this, however, he sent for Abner and when he came back Joab killed him to avenge Asabel's death.

David knew nothing of this until later and he mourned for Abner and all his people mourned. Two captains of Ishbosheth also killed that king as he slept, and they came to David, thinking he would be pleased that his rival was dead. But David was furious at this sneak attack and had them both killed.

After this the tribes came to David and asked him to be the king over them all. "So all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron: and King David made a league with them before the Lord, and they anointed David king over Israel."

David was 30 years old when he began to reign and he reigned 40 years.

David still had to conquer Jerusalem, which he did and had his house built there. It was called "David's city."

When the Philistines heard that David was made king they attacked him, but with the Lord's help they were overpowered, and a second time they came, but "David did as the Lord commanded him: and smote the Philistines from Geba until thou come to Gazer."

Christ Shown By St. Mark

By REV. E. R. JAMES.

The Lord God hath made me a polished shaft and he hath hid me in his quiver. Isaiah 49; 2.

An U. S. General in France is reported as expecting "the impossible" from his men. They are highly trained. Last week we were meditating upon the first step being PRAYER. The Christian must keep the tryst with his heavenly Father and His Christ through the power of the Holy Spirit. To-day let us meditate upon the second step—"THE WORD OF GOD"—The Holy Bible. It is the most precious of books. A great scholar reminds us that it is not only inspired but full of vitality for every generation.

It is interesting to realise how the Gospels were written. The second generation of Christians desired a written record of the acts and teachings of the Lord Jesus. For instance the Christians in Rome had received the message from the lips of St. Peter. St. Mark wrote those teachings so that the Gospel is practically according to St. Peter. It is most vivid and clear and written for a ruling race. Such people desired to see THE MAN. In these sixteeen chapters we see The Carpenter in three outstanding characteristics.

He is the Strong man, stronger than His fore-runner, St. John the Baptist. Such a character would make a great appeal to a fighting race. He is strong to conquer disease and cast out evil spirits. They see His moral strength in that He has no desire for populraity.

He is full of courage. He calmly faced the hatred of the religious heads of His people who plot His death. Knowing this He calmly goes to Jeruslem. "He steadfastly set His Face to go to Jerusalem" comments the writer.

Above all they his Compassion, an unknown word to the mighty Roman, who looked upon compassion as a sign of weakness. He had compassion upon the multitude and fed them with bread and fishes. He has compassion upon the weeping widow and brought her son back to life. Try to read this book with these thoughts in your mind For a few minutes let us meditate upon the opening words of this Gospel according to St. Mark.

THE BEGINNING OF THE GOSPEL OF JESUS CHRIST THE SON OF GOD.

GOSPEL means "Good News." Every day we are expecting the good news from the battle front in Europe; the good news of the unconditional surrender of the Germans. That day will be a day of rejoicing. Please think of the GOSPEL in this sense. It is the good news

JESUS is His given Name "Thou shall call His Name Jesus for He shall save His people from their sins." Remember that the Name "Jesus" is generally used only in the Gospels without the title for this purpose:— "These things are written that ye might believe that Jesus is indeed the Christ, the Son of God." St. John 20; 30.

CHRIST means the Anointed One It is the Greek for the Hebrew Messiah. The prophets tell us that He is to be a man highly endowed with spiritual gifst to do His work of Redeemer.

THE SON OF GOD is the most important term. It is the key stone of the Christian Gospel. Many non Christian writers acclaim "Jesus" highly. They deceive many Christians. As Chrisitans we believe that He is indeed the Christ the Son of God in a mysterious sense of the word. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us" is a fundamental of our religion. God became man that men might become like God.

As your mind is gripped by this fundamental truth it will be truly good news. The effect of this knowledge will be seen in your face The Christ will write His Name upon your forehead. "Think upon thees things." "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus Our Lord."

MY PRESENCE SHALL GO WITH THEE, SAITH THE LORD GOD.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Kingdom Strongly Established

Scripture—II Samuel 1-5.

By Alfred J. Buescher

David did not know that Saul and Jonathan had been killed until an Amalekite came to him and said he had slain Saul, thinking David would reward him; but David had him killed.

Then David and all his people mourned for Saul and Jonathan saying, "The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places: how are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished!"

David was then anointed king over Judah, but Abner, son of Saul's captain, Ner, made Saul's son, Ishbosheth, king over Jezreel, Ephraim, over Benjamin and all Israel.

At last, after Abner was treacherously slain by David's men, without his knowledge, Ishbosheth was murdered in his bed and David was made king over all Israel. GOLDEN TEXT—Psalm 125:1.

The Community Memorial Centre

On Monday the campaign will begin to collect subscriptions from individual citizens of this city to assist in building the Peterborough Community Memorial Centre. Generous support has already been pledged to this project by the leading industries of the city, and in the December municipal elections property-owners will vote on a by-law which, if it is approved, will provide civic support for the Centre. The campaign which begins on Monday asks for a substantial contribution from every wage-earner in the city. The Examiner commends this campaign whole-heartedly to the generosity of its readers, for we believe that the Memorial Centre can enrich the community life of Peterborough in several important directions.

We feel, however, that a majority of citizens would like to know more about the specific uses to which the Centre will be put. The public has been told that the Centre will be used to promote three things in Peterborough — health, culture and recreation. But precisely how is it going to promote these things? Health, we know, will mean sport, and the principal feature of the Centre will be an arena in which hockey can be played. As we understand matters at present, the hockey arena will be available not only for organized and semi-professional games, but for industrial leagues, church leagues, and school leagues. That is as it should be; it would be unjustifiable to represent the building of an arena for professional hockey as a civic responsibility. Other sports, we understand, will also be provided for and encouraged at the Centre.

What the Centre will do for sport is fairly clear. But what is it going to do for culture, which is included among the interests which it is to promote? Peterborough, like scores of other small Canadian cities, suffers from cultural malnutrition, and anything which will help to correct that condition deserves support. What will the Centre do? Will there be an auditorium in it which can be used as a concert-hall? Will there by any place where plays can be presented? What provision is there for lectures? Is there any place in which a loan exhibition of pictures could be hung? There is a public in Peterborough for all these things, and that public will subscribe in the approaching campaign if it thinks that the Centre will really do anything for the cultural life of our city. There are people who live and die in Peterborough without ever having come in contact with any of the arts; the rich store of the world's culture is completely unknown ground to them. And this is not because they are dull-witted or indifferent to good things, but merely because Peterborough has no centre and focal point of artistic activity. Is the Centre going to supply that focal point? If so, how? The public would like to know.

Recreation is also named as one of the things which the Centre will foster. That is splendid; a city of this size, with a large working population, needs far more popular entertainment, and a greater variety of entertainment than is available at present. Will the Centre provide ice carnivals? Will the arena be so designed that a travelling circus could play in it? Will there be provision for pageants, boxing exhibitions and sports displays? And, in another interpretation of recreation, will there by gymnasium and games facilities for people who like an occasional workout, but who have neither time nor inclination to belong to a sports club? The public would like to know.

If everybody 's expected to support the Community Centre, the Centre must provide something for everybody; it would be most unfortunate if the idea spread that a group of sportsmen wanted the community at large to underwrite their hobby. We are sure that this is not the intention of the men who have done so much hard work to develop the scheme for a Community Centre, and who mean to see their scheme made a reality. We are certain, however, that the public would welcome more specific information about the actual uses to which the Centre will be put.

It appears to us that the success or failure of the Centre, once it is built, will depend upon the man who is chosen to manage it. In order to get a good manager it will be necessary to offer a substantial salary, for a man will be wanted who knows the sports and entertainment world thoroughly, and understands the special aspects of finance which are found in those worlds. He should be able, if he knows his business, to arrange a sufficient variety of sports events, cultural events, and recreational events during a year to keep the Centre in continuous use, and to make it a financially stable proposition. This would be hard work and unflagging work, and it is decidedly no work for an amateur or for a man who is trying to do another job as well. Peterborough needs the Centre, and it needs everything the Centre can give it; as we are going to build the Centre, let us make sure that we shall get the most out of it.

Britain Turns On Her Lights

Tomorrow night Britain will relax her blackout regulations; the double curtains may be removed from windows, vehicles will show enough light to make them clearly visible, and there will be almost normal lighting in the streets: the effect will be rather like that of the 'dimout' which the East Coast of the U.S.A. had for a time. It is utterly impossible for us to imagine what this will mean to the people of Britain. Since the outbreak of war that country has known no night lighting whatever; even the carefully dimmed torches which were permitted during the early months of war disappeared when their batteries were exhausted. To describe the gloom as 'medieval' as some writers have done, was an exaggeration; in the Middle Ages wayfarers carried flaming torches; the modern Londoner had no light at all. There were other writers who rhapsodized upon the beauty of London by moonlight; but there were hundreds of nights when there was no moon, and the blackness meant only war and danger.

But the blackness was not so horrible as the occasions when Britain did have light—the light which came from the burning homes of British people, the light of explosions, the light which fell in fire from the sky. Britain bore those terrors with a fortitude which history will never forget. British fighting men have done great things in this war, but their heroism has been matched in every respect by the men and women and the children who bore the heavy burdens of life in a besieged island. In war Britain shows her essential democracy — that democracy which goes so much deeper than empty protestations of equality; the rich and the poor, the titled and the obscure, the clerisy and the unlettered all set their jaws and bore whatever was required of them without flinching. They grumbled—we have only to look at the Letters To The Editor columns in any British paper to see how they grumbled—but they never whined.

Tomorrow night light will break over England dimly and imperfectly, like the first hint of dawn. We can imagine the sober satisfaction which it will bring to those people who have earned it, during five years of darkness, broken only by fire.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Radio commentators aren't completely stupid. Give them the facts and they'll draw their own confusions.

A world sugar shortage is foreseen, but the war news grows sweeter every day.

Dorothy Dix says that marriage is the best prize of life. It includes a few booby-prizes, of course.

"Rank and File Seek to Control U.A.W.-C.I.O.", says a headline. Definitely undemocratic!

A captured German general says that he is disgusted with the war. Doubtless he did his bit to make it disgusting.

"The postwar automobile", says an advertisement, "will sweep you off your feet". That's what we are afraid of.

The honourable old hair dressing, bay rum, is getting a bad name. We have used the stuff for years, and have never yet felt impelled to taste it. If it is removed from the market, as has been suggested, we shall probably go bald in a month. And if shoe polish goes with it, we shall deteriorate at both ends.

Diary Of Autumn Days

SUNDAY: I think that there ought to be some sort of penalty for those tiresome people who dial wrong telephone numbers and then are rude to the victims of their stupidity. After all, it is not my fault that I am not cousin Flora, or Eddie Old Boy, or the Gates Ajar Funeral Home. There should be an attachment on phones which would automatically give an electric shock to anyone dialling a wrong number.... Have been reading Stephen Leacock's book, "How To Write," which is chiefly remarkable for the number of misquotations which he manages to crowd into it. But can anyone learn to write from a book? I doubt it. The way to learn to write is by writing. A man may learn to sing or play an instrument from a teacher, but if he wants to play upon the recalcitrant and variable instrument of his own intellect he must teach himself.

MONDAY: Was passing a pentitentiary today when the thought struck me that its inmates enjoy a greater measure of social security than any other citizens of Canada. They never have to worry about their next meal, or lodging, or suit of clothes; they are never unemployed; they get free medical services; they are protected from the temptations of drink and gambling; they live healthy, orderly, eminently respectable lives. It is true that they make certain sacrifices of freedom in order that they may enjoy these benefits, but they are relieved of every irksome responsibility and every necessity for thought, and after all, what is freedom compared with complete Social Security? As soon as the nation realizes this we shall be able to turn the whole of Canada into a vast penitentiary.

TUESDAY: I took part in an earthquake during the night; it was only a very small earthquake, but in these northern regions we have to make the most of the tropical blessings which are vouchsafed to us. I woke up to find that my bed was trembling like a nervous horse, and that there was great deal of noise outside the window. If I had known that an earthquake was in progress I should certainly have leaped out of bed and rushed outdoors in my pyjamas, carrying the mantel-clock which the Fraternal Brotherhood of Poltergeists presented to me during my term as Grand Exalted Hoogow. But I thought it was nothing but a clap of thunder, and went right back to sleep. I felt decidedly cheap next morning when I learned that I had allowed an earthquake to slip, so to speak, through my fingers.

WEDNESDAY: Have had to do an unusual amount of driving lately, and I observe an interesting change in the attitude of hitch-hikers. There was a time when they modestly indicated that they would be glad of a lift by jerking their thumbs: now they prance and cavort by the roadside, and when they are not picked up they shout abuse, sometimes of the most ribald kind. Many people are nervous of hitch-hikers, and would not dream of picking up anyone who behaved like a maniac or who screamed at them. ....It is also true that many people travel by car because they like to be private, and they do not want their privacy invaded by hitch-hiking strangers, most of whom are empty-headed chatterboxes. There is a sound reason for the hitch-hiking custom, but it is scandalously abused by miserly and cheeky people.

THURSDAY: For years I have been puzzled over the difference between a trade and a profession, but now I think that I have discovered the distinction. The wife of a friend of mine was recently told by her doctor that she had diabetes: a later investigation showed that she was merely going to have a baby. Another friend was told that he had anaemia: he proved instead to have a thyroid ailment. This shows the difference between trades and professions clearly: if I ask a grocer for tea and he gives me soap I mock at him; if I tell a carpenter to make a door and he makes a window, I throw him out of it. These fellows are mere tradesmen. But if a professional man makes a fatuous mistake I feel diffident about drawing it to his attention. Obviously a profession is a trade which allows an unusual margin for error, and professional men guard their prerogative jealously.

FRIDAY: To the movies tonight to see "The Hitler Gang," in which a number of actors who looked extraordinarily like Hitler, Goebbels, Goering, Himmler, Roehm and the rest acted out the story of the Nazi rise to power. Although the film showed great skill and discretion it seemed tame, somehow, and I think this may have been because the Nazi gang were shown merely as evil men, and not as monsters, which is how we have learned to think of them. Any group of men who have unlimited powers become monsters—to the lesser folk. But we shall shortly see that when their power is taken from them they quickly shrink in size to ordinary, contemptible humanity. I have seen schoolyard bullies who, viewed under a microscope, would show every trait of the Hitler gang; all they lacked was opportunity..

SATURDAY: Much of my day was passed in talking to earthquake victims. Some of these unfortunates complained that they had been roused from sound sleep; others had been shaken in their chairs, and one poor fellow had spilled several swallows of precious liquor. People with children, I found, invariably assumed that the tremors were caused by their young getting up in the night for a drink of water, or turning over in bed. The similarity between the activity of a child of four and an earthquake is amazing. Have you a little earthquake in your home?... Autumn has begun with rainy days and dank nights, and I lit my first grate-fire tonight. It seems only a week or two since I gave up lugging coal and wood to the voracious monsters which pretend to heat my house, and now I am back at it again. Such is the life of man: "'Tis a hotch-potch of money and trouble and care, and care and trouble and money," as the old song says.

What's He Wearing?

A photograph showing a troubled Hitler conferring with Reich Marshal Herman Goering and a couple of other headachy Nazis over the Russian situation caused a sharp-eyed reader in the Office of War Information here to utter a yelp of delight. For Hitler appears to be wearing a double-breasted civilian suit. Wasn't this the same guy, asks our correspondent, who took a vow after the invasion of Poland that he would not shed military dress until the Reich had trampled its enemies in the dust—Ja wohl!—New York Herald-Tribune.

Sound As Opposed To Noise

IT is not imagination when I state that I can bear with equanimity...the noise of gunfire during raids; of convoys of tanks, trucks, and Bren carriers thundering along the highway; of the wartime urgency of the news bulletin for those who have to go off to work early; of workmen and builders hammering and shouting at their overtime job of setting destruction to rights. These, to me, represent sound as opposed to noise. My attitude to the former is acquiescent and then relaxed....

And I not only accept, but truly enjoy natural and elemental noise; wind and rain and thunder, weir and waterfall, however near and however strong....Cocks crowing, cows lowing (though not when their calf has been taken away from them), the romantic quality of all train sounds (except shunting) provided one is not staying in the Hotel de la Gare or in that bijou dwelling on the railway embankment — I cannot explain why I place trains among "natural and elemental" sounds I genuinely enjoy, but I recall how amazed I was when Arnold Bennett produced a little box of pink wax pellets from his waistcoat pocket, and recommended them earnestly for stuffing in the ears during the early mornings of early spring when the bird choir is loud and exultant.

But it is when I am helplessly exposed to noise that is categoried under "pleasure", when I have to participate in other people's idea of "entertainment" which they have not the decency to concentrate within their own radius, but allow to splay out and splash in all directions, it is then that reason is lost and I cease to be a civilized human being. Ophelia sings in a lucid moment: "Lord, we know what we are, but know not what we may be". And I, in my lucid moments, have sometimes wondered by what process I have been translated into that Old Wet Blanket whom I remember over and over again from the angle of my own youth, my own uncomprehending youth. We know what we are, but we know not what we may be.—G. B. Stern, in "Trumpet Voluntary." (New York: Macmillan, 1944.)

What Did Mr. Mosher Mean?

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

A. R. MOSHER, president of the Canadian Congress of Labour, told the Ottawa Kiwanis Club on Friday that Canadian labour wants better living and working conditions and "a voice in the drafting and enforcement of laws and regulations governing those conditions."

What, exactly, does Mr. Mosher mean? We understand him when he says that workers want better working conditions. We don't understand him when he speaks of workers having a voice in the drafting and enforcement of labour laws and regulations.

Most laws affecting workers, so far as the Dominion is concerned, originate in the Department of Labour. That being so, they originate with Mr. Humphrey Mitchell, an old labour and union man, advised principally by Mr. M. M. MacLean, likewise an old labour and union man. Further, behind Mr. Humphrey Mitchell and Mr. M. M. MacLean are other men with understanding and sympathy for the labour movement.

What, other than this, does Mr. Mosher want? If, in addition, he wants leaders of labour called in to help the Labour Department and the Cabinet to draft labour legislation, would he be willing to have the same practice following with respect to laws affecting other classes — have manufacturers called in to help Mr. Ilsley in drafting customs schedules and determining tariff policy, and bankers called in to help write laws under which banks operate, and farmers called in to draft agricultural legislation, and so on down the line?

We doubt that such a practice would be a wise way, or a practicable way, to carry on government; doubt whether it could be fitted in with responsible government; and doubt also whether Mr. Mosher would want to have the theory applied in the case of the manufacturers and bankers. Yet if we had to have such a practice in the case of the labour goose we should be bound to adopt it also with respect to the manufacturer's gander.

A Toy Train in a Toy County

Leitrim, like Cavan, is a watery country, but Cavan collects the water into a thousand little lakes, and Leitrim, being hilly, indeed a maze of mountains and hills, pours it all over the place. It is boggy, soggy, rushy land full of burrowing streams, tiniest crevices of water everywhere, and this I found very affecting.... The autumn was already making the colours magnificent. Dark alders, reddening holly, red-berried haw, the beech turning brown and yellow, the aspens grey, the reeds by the lakes a fawny white, aging with the year, a great many poplars that danced as a mirage of light, the ash whose green is the last green to surrender because a tinge of yellow in it keeps it bright and brazen to the end; and through all this the greyness of piles of rock and stone, and the dazzle of the lime-white cottages on their green hillocks—Oh, such a deep, wet, spongy green!—under a sky blue as cornflowers, broken by clouds of which I can only say that they were as white as clouds.

Where there was a lake its water was ravelled in a little wind, and it was as corn-blue as the sky. On and on we chugged getting lost in the hills, climbing steep gradients, a toy train, a toy county. I did not care if we never got anywhere.... Again I was focussing on the little things; worn paths across tiny fields, or the bare-of-leaf sprays, or the ivy never-sere, or the pale-grey osiers, or those brightest of all trees, the scarlet cherries, or the white cottages against the jet-black soil, and every little homestead well bound and protected (those plantations of osiers for the thatchers told their own tale) against the windy winter that was to come.—From "An Irish Journey," by Saen O'Faolain.

Fall Fairs

No one who has ever known the attractions of fall fairs can go through this season of the year without pleasant reminiscences. Just about now the fall fairs are in full swing; the lush displays of produce are again set out for judgment. Handiwork of all descriptions attracts visitors; the various animals of the farm, especially groomed for the occasion, stolidly bear the scrutiny of the merely curious and the knowing alike. And then, of course, there are the trials of speed, without which no fall fair is truly complete.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Reciprocity!

Yes, school began Tuesday. We know it because motorists were warned in the newspapers that there'd be school children crossing street intersections in large numbers morning and evening, and drivers must watch for school stop signs and be careful not to dust off any of the little shavers.

We know it again because, as our car pool drove home last night a car loaded with high school footballers on their way to practice came through a stop street like a bat out of hell, going at least 45, and missed us by a flea's whisker.

Elders must be careful about hitting school children, but how about some reciprocity?—Minneapolis Star Journal.

A Bible Message

And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick. And when it was evening, his disciples came to him, saying, This is a desert place, and the time is now past; send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages, and buy themselves victuals.

But Jesus said unto them, They need not depart; give ye them to eat. And they say unto him, We have here but five loaves, and two fishes.

He said, Bring them hither to me. And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his disciples and the disciples to the multitude. And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full ...

And straightaway Jesus constrained his disciples to get into a ship, and to go before him unto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away.... And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea. And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is a spirit; and they cried out for fear.

But straightaway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid. (Matt. 14: 14-20, 22, 25-27.)

WAS SHE ASKED?

In regard to the Anglo-American Caribbean Commission we have wondered why Canada has no voice in this West Indian development body, in view of the fact that Canada, through her West Indian Trade Treaties and her fine Canadian National Steamship service, has in the past done so much for West Indian trade. JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

Cookie Capers

Now that the cooler weather is here, housewives are beginning to put their ovens on again, and answer the family's insistent demands for some good home baking. Cakes of course are generally on top of the request list, but a wise housewife will supplement the one cake her butter and sugar ration will allow, with a couple of batches of tasty, crunchy cookies.

They never fail to hit the spot for afternoon or evening snacks, and everyone, from Dad to little junior, loves to eat a nice big sugar cookie with a glass of milk. Dainty lemon drops, or chocolate chip drops are just the thing to serve to the bridge club, or to a war group meeting at the house. The old stand-bys, ice-box, or refrigerator cookies, are good too, and there's nothing like tasty shortbread to get sighs of pleasure from the family.

Here are a few recipes which may help the housewife whose looking for something just a little different.

Try These Lemon Drops

Ingredients: two cups of flour, four teaspoons of baking powder, three-quarters of a teaspoon of salt, one half a cup of shortening, one tablespoon of grated lemon rind, three-quarters of a cup of honey, one egg, well beaten, two tablespoons of lemon juice, and two tablespoons of water. Mix the ingredients in the usual manner, and drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased pans. Cook from eight to 10 minutes in an oven set for 400 degrees.

Still using honey for some of the sugar, but using butter instead of shortening, here's a delicious honey cookie recipe. Ingredients) one-quarter of a cup of butter, one third of a cup of sugar, one half a cup of honey, one egg, one grated lemon rind, two tablespoons of lemon juice, two cups of sifted flour, one half a teaspoon of baking soda, one quarter of a teaspoon of salt, and one half a cup of nuts. Cream the butter and sugar, add the egg, then honey, lemon rind and lemon juice, then add flour, baking soda and salt, and finally, the nuts. Drop by small spoonfuls on a greased baking ban, and bake until brown.

Another recipe that's sure to make a hit with everyone is chocolate chip drops, which uses shortening instead of butter, but still rquires some of the sugar ration. Ingredients: one third of a cup of shortening; one third of a cup of brown sugar and one third of a cup of white sugar. Add one well beaten egg, one teaspoon of baking soda dissolved in one tablespoon of hot water, one half teaspoon of vanilla, one eighth of a teaspoon of salt, one and one half cups of flour, and one half a cup of chocolate bits (plain chocolate bars cut up into small chips). Dark chocolate is preferable.

Cream the shortening and sugar, add the salt, vanilla and egg and dissolved soda. Fold in th flour and add the chocolate bits. Drop by teaspoon onto a greased pan, and bake until brown.

Sugar Cookies

For something really delicious, which will please the man of the house better than a dainty little drop cookie, here's a recipe for good old-fashioned sugar cookies. Four cups of flour, two cups of brown sugar, one cup of shortening, two eggs, well beaten, one teaspoon of salt, one half teaspoon of nutmeg, half a cup of sour milk, and one teaspoonful of soda. Mix flour and shortening, then add the sugar and mix well. Add other ingredients. Roll out and cut into desired size, and bake in a medium oven until lightly brown.

Needle Magic

With good needles hard to get, and dealers generally "fresh out" of that important commodity, many an erstwhile needlewoman is salvaging her old needles from various pincushions and sewing boxes around the house. It's surprising how many can be found too. In one instance, it was a man who came upon a treasure trove. While cleaning out his garage, he came across a beaded pin cushion, and wondered if by any chance any needles had slipped into the stuffing. On ripping it open, he found over one hundred needles in the stuffing and over 90 in good condition. So try putting needles back into circulation.

Goodchild—Bedore

MARMORA, Sept. 16 — (ENS). — A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, at 12.30 p.m. Friday, when Doris Joyce Bedore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Bedore of Marmora, was united in marriage with Clifford Leman Goodchild, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Goodchild of Deloro. Rev. E. M. Cadigan officiated. The church was decorated with gladioli, zinnias and ornamental plants. The wedding music was played by Mrs. W. H. Litt and during the signing of the register Mrs. Thomas Dickson, aunt of the bride, sang "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace over satin with a Queen Anne collar. Her veil was of marquisette and was in coronet shape, caught with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Clayton Bedore as matron of honor, who was frocked in blue triple sheer with bodice trimmed with gold sequence. Her bridesmaid was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Eric Bedore, who wore pink triple sheer. Both attendants had matching shoulder-length veils and floral headdresses. They carried bouquets of roses, asters and scabiosa. Best man was Eric Bedore, brother of the bride and Raymond Goodchild, brother of the groom, acted as usher.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of navy blue sheer with a hat of navy blue and white. She wore a corsage of roses and gladioli. The groom's mother who also received wore a gown of green and white print with a hat of rust color and a corsage of Bettertime roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. For travelling, the bride chose a brown suit with matching pill-box hat. On their return they will live at Deloro.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Potts and Mrs. Walter Leal Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hunter Bannockburn and Mr. and Mrs. David Phillips Madoc.

Nattress—Allen

The parsonage of St. James' United Church was the setting for a pretty wedding recently, when Margaret Lily Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Allen, Monaghan Road, became the bride of P. O. Robert George Nattress, R. C. N. V. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nattress, Hart avenue. Rev. F. W. Craik officiated.

For the ceremony, the bride chose a gown of white triple sheer, with shoulder-length veil of white net caught with a matching halo. She carried red roses. Miss Betty Freeman, who attended her as bridesmaid, was frocked in powder blue, with matching hat. George Beauchamp was best man.

At the reception, held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother received the guests in a blue gown, with black accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, was gowned in blue with black accessories, and wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

For a wedding trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride donned a gold woollen dress with brown accessories.

Swimming Club Elects Officers

The executive for the coming year was elected at a meeting of the Silver Finette Swimming Club of the Y.W.C.A., and is as follows: Honorary president, Miss Caroline Littlefield; president, Mrs. J. Forbes; vice-president, Mrs. Ethel Hopkins; secretary-treasurer, Miss June Killingbeck; telephone convener, Mrs. C. Wood; representative to Girls' Council, Miss Mary Waterman. Also on the executive are Miss Nancy Eastwood, Miss Joan Mantell, Mrs. R. D. Crary, Miss Iris Forbes, Miss Lenore Edwards, Miss Margaret Buck and Miss Pat Martyn.

Plans were discussed for demonstration work and intensive training for ornamental swimming, with the coming exhibition to be put on for the fall rally at the end of September as the first consideration. Miss Littlefield announced the meeting of the G.Y.M. Auxiliary on Monday evening. Members who have joined the club in the last two weeks include Miss Doris Fanning, Mrs. D. Magee and Misses Mabel Barnes, June Wellwood and Eileen Martin.

Popular Bride Given Showers

Prior to her marriage to-day to Mr. T. P. McMillan, Miss Ruth Harris was guest of honor at several showers and presentations, tendered her by friends and her fellow employees of the Western Clock Company. Mrs. J. Armitage, Douglas avenue, entertained at a pantry shower in honor of the bride, and Mrs. F. Gray, Rubidge street, was hostesses for a pyrex kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. M. Mason, Hunter street.

Friends and neighbours of the bride gathered recently at the home of Mrs. W. Kent, when the guest of honor was presented with a clothes hamper and clothes horse. Her fellow workers at the Western Clock Company presented her with a beautiful wall mirror and a pair of book ends as a wedding present, and also presented her with a tri-light floor lamp and a vase at a shower at the home of Mrs. D. Miller, Boswell avenue. Misses Eileen Jeffries and Jean Hair also entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the latter's home, where the bride received many lovely gifts from her co-workers.

Mrs. H. C. Harris, Stewart street, was hostesses for a trousseau tea in honor of her daughter. Mrs. Harris, Mrs. T. McMillan, mother of the groom, and the bride elect received the guests. Assisting in serving refreshments and in showing the trousseau and gifts, were Mesdames R. Dyer, J. Grierson, W. Kent, and Misses Jean Hair, Eileen Jeffries and Orma Lacheur. Misses Esther Brown and Anne Gray were at the door.

M. Shaughnessy Weds At Sacred Heart

A pretty wedding of interest took place in Sacred Heart Church this morning, when Mary Rita (Marita) Shaughnessy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester S. Shaughnessy, 525 Parnell street, became the bride of James P. Renahon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Renahon of Toronto. Rev. J. F. Coughlin officiated. For the ceremony, the church was decorated with gladioli and white baby 'mums. Mr. John Armstrong was at the organ, and Miss Yvonne Shaughnessy of Toronto sang "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus" and other hymns during the nuptial mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in floor-length white Jacquard crepe, made with fitted bodice, shaped waist, and flared skirt, softly pleated. The bodice was made with a low neckline with matching looped trimming, and long full sleeves gathered to a deep cuff. Her long veil of white net was caught to her head with orange blossoms, and she carried a flower fan of red roses and baby's breath.

Miss Norma Shaughnessy as bridesmaid and Miss Carmel Shaughnessy as junior bridesmaid, were frocked alike in floor-length turquoise taffeta, made with fitted bodices, and bouffant skirts, square necklines and three-quarter length sleeves. Each wore a headdress of turquoise feathers and matching shoulder-length veil, and carried a Colonial bouquet of Talisman roses.

Jack W. Renahon, of Toronto, brother of the groom, was best man, and Vernon and Omer Shaughnessy, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, where the bride's mother received the guests in a moss green crepe ensemble, with black velvet hat, matching accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, was gowned in navy crepe, with matching felt hat and accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

For a lake cruise to Kingston, Prescott and Rochester, the bride chose a cinnamon brown crepe dress, with small matching hat and veil, semi-fitted coat with mink furs, and tobacco brown accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Renahon will make their home in Toronto.

Shorter Coats Featured In Fur Styles

A preview of the smart fall and winter fashions in fur coats and jackets was presented in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. Friday evening, sponsored by the Peterborough Kinettes. Featured among the exciting styles was the new three-quarter length coat, with wide sleeves finished with matching cuffs, small stand-up collars, or tuxedo fronts, new drape shoulders, and foot-long slits from the hem at the side seams. G. Stott, fur expert from Toronto, explained the type and style of each outfit shown.

Deft style fashioning and expert draping and setting of furs made the coats appear fuller than they were and each seemed as luxurious as could be wished. "Boxy" coats were favored, in a variety of furs and colors, but a few princess and semi-fitted models provided a "different" touch. Wide shoulders, with the new "draped shoulder" effect were much in evidence, and added greatly to the overall appearance of elegance.

Close-cropped furs seemed to have the edge in popularity, with sleek, glossy black Persian lamb 'way out in front. Several models in three-quarter and full length styles of this latter fur were shown, with each having a distinctive and effective appearance. Featured types of fur included rich Alaska seal mole skin and pony skin; the ever-popular opossum; soft and warm-looking wallaby, otter, Can. brown squirrel and grey squirrel; and "different" furs, such as ocelot, spotted civet cat, and Lincoln lamb. Colors were rich browns and blacks, with grey standing out in the squirrel and Lincoln lamb models.

In the 'teen-age fashions shown, the coats were cut a little neater, and had a more trim appearance. Nothing of the style was lost however, and wide shoulders and stand-up collars were featured. Particularly smart and timely was a racoon coat, always tops for collegiate and college wear. A real mink coat, of beautifully matched furs, on simple but stylish lines, was a highlight of the display, and was greatly admired by the large audiences which filled the recreation room for both showings, at 7.30 and 9.00 p.m.

Evening Jackets

The finale of the fur show featured a display of evening jackets, in blue fox, bleached wolf, ruby fox and—monkey fur. The latter jacket, cut quite simply, with wide shoulders and sleeves, was made of long, glossy monkey fur which, although unusual, was a definite hit. The fox jackets were beautiful, and a bleached wolf model, almost white in color, drew many appreciative glances.

Although furs were the featured fashions in the show, a few styles in wools, and afternoon and dinner dresses were shown. Light, bright, slim-looking wools, for comfortable, casual wear, were designed simply, but were definitely smart. Exciting styles in black were shown for late afternoon and dinner wear, many with sequin trim. A few other dark colors were shown, also featuring sequin trimming. Newest hat models were still quite small, with bright feather trim and quite a bit of veiling.

Following each showing, refreshments were served in the Green Room. Mrs. N. Elliott was tea convener, assisted by Mesdames J. Nornabell, G. Coleman, Jr., H. Weir, V. Selkirk and T. Lister. Mrs. J. V. Elliott for the Kinettes and Miss Zita Kennedy and R. Nelson supervised the showing. Pianists were Mrs. W. J. Gordon and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, and Mrs. J. M. King and Mrs. N. Giles were at the door. Ticket conveners were Mrs. J. M. King and Mrs. T. Lister.

Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of the Kinettes, welcomed the guests on behalf of the organization, thanking them for their support, and introduced Mr. Stott. Models for the show were as follows: Mesdames M. Holt, T. Williams, L. Bateman, B. Baker, J. A. Nornabell, and J. V. Elliott, and Miss Beverly Pringle. The next meeting of the Kinettes will be held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. A. Nornabell, Charles street.

Nellie Hickey Becomes Bride

St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, decorated with asters, phlox and gladioli, was the setting for a wedding of interest recently, when Mary Nellie Hickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hickey, became the bride of David Gifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. J Gifford, Sr. Rev. V. J. Gillogly officiated, with Sam Killen and Joe Sullivan serving mass. Miss Marion Best was at the organ, and during the ceremony, Mrs. C. Connolly sang "Ave Maria" and other hymns.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in floor-length white brocaded satin, on long torso lines, with shirring at either side at the front. The fitted bodice was made with a Sweetheart neckline, buttoned from neck to waistline at the back, and long leg-o'-mutton sleeves, coming to a point over either wrist. Her veil and train of white net fell from a matching halo caught with tiny flowers, and she carried a bonquet of red roses.

She was attended by her sisters, Misses Lucille Hickey, as maid of honor, and Miss Marcella Hickey, as bridesmaid. They were frocked alike in blue and pink net respectively, on long torso lines with full skirts. The maid of honor wore a finger-tip veil of blue net, and the bridesmaid wore a finger-tip veil of pink net, while each carried a Colonial nosegay of roses and pink and blue cornflowers.

Tom Gifford was best man, and the ushers were Mac Hickey and Clayton Young.

At the reception held at Ava Lodge, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a gown of old gold crepe, with black hat and matching accessories, and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, was in navy blue triple sheer, with black accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

For a wedding trip to Ottawa, Montreal and the United States, the bride chose a two-piece gold wool suit with brown accessories, and brown fur neckpiece. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Gifford will live at Ennismore.

W.M.S. Studies Eastern Peoples

ROSENEATH, Sept. 15 — (ENS). — The new study for the W.M.S., "West of the Date Line", was introduced by Mrs. A. Nill at the regular meeting of the society held this week in Mrs. M. Davey's home. The study dealt with the South West Pacific and the story of the origin of the people's in the islands there, was related.

Mrs. R. C. White consented to give an address at the thankoffering service in October, the date to be arranged later. The regular meeting will be held October 3, one week earlier than usual, in Mrs. J. A. Nichols' home.

An invitation was received to attend the 10th anniversary party of the Roseneath United Church W.A. on September 20. Miss Clarice Atkinson played a piano solo, and the hostess served refreshments.

Choir Entertains Former Organist

APSLEY, Sept. 16 — (ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. Orville Miller of Smith, whose marriage took place recently, were given a surprise party at their home by members of the Trinity United Chuch choir. Mrs. Miller, nee Margaret Tucker, who had been organist and assistant organist in Trinity Church, was presented with a purse of money by Miss Eva Whitmore, leader, on behalf of the choir, and Wilbert Johnson read the address.

At the close of an enjoyable evening spent in singing and games, planned and supervised by G. Langton, C. Robb of Peterborough spoke of the kindly feeling existing in choir, and women of the choir served refreshments. Transportation was provided by Herb Tucker and Aubrey Blakely.

Those present included: Mr. and Mrs. J. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. H. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. A. Blakely, Mrs. Don Newberry, Mrs. Walter Tucker, Misses Eva Whitmore, Marie Tucker, Myrtle Tucker, Evelyn Lean, and G. Langton, Wilbert Johnson and C. G. Robb. Mrs. W. Lean, the organist, was unable to attend through illness.

This store will be closed Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 18th and 19th to observe the Jewish New Year.

Are your Children

Try New, Improved OVALTINE

Children who are thin, nervous and under par, science has discovered, are often found to be eating foods which do not give them enough of the essential food elements everyone needs for health.

As a "protecting" food-drink, New, Improved Ovaltine adds to a child's meals the essential food elements most likely to be deficient.

Three servings of New, Improved Ovaltine furnish a child with a significant portion of his daily requirement of Vitamins A, B1 and D, Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron—all from Ovaltine alone. Also quick food-energy elements and high quality proteins for building sturdy bodies.

So—if your child is thin, nervous, under par, or eats poorly, start giving him New, Improved Ovaltine regularly. Get Ovaltine today at drug or food stores.

Kawartha Golf Events Nearing Wind-up Stage

Events at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club are rapidly moving toward a climax and the next week should see winners declared in all the five major competitions listed for men and the two events for mixed teams.

Pete McArthur has won the Kawartha Cup, emblematic of the championship of the higher handicap men. This young man has made rapid strides in the game, as this is his first year at the royal and ancient.

The team of Harley Weir and Archie Hood have wrapped up the Glover Trophy for the men's two-ball competition, having defeated Rod Jones and Hy Caverley in the finals, 1 up.

Competition for the club championship has taken on its familiar aspects as Charlie Low and Fraser Dunfield have again survived four rounds of duelling with the 16 top flight qualifiers to emerge as finalists for the third year in a row. This match will be decided this week-end and should be one worth seeing, as both are well on their game. Either one of these lads will be a worthy opponent for Robert Abbott of the Peterborough Golf Club when they meet for the J. E. Girven Trophy over a 36-hole route on the week-end of September 23 and 24.

Tommy Miller and Hy Caverley are finalists in the President's Cup for the championship of the handicap golfers and this match will be completed this week-end.

Finals have been reached in both the Riley Cup and Riley Cup consolation tournaments, and it is hoped that both these matches will be played this week-end. Mrs. K. S. Smylie and Dave Price take on Mrs. Roma Brindle and Stan Whiddon for the Riley Cup, while the finalists in the consolation are Mrs. Vern Selkirk and Jack Menzies and Mrs. J. M. King and Ron Akers.

Jim Geraghty is all ready and waiting to meet the winner of a match between Charlie Cummer and Dave Menzies for the championship among the seniors. The gentlemen who have played in this competition are better at playing their matches than a lot of fellows a whole lot younger and the Handicap Committee is grateful for the interest they have shown in this new tournament.

For Sunday, September 17

SUNDAY'S horoscope turns toward some peculiar and revolutionary moves and while accompanied by adverse situations, in the long run, through good judgment and sustained application to duties, responsibilities and obligation lasting benefits may be expected. This might have relation to group, fraternal or community activities. But in all shun unnecessary changes and safeguard the health and that of the family. Be vigilant against deception.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of peculiar upsets or anxieties affecting the standing in community or group affiliations. Work for fulfilment of all obligations and responsibilities, but keep alert to duplicity and strange entanglements. Be wary with affectional, domestic and social ties, and safeguard the physical condition of self and family.

A child born on this day may have progressive ideas in promoting public relations or community well being, although it will be shy and distant.

For Monday, September 18

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a lively and enjoyable state of affairs in the realm of romance, parties, celebrations and domestic or social functions. Things should move at a lively pace, despite the fact that some impediments or frustrating circumstances might arise. With tenacity and tact such obstructions may be eliminated. Finesse and strategem are recommended.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of celebrations and festivities marking romantic, social or domestic adventures of significance. However there may be delays, obstacles and impediments to be removed by determination, diligence and good will disposing of disagreements and limitations in both business and private relations. Compromise and tact may assist.

A child born on this day may have many talents and skills, in unusual lines, although its tendency may be toward the arts and sciences: Its life may be romantic and adventurous, with serious objectives.

WORKING WIVES NEED BREAK

Husbands Sharing Income Should Take Turns at Cook Stoves, Doing the Washing.

It is the custom to describe marriage as an equal partnership into which a man and woman enter, but this is mere wishful thinking. If there is such a thing as a real 50-50 marriage, few, if any, of us have ever been privileged to see it, still less to take part in one. Nine marriages out of ten are not partnerships. They are deals in which one or the other of the high contracting parties have gotten the gravy and the other one has been left with the dish to hold.

Sometimes it is the man who gets the hot end of the matrimonial bargain. Sometimes it is the woman. There are just as many trifling, no-good wives as there are loafing, lazy husbands. Neither sex has a monopoly on meanness. When it comes to rock-bottom selfishness and the desire to get the best for oneself, male and female are neck-and-neck in the running.

Many a man spends his life toiling to support a wife who makes no return for what she receives. He makes the money. She spends it. He can never afford to take a holiday. She takes nothing else. He laps her in luxury. She never gives a thought to his comfort.

On the other hand, there is many a husband who dumps all of the responsibility of making their marriage a success on his wife. He expects her to do not only all the work of making a comfortable home, but to keep him entertained and amused; to always look like a million dollars, though he keeps her on a basement bargain allowance, and to stay young and beautiful so he won't be tempted to run after other women.

This unfair division of labor has become one of the big problems of marriage in these days when so many wives are forced to work both inside and outside of their homes, and to be competent business women and glamor girls as well as domestic slaves, yet whose husbands refuse to lend them a helping hand in the kitchen, or do any of what they call "woman's work."

In the old days when the man brought home the dough it was woman's job to bake it, but it isn't fair to ask her to be both provider and cook. In common justice it does seem that the husbands with wage-earning wives should take their turns at the cook stove and the washing job and the baby carriage.

And husbands needn't say they don't know how to do it, for there is no mystery about performing on a gas range that any man who can tune in on a radio can't fathom. There is no esoteric rite about tidying a house that a man can't do. As a matter of fact, the best chefs and cleaners are of the masculine persuasion, and it is up to husbands to strut their stuff in the cases where their wives are the tired business women.

But how working wives are to get a fair deal, I don't know, unless they go on a sit-down strike.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The greatest opportunity in Peterborough's history is being offered in the epoch-making drive for funds for the Memorial Health Centre which is to be launched on Monday. Involved in this $300,000 undertaking is the most comprehensive and far-reaching scheme of community development that any city in Canada of anything like the size of Peterborough has ever presented to its citizens. The successful culmination of this drive will not only give Peterborough a modern arena where hockey and skating may be staged under ideal conditions, but also an auditorium capable of housing large audiences where musical entertainment, roller skating, conventions, large-scale public meetings, indoor circuses and other similar events may be presented. The program includes large-scale improvements to Riverside Park, including new stands, and the providing of facilities for baseball, softball, soccer, lacrosse and football, as well as adequate bathing facilities. The scheme is magnificent in its scope and its completion will leave Peterborough in the forefront of Canadian communities so far as opportunities for every form of athletic endeavor or its younger citizens are concerned.

* * * * * *

This column has no hesitation in endorsing the effort as a campaign that cannot, under any circumstances, be allowed to fail. If we miss the boat on this occasion it may be years before another such golden opportunity will present itself. We cannot afford to miss. We urge the citizens of Peterborough to throw themselves unitedly behind this great campaign and carry it through to a successful conclusion. There are probably some differences of opinion as to various details of the program. In a scheme of this calibre it would be a miracle if we were to be unanimous about the thing. But in the name of common sense do not allow these trifling differences of opinion to blind us to the import of what is being planned and sought. The main business before the community in next week's drive is to raise the funds that are required. The details can be ironed out later. Now the job is to put the scheme over the top. It is the greatest chance the individual citizen has ever had to make this a better Peterborough in which to live. We have confidence enough in the good sense of the people of this city to feel sure that they have no intention of muffing the opening that has been given to them.

* * * * * *

They're Badly Needed

Of the need of the program that has been prepared there can be no doubt. Peterborough is one of the best hockey towns in the country and yet we are facing the second winter without Canada's national winter pastime because we have no rink. A modern artificial ice arena, with a proper ice surface, with comfortable seats in a heated building, with adequate dressing-rooms and all the up-to-date appointments is first on the city's sport "Must" list. In providing the arena the scheme takes care of another crying need. At the present time we have no auditorium in Peterborough suitable for large public entertainments, conventions, political meetings and many other similar events. With the Memorial arena completed its accommodation will be available for all such affairs and many problems are immediately taken care of by the proposed building which will include all the better features of similar arenas throughout the country, including of course a modern public address system. An auditorium of that kind will be in use daily throughout the year and in itself more than justifies the request for community support and backing.

* * * * * *

As to the other features of the program they deal with existing wants in a comprehensive manner. It is obvious that the city's only enclosed athletic ground Riverside Park, once one of the finest baseball plants in the smaller cities has about come to the end of the trail unless a comprehensive program of improvements is carried out. The grandstands, never adequate, are falling to pieces and the playing field, at one time as level as a billiard table has been heaved up so often by spring floods that the surface will have to be rebuilt and raised. The Memorial Health Centre scheme takes all these facts into consideration and will convert Riverside Park into an ideal centre for all summer and fall sports, surely a consummation devoutly to be wished. There are other items in the program equally commendable and the whole plan is so breath-taking in its scope that this column urges every citizen to realize just what the success of the drive means to Peterborough and give accordingly. It is the chance of a life time and, as we said before, we cannot afford to fail.

St. Catharines' Side

Clayton Browne of the St. Catharines Standard gives the St. Kitts' side of the protest in regard to the recent game with Brantford as follows: "Our veteran confrere from Brantford, Sports Ed. Alan Rose, made quite a how-de-do about Teepees girls lodging a protest with the P.S.W.U. over failure of the Brantford catcher to don a mask here and the Phone City scribe departed a little from beaten paths in his tirade. It is not his business to try the case in the paper and give judgment. That is the task of the league heads at Peterborough, no matter what their decision. We are informed that Teepees did not actually protest the fact here in the opener, but they severely questioned the legal rights, since it is a P.S.W.U. rule that catchers do that. It seems a girl softballer was either seriously injured, if not fatally, some time back and the P.S.W.U. made the rule mandatory, that girl catchers must wear both pad and mask in all playoff games—or league ones for that matter. The same legislation brought in taped bat-handles for men-women and business such as needed rules in protecting rival players. Surely, no one could possibly object to preventive rules to health and if a Brantford girl had been injured here by omission to wear protective equipment, who would get the blame? Teepees, of course, for not halting it before the game started and demanding Brants catcher do so or play under protest. We'd say Teepees are unjustly crucified and also lenient in not enforcing the rule before the opener got under way down here."

The American League race tightened up even more as a result of last night's card which saw the St. Louis Browns knock off the Chicago White Sox 5 to 1 and move into a second place tie with the Detroit Tigers, right on the heels of the Yanks. Effective pitching by Galehouse and Vern Stephens' hitting did the trick for the Brownies. The Tigers lost a chance to move out in front over the idle Yankees when they split a double-header with the Cleveland Indians. The Tribe took the first game in 12 innings 4 to 3 while the Tigers getting another fine pitching effort by Hal Newhouser won the second 9 to 1. Boston Red Sox lost ground by dropping a game to the Washington Senators. In the National League the floundering Cards ran their losing streak to five straight by dropping the first game of a double bill to the Chicago Cubs 2 to 1 but finally checked the rout by grabbing off the night cap 3 to 2.

Those Crisp, Cool November Days

. . . with the smell of woodsmoke in the air and falling leaves slowly blanketing the ground. Remember sitting still and expectant on the deer-run, waiting to hear the tell-tale snap of a twig or a flash of white which will betray the fleeing deer. The day's sport over, the dependable Johnson Sea-Horse would bring the tired hunters back to camp and an evening around the fire, swapping stories of hunting exploits.

The memories of those happy days are doubly precious now during these busy war years when time for leisure is non-existent. Johnson, too, is engaged in all-out war effort but, when Victory is won, Johnson Sea-Horses will continue to serve on the water-ways of Canada and of the world.

Until then, get the best performance from your present outboard motor by sending to-day for the FREE, fifty-two page conservation booklet, "Know Your Outboard Motor". Simply address your request to our plant in Peterboro or to your Johnson dealer.

EDMONTON, Sep 16.—(CP).—Champion golf ball hunter of Alberta, and may be the world, is an eight-year-old Alsatian called Teddy, owned by Charlie Holmes of Edmonton.

Teddy, who has been hunting golfer's pellets since he was a year old, has, according to his master, found an estimated 15,000 golf balls during the past three years.

His hunting grounds are the fairways and roughs of Edmonton Highlands golf course.

Teddy's knack of locating lost balls provides his 66-year-old boss with a living. Unable to work because of a heart ailment, Holmes sells the good balls found back to club members who are willing to pay as much as 50 cents in this day of shortages.

Teddy locates as many as 25 balls during a busy week-end, as he can scent the rubber of the ball from 30 yards away under dry conditions.

He does not pick up balls players are using. "He was taught what to pick up and what to leave early in his training, Holmes says.

In the neighboring province of Saskatchewan, Dunc Sinclair, 58-year-old Scot, gave golfers something to talk about. Out of golf for 21 years after the First Great War due to war wounds, Dunc became the first player to win both the open and amateur North Saskatchewan titles. He had a par 71 to top 196 starters in the open. Alex Wilson of Saskatoon dropped a 2 and 1 decision to the veteran in the amateur final.

Lights Are Out No Ball Game

(By The Associated Press)

If it's not one thing its another that has prevented the International League teams from clashing in their playoffs for the Governors' Cup.

After two days of rain followed by Thursday's hurricane, Toronto and Newark found that the lighting system in Ruppert Stadium, Newark was out of commission and postponed their game for the fourth time, until tonight at 8:30. Baltimore and Buffalo are not scheduled until tomorrow at 2:30 at Baltimore.

Vern Stephens Browns—drove in two runs with 18th homer and single at St. Louis trimmed Chicago, 5-1.

Steven Gromek, Indians and Hal Newhouser, Tigers — Gromek outpitched Dizzy Trout and scored winning run in 12th inning of 3-3 opening victory; Newhouser coasted to 25th victory behind Detroit's 19-hit attack for easy 9-1 rout of Cleveland in finale.

Bucky Walters, Reds — Became first National League pitcher to cop 21 wins by shading Pittsburgh in 10 innings, 5-3.

Brownies Tied For Second With Detroit

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Detroit muffed a chance to take control of the American League pennant race last night and sat idly by today as the St. Louis Browns got their turn to nip at the heels of the front-running Yankees.

While Paul (Dizzy) Trout was losing his second straight and the Tigers were splitting a double-header with Cleveland, the Brownies thumped Chicago to pull into a second-place tie with the Bengals. They were half a game back of Joe McCarthy's men.

Trout's 12-inning loss to Cleveland's Steve Gromek, 4-3, came on Myril Hoag's double, scoring Gromek in the 12th.

Hal Newhouser earned the Tigers a split by turning back the Indians with eight hits and striking out nine for a 9-1 "convincer" as Detroit slugged out 19 safeties, five by the veteran Roger (Doc) Cramer.

Denny Galehouse hurled the Brownies to a 5-1 decision over the Chicago White Sox with the help of Vern Stephens' 18th homer.

Boston dropped 3½ games off the pace in a hard-to-take walloping by last-place Washington, 5-2. Joe Cronin led with Rookie Clem Dreisewerd who yielded all Washington runs before bowing to Red Barrett. Mickey Haefner shackled the hard-hitting Red Sox with seven blows and stopped George Metkovich's consecutive game hitting streak at 25.

Cincinnati took first blood in the National's second-place scrap with Pittsburgh by eking out a 5-3 edge in 10 innings over reliefer Xavier Rescigno. The Pirates' margin on the third-place Reds was cut to 4½ games.

Ray Sanders hit the 100 R.B.I. mark as St. Louis split a pair with Chicago, losing 2-1 but bouncing back 3-2 as Ted Wilks earned his 16th victory. New York finished a "suspended" game for an 8-3 edge over the Phillies but bowed to Ken Raffensberger in the regular tilt, 7-3, and remained with the Cubs for fourth.

Mayo Smith Wins Batting Title In International

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP)—Edward Mayo Smith, 29-year-old veteran centrefielder of the Buffalo Bisons, won the International League batting title with a mark of .337.

Smith, who never before had reached the .300 mark in his 10 years in the circuit, closed out the season Sept. 10 with a total of 169 hits in 501 at bats to attain the identical figure with which Rochester's Al Schoendienst led the league last year.

A consistent .300 swatter all season, the six-foot 170-pound native of New London, Mo., increased his pace to take over the league lead for the first time Aug. 9, and despite furious opposition furnished by Teammate Eddie Kobesky, held on to win by a 12-point margin.

Only three other players in 100 or more games hit over .300 for the season. Howie Moss of Baltimore and Chico Rodrigues of Syracuse tied for third with .305, and Toronto's Tony Castano with fifth with .304.

Individual departmental honors went to Howitzer Moss, who led in home runs, runs batted in, total hits, and total bases, finished second in runs scored and doubles, and was among the leaders in triples. Moss' 27 homers exceeded by one the total of last year's leader, Kobesy, who this year trailed Moss in runs batted in, 128 to 141, and in total bases, 284 to 307. The Oriole slugger amassed 177 hits to 176 for Maier, and with 43 doubles was one behind Montreal's Morrie Aderholt. Moss also trailed Blas Monaco of Baltimore in runs scored 123 to 135, and poled eight triples. Lakeman led to three-baggers with 11, two more than Felix Mackewicz of Baltimore and Elmer Durrett, Montreal. Mickey Burnett of Rochester, despite missing about 30 games, led the base stealers with 40, two more than Teammate Jack Sturdy.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, batted in 12 runs in one game to set a major baseball record. Playing against the Brooklyn Dodgers 20 years ago to-day. Bottomley had a perfect six-for-six at bat. The Cards won 17-3.

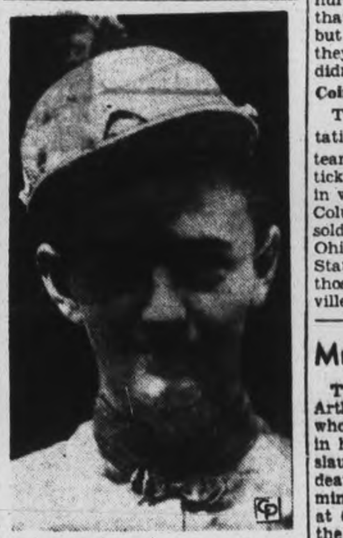
The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—(AP)—The minor leagues can't do much about that conflict with the majors in the winter meeting dates because the National Association agreement specifies the Wednesday of the first week in December . . . It took a hurricane to convince the Dodgers that the Brooklyn fans were right but they finally took the advice they've been getting all season and didn't show up for a game.

Coincidental Items

The office of Defence Transportation has requested all football teams, college and pro, to restrict ticket sales to residents of the area in which games will be played . . . Columbus, O., hotels report they're sold out for the week ends of the Ohio State-Michigan and Ohio State-Minnesota games . . . Bet all those folks don't come from Circleville and Worthington, either.



DEW RIDES AGAIN—Back in 1940, Earl Dew, California youth, was the riding sensation of the nation. He piloted 287 winners across to reign as the national jockey champ in that year. Early in 1941 he visited Agua Caliente to receive a handsome wrist watch as the track's tribute to his prowess. He accepted a mount to display his wares and was fatally injured in a spill. Today, Dew rides again but it's Dale Dew, Earl's younger brother. Dale, now 18, and riding on Ohio tracks, resembles Earl in the saddle.

Murder Charge

TIMMINS, Sept. 16 — (CP). — Arthur Auhuchon, 22, of Timmins, who was committed to stand trial in high court on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of George Timm, also of Timmins, will face a charge of murder at Cochrane Sept. 19 as a result of the finding of new evidence, it was learned here last night.

Peterborough Memorial Community Centre

-for Health-Culture-Recreation

As the heading indicates this will be a War Memorial as well as a Health and Recreation Centre. It will be a practical active memorial to men of the armed forces, from this district, who so gallantly gave their lives to defend our way of life. In the Arena of the Centre, there will be a Memorial Chamber where all the names, of those men who have made the supreme sacrifice will be enscribed and where their parents will hang their loved one's picture for all to see, therefore this will be—truly a Memorial Centre.

The recreational part of the project will include a heated arena with over all demensions of 256 ft. by 144 ft. which will have an ice surface of 190 ft. by 85 ft. . . . and a seating capacity of 3,500 and standing room for approximately 700. It will be equipped for concerts, conventions, carnivals, dancing, roller skating, ice skating, hockey, basketball, etc. and will have proper acoustical properties. When built a suitable public address system will be installed. Other features of the Centre will be a large size outdoor swimming pool, hard and soft ball diamonds, lacrosse bowls, rugby fields, tennis court, and spaces for other outdoor activities.

TO SERVE PETERBOROUGH'S YOUTH

The youth of our City has been neglected because we have not given them the necessary equipment and facilities with which to build sound bodies and minds, requisites of good citizens. To correct existing conditions, your Committee, with your assistance, will build a Community Centre for Health, Culture, and Recreation, with particular stress laid on the development of the young people. Your Committee feels that a Health Centre cannot help but show, eventually, a decided improvement in the general health of the community, and that it will be a definite help in curbing delinquency among youth.

CENTRE TO COST $300,000

The complete Centre with all the facilities for Health, Culture and Recreation, will cost approximately $300,000. This amount is broken down as follows—$100,000 from industry—$125,000 by public subscription and a sum of, between $50,000 and $75,000 to be given by the city. The $300,000 is being asked for so that we may have this all embracing Community Centre at one time rather than having to wait a few years between the building of each unit of the project.

Any and all profits accruing from the operation of the Centre will be used for extension and improvement of the Health Centre and for the establishment of suitable play grounds for our boys and girls in different sections of the city.

FINANCIAL DRIVE STARTS MONDAY, SEPT. 18

The financial campaign will be carried on, on the same basis as the Victory Loan drives. There is a group of canvassers, each wth his district, whose duty it will be to call at every home in his district, for subscriptions. The campaign will last until September 30th. Citizens, when making donations, should keep in mind the necessity of the project and the fact that DONATIONS MAY BE DEDUCTED FROM INCOME TAX UNDER THE WAR CHARITIES ACT. When the canvasser calls on you, give him a good hearing, do not ask him to come back later, as he is a busy man who is volunteering his services in the interests of our community. Please be ready at the door with your generous donation.

THIS IS PETERBOROUGH PROJECT— —LET'S ALL GET BEHIND IT

When Major Eisenhardt, Director of Physical Fitness for Canada, spoke here recently he said that this was one of the finest projects any city in Canada has ever instituted and said that Peterborough was to be congratulated for its vision and far sightedness. It is up to each one of us to do our utmost to make this project a reality by subscribing generously and promoting it in every manner possible.

SOLDIER KILLED

George Westlake Mann, grandson of Mrs. Agnes Westlake of Smith township, has been killed in France fighting with the Canadian Army. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mann of Elgin, Man., formerly of Smith township; and one of his five sisters, Mrs. Robert Neville, formerly lived at 27 Park street. He is also survived by his wife, who lives at Medora, Man., and one brother.

DID HE KNOW.

A driver going along Hunter St. Friday evening had a very flat tire, and although bystanders sent up a shout to the effect, the nonchalant motorist drove right on. One man voiced the opinion that since the car was such an old model, maybe the driver hadn't noticed a few extra bumps.

RUGBY PRACTICE.

There will be a practice of the Peterborough junior rugby team at Riverside Park at 6 o'clock on Monday evening.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY.

R. J. Deachman, consulting economist, Ottawa, will be the speaker at Monday's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club. His subject will be "Tomorrow and Its Needs."

IN MERCHANT MARINE.

Kenneth Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Thompson, 531 Douglas Avenue, recently enlisted in the Merchant Marine and is serving in the Norwegian branch. He is the fourth brother in tahe forces—L.-Cpl. Jack Thompson, Ptes. Frank and Joe Thompson are in France. Prior to enlisting Kenneth Thompson was employed at Better Beverages.

FIRE REPORT

The Fire Department reported one alarm Friday night. It was a call to the Goodwill Apartments, 377 Water street, where, in the residence of A. R. Gould, fruit boiled over on a gas stove. No damage was caused.

COPY BOOK FOUND

One of the juniors of Central School has lost his first writing book. It was found on the walk down the driveway at St. John's church, suggesting some youngster taking a short cut through to Hunter street. There is writing on only one page, such as "There are seven days in a week. John has a brave dog. There is good fishing in the river," and so on.

General Motors Anniversary

OSHAWA, Sept. 16—The 75th anniversary of the founding of the McLaughlin Carriage Company which grew into General Motors of Canada, Limited, was observed this week. There was no time off for celebration in the company's plants, which have turned out hundreds of thousands of military vehicles, armoured cars, guns, aeroplane and tank components since war began.

In 1869 the late Robert McLaughlin started a carriage shop with four employees at Enniskillen, Ontario. Ten years later, the expanding business moved to Oshawa. Today nearly 15,0000 men and women are employed exclusively on war production in General Motors plants across Canada. Among this number are men who once built carriages and who have come out of retirement to use their skill and craftsmanship on the assembly line for Mosquito bomber fuselages.

The span from "buggies to bombers" saw McLaughlin carriages recognized as the finest in Canada; the introduction of the first McLaughlin car in 1907; production of the first Chevrolets in 1915; formation of General Motors of Canada, Limited, in 1918, and the building of more than a million and a half civilian cars and trucks the last in 1942

This year also marks three personal anniversaries for R. S. McLaughlin, son of the founder. He has completed 25 years as first and only president of General Motors of Canada, and 57 years as an employee. Recently also he celebrated his 73rd birthday.

At his desk today, Mr. McLaughlin said, in referring to the 75th anniversary:

"My father inherited nothing but his hands and a natural skill and creative ability. His decision to build a carriage shop was a bold one because every village had one. But this one outlasted them all and here is why: This man had the spark of genius and a creative energy—and the right country in which to put enterprise to work."

Brief Case Presented To J. A. MacDonald

James A. MacDonald, accountant at the Royal Bank, was honored on Thursday night at a meeting of the Kinsmen Club, prior to his departure for Mulgrave, N.S., where he will become manager of the Royal Bank branch.

Because of several years' service as treasurer of the club, and since the outbreak of the war as treasurer of the Milk for Britain Fund, the club wanted to express its appreciation, and a brief case was presented by Don Loucks, a past president, on behalf of the Kinsmen. Mr. MacDonald joined the club during Mr. Loucks' term of presidency.

A silver relish dish was presented to Dr. Mark Crough by Cal Sheehy "on the relinquishing of his title of senior bachelor."

Mr. Justice Plaxton, who has been presiding at the Fall Assizes, was a guest and was introduced by Emmett Sheehy. J. A. Jebson and John Keyes, chairman and treasurer of the Community and Memorial Fund, were present and spoke briefly. The newest member of the club is C. M. (Curly) Krug

Staff Changes In Liquor Store

Two peremptory changes were made over night in the staff of the local vending shop of the Ontario Liquor Control Board.

The Examiner was informed that Joseph Dunkerley has been appointed vendor in succession to David R. Fleming, and that Heber Rogers has been appointed to the staff in a vacancy created by the dismissal of Joseph Hill.

It was stated that both dismissals were announced late on Friday with the direction that the changes were to take effect this morning, and that this was the only notice given to Mr. Fleming and Mr. Hill. The two new appointments automatically followed with the opening of the liquor vending shop today.

Search Fails To Uncover Gun

TRENTON, Sept. 16 — Ten hours of search in the Trenton district yesterday failed to produce the Lee-Enfield rifle with which Mrs. Austin Smith of Detroit was shot to death a week ago, Deputy Commissioner Herbert McCready of the Ontario Provincial Police said last night. The search for the rifle will be continued today.

Pte. Irwin Stata, the 18-year-old Chesterville boy who is charged with the murder, was taken by Provincial officers to the area where, police say, he threw away the gun. The search was conducted by Inspectors George MacKay, Arthur Palmer and Ward H. Kennedy.

Stata was hazy as to where he got rid of the weapon, police said. Officers say he told them he threw it out of his car at night, and for that reason had only a general idea as to where it might be.

On returning to Toronto Stata was taken to the Don Jail. It had not been decided last night whether he would be taken out again when the search is renewed today.

Sept. 17, 1940—Liner City of Benares torpedoed by German submarine; 248 lost. Italian troops reached Sidi Barrani, 60 miles from Libyan border. Petain government rejected demand by Thailand (Siam) for territorial concessions in Indo-China.

Three Divorce Cases Left Till November

Three divorce actions on the assize docket were set over until the non-jury sittings in November. Most of the space in the civil suit section of the accouncements at the court house was occupied by divorce actions which have been muscling into the spotlight that used to be held solely by suits in litigation, apart from the criminal cases. Mr. Justice Plaxton did issue two final decrees and two first or conditional decrees referred to as "nisi." It seems to be the court custom, as it has been developing under Ontario's divorce laws to confirm these first or nisi decrees after a period of six months.

Omemee Show Brings $25 To Robot Victims

Beautiful flowers may truly be described as universal messengers of goodwill, whether it be to carry a ray of sunshine into a room or home burdened with the cares of sickness or the loss of a loved one, or to spread the radiance of the glow of a Great Creator's goodness to any festive gathering, no matter what its form may be.

This very fact makes their use as a medium of raising money to assist the victims of robot bomb attacks over Britain most appropriate, and the Omemee and District Horticultural Society very advantageously made it so and their annual show which was held August 22 in that place.

By means of a collection the nice sum of $25.00 was raised, and this was forwarded to headquarters by Rev. R. M. Patterson, who so ably represents the fund in this district. This is at least the third occasion on which this Horticultural Society has made their annual show an occasion to help along this very worthy cause.

For a centre of its size and population, Omemee and district of Fmily near it has done remarkably well for the fund, this latest contribution making a total of $744.53 that has been forwarded by Rev. Patterson, in addition to which many other contributions of a substantial nature have also been given which would in all probability bring them well over the four figure mark of $1,000.

Lawn Bowlers Total $138.00

Readers will recall the splendid contribution made by the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club a short while ago, when a special tournament conducted on behalf of the fund with a small committee headed by G. Gimblett in charge, raised the nice sum of $132.00.

This has now been raised by another $6.00 which was given by others who were unable to be in attendance, adding to the patriotic endeavor by that much, and displaying too just how much the club as a whole were behind this group effort, in giving support to the fund for the purposes for which it operates.

Since the earlier part of the week when the fund total reached the $80,000 mark, it has advanced $150 beyond that point, reducing the need to complete the next donation to a little below the $440 mark.

Personal Gifts List Soon

Another list of purely personal gifts is now in the making, already three donations of this kind are on hand, with promises from at least two additional people to supplement it in a similar way, so it is hoped to have another such list ready for acknowledgement in the next few days.

Previously acknowledged	$80,119.99
The Omemee and District Horticultural Society, per Rev. R. M. Patterson ..	25.00
The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, additional proceeds of Tournament per Fred M. Brown and P. E. Moore	6.00
Total to date	$80,150.99

Labor Unions Asked To Help With Council

All labor unions in the city are being asked to send two representatives each to a meeting next Friday night at which a further step in organizing a trades council is expected to follow the progress of discussions Friday night by delegates from eight unions.

One of the ends of the proposed trades council is to promote an adult educational program, to cultivate a deeper interest in community and civic affairs and to stimulate a broader social basis by enabling workers of the different trades to become more acquainted one with another.

"We can earn a more active place in the community by first being willing to take part in things and then doing our part," said one of the men who is behind the present effort to form a labor council. "Some of the men who have been coming together these last few weeks did not know each other. There should be a more general acquaintance than that, and we can find plenty to do to help each other for instance in winter program and generally seeking to steadily lift labor to a higher place."

It was reported that there is full agreement as of A.F. of L. and C.I.O. affiliations and that a broad basis of planning can be laid out in community interests, education and the general welfare of labor.

Thief Takes Shells As Duck Season Opens

Another candidate for the title of meanest thief has turned up in this district.

He is the individual who broke into the cottage of A. T. McConkey at the head of Chemong Lake and stole all Mr. McConkey's supply of shotgun shells.

The loss of 4 boxes of shells on the first day of the duck shooting season in a year when wartime restrictions make ammunition hard to get will cause most hunters to extend their sympathy to the victim.

HELPFUL IMMIGRANTS

Pigs and chickens were introduced in the South Sea Islands by immigrants from Asia.

Minister Plans School Course

The committee on religious education in Public Schools has drawn up the programme for the session 1944-45. The committee is composed of representatives of the following churches: Anglican, Presbyterian, Baptist, United and the Salvation Army as was arranged with the Board of Education four years ago.

The committee has reviewed its work several times, and has noted the following facts.

(1) The young people give the utmost attention to the lessons from the ministers and say that they find them interesting. They tell their parents about them when they go home.

(2) The teachers co-operate with the ministers.

(3) Many parents have spoken to the ministers in appreciation of the lessons.

(4) The lessons are not merely instruction in Biblical knowledge, they aim at the application of Christian truths to daily life, and the formation of character, such as social problems, as intoxicating liquor, gambling and Sunday observance, have been faithfully dealt with in the class rooms.

(5) The classes as a rule have been confined to grades 6, 7 and 8 as in most of the schools, it is not possible to cover all the grades.

(6) In every grade the teachers open the school with religious exercises conducted by themselves. Those given in the lower grades are of special value. The teachers take this part of their work seriously, and will now have the use of the manual preferred by the education department.

(7) Text books recommended for the preparation of these lessons are: The Sunday School Magazines of the various churches; a study of the Life of Jesus Christ by J. Russell Harris (The Ryerson Press) price 25 cents. "What Protestants Believe and Why" by J. Y. McKinnon (The Ryerson Press) 50 cents. "The Manhood of the Master" by H. E. Fosdick. Dr. Alexander MacLaren's Commentaries on the Old Testament Books."

The following is a list of schools and ministers in charge:

Mays:—Rev. E. J. Whan.
Confederation: Adjutant Velma Graham.
King Edward:— Rev. F. W. Craik.
Queen Mary:— Rev. E. W. Young.
Prince of Wales:— Rev. W. A. Filer and Rev. H. J. Mahoney.
Central:— Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.
King George— Rev. A. J. Arthur.
Queen Alexandra:— Major John Wood.
Queen Elizabeth: —Rev. J. R. R. Cooper.

The classes will begin next week and the hour in most schools is 9 to 9.30 a.m. These details are usually arranged between the ministers and the principal of the school. It is requested that the classes close punctually at end of the 30 minutes period, so as not to interfere with the time table of the school.

INDIAN NAVY GROWS

NEW DELHI — (CP). — The Royal Indian Navy now has a personnel 13 times greater than at the outbreak of war. There are an increasing number of Indian officers in command of ships and in other high posts.

9 Churches Approve Hospital Plan

Nine of the twelve Protestant Churches in Peterborough who are directly interested in Nicholls Hospital through the naming of representatives to the Board have already endorsed the proposed change in the setup of the hospital. The remaining three churches Murray Street Baptist, St. Paul's Presbyterian and Knox United have not yet held their congregational meetings to discuss the question.

The present Board of Nicholls Hospital is made up of two representatives from St. Paul's, two from St. Andrew's United and one from each of the following Knox United, Park Street Baptist, Murray Street Baptist, St. John's Anglican, St. James' United, All Saint's Anglican, Trinity United, Mark Street United, St. Luke's Anglican, and George Street United, also a representative of the Nicholls Hospital Medical staff, a representative from the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, the mayor and four named by the city council making a board of twenty-one.

Unable to Provide Proper Facilities.

As the present Trust is unable to provide adequate hospital facilities and as a large sum of money will be required to provide the necessary buildings and equipment the congregations are being asked to approve of the Nicholls Hospital Trust co-operating with the City Council in setting up a new corporation to build and operate a hospital adequate for the needs of the city and district. Also to approve the transfer of the present hospital and equipment to the new corporation and further to approve the investment of the endowment fund, which is in the neighborhood of $240,000, in the new hospital building.

The details of the transfer of the building and equipment and the endowment fund will be clearly set forth in a private bill amending the present hospital acts and will be submitted to the Ontario Legislature.

Charge Against Ratepayers.

The City Council has already decided that the proposed hospital will be a civic one and charge on all the ratepayers of the city whereas the present hospital is a charge against the Protestant ratepayers.

The endowment funds were provided through the generosity of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nicholls who also provided the money for the present hospital buildings with exception of the annex built in recent years.

A committee composed of representatives from the Hospital Board, the City Council and other ratepayers has been at work for several months in planning for the proposed civic hospital and it is now at a point where it is ready to discuss plans for the new building.

"It's the Berries," Dick Ford Says of Rowans Possible Cold Winter, Hesitant Prediction

The "boughs bend over" Dick Ford remarked the other afternoon looking on a rowan tree back of St. John's church, its limbs laden with red berries, and fat robins, looking gorged with the fruit, went leisurely about their eating with all the assurance of plenty abotu them

"Now last year there was hardly a berry on the mountain ash tree." Mr. Ford recalled, "and if you remember we had a long and open and fine fall. Look around now and you see the trees loaded. We have two or three trees here, and there is another down the hill, and I don't htink I ever say so many clusters of the berries."

Surely it seemed somewhat logical to conclude that there might have been some significant relation between the scant berries last September and the delightful autumn weather; a sign to be observed. That being so, possibly, then there is the reverse side of it; a multitude of berries, an early fall and a long Whetung winter. This isn't an 'ex-cathedra' pronouncement by the Sexton and carrilloneur. He is just venturing into this business of scanning nature for evidence of its intentions; and his reading of a long winter and too early fall from the bounteous fruit of the rowans is mentioned with very considerable reserve. But should the worst eventuate in persistent frost and snow, then Mr. Ford is indubitably on the way to becoming a seer and prophet of local weather like Dan Whetung used to be until he booted a couple of bad ones and then went off the air to save the family reputation.

Woman Is Charged With Cafe Assault

Mrs. Alma Ronco was charged in police court this morning with assaulting Mrs. Marjorie Rose in the Victory Cafe on September 8.

Mrs. Rose told the court that the accused had used bad language to her and when she remonstrated with her, Mrs. Ronco had struck her four or five times.

The husband of the first witness corroborated her story. The case is proceeding.

German View

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP)—The B.B.C. in a German language broadcast picked up by the CBC listening post at Ottawa yesterday deported a "very urgent matter" had taken British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to the Quebec conference. Mr. Eden arrived, unannounced, at Quebec Thursday.

The BBC said Mr. Eden had received news of such "tremendous importance" after Prime Minister Churchill left England that he had communicated it personally to the British Prime Minister.

Mrs. Lily Stuart Awarded $2,400 Damages

In the terms of the trial jury's verdict, judgment for $2,400, and costs, was given Mrs. Lily Stuart by Mr. Justice Plaxton against Thompson Huggins, Jr., and Ellsworth Ingall in the traffic accident suit which concluded the Fall Assize of the Supreme Court of Ontario on Friday afternoon.

The jury fixed damages to Mrs Stuart at $3,000, but determined the proportion of negligence in the circumstances causing the accident at 20 per cent on the part of the plaintiff and 80 per cent by the defendant Ingall as taxi driver for Huggins, owner of the automobile which struck Mrs. Stuart as she was crossing George Street north of Dublin Street, at 9:20 p.m. August 16, 1942.

A series of questions was given to the jury for their decision in the final stage of the action.

The first one was: "Have the defendants satisfied you that the plaintiff's injuries did not arise from negligence or improper conduct of the defendant driver?" The answer was "No."

"Was there negligence on the part of the plaintiff?" The answer to the question was "Yes."

"If there was negligence on her part, what did she neglect to do?" And the answer: "The plaintiff failed to look north again to see the approaching car."

The next question asked the jury to determine the respective proportions of negligence; and the answer was 80 per cent negligence by the driver, and 20 per cent by Mrs. Stuart.

The other question directed the jury to determine the amount, if any, of the damages to be allowed to the plaintiff, and the answer was the sum of $3,000.

Eighty per cent of $3,000 is the amount of $2,400 as allotted to the plaintiff by the jury's award.

With Costs.

T. J. Carley, K.C., counsel for Mrs. Stuart, moved for judgment for his client, and Mr. Justice Plaxton inscribed into the records judgment for $2,400, with costs, against the defendants. A. A. MacDonald of Toronto was counsel for the defendants.

Mrs. Stuart suffered multiple injuries in the accident, including amputation of her right arm above the elbow. The question of contributory negligence was discussed by both counsel in their addresses to the jury, but Mr. MacDonald said that he did not wish his reference to be interpreted as an implication of weakness in his case that the defendants should be wholy exonerated.

The evidence of Mrs. Stuart told of her having started to cross from the east to the west side of George Street. She first looked up the street to the north and saw an automobile, south-bound, at the intersection of Edinburgh Street, the first street north of Dublin Street. She did not look toward it as she was crossing the roadway. She was hit about halfway across.

Mr. Ingall's evidence as that he did not see the plaintiff until she was right in front of the left side of his car, almost at the moment it struck her; and that he did not have a chance to avoid hitting her. She was wearing a black summer dress with little white rings, and the east side of street was a dark section, accentuated by the street lights which were on the west side, and also by a light from a corner store on the west side. The defendant said he had been driving cars for seventeen years.

Mr. MacDonald rather pointedly remarked to the jury that the fact of his coming from Toronto for this case should not leave the impression that he was in any way representing the interest of an insurance company. It is understood that defendants did not carry public liability insurance.

One of Mr. MacDonald's comments to the jury was a mild suggestion that this was a case of "jay-walking."

Roy A. Dixon was foreman of the jury, and the other members were: George Buller, M. H. Hardill, Emory R. Dubay, Alvin H. Davis; Alexander Rose, Warsaw; W. F. Donaldson, William Brown; Clarence Telford, Dummer Township; Frank Coyle, Lakefield; Gordon Bennett, Joseph Detcher.

PRETORIA'S POPULATION

PRETORIA — (CP). — The latest figures issued by the city council show that the population of the South African administrative capital was 153,000 in December 1943. Of this total Europeans numbered 108,000 and non-Europeans 45,000.

Citations Tell Courage Of Three Airmen

Reflecting the efforts and endurance of airmen in this war, stories of high gallantry and loyal devotion to duty are behind a Royal Canadian Air Force announcement made to-day, revealing two men from the Peterborough district have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, and another has won the Bar to the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Squadron Leader D H. Kenney, D.F.C., A.F.C., whose wife lives at 98 Colborne street, Lindsay, has been awarded the Bar to the D.F.C., for what his official citation describes as a "great fortitude, courage, and devotion to duty." The two D.F.C. winners are: Flight Lieutenant A. G. McAuley, whose wife lives at Marmora, and Flying Officer F. D. Jackman, son of Mrs. F. A. Jackman of Stirling.

Of Squadron Leader Kenney, D.F.C., A.F.C., the citation said: "This officer has completed a large number of operational missions since the award of the D.F.C. Throughout his flying career, he has at all times displayed great fortitude and courage in pressing home his attacks, and has recently been employed as a most efficient flight and squadron commander. His courage and devotion to duty have been a valuable asset to his squadron."

A skilled and competent navigator, Flying Officer Jackman was awarded the D.F.C., and his citation reads: "FO. Jackman has succeeded in successfully completing many attacks against the enemy's most heavily defended objectives. His skill as a navigator has contributed much to the success obtained by his crew throughout their tour of operations. On one occasion, he was navigator of an aircraft detailed to attack Frankfurt. Shortly after the take-off, all navigational aids failed, but by skillful use of astro-navigation the aircraft arrived over its target at the correct time, and made a safe return to base. A few nights later, a flight to Berlin was completed in similar circumstances. FO. Jackman has been a most efficient and capable navigator."

Flight Lieutenant McAuley was awarded the D.F.C. for "completing many successful operations during which he has displayed high skill, fortitude and devotion to duty."

The official announcement by the R.C.A.F. also includes the names of 58 other airmen, who have been decorated recently.

Hastings Flier Said Missing

HASTINGS, Sept. 16—(ENS)—Flt. Sgt. Morley (Mike) Nelson is reported missing after air operations overseas, according to word received by his mother, Mrs. A. J. Nelson.

The young airman who worked for a short time with the Breithaupt Leather Company before enlisting in the spring of 1943, went overseas in November of the same year. He has been serving as an air gunner in a bomber and gto his promotion to Flight Sergeant about a month ago.

His father, A. J. Nelson died a few weeks ago.

Westclox Win By 2 Run Margin

In the Industrial League playoffs, Westclox again took the measure of Outboard Marines last night, winning an exciting game by 10 to 8.

For the Big Bens Currie allowed 10 hits, struck out five and walked three, while McDougall, pitching for the Outboard Marines, yielded a total of 16 blows, fanned five and passed the same number. Watson with four hits in five trips to the plate and Rowat with three for four led the Westclox hitters. Heffernan of the Marines slammed out a homer in the seventh.

Murphy's fielding at third for the losers was a feature. The teams:

Westclox—Watson ss; Rowat 2b; Hopcroft 1b; Currie p; Millen cf; Jacquith c; Spencer lf; Nicholls 3b; Gannon rf; Pearson rf.

Outboards—McCue cf; Metcalfe c; Murphy 3b; Heffernan 3b; Heffernan 2b; Stewart 1b; Thompson ss; McDougall p; Page lf; Davis rf.

English People May Flock To Dominion

An amazing number of English people intend to come over to Canada after the war, with an enhanced picture of the Dominion gathered from R.A.F. men who have trained here, and from conversations with Canadian soldiers in Britain, according to Flying Officer C. Harry Francis, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Francis, 581 Sherbrooke street, who arrived home on leave after more than three years of overseas service, Thursday evening.

"Immigration authorities are having a very busy time answering inquiries," he said, "and from what I saw, there will be a tremendous number coming to Canada after the war."

Attached to the Royal Air Force for some time, doing specialized radio work, F.O. Francis could not say very much about what he does in England. Strictly a hush-hush branch of the service, suffice to say he went overseas in 1941 as a Leading Aircraftsman, and since then, has risen through the ranks to the position of a full-fledged Flying Officer. He was commissioned a Pilot Officer in Britain last October.

Missed Invasion

Disappointed at missing the invasion of France, where two of his brothers are serving, he said he hopes to go back to Europe after his leave, but just what his fate will be, is as yet shrouded in secrecy. With two years of Coastal Command service behind him, he stated he would be pleased to get back at that, if possible.

An experienced buzz-bomb dodger, from his experience with the missiles in England, F.O. Francis had many interesting things to relate about the Nazi terror weapon. High admiration is held for those English people living in what is known in Britain as "Buzz-Bomb Alley"—a corridor-like stretch of land, over which the majority of bombs must pass, he said. "Groups of the boys would always go out and watch the flying bombs as they went over," he related, "and as often as not, they'd have to dodge one or two of them." He said the Nazis delighted in mixing up the bombs,...shooting some that dropped straight to the ground when the motor cut and others that glide and swoop...in the same bunch. That way, you never knew whether to just drop flat on the earth, or get ready to dodge 'em, the young airman said.

Saw First Ones

Flying Officer Francis saw some of the first bombs that came over, and declared everyone who first saw them wondered "what in the heck" are the Jerries pulling off." He said, "of course, everybody in England hates the things, and the barrage that goes up to shoot them down is terrific. They come over quite low usually, and when they come, you know it. There is a loud noise, and things begin to rattle in the houses."

He brought a piece of a flying bomb home as a souvenir.

He said it is strange to see how the once very dignified English person is adapting himself to American and Canadian habits, introduced in Britain as a result of so many Canadians and Americans being there. Gum chewing, as an example, has caught on with the population like wildfire, and he said it is not at all unusual to have an Englishman approach and ask, in best English style, "Got any gum, chum?"

Of his days in England, F.O. Francis says, "It was just like a Cooks' Tour,...free. I'll always like England, and during my time on the islands, I visited Ireland, and many places in England. They are most hospitable people, and always willing to help you."

He enlisted in April, 1941, and after taking a radio course at the University of Toronto, went overseas in September, 1941. There, he studied several more courses in radio. A former employee of the Switchgear Department of the C.G.E., he was educated at Peterborough Collegiate. Two brothers are also serving overseas, both in France. They are Staff Sergeant Robert, and Craftsman Bill. Recently, the two brothers in France met quite unexpectedly along a French road.

Asked if he noticed anything different about Peterborough since he's been away, F.O. Francis said, "Yes I do. The C.G.E. plant has certainly become much larger since I saw it last, and all those wartime houses are new to me also."

Paper Essential To Canadian War Industry

Although rubber, food, gasoline, and other materials have all been stricken by shortages at various times during the past five years of war, from the very beginning waste paper has been Canada's No. 1 war material shortage. Used in hundreds of ways to supplement the war effort of the Dominion, 20,000 tons of waste paper are urgently needed every month to keep production at the paper mills going, supply paper containers for such necessities of war as blood plasma, food, and shells.

The city of Peterborough, under the chairmanship of Mrs. R. Whalon, is conducting a vast, one-day waste paper colection next Thursday, September 21, designed to collect 10 pounds of paper from every man, woman and child in the city. Residents are asked to put their waste paper out on the streets, tied securely in bundles, before 6 o'clock in the evening, and 20 trucks and 75 men will begin to pick it up at that time. Business firms, insurance offices and other offices are advised they will not be infringing on aly by-law byplacing their paper on the streets at closing time.

This is also a district drive, and people living in and around Millbrook, Omemee, Hastings, Norwood and Havelock should have the paper out during the morning at 8 o'clock. Urban Peterborough's objective for the campaign is no less than 150 tons, and in order to "go over the top" everyone is requested to donate the 10 pounds—and then some more. The need of the war effort for waste paper will not end until after victory. Every scrap can help to throw Hitler's "superman" troops farther and farther back into German soil.

Five years of war, in which paper has taken second place to no other war material, have reduced the available supplies to low quantities. There can be only one answer, that we collect waste-paper from homes, schools and offices, and to facilitate speed in getting it to the mills, people are asked to tie the paper in bundles.

Remember, 20,000 tons a month of waste paper is going to take a great effort from everyone. Instead of throwing your waste paper in with the garbage to be destroyed, save it. No scrap of waste paper is too small to be colected. It is all important.

Along with buying war bonds and stamps, this is another way in which Canadians can share the burden of a world war with soldiers at the front. When you see waste paper collect it, and turn it in to the waste paper drive, remembering that some soldier on a battle line will live, because sulfa drugs and blood plasma reached him in time shipped in paper containers that you helped to build.

BROTHERS IN THE NAVY—Two brothers, sons of the late Mrs. Margaret Halcrow, are serving in the R.C.N.V.R. Ernest Halcrow (Left), cook, is stationed at H.M.C.S. Donnacona. Prior to enlisting in June, 1943, he was employed with Purity Bakeries. AB. Roland Halcrow (Right), who has been in the Navy since April, 1943, is stationed at Halifax with the Harbor Craft. He was formerly employed at the C.G.E.

Overseas Man Who Fought Enemy Gives 10th Donation At Clinic

Long term service men are quick to realize the importance of seeing that enough blood plasma is available for the men fighting in the front lines, speeding the defeat of Germany.

James Graham of London, Ontario, who is stationed at the Peterborough Training Centre, gave his 10th donation on Army night last week. He is in his sixth year in the forces and has had ample opportunity to see plasma in use overseas. Pte. Graham was formerly in the R.C.A.F. and completed more than 50 operational flights overseas. Injuries received in a crash necessitated his giving up active flying and after service in the ground crew, he returned to Canada and transferred to the army.

Cpl. T. Fulford of Toronto, who is also at the Training Centre, has passed his third donation mark. He's been in the army more than three years and in that time has crossed Canada from coast to coast, eight times.

UNDERLEADING YOUR ACES

IT IS very seldom that anybody profits by leading away from an ace against a suit bid. There are two main pieces of damage that can be done by this extremely unsound lead. First, it may enable the declarer to take a first-round trick with a king which otherwise may be knocked off. Second, it may result in the ace later getting trumped in either the declarer's hand or the dummy. But later in the play, underlead of an ace may be the only sound defensive move, when more facts are in view.

West: ♠ A 5 3 2 ♥ 10 7 ♦ K 6 4 ♣ K J 8 2
East: ♠ Q 6 ♥ K Q 9 8 4 3 2 ♦ Q ♣ Q 4 3
South: ♠ J 10 4 ♥ J 6 5 ♦ J 10 8 7 3 2 ♣ 6

(Dealer: North. North-south vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♥	Pass	1 NT
Dbl	2 ♥	3 ♦	Pass
4 ♦	4 ♥	5 ♦	Dbl

West led the 10 of his partner's bid heart suit. The A won, the club A was scored, a club ruffed, the heart 6 ruffed in dummy, a second club ruffed, the heart J ruffed in dummy, the diamond A scored, dropping the Q, a third club ruffed, and the diamond J was led to the K.

Isn't it easy to see now that, if West laid down his spade A, the declarer would make his contract? West could see that, and he also knew that South had no knowledge of who was the holder of the A. So West led his spade 3. This gave South a chance to go wrong. He guessed that East had the A, since he had been a bidder, and hoped that West held the Q. So reckoning, he played low from dummy.

And was his face red after East won that trick with the Q, following it with a return of the 6 to the A?

Red Cross Work Needed Now More Than Ever

LAKEFIELD, Sept 16 — (ENS) — Mrs. H. Ketchum in a brief address at the September meeting of the Red Cross Executive said that although the war seemed to be drawing to a close, Red Cross work was more necessary now than at any time. The president also welcomed the new secretary of the Red Cross, Miss Irene Madill, who replaces Mrs. W. W. Leonard.

Mrs. L. Quakenbush, treasurer, reported a bank balance of $608.36 and Mrs. W. Gillman presented the workroom report as follows: 16 large quilts, 2 crib quilts, 32 articles shipped for the "Linen Show for Russia", 33 articles of clothing for Russian Relief, 165 lbs. of fat shipped to Peterborough, 1 carton of fur for seamen's jackets. There were also three donations valued at $2.50.

Reporting for the wool committee, Mrs. Earl Edwards said that many people had taken out wool for sweaters months ago and had not turned in the finished garments yet. These articles are urgently needed and should be finished as soon as possible. Mrs. Edwards also mentioned the splendid cooperation the local branch was receiving from the branch at Young's Point.

The knitting shipment is as follows: 9 ribbed helmets, 7 pairs of gloves, 12 high necked sweaters with long sleeves, 2 pair gloves and and 2 pair mitts.

Mrs. 3. A. Grylls of the Blood Donors Committee expressed her thanks to Ted Wickett, who has been in charge during her absence, and the members of the committee. During the month of June 41 donors visited the clinic at Peterborough, 32 during the last week of July and the month of August. A special drive for donors will be made for a night clinic on Thursday, September 21. Anyone who can attend is asked to contact the committee.

The resignation of Mrs. Nancy Belanger, as head of the Emergency Reserve Nursery Class was received with regret.

The Fair Board offered the concession of the grand stand at the Fair to the Red Cross and members were appointed to be in charge at different hours.

Mrs. Quakenbush and Mrs. Ketchum were appointed to collect the contents of the money jars in the various stores and it was planned to houseclean the Red Cross rooms on September 28.

Complications?

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 — (AP). — Italian Istria, the peninsula on which the large port of Trieste is situated, has been claimed for Yugoslavia by Marshal Tito who also demanded a peace table seat, the Free Yugoslav radio said last night in a broadcast reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

Spent Bullets Falling On Streets

LONG BRANCH, Ont., Sept. 16—(CP)— Bullets from machine guns in use at the Small Arms Training Centre and the Small Arms Proving Grounds, both near Long Branch, have been landing on the streets of this town, Reeve Sam Wright reported to the town council last night. The spent bullets—of the 20 MM. variety— are said to have been fired out over Lake Ontario at a 70-degree angle.

Officials at both camps believe a strong air current is bringing the bullets back to shore.

Entire Gestapo To Stand Trial For Crimes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP) — The Allied policy for political and economic reform in Germany will be developed fully only after complete military occupation of the country, and then to a large extent on a trial-and-error basis, but it is probable the entire Gestapo may be brought to trial for war crimes.

With Allied armies driving on to German soil, it was learned today that the Allies are agreed only on certain fundamentals of postvictory policy in Germany, including:

1. Complete military occupation of all German territory.
2. Destruction of the Nazi Party and organization.
3. Arrest of German leaders anr functionaries, including probably all members of the Gestapo, to be held for trial for war crimes.

Two Hampering Factors

Beyond these points, planning was said to have been hampered by two major factors—ignorance of the nature and extent of hostility to the Nazis inside Germany, and Russia's fear of being caught in a "squeeze play" through an Anglo-American agreement which might set up resistance to Soviet influence and interests in Germany and all Central Europe.

The first of these two, it was suggested, can be remedied only after the Allied armies have taken possession of Germany and by observation of spontaneous developments within Germany have been able to assess the potentialities of political rehabilitation of the people.

So little reliable information has been available for about five years that there is no way of gauging at present the extent of possible underground organizations, the probabilities of separatist tendencies among the several old German States, or any of the multitude of similar broad questions which will have an important bearing, if they are not decisive, on the future of Germany.

Need Russian Co-operation

The second factor—Russian fear or suspicion—was described as being simple to handle, although it is of equal or perhaps greater importance to the hope of permanent peace in Europe. The United States Government's view was said to be that, for the immediate future at least and for the long run probably, complete and wholehearted Russian co-operation was the absolute essential, and accordingly there would be no presentation of an Anglo-American agreement which the Russians might by the widest stretch of the imagination interpret as pressure on them.

Marmora IODE Delays Adopting Second Ship

MARMORA, Sept. 16 —(ENS) — The Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. met at the home of Mrs. William Dickson.

Mrs. A. M. Jones read a letter received from the lieutenant in command of the ship recently adopted by the Chapter, saying that the ship had been returned to the Royal Navy and the crew dispersed. The matter of adopting another ship is being held in abeyance. Each member handed in a nursery bag. Fifty dollars is being donated to the Marmora war workers and service women's personal comfort bags were filled after the business meeting.

Minister Discusses Citizenship at W.I.

MARMORA, Sept. 16 —(ENS) — The home of Mrs. Ethel Gray, open for the September meeting of Marora Women's Institute.

The roll call was "A Noted Canadian Woman and Her Work" and arrangements were made to start the winter dances. It was decided to apply to the Red Shield for twelve ditty bags. The address of the evening on "Citizenship" was delivered by Rev. E. M. Cadigan who pointed out that a new world could be built upon the Bill of Rights and the Ten Commandments.

In the absence of Mrs. E. Belanger the duties of pianist were taken by Mrs. L. R. Rundle. The program consisted of a song by Mrs. P. Gray and a quiz contest conducted by Mrs. E. C. Prentice.

Thieves Raid Garage Steal Wheels, Tires

HAVELOCK, Sept. 16 — (ENS) — Thieves broke the lock on the Scott Bakery garage early Thursday morning and stole two wheels complete with tires from the delivery van. One was the spare wheel and the other was taken off the van.

A long line of clothes at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Scott, three lots east of the bakery, which contained the week's wash was stripped of everything on it. It is a pully line and makes considerable noise so it is thought the thieves used other means than operating the pulley to reach the clothes. Police are investigating.

Lauds Lancasters

LONDON, Sept. 16 — (CP Reuter) — The R.A.F.'s famed Lancaster bomber may prove the salvation of British prestige in civil aviation for the first year or so after the war, said the Daily Mail today in an article by its air correspondent, Colin Bednall. The article said: "tests av shown that the Lancaster can be converted readily into an air transport of surprisingly high value. . . ."

Labor Leader Prompts C.C.F.

TORONTO, Sept. 16 — (CP) — Leslie Morris, Ontario leader of the Labor-Progressive party, said in a statement last night that C.C.F. leader E. B. Jolliffe "completely evaded the natural solution of Ontario's crisis, which is a coalition government of labor with the Liberals" in his radio speech Wednesday night.

The statement suggested that the 34 C.C.F. members, the 15 Liberal members and the two Labor-Progressive members join forces in the 90-seat legislature to defeat Premier Drew's 38-member Progressive Conservative members and then to combine forces in every riding in the ensuing election.

"A big campaign is blowing up in the Ontario trade unions with their 200,000 members for the purpose of getting the C.C.F. and the Liberals to agree to this coalition," said the statement. "Mr. Jolliffe cannot long evade this central question of coalition on which the future of Ontario depends."

Charge Germans In San Marino

ROME, Sept. 16 —(AP) — Allied headquarters formally charged today that the Germans were using the neutral republic of San Marino, wedged within Eastern Italy, for supplies, gun areas and motor transport.

Text of the headquarters statement said in part:

A San Marino delegate to the Vatican has stated that to ensure that their neutrality is understood by all, San Marino has placed large notices "neutral territory" and hung out the Red Cross and their national flag at all entrances in the republic.

In spite of this precaution, motor transport convoys and 88-mm guns in position in gun pits just inside the frontier have been picked up by 8th Army reconnaissance photographs.

Our own counter-battery organization reports German guns are firing from inside the San Marino frontiers. Enemy deserters who have recently passed through the republic said they had seen 150-mm guns north of the town and anti-tank guns in position in the northeast corner of the country.

Need 47,000 Men

TORONTO, Sept. 16 — (CP) — J. O. Goodman, general manger of the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario, said in an address to the Ontario Division of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League here last night that post-war employment in the trucking industry would be available for 47,000 workers.

United Church Praises Health Bill

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 16 — (CP) — The 10-day meeting of the 11th general council of the United Church of Canada came to a close here last night with the adoption of a number of resolutions commending the Ontario and Federal Governments.

Council also decided that henceforth the board of foreign missions will be known as the board of overseas missions. Religious observance by Canada and Newfoundland and the closing of all liquor outlets on the day the war ends was recommended.

The meeting praised the Ontario Government for its "willingness to take responsibility in the field of religious education" and urged that representatives of the Christian church share in carrying out the program for schools of the province.

The board of colleges and secondary schools was instructed to initiate a campaign for recruiting candidates for the ministry from the armed forces and to province for educational courses of special character to be made available to them after the war.

Council commended the Federal Government for drafting the national health bill, approved of the Dominion's program of physical fitness and requested that directors of temperance educations as well as directors of vocational, physical, nutritional education and mental health be appointed so "that education against the use of intoxicating drink may become an actual rather than an implied objective of this program."

By a majority of five a motion was passed that dominion and provincial government heads should meet as soon as possible "in the best interests of the dominion."

Another endorse motion suggested that ministers meet with and address local labor unions and that representatives of labor be invited to address local congregations, church boards and presbytery gatherings.

Still Confident

LONDON, Sept. 16—(CP). —"Germany will not capitulate Germany cannot be conquered," Propaganda Minister Goebbels has assured the Japanese people in a broadcast interview with the correspondent of the newspaper Mainichi. The Nazis are coming up with 'tremendous new weapons,' Goebbels told the Japanese reporter and promised that Germany would fight on with "new divisions" raised by total mobilization.

TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR TAXES

COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH

TO WIT:

BY VIRTUE OF A WARRANT made under the hand of the Warden and Seal of the County of Peterborough and to me directed bearing date the 8th Day of June in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-four, I am commanded under the authority of the Statutes in that behalf, to levy on the land hereinafter mentioned and described for the arrears of taxes due thereon with the costs as hereinafter directed by the said Act. Therefore I give notice that unless the said arrears and costs are sooner paid I will proceed to Sell by Public Auction at the Court House in the City of Peterborough, on the Third Day of October, 1944, at the hour of Ten o'clock (D.S.T.) in the Forenoon, the said Lands or so much thereof as may be necessary for the Taxes and all lawful charges incurred, in and about such Sales, and the collection of the Taxes.

A List of the Lands for Sale for Arrears of Taxes will be published in The Ontario Gazette on Saturday, July 1st, 1944. Copies of the List of Lands for Sale may be had in my Office.

Paratroops Take Three Points Behind Germans In Holland

UNRRA COUNCIL SESSIONS BEGIN IN MONTREAL—Second session of the council of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration opened at Montreal's Windsor Hotel on the afternoon of September 16. The first session was a day late because gales which lashed the Atlantic coast delayed the special UNRRA train which brought 300 delegates and personnel to Canada from Washington. Hon. Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the council, opened the session and Mayor Adhemar Raymond welcomed the guests to Canada's largest city.

UNRRA Aid for 100 Millions

MONTREAL, Sept. 18—(CP).—Herbert H. Lehman, Director-General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said in a report to the second session of the council today that progress in completing arrangements to aid liberated areas has not been as speedy as conditions make necessary. UNRRA was organized in November, 1943, and Mr. Lehman said that in normal times it might have congratulated itself on what had been achieved.

"But these are times of great stress and urgency and we must face the fact that we must do more and do it more speedily," he continued.

Delegates attending the 44-nation meeting which opened on Saturday said the rapid progress of Allied armies in Europe has brought close the time when UNRRA must step in to assist in the care of more than 100,000,000 persons who have suffered due to war.

A Huge Task.

Mr. Lehman said the supplying and assisting in the administration of relief and rehabilitation operations requires, among other things, the adequate and speedy provision of funds and supplies by the supplying governments, the co-operation of the member governments in making available capable personnel, the furnishing by recipient governments of adequate information on their needs and the close co-operation with military authorities having the initial responsibilities in providing relief.

Canadians Enter Boulogne Port Expected To Fall Soon

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 18 —(CP Cable) — Canadian shock troops broke through the perimeter defences of the great French port of Boulogne today and ferried themselves across the harbor and Liane River from the north, capturing hundreds of prisoners.

The infantry now is moving towards defence positions to the south of Boulogne, which lies on the Channel 20 miles southwest of Calais and 140 miles northwest of Paris.

The heavily-bombed defence system in the long by-passed key port is being carved into isolated pockets which may no longer have communication links.

Canadian infantry and tanks still are fighting and mopping up positions in the strong defence belt on Mont Lambert, east of the port, and the defence line that runs northeast of that anchor to the captured suburb of Wimereux.

Wimereux, on the coast about two miles north of Boulogne's outskirts, was captured last night in the all-out offensive which began yesterday morning.

Long Siege

Boulogne, under siege since Sept. 5, was hammered for four hours by a great force of R.A.F. heavy Lancaster and Halifax bombers before the ground assault was launched.

Boulogne's formidable perimeter of fortified, mined and wired hilltop emplacements was torn open by Ontario assault troops who then worked their way through the streets of the major part of the town to the dock area and the river which runs to the south.

Maritime troops fighting atop Mont Lambert with armored support have penetrated the perimeter at several points and now are wiping out islands of resistance.

The defence system of Boulogne is becoming more disorganized every hour following the heavy R.A.F. assault yesterday and German coastal troops manning key positions in the system are fighting only until the Canadians reach them.

The coordinated attack by bomber command which gave the Canadians tremendous assistance in their assault on Boulogne appears to have been one of the most successful tactical operations ever carried out by the heavy Lancasters and Halifaxes.

Bombing Effective

Thousands of tons of bombs were poured with complete accuracy among the hill fortresses around the town and on the Germans' key hill position of Mont Lambert. None of the bombs fell beyond their narrow specified boundaries and when the ground assault went forward yesterday morning enemy troops were badly shaken and communications largely disrupted.

Assaulting infantry — some of them mounted in the armored and tracked vehicles that broke through the powerful enemy defence hinge south of Caen—were able to move right in on top of Boulogne's defences before any kind of opposition could be organized.

Meanwhile the defence belt across the hills south of Boulogne was neutralized by fresh waves of bombers flying across the narrow expanse of the Straits of Dover. Even German ack-ack batteries protecting the town were quickly smothered.

While Maritimers stormed the Mont Lambert positions Ontario troops swept around them to the right, pierced the defences and swept into the streets of Boulogne from the northeast.

French - speaking infantry and other Maritime troops simultaneously were cutting through the bomb-shattered defence line running from Mont Lambert northeast to Wimer-

8 Enemy Ships Sunk Off Greece

ROME, Sept. 18 — (AP) — An Allied naval task force, including aircraft carriers, has sunk eight enemy ships in the Aegean Sea off Greece, it was announced to-day.

Three other enemy vessels were beached after being attacked and another was damaged.

At the same time naval aircraft accompanying an escort carrier force under command of Rear Admiral Thomas Troublidge, R.N., made low-flying attacks on enemy motor transport on the Island of Crete, destroying 23 vehicles and damaging others.

The Germans earlier were reported concentrating the Crete garrison in the vicinity of the city of Khania (Canae) preparatory to evacuation to the mainland.

Five of the vessels sunk were sailing craft encountered by naval fliers off the Island of Melos, 80 miles north of Crete. The fliers also damaged a merchant ship there with near misses and gunfire.

On the same day the British cruiser Aurora bombarded Melos and scored three hits on a merchant ship, which subsequently was beached. It also sank three other small ships and caused two others to be beached.

All the Allied planes returned from the Melos and Crete attacks.

Chinese Casualties Almost 3 Millions

MONTREAL, Sept. 18— (CP).—The Chinese army suffered a total of 2,802,220 casualties from July 7, 1937 to June 30, 1944 in their fight against the Japanese, a Chinese news service release said here last night.

The Japanese at the end of May of this year, the release also said, had incurred a total of 2,144,000 casualties on the China front, besides 600,000 suffered by their garrisons, supply and transport units in the rear. The estimate does not include Japanese soldiers killed or wounded in the current Hunan campaign.

London Blackouts Again

People Loathe To Change Lighting Plans

LONDON, Sept. 18 —(CP) —Brief air raid alert plunged London and the southern counites into darkness again Sunday night as the Germans quickly responded to the lifting of blackout restrictions throughout Britain by sending a few flying bombs hurtling across the Channel.

If the Nazis hoped to mar a celebration in the capital, however, they failed in their purpose, for lifting of the blackout brought no startling change in this great city which has lived in darkness for five years.

While some outlying cities were much brighter, London was slow to react. A few dwelling lights shone bravely here and there, and in the night club belt the doors of cafes, theatres and public houses reflected unwonted brilliance. But few street lights were on and it may be days or even weeks before they are fully restored because of the lack of a master switch system.

Only faint light showed from two downstairs windows in Buckingham Palace.

In many quarters there was evidence of reluctance on the part of home owners to make any radical change in their lighting arrangements. Every home and building in the city is equipped with special heavy curtains and other precautions to prevent the least glimmer of light showing outdoors and many are not isposed to disturb these while there is danger of further alerts.

Defeat Of Huns Certain Now

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 18—(AP).—Field Marshal Montgomery told his troops yesterday that "no human endeavors" can prevent complete, utter and absolute defeat of Germany.

"The Nazi leaders have ordered the German people to defend their country to the last, and to dispute every inch of ground," he said in a broadcast as thousands of Allied troops swarmed over German borders at more than a dozen points.

"...The great mass of German people know their situation already is hopeless and they will think more clearly on this subject as we advance into their country. They have little wish to continue the struggle."

He said the Germans suffered immense losses in men and material—more than 400,000 prisoners have been taken by the Allies in the West—and added that "it is becoming problematical how much longer he can continue the struggle."

Red Armies 14 Miles From Riga

Claim Russians Driving On Salonika In Greece

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 16 — (AP). — The mounting Russian offensive in the region of Jelgava, 25 miles south-west of the Latvian capital of Riga, has smothered violent German counter-attacks marked by reckless use of large numbers of tanks and self-propelled guns, front dispatches said to-day.

(Berlin broadcasts declared the Russians had advanced to within 14 miles of Riga in a three-day offensive. The drive was aimed at crushing two German armies in Latvia and Estonia estimated at 200,000 men).

Moscow reports said the Red Army was consolidating and building up the last phase of preparations for the coming assault on every Nazi-held position on the Eastern front.

(The Soviet-sponsored Free Germany Committee, in a broadcast recorded by United States Government monitors, called up German troops in Estonia and Latvia to lay down their arms or turn them against the Nazi S.S. units who might attempt to force them to continue the battle.)

The Russian war bulletin did not mention the battle for Warsaw, where Polish and Red Army troops were last reported probing for the bridgeheads across the Vistula River from the eastern suburb of Praga.

(Gen. Bor's communique said his Patriot units in Warsaw had been receiving supplies from Soviet planes since September 13.)

Fighting Way Out.

Capture of more localities in the drive on Targu-Mures, German-Hungarian stronghold in Transylvania, was disclosed by the Soviet communique The Gurghui rail station 18 miles to the north-east fell to Red Army units. Another Soviet column was only six miles east of Targu-Mures.

(A dispatch from Bari, Italy, said German forces fighting their way from Bulgaria across Norther-eastern Yugoslavia in an attempt to flee

Repay Favors

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 18—(CP).—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Digweed were royally repaid recently for the hospitality they extended during the past three years to 14,000 airmen and tars on the Larkin Farms. The servicemen's appreciation was shown when a group of 60 recently invaded the orchards and picked 520 bushels of Italian prunes. All nine of the provinces were represented in the group.

Bombers Give Germany Fiery Scourging

LONDON, Sept. 18—(CP). — The German radio indicated a series of big new air blows were falling on Germany today from both the north and south in the wake of yesterday's spectacular airborne landings in Holland and last night's R.A.F. Mosquito attack on the big German port of Bremen, when two-ton bombs were dropped.

Late yesterday a small force of R.A.F. Lancasters attacked a German ammunition dump in Holland, not far from the scene of Allied airborne landings.

Many big fires were reported in Bremen after the Mosquito raid. The overnight operations, which also included attacks on enemy airfields, were accomplished without loss of a single R.A.F. plane. Two Nazi fighters were shot down.

Yesterday thousands of Allied aircraft hunted out the German air force and bombed flak posts, enemy barracks, gun positions and airports in a fiery scourging that preceded the landing by the great Allied airborne army.

As a result the Nazis sent up only scattered and futile opposition to the big transports carrying the flying army.

Allied Supreme Headquarters disclosed more than 4,000 sorties, exclusive of the airborne operation, were flown over the Continent yesterday with 7,500 tons of bombs dropped on the enemy.

More than 3,000 sorties were flown against targets in Holland in support of the skytroops before and after they arrived.

The entire supporting fighter and bomber operations cost only two bombers and 16 fighters, it was disclosed, while at least nine enemy fighters were destroyed.

Ontario Regiments Fight At Edge Of Lombardy Plain

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Sept. 18. —(CP Cable.)— Advances along the Adriatic sector of the British 8th Army front were registered yesterday for distances varying from a few hundred to a few thousand yards as the opposing forces engaged in continued bitter fighting for the gateway to the Lombardy Plains.

Smoke hung heavy and the noise of artillery, planes and machine-guns dinned in the air as the battle for the break-through of the eastern end of the Gothic Lines, raged. This is the fiercest conflict in which the Canadian forces and the 8th Army have been engaged so far in this theatre. There will be no spectacular advances across the Lombardy Plains until it is won.

The conflict blazing south of Rimini is a gigantic slugging match, reaching hand-to-hand proportions. In heavy artillery, mortars, machine-guns and men, the opponents are matched. The enemy has the advantage of terrain, holding the high Fortimato Hill, and opposing the Canadian salient across the Marano river on three sides. The 8th Army has the advantage in the air.

For the infantry this bitter fight has continued four days without a respite although there has been slow steady progress. The enemy is hurling an average of 40 mortar shells per 300 square feet every six to 10 minutes. Yet the infantry attacks go through.

Many Counter Jabs.

Once positions are taken, the attackers must immediately repel counter-attacks launched with tanks self-propelled artillery and strong infantry forces.

While the Canadians aiming at Fortimato Hill are in the vanguard of the 8th Army attack, others on the right, including an Ontario Highland Regiment and Ontario, Quebec and Maritime units are fighting in the area of Rimini airport. This still is partly held by the Germans, although the Canadians are along the western edge of the strip, and Greek forces are well up the coastal edge.

Resistance is lessening perceptibly on the Canadians' left flank. The enemy appears to be pivoting on Fortimato Hill, swinging inland forces back onto an east-west line drawn through this ridge and north of the airport to the sea. Enemy forces definitely are going through the little independent state of San Marino, southwest of Rimini, to accomplish this.

Savage Fight Rages For Rimini Town

British 8th Army Slowed Down In Italy Battle

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Sept. 18 — (AP). — Powerful assaults by both the British 8th and Allied 5th armies against heavily-fortified German lines in northern Italy made scant progress yesterday and fierce fighting continues to rage along a broad front, Allied headquarters announced today.

On the Adriatic Coast Canadian and Greek troops fought their way forward a few hundred yards to reach the northwestern corner of Rimini Airfield, scarcely more than two miles from the southern limits of Rimini itself.

On their left a bloody battle was being waged for the village of San Martino on Mone l'Abate and surrounding high ground dominating the airfield from the west. German parachutists, strongly supported by big Tiger tanks, fiercely contested every British attempt to gain ground.

Fighting forward against stiff opposition the 8th Army yesterday drove well forward in the inland portion of the Adriatic Corridor which with the Marano bridgehead now represents an eight-mile front.

British troops, sweeping over ridge after ridge beyond Mulazzano, captured Cerasolaand gained dominance over the Ausa Valley.

The most savage fighting continues for Mount Olivio at the southwest end of Cerasola Ridge near the frontier of the San Marino Republic.

An official report from Allied headquarters, meanwhile, gave warm praise to the Brazilian Expeditionary Force which, it was revealed yesterday, has now gone into action with the 5th Army.

"During their first day of battle the Brazilian Expeditionary Force, although it has not yet met the calibre of resistance encountered along the eastern and central 5th Army front, already has demonstrated considerable aggressive ability and has advanced more than a mile to take a town," the report said.

British and American units of the 5th doggedly hammering into the heart of the Gothic Line repulsed a number of strong German counter-attacks in the course of yesterday's fighting and inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy.

In addition to massive concrete fortifications in this area the Allies are encountering thick minefields and deep wire entanglements.

Japs Nearing Kweilin City

KUNMING, China, Sept. 18 — (AP). — Hundreds of Japanese saboteurs in civilian clothes were reliable reported today to have filtered into the key city of Kweilin. They were being rounded up and summarily shot.

Latest credible information from the eastern China front placed the Japanese regulars about 50 miles east and northeast of Kweilin, where the U.S. 14th Airforce has destroyed and virtually abandoned its strategically important bomber and fighter bases.

The enemy is making three main drives on Kweilin along and on both sides of the Hunan-Kwangsi Railway.

Ninth Chinese Warzone troops were reported striking the Japanese eastern flank in both the Lingling area and around Tachsieh. These, however, were the only Chinese offensive actions on the whole eastern front. Other Chinese troops were seeking defensive positions.

The Japanese today have only a 110-mile gap to close to achieve their objective of splitting China in half.

The gap lies between Yungming, 70 miles east of Kweilin, and Waitsap, 85 miles northwest of Canton.

Balancing this news was the Chinese high command announcement that its forces have recaptured the important Burma Road base of Lungling. The Japanese were withdrawing to near Mangshih, 13 miles southwest.

But in the other, more critical sector, a column from the left wing of the Japanese forces advancing toward Kweilin took Yumming, while other invaders knifing across the Kwantung-Kwangsi border from Canton seized Waitsap.

Under Their Noses

AYLMER, Ont., Sept. 18—(CP).—Burglars early Sunday broke into the Angus Hughes meat market here, 50 feet from the police station and carried away a 500-pound safe containing $1,500 in cash and other valuables. Entrance was gained by drilling a hole in a back door and raising a bar. An employee discovered the theft.

Canadian Fliers Tow Gliders For Air Army

By BOB FRANCIS
R.C.A.F. Public Relations Officer

AT A BRITISH AIRBORNE BASE, Sept. 18 (CP Cable)—R.C.A.F. airmen who shared in the gigantic task of landing the Allied airborne army in Holland Sunday came back from the operation to report enemy opposition was almost negligible, although a few gliders were forced down en route.

FO. Hugh Doherty of Manville, Alta., a navigator, summed up the operation by saying: "It was the quietest trip I had" and his opinion was confirmed by FO. B. J. Davidson of Assiniboia, Sask., a pilot, and FO. R. N. Bassarab, of Gleichen, Alta., a navigator.

There were many R.C.A.F. fliers among the Stirling glider-towing crews and they reported there was almost no anti-aircraft fire.

Some gliders were forced to cut loose and land in the North Sea but the vast majority successfully reached the dropping point.

Launches of the sea-air rescue service of the R.A.F. were on the job to pick up those forced down in the sea.

FO. Bob Schierer of Ponoka, Alta., a pilot who dropped his glider successfully over the designed zone, called the operation one of the best trips he has made over the continent.

Other pilots said they saw flak ships in the waters along the Netherlands coast blazing fiercely, apparently having been hit by waves of heavy and medium bombers which plastered gun positions for hours before the airborne assault began.

FO. Murray Farrell of Ripley, Ont., said Horsa gliders from this and other R.A.F. stations and the larger Hamilcar gliders towed by Halifaxes appeared to have landed successfully in the assigned areas.

EXTRA!

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS — (AP). — Additional airborne reinforcements and supplies were landed by glider in Holland to-day, it was announced officially.

LONDON—A great armada of bombers and transport planes fed supplies to-day to the Allied airborne army which invaded Holland vertically, and destroyed 27 of 60 German fighters which tried to interfere.

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (CP)—A Toronto paper said today it has learned at Queen's Park that announcement will be made this week-end of an increase to 26 ounces a month in the Ontario liquor ration. The paper said that the 26-ounce ration will become effective Oct. 1 until March 31, close of the Liquor Board's fiscal year.

Allies Rooting Out Nazis

Military Government In Germany

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(AP).—A spokesman for Gen. Eisenhower in a broadcast to the people of Western and Southwestern Germany today said an Allied military government had been set up in occupied territory of the Reich and would begin the job of destroying Nazism.

1. Allied military government is established in the theatre under my command to exercise in occupied German territory the supreme legislative, judicial and executive authority vested in me as supreme commander, Allied Expeditionary Force, and as military governor.

2. The immediate task of Allied military government during the course of military operations will be to secure the lines of communication of the Allied armies and to suppress any activities in the occupied areas of Germany which would impair the speedy conclusion of the war.

3. Simultaneously Allied military government will begin the task of destroying national socialism. It will remove from responsible posts all members of the Nazi party and of the S.S. and others who have played a leading part in the national socialist regime. This process begins immediately upon the arrival of the Allied armies in each area and the inauguration of Allied military government.

Allied Units 20 Miles Off Cologne

Fierce Battle Continues In Siegfried Line

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP)—A continuous stream of sky-borne reinforcements and supplies was reported flowing into the Netherland today and Allied Supreme Headquarters announced that the Allied 1st Airborne Army had won round No. 1 in the battle to lay open the flat lands of northern Germany for an invasion around the Siegfried Line.

The British 2nd Army plunged forward from its bridgeheads across the Schelde-Meuse Canal. Its coordinated offensive aimed at linking up with the bridgeheads established by the air army—the seventh Allied army thrown into the battle of the western front.

LONDON—The Paris radio asserted tonight that Allied airborne troops have occupied Tilburg, Nijmegen and Eiendoxen in Holland—all points at which the Germans said the troops had landed.

Spearheads of the U.S. 1st Army which had pierced the Siegfried Line south of encircled Aachen held on grimly to their positions 20 to 25 miles from the Rhine city of Cologne, turning back waves of hoarsely screaming Germans making shoulder-to-shoulder "psychological" attacks.

Twenty thousand more Germans surrendered en masse in a mid-France pocket south of the Loire.

Canadian Planes Raid Boulogne

LONDON, Sept. 18 (CP Cable)—More than 100 planes of the R.C.A.F. bomber group took part in yesterday's smashing bomber command attack on Boulogne's defences in which more than 3,500 tons of explosives were dropped.

All the Canadian aircraft returned safely.

Flt. Lt. Stan Boyle of Toronto said his plane flew so low the bomb explosions "bumped the kite around" and WO. Joey Pacey of Moncton, N.B., reported "the target area was so full of exploding bombs you couldn't see between them."

Wing Cmdr. A. C. Hull of Ottawa, commander of the Ghost squadron, said they were low enough to see the Germans putting up an artillery barrage against attacking Canadian ground troops.

"Everything was in our favor and we couldn't miss," said Sqdn. Ldr. Clyde Marshall, D.F.C., of Kingston, Ont.

Flak penetrated the flying suit of PO. John Urquhart, of Ottawa, a gunner, but it dropped harmlessly into one of his boots. Other Canadians on the raid, some of them in R.A.F. squadrons, including Flt. Sgt. Roland Desroches of Penetang, Ont.

Tommy Miller Wins President's Cup

Saturday and Sunday were days of great activity at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. During the two days the annual President vs. Vice-president's match, the Club Championship, the President's Cup winner and the Riley Cup winner were all declared. This just about clears the deck for the closing day activities which take place on Saturday, October 7. All that remains now is for the finalists of the Riley Cup Consolation to get together and arrange to play their match, and for the seniors to finish off their tournament. It is hoped that these remaining games will be played this week.

Charlie Low won the Club Championship from Fraser Dunfield, six up and four to go, after some very brilliant and some spotty 34 holes. Low played the steadier game of the two, although Lady Luck did not cast any disparaging glances his way. He gave Fraser several chances to pull up on more equal terms, but Dunfield was unable to take advantage of them. On two occasions Low chipped in approach shots for birdies, which is disconcerting to an opponent to say the least. On the thirty-second hole, with Dunfield dormie five and in a nice position for a par four and a probable tie with his opponent, Low, from a point at least 25 or 30 feet from the pin, chipped up and ran the ball into the can to win the match. It was a nice effort by the new champion.

Tommy Miller took a four and three decision from Hy Caverley to win the President's Cup, after Caverley came from behind on the first eighteen holes to finish all square in the morning round. Tommy was four up as late as the thirteenth hole, but Caverley began to play better golf and won the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth holes and they halved the eighteenth to make another eighteen holes necessary. Miller finally came through and finished off the match at the fifteenth hole in the afternoon. Hy was missing a lot of short putts, and Miller was having a lot of trouble with his chip shots, otherwise their medal scores would have been a lot better.

Stan Whiddon and Mrs. Roma Brindle won the Riley Cup by defeating Dave Price and Mrs. Ken Smylie after a close interesting match to become the holders of that trophy for the next year.

Saturday afternoon the team representing the president defeated the vice-president's gang, 40 points to 38. Had the quality of the vice-president's team remain the same all the way down the line, Mac's team would have done splendidly, because with half the returns in, he was leading by a nice margin. However, the lower half of his crowd let him down badly with the result that Girvey's gang came from behind to win.

Seventy-six golfers took part in the activities which was the biggest crowd ever to show up for such a competition. The tournament committee appreciate the fact that these men were interested enough to come out and make the day a success.

Mrs. Al Clark, won the ladies championship from Mrs. Douglas Anderson. She won it last year and was runner-up in 1942.

Cadet Officer Les Reid, home on leave from the Officer's Training Centre at Brockville, and Major Jack Green were two ex-club champions now in the armed forces who watched the club championship match between Charlie Low and Fraser Dunfield at the Kawartha Club on Sunday.

100 Farm Hands Needed for West

Rain has delayed the Western grain harvest in some areas creating an accumulation of work requiring additional help, acording to reports received by W. H. L. Mellis of Selective Service.

"Accordin to instructions I received on Saturday," Mr. Mellis said to-day, "we are asked to recruit another one hundred farm helpers from this district. We had some remaining on our list, and I am getting in touch with them, but we can take others also. Those who are in circumstances that permit them to go West on this work are asked to call at our office or telephone at once, and transportation will be quickly aranged. The harvesting has been getting behind on account of wet weather, and extra men are needed to handle it."

American Units Make Fast Gains

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. — (CP). — Swift extension of new beachheads on Angaur Island and gains against heavy Japanese opposition on adjacent Peleliu, reported last night, paced the accelerating American conquest of the strategic southern Palaus.

One army division held the northeast third of Angaur a few hours after infantrymen stormed ashore Sunday, a Pacific fleet communique reported.

Another marine division advanced approximately one third of a mile Saturday on Peleliu, six miles northeast, against stubborn Japanese resistance.

In the southwest Pacific, American forces reached all their objectives around the perimeter of Morotai Island, 375 miles south of Davao, against still-negligible Japanese opposition.

Peterboro Breeders Represented At Fair

Peterborough district breeders of Holstein and Shorthorn cattle were numerously represented at the Lindsay Fair. Stan Wood won the grand championship in the female division of Holsteins witih a two-year-old in milk. Other breeders of black and white cattle in this area were: Davis Brothers, John Manley & Sons, N. W. McConkey, D. McIntyre.

Showing in the Shorthorn classes were H. H. Dinsdale, M. J. Pimmett, John A. Bent, Omemee, and Shaw Brothers. The herd of John Gardhouse and Sons, Weston, who used to be exhibitors in Peterborough, stood out conspicuously in the awards.

UNRRA Aid

Mr. Lehman said the first session of the council approved an administrative budget of $10,000,000 for the calendar year 1944 and the balance of 1943. To July 17, a total of $7,565,650 had been received from 30 of the 44 member governments with 25, including Canada, having paid their contributions in full.

Contributions to operating expenses, on the basis of one per cent. of the national income for the year ending June 30, 1943, have been approved by Iceland, United Kingdom, United States, and Canada ($77,000,000).

Mr. Lehman said a tentative estimate had been made that from $1,800,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 would be the total amount received for operating expenses.

However, a large number of the member governments had not made arrangements to create credits for operating contributions and had not indicated the amount they would provide.

The administration desired a statement of policy from the council on the care to be given displaced persons of the United Nations territory which never has been occupied by the enemy. If it were to assume the care of a substantial portion of such persons unexpectedly large financial and administrative burdens would be incurred. But there were urgent cases, such as the Greeks and Yugoslavs in the Middle East, which required the administration's assistance.

On June 30, the UNRRA staff consisted of more than 985 persons at the headquarters office in Washington and in London, Cairo, Chungking, Algiers, Casablanca, and Geneva. Nationals of twenty countries were represented on this staff. Arrangements were sought under which staff members would enjoy privileges and immunities similar to those granted the officials of foreign governments. Tax immunities to avoid double taxation were of particular importance.

Nazis To Fight In Every City

NANCY, France, Sept. 18 (AP)—There were growing indications today that the German High Command and the Nazi Party were planning a street-by-street defense of the big cities and guerrilla warfare in Germany, such as the Soviets offered in Russia, in the hope of making Allied losses so high that something can be salvaged from the war.

The Germans have not given up a single key point without a bitter struggle if given time to prepare a defense, as witness Boulogne, Brest, Lorient, St. Nazaire, Calais and Le Havre. Each German city is expected to be twice as hard.

The reported return of Field Marshal von Rundstedt to the Western Front Command, coupled with an appeal by him for the troops to fight to the end for "the Fatherland and the Fuehrer," leads many on this front to the belief that the German High Command has decided it must sink or swim with Hitler, because the Allies are going to make no distinction between the Prussian militarst and the Nazs.

Prisoners, captured from a recently activated German division, which came to this front three weeks ago, said before they left Germany Heinrich Himmler, commander of the German Home Army, gave their officers a pep talk urging them to fight to the last.

The Franco-American 7th Army from the Mediterranean threw the Germans out of Lure, 17 miles due west of Belfort in the gap leading to the Upper Rhine frontier of Germany, and were slugging their way north of Pont de Roide toward Montebiard down the last 15 miles to Belfort from the south. The Paris radio said without confirmation that the 7th Army had entered Belfort, 30 miles from the Rhine.

South of Switzerland, the 7th Army drove northeast 11 miles from captured Modane at the entrance to the Mount Cenis tunnel into Italy, and reached Lansle-Bourg, less than five miles from the Italian border.

There was no mention in today's communique or in early front dispatches of progress in the 1st Canadian Army's all-out assault upon Boulogne where some 4,000 Germans are believed holding out.

The attack was launched yesterday following an R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. bombing in which more than 3,500 tons of explosives were dropped within four hours. Last night the Canadians were reported still advancing through the great Channel port's defences.

Near the Belgian-Netherlands border other Canadian units deepened their bridgehead across the Leopold Canal—270-foot, double-channel obstacle, the crossing of which had entailed some of the fiercest and most difficult fighting for Lt.-Gen. Crerar's troops since D-Day — as they took Eecloo and fanned around the town, 15 miles east of Brugge (Bruges).

Polish units of the 1st Canadian Army presumably continued to probe into the Netherlands which they entered Saturday near Hulst, 15 miles west of Antwerp.

Canadian forces Saturday also took strongpoints about Dunkerque in their drive to clean up the Channel ports. Calais also is under siege.

Announcing only that the airborne landings in Holland were "going well," Gen. Eisenhower kept a security blackout on this latest blow, a blow which might break the back of German resistance strained by the piling up demands on many fronts.

But the Germans said unbroken streams of Allied sky trains were carrying reinforcements and supplies into the original landings made by Lt.-Gen. Brereton's winged striking force.

"One of the greatest airborne operations in military history," as it was described by Brereton, was said by the Germans to be centred at Nijmegen, only about three miles from the Netherland-German border and 12 miles northwest of Kleve where the Siegfried Line glorified by Hitler is reported to end.

Other landings were reported by the enemy radio at Arnhem, 10 miles north of Nijmegen, where a bridgehead would have been established across the famous water barrier of the Netherlands—the Waal river and the Neder Ryn (Rhine).

While these reported landings apparently were designed to secure the crossing of these barriers to open the way to a crashing offensive into northern industrial Germany —the Germans said yet other landings were made to the west at Tilburg and Eindhoven. There the sky-dropped troops would be only 10 to 15 miles beyond British troops stabbing across the border just south of both towns.

3 U.S. Ships Sink In Atlantic Storm

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(AP).—The United States Navy announced last night the loss of a destroyer and two small coastguard vessels in last week's Atlantic hurricane with a heavy loss of lives on the destroyer.

The vessels were the 1,850-ton destroyer Warrington, with a complement of 230 men, and the coastguard vessels Jackson and Gedloe, both 125-foot patrol boats.

Some survivors, including the destroyer's commanding officer, Commander Samuel Frank Quarles of Nathalie, Va., have been picked up by rescue craft.

The Navy gave no information on the location of the sinkings or of the exact time they occurred.

The two coastguard craft had normal complements of about 35 men each.

Man Charged Shooting Dog

A charge against Vincent Dunford of Douro Township of unlawfully shooting a dog belonging to Thomas E. Curvin in June last was heard in Police Court this morning before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

At the outset of the case John A. Bradshaw, who appeared for the accused, said that the defence was willing to admit Dunford had shot and killed Curvin's dog, but claimed legal justification for the act.

Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure testified that Dunford had admitted shooting the dog. The witness said that near where the dead dog had been found there were footmarks of what the witness said was a smaller dog near what appeared to be a woodchuck's hole in the ground. Constable McClure said that he found two .303 shell casings near the scene. He told the court that Dunford had said that the dogs had been running deer, but witness testified that he had found no signs of deer in the surrounding bush, on the east shore of Clear Lake.

Thomas E. Curvin said that the dead dog was half collie and half hound, and was "the best dog I ever had." The witness said that he did not think there were any deer in that particular section because the ground was very rough and the scene was close to several summer cottages.

The case is proceeding.

Mrs. J. Laurent was allowed to go on suspended sentence in Police Court after she had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of stealing several pieces of meat, a pound of butter, and a bottle of cream from Loblaw's.

The woman had no previous record, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., pointed out, remarking that in several similar cases suspended sentence had been granted.

She was allowed to go on probation for two years on payment of $12 court costs.

Percy Moore, manager of the store, said the woman had hidden the articles in her handbag and had got by the checking counter in that manner. She was apprehended when she was about to leave the store.

Pte. R. Tully Wounded Fighting In France

Pte Ralph M. K. Tully, who is overseas for the second time, has been wounded while fighting with the 3rd Division in France. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Tully, Port Hope Highway.

Enlisting in 1939, he went overseas in December of the same year with the Royal Canadian Regiment and was returned to Canada in May, 1940, being under age. Pte. Tully re-enlisted when he was old enough and returned overseas in July, 1941, and since that time has been serving with the Glengarry Highlanders.

A brother, Tpr. Sam Tully, stationed at Ottawa, returned from overseas at the end of June.

Plans To Reduce Jap Nation Completed At Conference

By FRANK FLAHERTY—Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Sept. 18—(CP).—Orders incidental to vast new war developments in the Pacific are sifting out to the fighting fronts, war factories and governmental offices today as Quebec settles down to normal after its second history-making visit from Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

Their 11th wartime meeting and second at Quebec ended Saturday in complete agreement on plans for the wind-up of the European war, the adjustment of certain military and quasi-military questions in Europe after the end of hostilities and finally the unloosing of a giant combined offensive on the Japanese in the Far East.

As Mr. Churchill put it at the press conference which brought the meeting to a close, that "greedy and barbarous nation," Japan, will learn in due course what was decided at Quebec in 1944 just as the Germans learned what was decided here in 1943.

In guarded statements to the corps of some 150 newspaper and radio representatives who covered the meeting from the outside and got little really concrete information, the two leaders made it clear that:

1. Plans for the reduction of Japan's strength were made.

2. The date for the next big operation is not yet set and depends on the time when the Nazi power makes unconditional surrender.

3. The war against Japan will not be a private fight by the United States forces but a combined assault by all the forces—land, sea and air—of the United States and the British Commonwealth.

4. Canada has been assigned an important role in the Pacific war; Mr. Roosevelt said American and Canadian forces will fight side by side across the Pacific.

3 Separate Commands

5. No unified super-command for the Pacific is contemplated for the area is too big and the present three separate commands under Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten in Southeast Asia, Gen. MacArthur in the South Pacific and Admiral Nimitz in the Central Pacific will continue.

The two leaders declared they had reached complete unanimity on their plans in a shorter space of time than at any previous conference. These plans, Mr. Roosevelt said, stretch as far into the future as it is possible to project them when world events are unfolding rapidly.

In a remark taken to have been directed to possible differences of view between the western Allies and Russia on post-war questions, Mr Churchill declared there was no reason to despair of the future.

The British Prime Minister, obviously pleased with the results of the conference and with the trend of the war, said he could not pretend to be in a humble frame of mind and he turned on Japan the same wit and invective he was accustomed to hurl at Hitler and the Germans during the dark months of German triumphs and Britain's back-to-the-wall fight.

Britain to Be In

From all this and from the fact that Mr. Churchill stated it was at his insistence the conference was called correspondents deduced that one of his prime purposes was to make sure that Britain was in at the finish of Japan — and with large forces.

When he was telling of what he called "the only difference" that arose at the conference, a difference as to who would do what, he said that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had come in and claimed a share for Canada.

Wartime secrecy hides the movements of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill since their appearance Saturday before reporters on the sun-bathed terrace of the Citadel overlooking the St. Lawrence River Saturday. They received honorary degrees from McGill University at a unique special convocation, talked to reporters for an hour, and then went "off-the-record" until their respective arrivals at Washington and in Britain.

Nazis Burning Villages Across Finland

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 18 —(AP) — A formal Finnish declaration of war against Germany appeared imminent to-day as Finnish fury mounted against German troops who wantonly burned villages and farms as they withdrew from northern Finland.

The Finnish cabinet met last night in Helsinki, where the press asserted flatly a state of war already exists with Germany, and there were strong indications action could be expected momentarfly. A declaration of war against Germany is one of the demands Russia is said to h[ave] made upon Finland as the price [of] peace with the Soviet Union.

Two Finnish brigades and Russian troops are fighting the Germans in Northern Finland, where the Nazi-set fires blazed. Finnish advices said. Villages and farms were reported left aflame by withdrawing Germans in the Suomussalmi district and at Kussamo, south of the Arctic circle near the Russian frontier.

Soviet Demand.

Meanwhile the Russians were said to be demanding the right to occupy the northern half of Finland.

Gunnar Mullern, first Swedish correspondent to return to Stockholm since the Russian terms were carried to Helsinki, said the Russians wanted air bases in northern and central Finland and along the western coast for the duration, and were asking for most of the islands in the Finnish gulf.

A report that two Nazi destroy[ers] fired on a Finnish passenger plane flying over the Gulf of Bothnia from Helsinki to Stockholm was interpreted here as an indication that Germans were attempting to blockade Finland.

A Moscow dispatch said Premier Hantti Hackzell, chief of the Finnish armistice delegation who was taken seriously ill in the Russian capital, had rallied but that his condition still was grave.

Rotary Gives $800 To Health Centre

A donation of $800 from the Peterborough Rotary Club to the Memorial Health Centre fund was voted unanimously at to-day's Rotary luncheon.

President Gordon S. Matthews introduced the matter in calling attention to the drive, pointing out that service clubs were being asked to make contributions.

A resolution moved by Rotarians Ross L. Dobbin and Art Cauley that the Rotary Club vote $800 toward the project was passed without a contrary vote.

Hunstville Man New Chief A Port Hope

PORT HOPE, Sept. 18—(ENS)—Port Hope's third Chief of Police this year, W. C. Carson, takes office around September 20, it was anounced by William Austin, chairman of the Police Committee. He succeeds Chief David Collins, who resigned last month after being in office since July. Chief Collins stated that sickness in his family made it necessary to resign and return to Toronto. Chief Collins succeeded Chief Gordon Hardy, who resigned after a difference of opinion with the Police Committee, the Chief at that time alleging there was "too much interference" with duties by the powers that be. Hardy built up an enviable deputation for efficiency while in office, cleaning up on several gangs who had been causing trouble in Port Hope and establishing an excellent reputation as a police officer. He is at present employed in the Police Department of General Motors, in Oshawa.

Chief Carson served on the Huntsville force for ten years, coming to that centre from York Township Police where he was a sergeant. Prior to coming to Canada he was in the Irish Constabulary. The new chief is said to be an expert in fingerprint work. Early in 1940 he was responsible for the capture at Huntsville of Hans Kempt, escaped German prisoner.

Chief Carson, his wife and their two children Ray and Molly, will move to Port Hope on October 1.

Apples On Market Sell At 35-45 Cents

Red apples and green watermelons contrasted delightfully at the farmers' market Saturday morning, and were selling rapidly. Watermelons started at 10 cents each, and as the size increased the prices advanced up to as high at $1.50 each. Apples held more steadily, with Wealthies selling at 40 cents a 6 quart basket, St. Lawrence at 45, Pippins at 35, Alexandra at 35, and crabapples at 35 also.

Eggs ranged the standard prices from 28 cents a dozen to 45 cents, depending, of course, upon size. Chickens of the year old species, were sold at 30 cents a pound, while others ranged from 28 to 35 cents, climaxed by tender roasted fowl at 60 cents.

Only one basket of grapes was seen in the later hours of the market, with the choice blue fruit selling at 50 cents a basket. Elderberries were featured at one stand, selling rapidly at 15 cents a quart box.

Butter beans sold at 10 cents a box, silver-skin pickling onions went at 25 cents a box, red peppers at 3 for 5 cents. Squash at 20 and 25 cents each, and cabbage at 10 cents a head.

Cauliflower vanished at 15 cents each, green tomatoes at 25 cents a basket, and ripe red tomatoes were to be had for 25 cents a 6 quart basket, or 40 cents for the 11 quart size. Cucumbers were at 50 cents a half bushel, and potatoes held firm at 25 cents a basket, or 40 cents a peck. Corn was 25 cents a dozen, and tiny gherkins were 45 cents a basket.

D. Moore Dies In Crash Near Lindsay

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 18 — Of the 35,000 people who attended the Lindsay Central Exhibition on Saturday only one traffic accident is reported and it took the life of Dan Moore, a well known lumberman from New Liskeard, formerly a resident of Lindsay and district. Five others were admitted to the Ross Memorial Hospital here, one being seriously injured.

The accident took place on Highway No 7 a few miles west of Lindsay when cars driven by Mrs. Mark of R. R. No. 3 Sunderland and Clarence Simms of Cameron, also in this district collided.

The headon collision said to have occurred when a blinding cloud of smoke formed a barrage across the highway, where a farmer was burning a quantity of clover.

Mr. Moore, who had been visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. McArthur at Grass hill was riding with his sister, Mrs. Mark, of Sunderland. Other passengers included Thomas and Vernice Mark, two young children, as well as Mrs. McArthur. They were also injured, Mrs, Mark, driver of the car being badly injured. The Simms car contained Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner of Kent Street, East Lindsay, who were badly shaken up Coroner Logan and Dr. Arnold were in attendance.

Boy Carrying Gun Gets Further Remand

COBOURG, Sept. 18.—(ENS). — Charged with unlawful possession of a firearm, a Montreal juvenile appeared before Judge J. C. M. German in juvenile court Saturday and was given a further remand in order ahat Chief W. J. Carey could complete his investigation.

The lad was picked up last week by Constable E. Houghton after the constable had been informed that the boy was carrying a revolver. It turned out to be a long-barrelled 38 revolver, similar to a target model.

The boy stated in court that he had bought it from an unknown man in Montreal for five dollars. Mr. A. Finnie of the local Children's Aid stated that the accused was a ward of a Quebec training school. As Chief Carey was still waiting for word from Montreal as to the identification of the serial number on the gun, the boy was remanded again.

St. James Church Has Thanksgiving Service

ROSENEATH, Sept. 18—(ENS).—Harvest thanksgiving services were held in St. James' Anglican Church on Sunday at 9 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The rector Rev. J. W. Lennox, was in charge. The text of Mr. Lennox's morning address was "The eyes of all wait upon Thee; and Thou givest them their meat in due season." That only as we possess a full knowledge that God is a God of the open hand will come a realization of our great debt to Him, and surely He Who brings the seed to full fruition can be trusted to care for his people, were the central thoughts of this address.

"Thanksgiving" was the subject of Mr. Lennox's evening address. The choir of Christ Church, Campbellford, was in attendance, and sang two anthems, "Great is the Lord" and "Let Every Heart Rejoice." The church was decorated with the season's flowers and fruit.

500 Veterans Reach Halifax

HALIFAX, Sept. 18 (CP)—After running through last week's Atlantic hurricane without damage, the Canadian hospital ship Lady Nelson brought home Saturday 500 veterans of the land and air fighting in Europe, most of them survivors of the Battle of France.

Many of the invalided fighting men were veterans of the D-Day landings and the bloody battling around Caen that paved the way for the winning of the Battle of France, but there was also a sprinkling of RCAF fliers who had been pummelling the Nazis before and after the invasion.

On the way into Halifax they had been buffeted in a 12-hour bout with the hurricane that did heavy damage along the Atlantic seaboard, but the experience did little to dim their happiness at the sight of Canada.

Major Connie Smythe, former manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, was among the wounded soldiers returning.

Fighting Is Described

Stories of the D-Day and later fighting were told by the returning soldiers. Nineteen-year-old Pte. Alex Doan of Niagara Falls, Ont., said his regiment, the Canadian Scottish, was pinned to the French beach for more than a half-hour on invasion day by German mortar fire.

Overrunning the first German positions, the unit stormed along the road to Caen. A day before his mates entered the city Doan was wounded in the stomach by mortar shrapnel.

Fanatical fighting by German storm troopers opposing the Canadian march on Caen was described by Sgt. Henry Wilson of Montreal, member of the Glengarry Highlanders. "They don't seem to care whether they live or not," he said.

Wounded in Italy

Another victim of the fighting in Italy was Pte. T. E. Jewett of Toronto, member of the 48th Highlanders, who was wounded last New Year's Eve near Ortona. A high explosive shell gave him shrapnel wounds in the leg.

Sgt.-Maj. J. R. Power of Quebec City, nephew of Air Minister C. G. Power, was aboard the hospital ship after three years and 10 months as an instructor in England. He was injured in a motorcycle accident while on training exercises.

Inflated Wages

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 18 — (CP). — Secondary school boys here who worked with the maintenance of way forces on local railroads all summer are continuing their labor on Saturdays. The wage of 66 cents an hour with 99 cents an hour overtime is very attractive to the boys.

There's something about a GS Soldier—that everyone should know!

AND this is it: Every man of the Canadian Army who volunteers for overseas service wears a distinctive badge on the left sleeve of his uniform.

This badge is a small, round, black patch with the letters GS (meaning, General Service) in red.

Yes, it's a small badge, but it's a badge of honour and of courage. The man who wears this badge is a brave man who has volunteered to fight for his country on any front.

Whenever you see a Canadian soldier with the GS badge on his arm, honour him as a real fighting man . . . a soldier who believes in carrying the war to the enemy.

The Canadian Army needs more men NOW . . . men like this who are ready and willing to wear this badge of honour.

Patriotism And Conscience

Mr. Justice Hope handed down an interesting judgement at Osgoode Hall on Tuesday last; the case was an action brought by a citizen of Hamilton against the Hamilton Board of Education, because his children had been expelled from school when they refused to sing the National Anthem and salute the flag; the judge gave his decision that the Hamilton Board of Education was justified in its action.

Beyond any doubt Mr. Justice Hope knows the law as it touches these observances thoroughly, and based his decision upon his knowledge. But is the law not too pernickety in this matter? The father of the two boys who were expelled in Hamilton belongs to the sect of Jehovah's Witnesses, and he instructed his sons that singing the National Anthem and saluting the flag were actions from which they must refrain; he did this at the dictates of his conscience, following the precepts of his faith. We do not understand the peculiar beliefs of the Jehovah's Witness sect, but we believe that they regard singing 'God Save The King' and saluting the flag as militaristic and idolatrous actions.

If that is their belief, why force them to act contrary to it? There is no likelilihood that their fanatical sect will ever gain a large following in Canada; its beliefs are suited only to a small section of the population. But if their belief is sincere should they not be allowed to keep it, without violation? There are a score of Christian sects in Canada, many of which are wealthy and powerful, and they all disagree on points of belief; why should the right to dissent which they enjoy be denied to a small and comparatively poor sect?

The use of force or coercion in patriotic observance is distasteful to free people; Hitler forced the youth of his country to swallow a vast amount of pungent patriotism, but he did not create a great nation by doing so. 'God Save The King' is a prayer; may not those be silent who do not wish to pray? Saluting the flag is a symbolic action; why force it on those to whom symbols and idols are one?

• • •

In a recent address the Most Rev. C. A. Seager, the Anglican Archbishop of Huron, said that "the young people of today have lost — they never had — a passion for their country", and he urged that such a passion be fostered in them. But a passion for one's country cannot be fashioned by force, and to refuse two boys education because they will not act contrary to their conscientious belief is a bare-faced and ugly show of force. Are we going to allow it to pass unnoticed?

Heath Robinson Is Dead

Heath Robinson was one of the great comic artists of his period. He specialized in drawing wonderful and ingenious machines, designed to achieve unusual results, and incorporating in their make-up such articles as bellows, fire-tongs and yards and yards of string. During the war years he published a design for a hedge-hopping airplane, equipped with boxing-gloves for close combat; another of his inventions was a bellows-like cannon, designed to shoot clouds of propaganda leaflets over the siegfried Line. And in another picture he showed Winston Churchill, disguised as a furnace-man, working a machine in the cellar of Hitler's house which was drawing the Fuehrer down through the floor. Robinson was sometimes compared with that other inventor of strange machines, Rube Goldberg; he was far more ingenious than Goldberg, and greatly his superior as an artist.

Although he was known chiefly for his comic drawings, Heath Robinson was a very fine illustrator in line and in water-colour. He produced particularly fine editions of the works of Rabelais, Don Quixoté, Walter de la Mare's Peacock Pie, and several plays of Shakespeare. He designed and decorated the Knickerbocker Bar and the Children's Room on the Empress of Britain, now at the bottom of the sea.

Robinson was a man of particularly happy genius, for he was able to interpret his fantasies through a precise and perfect technique. Although his work was delicate it was never namby-pamby, and although his humour was restrained it was always fresh and pleasing. He lived a quiet and happy life, and the world is richer for his being.

The Tax On Gifts

Canadians who have friends or relatives in Great Britain will not be pleased by the information that in future gifts sent to Britain which are describable as 'luxuries' will be subject to the British purchase tax, which in some instances is as high at 100 per cent. of the value of the gift. What is more, the sender cannot pay this tax; it must be paid by the recipient of the gift. As the definition of 'luxury' is broad, and as certain types of clothing are so described, it is now hard for Canadians to send gifts to friends abroad who may need them badly.

It is this sort of regulation which makes us feel that Dr. Samuel Johnson was just when, in his great Dictionary, he inserted this definition of Excise: "A hateful tax levied upon commodities, and adjudged not by the common judges of property, but by wretches hired by those to whom the excise is paid".

Competition In Beastliness

Discussion about the post-war treatment of Germany rages everywhere these days, and recently the widely-read Montreal paper, La Patrie, said: "It is essential that the victors act as victors while respecting the human dignity of the vanquished". Commenting on this, the Port Arthur News-Chronicle writes indignantly:

> "That is to say the human dignity of a people who have massacred helpless people by the thousands, made millions their slaves, and even in the past few weeks have murdered captured Canadian soldiers and practiced the most revolting of atrocities upon people in those parts of France which are now being liberated. What human dignity is there among them that should be respected?"

Now it is true that the Germans have shown the most callous disregard of human dignity and in doing so they have shown that they are lacking in that attribute themselves. But we of the United Nations possess national dignity; indeed, our democratic system of government is founded on the belief that human dignity is sacred. Does the Port Arthur paper suggest that we should behave toward the Germans as they have behaved toward our Allies and our own countrymen? If so, we disagree strongly.

To ask our armed forces to copy German beastliness in any degree would be to degrade our own men and bring lasting shame upon ourselves. We are not Germans, and we cannot easily stoop to German behaviour. If we force ourselves to stoop so low we shall not rise again for a generation.

By all means let Germany be treated with great severity. But there is a gulf between the severity of a disciplined force and a riot of cruelty and torture. The advance of civilization depends on conquerors showing themselves more enlightened than the people they conquer. Let us give Germany justice; that will be quite bad enough. It would be a terrible mistake to drop to the German level of inhumanity.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Ottawa once again permits the fortification of native wines. And when, may we ask, is it going to let up on the pump-handle?

A headline reads, "Milk Supply Increased By Rain". We feel that this could have been more tactfully expressed.

A correspondent, writing from Italy, is shocked by the destitution which has afflicted that country. Our thoughts fly at once to the Tower of Pisa, which has known nothing but lean days.

It is predicted that after the war dining cars will be designed on the lines of night-clubs. As the Whig-Standard of Kingston remarks, this will be a blow to those who hoped to see postwar night-clubs designed like roomy, airy, well-lit diners.

The President of the Canadian Medical Association, Dr. Harris McPhedran, says that if the State takes complete control of health services we shall get poor medical care, and pay more for it than we do now, because we shall have to support an army of bureaucrats to make the scheme work. In effect, let's keep politics out of the pills.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE management of grass land farming is a very important feature of our agriculture and this is a good time of year to discuss it. The condition of a grass field when it goes into winter will have an important effect on what it will yield next spring. A grass pasture will yield more income when it is able to face a long grazing period and when it can make a rapid recovery from heavy grazing or cutting. It should be seeded to grasses that will give it a fairly long life, as even if it is to be broken, it is well to leave a good sod to turn in. The first necessity is that land should be rich in fertility when it is seeded to grass. The idea of "resting" worn out soil by sowing it to grass is long since played out, just like the land was.

A field for grass should be strong in plant food, and when you purpose "seeding down" the nurse crop should be well fertilized so as to leave a good residue of phosphate to nourish the grass to follow and if you are taking off a heavy crop of hay, or grazing a field heavily give it a little added fertilizer as it will pay well to do so.

We frequently seed a field to grass with so many weeds in it, that we follow the practice of cutting the first crop for hay. The weeds should be cleaned out and the first crop grazed, and if weeds apear run the mover over it. If you graze the first crop the cattle will consolidate the ground by walking over it and the droppings will add further fertility. When the cattle are taken off a field to let the grass get a breathing spell, always run the harrow over it to spread the manure pads. This is a highly important feature of grass land management that we are prone to neglect. A clean harrow is best for this, but any harrow is very much better than none. You'll be surprised how much this will help.

There are a good many views as to how early cattle should be turned on to pastures. If you have a permanent pasture, down for some years, it is a good plan to turn young cattle, or even those to be fattened on grass, as soon as they can get a bite though it should be a small one, and it is rather surprising how well cattle will do on very short early grass of this kind.

A PASTURE on which you are going to carry dairy cows, or beef cattle into July, is another matter, and if it is a newly seeded field there are other features to consider. You must not only consider your cattle, but the produce of the field. No single scheme will answer all purposes so it is the eye of the master that must settle some of them. On a newly seeded pasture cattle should not be turned on until the grass has made good growth and is anchored by strong growing roots. Hard grazing too early is apt to weaken the plants of your grass and so prevent the crop getting well set.

If you want an early bite, and it is often a good plan, save a field in the autumn. Take the cattle off it early so a good covering of grass will leave a matt through which the early sprouts will penetrate, and the beast will get some new fresh grass with the old stuff, and the results will be satisfactory. This is the time therefore to make your plans for next year so you can treat your fields in advance for another season.

WE frequently fail to get it into our heads that "grass is a crop." It is often considered as something we have to give a place to on our farms, but how often do we give it "pride of place." The land under grass can be made the most profitable on our farm if it is given the attention and management it should have. There is no better "back-log" a farmer can have than a mow full of good hay, and when the beasts are finding their own feed in a pasture, "cutting" it on their own labour and getting the sustaining results of fodder in its highest form we are in a good way to get along.

I read an article in a Farm Journal, the other day, which contained the following highly important paragraph: "The skill of a farmer, it is said, can be judged by the condition of his arable land. A far better guide to my mind is to examine his grass fields, for grassland management is infinitely more tricky than growing cereal or root crops." This is quite a sensible observation and until we fully realize the important value of grazing and hay crops, we will fall short of what we might do with land. I shall return to this subject again.

THE question of beef or milk, or some of each is a live issue in Cattle Societies at the present time. It has become strong enough to divide evenly, at a recent meeting, the oldest breed society for cattle in the world, Coate's Shorthorn Herd Book Society. It was published in 1822, so has gone on for more than a century. Most of the English breeders still adhere to the claim that cows should furnish both milk and beef, while in Scotland in 1837, Amos Cruickhank established the Sittyton herd and bred shorthorn cattle for beef. Now there is a movement on foot to divide the Herd Book into Beef Shorthorns and "Dairy Shorthorns," and at this meeting referred to, a vote taken resulted in a tie.

It will be interesting to await results. I would be inclined to the belief that breeders of Dairy Shorthorns in Britain outnumber that of Beef Shorthorns, but so many non-pedigree Dairy Shorthorns are bred in England that I would not be at all certain.

TWO years ago a Hampshire ram lamb was let by public auction at Weyhill, in England, for the astonishing price of 650 guineas, which multiplied by 4½ will give you the number of dollars. These extremely high prices for sires in livestock breeding astonish some people and often cause comment that is quite foolish. If you are in the high class breeding of pure bred farm animals the paying of an extremely high price for a sire is often your very best move. The man who got this Hampshire ram lamb two years ago has recently, at the same Weyhill auction, let a son of his for 740 guineas which looks quite like paying the bill. One breeder can only send 12 lambs to this sale, and Mr. E. Clifton-Brown, the owner of the 740 guinea lamb, let or sold his 12 for a total of 1473 pounds. It will be noted that the top-priced one brought over half the money. That is quite a usual thing as men who really know beasts well understand why one sire may be worth more than the added value of a good few others.

DRY weather and floods in spots took some toll from Ontario's crop this year but the weather always claims a share. The tobacco growers suffered a good deal but that is often true of any single crop venture. When it is good, it is very good, but when a hurricane hits it's awful. Farming is always a speculation, but the man who talked, many years ago, about the danger of putting all your eggs in one basket, must have let his drop or allowed a pig to get at it. The best crop insurance you can have is a crop in another field that will make up a loss at least in part.

MELANCHOLY DAYS ARE COME!

A Triumph And An Example

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

SHORTLY after the outbreak of this war a truly bilingual active service regiment was formed in this province. Two regiments, the French-speaking Les Fusiliers de Sherbrooke and the English-speaking Sherbrooke Regiment co-operated in the formation of the 27th Regiment (Sherbrooke Fusiliers).

During the years that followed, the Sherbrooke Fusiliers underwent strenuous training in the British Isles, in preparation for the day when they would be put to the test against the enemy. They have now shown how well that co-operative training was carried out. The Sherbrooke Fusiliers moved into France through the Normandy beachhead and fought the first tank battle for the Allies on French soil. They brought the first Canadian tanks into Caen. They spearheaded the push of the First Canadian Army down the Caen-Falaise highway. Theirs were the first tanks of the Allies to break into Falaise. They fought in the battle of the Trun Gap and played an effective part in the slaughter of the German Seventh Army. Except for an occasional day's rest, they have never been out of action since the invasion began.

The Sherbrooke Fusiliers have not only been early and late in the fight, but they have triumphed over the best of Hitler's panzer divisions. Their present score, which comprises some 115 Nazi tanks permanently knocked out of the war, is believed to be higher than that of any other armored regiment serving in France.

But if the Fusiliers have brought credit to Sherbrooke, that city has had its part in forming the spirit of the Fusiliers. For the City of Sherbrooke has found a way of applying a sensible and effective goodwill to the business of daily living. This is the city, with an English-speaking population of only about twenty per cent, which yet expresses its tolerance by adhering to the admirable old custom (which once prevailed in Montreal) of alternately electing French-speaking and English-speaking mayors.

Those who are sceptical about the "bonne entente" would do well to study the record of the Sherbrooke Fusiliers. No one can deny what they have achieved, nor how they have achieved it. They have done more than outfight their enemies abroad: they have set an example for the nation at home.

Dewey Re-writes the Platform

(BY BRUCE HUTCHISON)

WHILE the Republican party admittedly failed at its last convention to lay down a clear or consistent policy in foreign affairs, its candidate, Mr. Dewey, is moving rapidly to repair this damage. From his utterances of the last few weeks it is possible now to see a positive and detailed Republican policy emerging, and it does not much resemble the Chicago platform.

Evidently after long thought and consultation with competent advisers, Mr. Dewey has developed his own platform to include the following main principles:

(1) The United States must enter a new league of nations which must be truly representative of all peace-loving states and must not be dominated by a few great powers. The Titan theory of a power-balance, maintained by the Big Three, is suicidal for the world's peace.

(2) The covenant of the new league must be divorced from the immediate post-war settlement. The settlement itself must be enforced by the victors in closest collaboration. "This responsibility to keep Germany and Japan disarmed," says Mr. Dewey, "should be shared with liberated peoples, but it cannot immediately be delegated to a world-wide organization while such organization is yet new and untried."

(3) The maintenance of peace must have force behind it. "Force is essential in any realist program for the permanent maintenance of peace. But in the long-term solution of international problems, peace and security cannot be left to the sanction of force alone. To leave them exclusively in the hands of a permanent military alliance of four victorious powers would be immoral. It would be a denial of the ideals for which we are fighting.... We are fighting for our own freedom and to establish once and for all the rights of people everywhere to live in peace and freedom, safeguarded from the coercion of more powerful nations.... We must not sink into the abyss of power politics. We must rise to a new high level of co-operation and joint effort among respected and sovereign nations to work for and to preserve the peace of the world through all the years to come, based on freedom, equality and justice."

(4) Maintenance of future peace means an economic reorganization of the world, and it will be impossible without the removal of trade barriers and the maximum possible movement of goods throughout the world.

THIS statement from Mr. Dewey if, of course, a direct repudiation of the high-tariff policy enforced by his party throughout the inter-war period with results disastrous to the United States and the whole world. It is also a repudiation of the party's recent platform declaration in favor of continued protection. But the platform also included a demand for greater world trade, and Mr. Dewey insisted from the beginning that the latter was the governing clause in the trade plank. He has elaborated that clause in his subsequent public statements.

Most of Mr. Dewey's utterances on foreign affairs have been made in the company of and apparently under the tutelage of Mr. John Foster Dulles, the eminent lawyer who, though a Republican, has always been a vigorous fighter for the League of Nations. It is believed that in the event of Mr. Dewey's election Mr. Dulles would become secretary of state.

Since Mr. Dulles has explained Republican policy to newspaper correspondents in the presence of Mr. Dewey and with his approval, Mr. Dulles' statements can be taken as reflecting the mind of the Republican candidate. They represent the widest measure of international collaboration both on the political and economic levels.

MR. Dewey's political views, as here stated above, are buttressed by the strongest support for the integration of the world's economy. To this end Mr. Dulles has advanced, with Mr. Dewey's approval, the interesting proposal that the whole Ruhr industrial area of Germany, the economic heart of Europe, should be internationalized and administered by a commission responsible to the new world organization, so that its output of industrial goods would be available to every part of the continent, and its machines could never be used to re-arm Germany.

Mr. Dewey's economic views are further represented by his statement that Europe is a fire-trap which has twice started a world conflagration in a single generation and that one of the chief reasons for its instability is its economic division. "High on the list of those causes (of war) is the fact that Europe consists of 350 millions of people divided into twenty-six watertight compartments," Mr. Dewey said. "Not one of these is self-sufficient. One of our prime objectives must be to build for a better opportunity for economic expansion and find the markets between the European countries."

While all these views agree in general with the policy of the Roosevelt administration, Mr. Dulles says it is not desirable to prevent the discussion of these larger questions during the campaign. The quadrennial election debate, he says, is the nation's great democratic educational process, and it should be used not to suppress discussion of foreign policy but to crystallize the people's views in favor of the best policy.

The 'Liquor Interests'

Parsons who in conference denounce the enormities of the "liquor interests" are sometimes amusing to less naive people. One has discovered that the said interests subscribe to the election funds of both political parties in Canada and urges "nationalization" of the trade. We haven't observed that either Liberal or Conservative governments in Canada have ever shown partiality toward the liquor people; and what an anti-rum uproar there would be if any of our governments took over the manufacture of the awful stuff!

The wartime regulations seem to have had an astonishingly good effect in keeping down drunkenness; the only complaint seems to be that there is not enough alcohol to go rou[nd] number who desire it and who had the to pay for it despite very high prices.

Some temperance enthusiasts seem to ing in a past age.—Ottawa Journal.

A Bible Message

And, behold, there came a man named Jairus, and he was a ruler of the synagogue: and he fell down at Jesus' feet, and besought him that he would come into his house: for he had one only daughter, about twelve years of age, and she lay dying. But as he went the people thronged him. ....While he yet spake, there cometh one from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to him, Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Master.

But when Jesus heard it, he answered him, saying, Fear not: believe only, and she shall be made whole. And when he came into the house, he suffered no man to go in, save Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden.

And all wept, and bewailed her: but he said, Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead.

And he put them all out, and took her by the hand, and called, saying, Maid, arise. And her spirit came again, and she arose straightaway: and he commanded to give her meat. (Luke 8: 41, 42, 49-55.)

Here is a simple, easy way to get relief from the agony of swollen, rheumatic joints and muscular aches and pains. Go to Tamblyn's and get a bottle of Ru-Ma. If you are not pleased with the help it gives you—go get your money back. This is a generous offer you can not afford to ignore.—(Advt.)

CANADIANS IN ACTION AGAINST GOTHIC LINE—These pictures were taken on the Italian front as Allied armies launched their attack against the German-built Gothic Line guarding Northern Italy. After weeks of preparation during which Canadian infantry was rested up, re-outfitted and moved secretly to new sectors the assault was opened and here are Canadians as they move forward against stiff Hun resistance in what may be the last big campaign in the Italian theatre. At Left two Maritimers, Pte. P. Saulnier of Nimico, N.B., and Pte. L. L. Little of Bartlett's Mills, N.B., stand guard in a slit trench while their company moves up. A short lull in the fighting gave Cpl. L. Charette of Edmundston, N.B. (Centre), this opportunity to grab a little sleep in the bottom of his slit trench, and at Right L.-Cpl. J. A. Weston, Fairfields, N.B., mans a Bren machine gun and lays down a cone of fire in a foxhole on the banks of the River Foglia. This is the kind of fighting that Canadians have mastered in Italy—short jumps from slit trench to slit trench while armored units crush enemy strong points to permit advance of the infantry.

W.I. to Pack Boxes Early In October

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 18—(ENS) of even the smallest things that —"How beautiful are the memories others have done for us" was the motto read by Mrs. F. Wight at the September meeting of the Women's Institute held recently at the home of Mrs. J. Scott. Community activities and relief, topic for the month, was stressed when the roll call was answered by members donating an article of wearing apparel for refugees. Correspondence included a letter of appreciation for cigaretes received from Elton Hubble, one of the first boys from this community to join the Armed Forces. Final plans were made for a short course in quilts and quilting to be held in the Warwork Rooms on September 26 and 27, and plans also were made in regard to packing the overseas Christmas boxes early in October.

It was unanimously decided not to sponsor a girls' club this year, and also to send cigarettes overseas every month instead of every second month.

Current events for the month was in charge of Mrs. T. Brown, who conducted a jumbled letter contest pertaining to important names and places connected with the war, and this was won by Mrs. Earl Greenly. Mrs. M. Wannamaker as convener for the following program: A reading by Mrs. R. Scott, a contest by Mrs. E. Little, won by Mrs. R Scott, and a reading by Mrs. R. Colby. Lunch was served by the hostesses Mrs. George Brooks, Mrs R. Scott, and Mrs. J. Scott.

St. Paul's New Rector To Preach October 8

MARMORA, Sept. 18—(ENS).—There will be no service at St. Paul's next Sunday owing to the fact that W. J. Cottrell, diocesan lay reader, who has been in charge of the parish since July 1, is taking the services in the Bancroft Mission in the absence on holiday of Rev. W. L. Simmons, the rector of that parish.

The Sunday school, however, will be held at 10 a.m. Rev. John M. Brownlee, the new rector, will mark his first Sunday in the parish October 8, with harvest thanksgiving services at St. Paul's and at St. Mark's, Bonarlaw. The morning service at St. Paul's that day will be a choral celebration of Holy Communion. In the intervening Sunday, October 1, the regular morning service will be taken by the lay reader.

CWAC Sergeant Stationed In Normandy

Two years of service overseas were climaxed recently for Sgt. Irene Vivash, when she landed on the beaches in France, the first Peterborough girl in the C.W.A.C. to be posted in the battle area. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vivash, 526 Rogers street.

"We landed right on the beaches where our boys had gone in and we had to wade ashore from our boats, just as they did. It was a real thrill to know that we are part of everything that is going on here.

A letter written from France, August 20, told her parents a little about the expedition. Sgt. Vivash wrote that many of the girls worked all night packing and cleaning up, and left in the early hours of the morning. They marched to the train wearing full pack, and watched the men on the staff take off ahead of them.

"It was a marvellous crossing, calm as could be and we anchored off the coast of France about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. All day we passed ship after ship, all sizes, and it was an amazing sight. Trucks met the boat and we drove along a road through villages where houses were marked with the scars of battle, until we finally arrived at our destination.

"We are very comfortable in big tens, which hold 10 girls. After we put up our camp beds and little canvas chairs, we were issued canvas water pails and wash basins, also blankets. They even gave us three pairs of clean sheets, imagine, so we are well looked after in this army.

"The girls are camped in an old orchard with a pretty woods, filled with flowers behind it. We work in slacks, high brown boots, battle blouses and berets, and at a distance, it is pretty hard to tell a C.W.A.C. from a soldier. On rainy days we have high rubber boots and how we need them. The mud in France is all anyone ever said it was.

"We hear enemy guns every now and then and it is nice to feel that I am really able to help. I can understand so much better what it is like for the boys. I admire every last one of them, and I wish you could see how much they respect Canadian women. They put us apart from all others and are so manly when we are around."

One of the biggest treats since her arrival in France, was a swim, Sgt. Vivash declared. They have no baths there and they were given the afternoon off, so headed for the beaches. Although rather cold, the army girls found it exhilarating.

Formerly employed at the Western Clock Company, Sgt. Vivash enlisted three years ago and went overseas in November, 1942. During the time she was stationed in England, she was attached to a Headquarters staff in London.

Pastor Talks To Women's Society

COTTESLOE, Sept. 18—(ENS)—The September meeting of the W. M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. John Gallagher with a record attendance. Rev Mr. Pugsley gave a talk along the lines of the study book taken by Mrs John Gallagher. He also sang a solo and introduced some of the new hymns from the hymnary.

Mrs. Joseph Gallagher had charge of the program "West of the Date Line." Three members gave an outline of the mission posts and Mrs. Rose Mathews read "As Recently at 1941," while Mrs. Gallagher read "You Can Find It Wherever a Child is Scared or Hungry."

Mrs. Gallagher served lunch.

The next meeting will be at Mrs Joseph Galagher's. Announcement was made of the sectional rally to be held at Norwood on November 5

English Defeat Scots In Exhibition Tilt

A cavalcade of the soccer stars of the past three decaded passed in review at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon when the old guard of local English and Scottish players battled for the honor of their own particular brand of football and in aid of the Norwegian Relief Fund.

England won the argument, 5 to 4, but the Scots declare that they outscored the winners and achieved a moral victory.

In a sense they are right. The margin of the English win was a goal shot by the Scottish eleven into their own net.

The surprising feature of the game was the quality of football dished out by the veterans. Shortness of breath, waist-line bay windows and faltering legs were inescapable evidence of the march of time, but the oldsters ignored those handicaps in the thrill of having a ball at their feet once more and performed prodigies in a tight struggle that was anybody's game until the final whistle. It was the first soccer battle for local teams in four years, and for many of the players it was much longer than that since they had played. Under the circumstances the pace kept up by the teams was remarkable.

The big crowd got a thrill out of seeing the favorites of yesteryear out on the green sward once more.

For the English team Jack Wade at centre forward showed much of his old time skill and dash, Henry Turner, hero of many a hard-fought battle, demonstrated cleverness and resource, Frank Dyer, Tommy Monk, Art Pagett and other old-timers proved that the passing of the years had not robbed them of their former skill. Bill Rankin shot a pair of goals worthy of his peak year, Ben McMaster took his rocket shot into the game in the second half, and bulleted two goals, and the Downers, Wag. Hotston and Company all contributed their bit. The English eleven had a parade of goalies, featuring Sam Calladine, Charlie Griffin and Dick Evans, with Frank Dyer playing between the posts in the second half.

The Scots, who got a psychological jump on their opponents by being played on to the field by shrilling pipes, had plenty of stars tno with Alex. Burgess at outside right leading the scorers with three smart goals. Bill Rickard played well in goal until he had to retire with injuries. Dave Grant turned in a fine game at back and the veterans Tom Kay and Bob Ralston also performed well defensively. Tom McPhate, Young, Hutton and other forwards carried a lot of the play and were always dangerous.

Early in the game the Scots put on the pressure and the veteran Sam Calladine was called upon to make a number of clever stops to hold them off the score sheet. Finally, however, their persistence was rewarded when faulty clearing by the English team gave Alex. Burgess an opening and the right-winger made no mistake with a long accurate shot that beat Calladine cleanly.

England Takes Lead

The English team, with reinforcements entering into the game, fought back after that reverse and succeeded in taking the lead before the rest period. Bill Rankin evened the count when he rocketed a penalty shot past Rickard, and the same player put England ahead soon after when he left-footed another hot drive into the net to make the half-time score England 2, Scotland 1.

With Ben McMasters and the three Downers helping to carry the pace the English team took command of the game early in the second half and kept roaring in. Ben McMasters drilled a goal early in the period to put England up 3 to 1.

Alex Mitchell scored for Scotland soon after to close the gap but the English struck hard and the Scottish net had several close calls before the Scots finally scored on themselves. Munro in attempting to clear a rebound from a hard shot by McMasters kicking the ball into his own net.

That made it 4 to 2, and McMasters soon after ran the count to 5 to 2 when a neat pass by Jack Wade put him in the clear and he went in close to make no mistake.

The English team found the net shortly after on a shot by George Downer, but the goal was disallowed.

The hard-driving Scots, down three goals, refused to fold up. They fought back and for balance of the game had England back on the defensive most of the time. With any luck around the net they might have pulled the game out of the fire. As it was Alex Burgess rattled in two nice goals, with McPhate assisting, and the losers were only one down when the whistle sounded.

Here was the starting lineup with the names of as many subs as could be picked up:

England—Goal, Calladine; backs, Chambers and Watkins; halves, Turner, G. Clark, Yelland; forards, Monk, Dyer, Wade, Rankin, Boom subs, C. Griffin Evans, Pagett, Hotston, A. Downer, G. Downer, N. Downer, V. Griffin, McMasters, Murduff, Roberts, Conway.

Trainer—Jack Hodson.

Scotland—Goal, Rickard; backs, Grant, Kay; halves, Terrace, Craig, Best; forwards, Burgess, Hutton, R. Young, Chalmers, McPhate; subs, Beggs, W. Young, Ralston, Munro, McKenzie, Miller, Hardie, Anderson, Mitchell.

Referee—J. Perry.

SPORTS - Day by Day

It's Stratford Kroehlers or Peterborough Westclox for the Ontario women's intermediate softball championship. The Stratford girls won the right to represent Western Ontario in the final round Saturday when they won at home over the Brantford Plowettes 4 to 1 and thus took the series in two straight games. Kroehlers will be here on Saturday to meet the Big Bens in the first game of the final series and the second and if necessary the third will be played in the Classic City a week from Saturday. The Kroehlers have asked that Saturday's game here should start at 2 o'clock so that it will be over to allow them plenty of time to catch the afternoon train for home. They are coming down to Peterborugh Friday night to be in good shape for the crucial battle on Saturday. Although stories from Stratford say the Kroehlers are not as strong as a year ago Westclox are preparing for a tough series. They feel that any team with class enough to clean up in Western Ontario must have more than a set of uniforms and so they are readying themselves for a hectic struggle. The game Saturday will be the outstanding feature of the softball season and should attract a record crowd to Riverside Park.

Speaking of girls' softball Scribes Rose of the Brantford Expositor and Browne of the St. Catharines Standard have been having a little argument about scoring. The Brantford writer complains that the St. Catharines sports editor in scoring the Brantford-St. Catharines girls' game had scored it exactly as if it were a boys' game and Scribe Browne comes back with the statement that there was no reason why he shouldn't. He argued that hits were hits and errors were errors, no matter who made them and that girls must not expect any preferential treatment from the official scorer. We are in through agreement with the St. Kitts sports writer. There is no reason in the world why a girls' game should be scored differently from a battle between two teams composed of the sterner sex. If the girls miss flies or grounders and toss the ball around wildly they must expect to be chalked up with errors, so far as this column is concerned. Otherwise box scores would be merely a collection of meaningless figures failing completely in the object for which such scores were intended, namely the giving of a statistical picture of what each player did at bat and in the field during the ball game.

Kitchener Interested

Peterborough's drive to establish a Memorial Health Centre here, launched today, is attracting a lot of attention throughout the country. Thus we find Rex McInnes, sports commentator fo the Kitchener Record, drawing attention to the need of a similar centre in that city writing as follows: "What brought the thing to mind again is information from Peterborough that a health centre is being planned and pushed in that town. The Centre would include a swimming pool, softball diamond, baseball diamond, soccer field, lacrosse field and artificial ice arena and the cost is estimated at $275,000. The city of Peterborough is donating $75,000 to the project, local industries will be good for $100,000 and the other $100,000 is to be raised through public subscription. Peterborough isn't as large a city as Kitchener and yet they have plans advanced to a point where the business is ready for financing. A plan much similar to the Peterborough idea could be just as easily put over here. The city should go for $100,000 and there are enough large industries in the town, headed by sports-minded men, to match the city's investment."

* * * * * *

"For a Centre such as was talked of here, the citizens would only be asked to gather $50,000," continues the Kitchener writer. "It may be found in this district that a better plan is to collect what can be raised by subscription first and then go to the city and industrialists for the balance. The point of the whole business is that other centres are making definite progress on auditoriums, and Kitchener and Waterloo, considered the best breeding place for hockey players in Ontario, is standing still. The war isn't going to last more than another year and by that time everything should be in readiness to put up an auditorium. That requires a terrific amount of work and salesmanship and it won't be done within three years unless everybody gets down to business and pushes the project. A public meeting to review the whole situation and keep what has been started in motion looks like the best bet."

Bovs of the Old Brigade

Thanks to the fighting spirit of the old guard of soccer players in Peterborough the English-Scottish game at Riverside Park Saturday in aid of the Norwegian Relief Fund was a brilliant success. The fact that the official score showed the English team as a 5 to 4 winner was merely incidental. What really counted was the willingness of veteran players, many of them out of action for years, to get out and battle at their favorite sport once again. Bob Ralston who played a lot of the game at back for the Scots was a shining example of this indomitable spirit. Twenty-one years ago Ralston broke his leg in a game at the Oval when he collided with Jack Wade and he had never appeared on a football field since until he marched out there Saturday. And by an interesting coincidence he found himself called on frequently to check the same Jack Wade with whom he had collided away back in 1923. Art Pagett, with many football laurels to his credit before he came to Canada many years ago was another of the old guard to make his contribution to the success of the day and there were many more in the lineup of both teams. So much interest was aroused in the game that Canadian-born soccer players are feeling the urge and they may challenge the English team to a battle.

Two second division clubs dropped depth charges on top of the championship hopes of the New York Yanks and the Boston Red Sox over the week-end. The Philadelphia A's took three in a row from the Yanks, dropping the McCarthyites to third place while the Senators cleaned up on the series with the Red Sox, practically destroying their hopes. The American League race has everybody on their feet. At the end of Saturday afternoon's games there was a three-cornered tie for first place between the Yanks, Detroit Tigers and St. Louis. The Brownies climbed out in front a few hours later by grabbing off the night game from the White Sox. But Sunday afternoon saw St. Louis slip off the top shelf again when the best they could do was split a double-header with Chicago while the Tigers without having to call on either Hal Newhouser or Dizzy Trout were winning twice from the Cleveland Indians to grab off the leadership.

Frank Jobbitt W. Brady Win At Golf

Closing day at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club found the Divot Diggers out in force in another valiant attempt to subdue Old Man Par. Many did manage to keep their heads down long enough to tack together their best scores in many a day. Russel Kitchen was happy to see W. Brady play his best game of the year because Russ had drawn Bill's name in a sweep and carried home a very generous prize. J. H. Vernor drew Ctan Creery whose ticket was held or Heck Thompson. Strange as it may seem all the low nets and all the prizes went to members of the Westclox Fraternity: — an investigation is promised at once.

In the regular weekly sweeps, all prizes were awarded for best net scores:— in the first flight, F. Jobbitt romped home first with a net 67, Bob Abbott, Joe Watson, C. S. Cummer, H. Bradburn being content to split up the second money between them, all tied with net 68s.

In the second flight, W. Brady scored 93-30 net 63 for first prize and a promise that his handicap will be promptly cut. The same goes for Stan. McBride and B. McCreery both wtih net 64's. These players have banged away all season hoping to bring home the bacon but up until Saturday afternoon they have been left holding the bag.

Finish In Tie.

The Tombstone Trophy an annual event was a feature of Saturday's program. This tournament is a handicap event wherein a player uses the total number of strokes arrived at by adding his handicap to par. He plays the first eighteen holes and if he has any strokes left keeps on playing over the second eighteen until all his strokes are exhausted. This week end found Stan McBride with 5 strokes left to play and Bill Brady 6. Both these player stied in the cup on the first hole, McBride holing out in 5, Brady in 6. This tie will have to be broken before the winner of this event can be named.

At 6:30, the dinner bell rang, breaking up a very fine quartet, which when it is rumoured were practicing for the Millbrook Fair. Maybe its just as well it broke up. An appetizing dinner was served by Mrs. Devall and her assistants. It soon disappeared despite the efforts of Jim Wharry and sundry tenors, aided and abetted by Stan Northrop to give diners nervous indigestion.

Award Trophies.

The President, Stan Payne welcomed a number of guests to the club and then called the gathering to order, thanking the various committees for assisting him in the operation of the club. He then called upon Andy Rutter as chairman of the Match and Handicap Committee to present the prizes for this year's tournaments. Mr. Rutter requested

St. Kitts Beats Brampton Team

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 18.— St. Catharines Athletics took a strangle hold on the O.L.A. semi-finals here on Saturday night, defeating Brampton Excelsiors, 19-12, in the second game of a best-in-five series. The series shifts to the Rose Bowl in Brampton on Monday, where Saints can enter the Provincial finals against Mimico by a third successive win.

Saturday's game was 50 minutes late starting, as the Brampton team tried to come via Burlington's canal bridge, which is closed for repairs, and swing back via Hamilton. Their tardiness irked 1,100 Garden City fans.

Brampton Excelsiors—Goal, Chambers; defence, Arthurs and Puckering; rover, Sheppard; centre, Brunskill; wings, Graham and Madgett; subs, Thompson, Crawford, Ferri, Scherzel, McLean, Ingram, White.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP) — Overseas sports roundup:

In the Swim:

The Allied swimming championships in Rome were held about a month ago but the results just reached this dept....The Allied 5th Army zone team, composed mainly of Japanese-Hawaiians and led by Halo Hirose and Charlie Oda, won the meet in which contestants included British, American, French, French-Morroccan, Palestinian and Yugoslav-Partisan soldiers.—Climax of the three-day meet was a water polo "exhibition" between the North African champion soldier team and a team of Yugoslavs who had been pulled out of the front lines by Marshal Tito...Stars and Stripes reported: "and won by six goals to three, three torn headdresses and a couple of strangled screams."

Pacific Playboys—:

From the Southwest Pacific, Cpl. Dick Case, who used to write mostly about trotting horses, turns his attention to boxing to report: "I have seen some truly great Fijian boxers. The good fighters are tops and all are great show men. They want to go to the States after the war."

Football From France:

Cpl. Doug Gary, who is busy punting Nazis out of France, takes time out for this request...Could you give me some idea how football stacks up this year?...We are playing another game over here, but it should be over by Thanksgiving and as football closes, we should close too."...How about a Berlin Bowl game, Doug?

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Stubby Overmire and Ruffe Gentry, Tigers — Overmire hurled a three-hit shutout for eight innings of opener as Tigers won 7-2; Gentry had an eight-inning no-hitter, yielding two safeties in 9th as Bengals blanked Indians in nightcap 3-0.

Joe Kuhel, Senators— Batted in four runs with single and double as Nats defeated Red Sox 7-6.

Hank Wyse and Andy Pafko, Cubs —Wyse bested Max Lanier of Cards in 2-1 victory in opener; Pakfo's two-run homer won nightcap for Cubs by same score.

Farley Cards 70 At Scarboro

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — Almost 350 golfers toured Scarboro' golf course yesterday, with the entire proceeds, estimated in the neighborhood of $900, going to the Canadian Red Cross.

The perfect weather conditions and the excellent playing condition of the 71 par layout made it a grand day all around.

The Neons of Vancouver, B.C., advanced the first step yesterday in the women's division of the International softball tournament at Cleveland by handing a 4-1 defeat to the T.N.T. girls team of Rochester, N.Y.

The National pro football circuit got under way yesterday with three games. Philadelphia handed Detroit a 27-7 lacing; Green Bay Packers outscored Brooklyn 14-7 and Chicago Bears measured New York 20-10.

The favored Equifox was beaten by a neck by Night Shadow, four-year-old filly, in the $13,300 autumn handicap at Hawthorne, Chicago, Saturday.

At Detroit Fair Grounds Saturday, 15,569 fans saws T. C. Melrose's Restless come up from seventh place to cop the $15,000 Eclipse handicap by a head from the favored Seven Hearts.

Emphis turned back Nashville 4-2 yesterday in 10 innings to assume a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series of the Southern Association final baseball playoffs.

Smythe Home

Maj. Conny Smythe, M.C., back from the war as a stretcher case, said Saturday at Halifax the question of whethe he will accept the presidency of the National Hockey League depends on a lot of things — not the least of which is his recovery from a shrapnel wound. The former firebrand manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, who took a light anti-aircraft battery overseas almost two years ago, came back to Canada aboard the hospital ship Lady Nelson. He was on his back from a shrapnel wound along his spine that temporarily paralyzed him.

Ted Atkinson, Toronto jockey, booted home five consecutive winners at Aqueduct Saturday, following wins in the last two races Friday. He now has a record of 202 victories for the season, compared with 200 last year.

Paul Vineyard accounted for three winners on the closing card of grand circuit racing at the Trenton, N.J., fair Saturday when he drove Singapore to the fore in two straight heats of the 2:23 trot, sent Chuck Signal to victory in three heats of the 2:12 trot and piloted Milt Hanover to capture the 2:18 trot. Vineyard was second in only one of nine heats.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Tigers set a new major league mark four years ago today by punching out at least one home run in their 15th straight game. The previous record was held jointly by the Tigers of 1936 and the New York Giants of 1935. The streak was halted at 16 by Cleveland two days later. Hank Greenberg hit for the circuit in 12 of the 16 games.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — (CP). — Football hadn't even made its formal appearance when puckdom upped and stole the sports limelight away. Yes, hockey is right around the corner and that corner is a lot nearer than the one prosperity used to be around. Meanwhile Les Canadiens and supporters wonder if they'll be "La" again this year, what with the N.H.L. ruling depleting them considerably of gilt-edged stock.

Down Halifax way Leo Dandurand turns up with word that there will be a second eight-club puck loop after the war. Leo might have implied a lot which he added that the core of the new league would be in Montreal. Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle suggests perhaps Canucks plan to skip out of the N.H.L. or perhaps, says he, 'tis kite flown across skies so darkened by their colleagues' "unbrotherly act."

Surprise came to Cornwall enthusiasts when erstwhile wrestling promoter Lex Cook anounced he will have a senior hockey team in competition this winter, with Coach Lex himself as sponsor. Cook said he's had a couple of invitations—one from the Ottawa City Loop and the other from the Montreal City and District League. The latter is regarded favorably by Cornwall's Mat Mahatma because of travelling facilities.

Stout fella, Stella:

Fleet-footed Stella Walsh, Polish Olympic star who hails from Cleveland, gave track and field fans in Port Colborne something to talk about for some time to come. The Laurel A.C. gals invited Stella there to show her wares at a sports day.

Miss Walasiewicz — as she is known to her closest friends—added to her cluster of records by speeding over the 80-metre trail in 9.6 seconds. That clipped two-tenths of a second off her own world mark set at Warsaw in 1935, and chopped almost three seconds from the Canadian record made by Alda Wilson in Hamilton a dozen years ago.

But the 34-year-old athlete — 'tain't fair to tell a lady's age—failed to shatter her own 220-yards mark in the other invitation.

Soprt-pourri:

That little chunk of dynamite, Josey Richman (gridiron flash, basketball star, tennis ace, track champ and what have you), appears headed to Hamilton Wildcats for the coming grid season. 'Cats still remember the tough time they had topping Lachine R.C.A.F. in the Eastern finals last year with the little P.T.I. as the Airmen's spearhead....Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon suggests George Hay for an N.H.L. referee's berth this season....Lucknow's Chinese trio, the Chin Brothers, are slated for a tryout with the N.H.L.'s Leafs at Owen Sound....And "Bep" Guidolin is boosting a few home-town (Timmins) boys to Boss Art Ross.

Toronto Loses In 11 Innings

(By The Associated Press)

Newark Bears loom again as the team to beat in the International League Governors' Cup playoffs.

The Bears are now two games up on Toronto in their semi-final series, as they racked up a 3-2 11-inning decision yesterday at the expense of Leaf ace Al Jarlett. Jarlett, who had singled home the tally that sent the Leafs ahead 2-1 in the seventh, walked two to start the 11th. Bill Rabe then decided things with a clean base hit.

Phil Page, who came in to pitch the 10th, was returned the winner. Frank Hiller started and was succeeded by Don Johnson in the eighth. Jarlett went all the way for the Leafs.

Buffalo started its series with Baltimore by scoring an upset over the pennant winners, 9-4, before a playoff record crowd of 25,562. After reaching Red Embree, top pitcher in the league, for four runs in the first three innings the Bisons staged a five-run rally in the eighth to break a 4-4 tie.

Tigers Holding Top Spot Win Twin Bill

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

If baseball history repeats, the Detroit Tigers, who surged into first place yesterday, should win the American League pennant this year. The present scramble is following the pattern of the closing days of the furious races of 1908 and 1940. On each occasion three teams came roaring down the stretch neck and neck with only two games separating them. On each occasion the Tigers finished first.

Not to be overlooked is the important fact Detroit jumped to the top on Sunday by beating Cleveland twice without having to use their pair of aces, Paul (Dizzy) Trout and Hal Newhouser. It was Stubby Overmire and Rufe Gentry, a couple of in-and-outers, who turned in a pair of brilliant pitching performances, as the Tigers won 7-2 and 3-0. Overmire hurled eight scoreless innings in the opener, giving up only three hits until the ninth. Gentry had a no-hitter for eight innings in the night-cap, yielding a pair of safe blows in the final frame.

After momentarily staving off the onrushing Tigers by winning the opener from Chicago White Sox 5-1 with the help of Vern Stephens' 19th homer, the Browns lost their hold on first place by dropping the second game 8-2.

Yankees Jolted

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics dealt the Yankees a severe jolt by winning a double-header from the McCarthymen, 5-4 and 2-1. The double defeat dropped the Yankees into third place, two games behind the Tigers. A former Yankee, Larry Rosenthal, gained sweet revenge when he hit a pinch-hit homer with one on in the ninth to win the opener for the A.'s.

The Red Sox dropped a costly decision, in losing to Washington 7-6, with Joe Kuhel driving in four of the Nats' runs, three with a base-clearing double in a big six-run second inning.

Chicago Cubs delayed St. Louis Cardinals' pennant-clinching by taking both games by 2-1 scores. Andy Pafko's two-run homer in the seventh won the nightcap for Claude Passeau after Hank Wyse won the opener from Max Lanier.

Pittsburgh and Cincinnati divided their twin-bill, Rip Sewell winning his 18th for the Pirates 7-1 in the opener, and the Reds taking the night-cap 2-1 in 10 innings.

Philadelphia made it four straight over New York Giants winning 7-0 and 5-4, as Bill Lee hurled a two-hit shutout in the opener. Brooklyn and Boston split, Jim Tobin blanking the Dodgers 3-0 for his 17th in the opener and the Dodgers winning 3-2 in the nightcap.

Galt Terriers Defeat Windsor In Senior Ball

By The Canadian Press

No less than 16 errors, 10 of 'em by the losing nine, were chalked up in the senior "B" clash of the Ontario Baseball playdowns yesterday at Windsor when the visitors, Galt Terriers, walked off with a 7-2 verdict to square the duel with Windsor Local 195. A dispute ensued over the playing of a third and deciding game immediately on the same diamond, the Terriers declining to take the field. Windsor lined up to accept the award but the issue has been referred to the O.B.A.

At Tilbury, Chatham eliminated Tecumseh 6-3 in the intermediate "A" playdowns yesterday, Jim Kearns being the heavy-stick man for the winners with a double and three singles in four trips to the plate.

Kitchener Rangers were shoved out of the O.B.A. Junior "B" playdowns at home Saturday when St. Catharines Lincolns walked over them 6-3, marking up a four-run splurge in the ninth against Lucien Laflamme.

Woodstock Lions Saturday drew first blood in the O.B.A. juvenile semi-finals with a 7-6 verdict against Sarnia after a 12-innings battle on the Woodstock sandlot.

London juveniles took their series from Windsor Saturday by defeating the Border City nine 4-0 at Windsor for the second straight triumph.

In the Niagara Senior League playoffs Saturday, Hamilton walloped Welland Atlas 10-3 on the Hamilton diamond to square the series at one apiece, Deacon Wasser being the winning twirler.

CHEX Through Network Brings Best In Radio

A marvellous new world of radio entertainment has been opened-up to Peterborough listeners with the emerging of station CHEX as a key, basic station of the Dominion Network, the newest and finest broadcasting chain yet introduced in Canada, which will enable local radio fans to hear the top American productions, piped direct from the local unit.

The new set-up is something new to Peterborough listeners, who formerly had to dial Toronto or American stations, oftimes with poor reception, in order to hear the "big" programs, featuring radio and filmland luminaries.

To name a few of the radio shows now heard over CHEX is to sound like a Who's Who of the entertainment world to-day. Among others, comedy fans will cheer the news that Bob Hope's Show will now be heard locally, featuring the entire cast of Jerry Collona, Frances Langford, Vera Vague, and guest stars. Radio's Reader's Digest is a feature, and from Hollywood, will come the Frank Morgan Show, Everything For the Boys, starring singing sensation Dick Haymes, and the Texaco Star Theatre, New York will send Information Please, with the cast of experts quizzed by Clifton Fadiman; the Hall of Fame Show, with Paul Whiteman and his music; The Aldrich Family, with Henry, and That Brewster Boy, in clueded in the mystery-comedy programs, is the popular Thin Man series. American radio efforts, however, will not steal the show by any means! Top Canadian programs, featuring Canadian talent, will also be heard over the Dominion Network, including Canadian Cavalcade, a program with and about well-known Canadian personages. Long a favorite in Toronto, L. for Lanky is to be heard, Music For Canadians, from Montreal, and Light Up and Listen, featuring famed Canadian musical artists.

But the programs from the United States, the pick of the Blue, Mutual, and Columbia networks, will be the big feature of the new system. Blind Date, with Arline Francis, Name It, a musical quiz, and a complete coverage of all sporting events will all be heard. Added to these radio capers, is the promise that soon every top program emanating from the United States, will be introduced to Canadian listeners, over the individual local broadcasting facilities.

Peterborough people, particularly those interested in the entertainment business, will be glad to learn that in the future, programs will be originated in Peterborough, starring Peterborough talent, to be broadcast over the entire Dominion.

This is in line with the new policy of the Dominion Network whereby local stations each contribute so many programs to the Network, to be piped throughout the country. In order to do this, CHEX is making plans to audition every aspirant for radio work, whether it be musical or dramatic, with the possibility of doing radio work, that will be heard all over Canada.

A mile-stone in Canadian, and especially Peterborough radio, the Dominion Network is opening up a new road for radio to travel in Canada. Locally, radio fans will cheer the new development heartily, for the programs to be heard from the city, beginning with the "Early Risers" show each A.M., to the last news cast at night, will be the cream of the radio crop to be heard anywhere on the North American Continent.

Hun Prisoners Like Canada

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Sept. 18 — (CP)—Large numbers of German prisoners-of-war now detained in Canada would never go back to the Reich if they had their own way, the Lethbridge Herald said yesterday. They want to either remain in Canada or go to the United States.

In one of a series of articles on German prisoners in Canada, the paper said some of them do not wish to return to Germany because it is not their homeland; others wish to remain in Canada or go to the United States, in hopes "They will escape the fate which they fear awaits them in Germany."

"But most of those who wish to remain here have that preference because they see more of a future in Canada than they can expect in Germany."

The paper said that despite their wishes they all return to Germany because "the Geneva convention demands their repatriation."

There is another type of German prisoner in Canadian camps, the article said.

"He is the tpye anxious to return to Germany with plans of preparing to 'come back here and put you Canadians in the camps'."

Officer Dodges Shells In No Man's Land

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE ADRIATIC COAST, Sept. 18 (CP)—A day in No Man's Land with friendly and enemy shells displaying the most unanimous agreement in probing out your tiny dugout isn't a pleasant experience.

Yet Capt. Gordon Proctor, Calgary and Edmonton, acting commander of A Company of the 48th Highlanders of Canada during the break through the enemy's pre-Gothic defences, put it down to "all in a day's work" when he endured such an experience to get all men out of a ticklish situation.

The Foglio River represented the first obstacle of the Gothic Line and just south of the riverbank was a high ridge occupied by the Germans. The 48th's were ordered to capture the feature.

The night was moonlit and clear and they had almost reached the top of the feature before a rain of bullets came down.

The Germans had allowed the unit to come right into their area before opening fire. Capt. Proctor's men, then in the lead, deployed and fell to the ground. The following two companies were able to worm their way out of the area to locations where they were later pinned down by shell-fire.

Between the time of the action and dawn Capt. Proctor was able to get two of his platoons out and into houses a little behind. The third platoon made its way into a nearby house from which it brought down covering fire on the brigade's right flank.

Daylight found the western officer crawling about the area looking for stragglers. His movements only served to draw the enemy's fire and he wasn't happy either when Canadian shells began falling in the area.

By noon he had carved a slit trench out of the hard soil. Shrapnel from shell bursts nearby struck him.

Pressure was relieved in the evening by an attack launched by another 48th company under Maj. Gordon Beale, Toronto, which in a sharp clash drove off the Germans, allowing Capt. Proctor to pick up his platoons and bring them back into the battalion area.

WANTS TO GO BACK—Pte. Timothy Crough, who was recently invalided home from England, due to injuries received in a truck collision, is anxious to get back in action. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Crough, R.R. 7, Peterborough.

Voluntary Giving Replaces Fowl Supper

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 18 —(ENS) —The last of a series of group meetings sponsored by the Women's Association of the United Church was held last week at the home of Mr. Harold Thompson, Group No. 4 being hostesses. Mrs. T. Brown presided and a war prayer was given by Mrs. H. Mann, and Scripture lesson read by Mrs. W. G. Barrie. The treasurer reported $430.00 on hand.

The annual fowl supper was discussed, and later voted down when a motion was passed to ask each member for a voluntary donation of $3 or more to be handed in by the end of November. A special meeting as planned for the first Wednesday in November, when the four groups will meet at the church.

It was announced that Rally Day would be held the last Sunday in September. The needed repairs to the church were discussed and it was decided to have the work done at once.

The program consisted of readings by Mrs. G. Shearer and Mrs. James Longmuir, solo by Mrs. B. Robson, a vocal duet by Mrs. J. Scott and Mrs. W. Lewis, and a contest sponsored by Mrs. H. Van Volkenburg and won by Mrs. B. Robson.

Canadians Ring Dunkerque Port

By MAURICE DESJARDINS,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, Sept. 18 — (CP Cable) — South and East of besieged Dunkerque, Canadian troops slowly are tightening the net around the formidably-defended objective.

The German garrison has turned some of Dunkerque's coastal defence guns inland and is using anti-aircraft batteries as field artillery. Moreover, a Canadian officer said he believed that in Dunkerque there is one machine-gun to every three or four Germans.

Civilian refugees from the port — scene of the "miracle of Dunkerque" when the bulk of the British Expeditionary Force was evacuated four years ago— said the besieged German garrison had been told that a formidable German Army, led by none other than Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, is smashing forward to the rescue. But there was no sign of any relief force to back up that tall promise as I drove around the Dunkerque perimeter.

A survey of the landscape gave a good idea of the tough task facing the Canadians. As far as the eye could see there are enormous concrete blockhouses, pill-boxes, naval gun sites and barbed wire.

"I would like all those who said there was no west wall to be here with us to-day," said Captain Camille Gay of Ottawa, a brigade staff officer who took Lieut. Callan of Toronto, a war artist, and me on a tour of the sand dunes.

Council Supports Petition For Bus

MILLBROOK, Sept. 18 (ENS)— —The regular meeting of the Municipal Council of the village of Millbrook was held this week.

Letters from Ephgrave & Elmsley, insurance adjusters, re fire loss claim of J. R. Eakins, and from Malcolm Lennox were received.

It was moved by Councillors Harrington and Ball that this Council is in agreement with the contents of this letter, and ask that a settlement be made for $30 or $40, the estimated cost.

Other requests included one from E. S. Clarry re bus franchise. It was moved by Harrington and Ball that the petition for a bus service through the village be signed and forwarded.

S. R. Hart & Co. solicited order for assessment rolls for 1945, and the clerk was instructed to order the 1945 rolls.

Councillor Ball, relief officer, made a report of relief dispensed during August amounting to $19.70, and Harrington and Powell moved that the report be received and accounts paid.

Councillor Ball reported that there will be no more relief at the present time.

The following accounts were presented, and on motion of Councillors Ball and Olan, were ordered paid:

Docon Telephones Ltd., account, $4.86; J. J. Kellett, constable, $13; Harry White, caretaker, $9; Harry White, extra work, $12.60; Mrs. Harry White, assistant caretaker, $9; Charles Thorndyke, on salary, $50; Sam Kennedy, sawing wood, $3; Doug. Sanders, work, $1.40; P. I. Bentley, nails, etc., 37c; Attwooll & Shepherd, lumber, lime, etc., $62.05; E. J. Powell, painting roof, T. Hall, $29.20; D. Dunlop, work on streets, $83.45; John Lunn, work on streets, $64.23; A. W. Mitchell, repairs to lawn mower, $2.50; British American Oil Co., roof paint, $14.80; Dept. of Health, insulin, $3.59; S. C. Pethick, goods, relief, $17.20; F. Hutchison, shelter, $2.50.

Council adjourned, to meet October 2nd.

THREE "BIRDS"
WITH A SINGLE SHOT!

Thrift is triple-barrelled. First, there's personal security. Those who have savings accounts know the value of that back-log of personal finance.

Secondly, these savings, representing so large a proportion of Canadian families, are a tremendous factor in stabilizing the country's economy. The nation is only as strong as its people. Canada's thrifty citizens fortify their country's sound financial position and strengthen its international standing.

Thirdly, the savings entrusted to this Bank are put to work to create new wealth. Judiciously loaned to responsible, resourceful, enterprising men and women, they help create new jobs, new incomes, new business activity to build progress and prosperity for all.

Your freedom to earn a surplus and to save it is an important factor in Canada's unexcelled standard of living. Let none deny you this, your right.

The Canadian Way

The Spirit of New Adventure

He has the right idea.

He's looking up. He's planning. He's dreaming of the future that will some day be the real thing and not just a dream.

They're lucky kids, these small Canadians of ours. Lucky, because here in Canada, the gate of opportunity for them and for us is wide open all the time.

Let us not ever believe that the spirit of new adventure is confined to the dreams of the very young. No matter who we are, or what we do for a living, we can all share that same enterprising spirit.

As Canadians, every one of us is free to look up. There's nothing to obscure our vision of the ideals we hold.

We can plan our way for ourselves. We're free to do it.

Best of all, we can dream of that future we want, and we can make those dreams come true.

For this is Canada, where looking up, dreaming and planning are free Canadian rights. They're part of the true Canadian way we hold and cherish . . . a way that is protected with every Victory Bond we buy and keep.

A branch of raspberries, including green ones, was picked by Mr. S. Northey, of Smith township recently. The second time in the year the bush has born fruit, it was plucked from the raspberry patch Sunday, after being discovered by a surprised grower.

OPERATIONS FINISHED—Pilot Officer Ross Lunn, R.C.A.F., who went overseas in February, 1943, has finished his tour of operations. Formerly employed at the Westclox, he was educated in Millbrook and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lunn, Millbrook.

NEAR THE OBJECTIVE

The Canadian Police Third Spitfire Fund now only needs $1,185.78 to complete its objective of $22,350, Inspector James F. Reid, Dominion treasurer, announced today in acknowleding the receipt of a cheque for $250 from Chief White of Leamington, Ont.

GOOD SHOWING.

The Peterborough Navy Auxiliary which held a tag day Saturday realized $900 which will make it possible to send more than 1,140 complete ditty bags to men and women who have enlisted in the Navy, Mrs. Annie B. Wilson, convener, reported. The Auxiliary is grateful to all those who helped make their enterprise a success.

WEEK-END ALARMS.

The Fire Department reported only two alarms over the week-end, and one of them was false. Saturday afternoon firemen were called to 540 Stewart street, residence of Mrs. E. Allan, where a utilities pole was observed on fire. The false alarm, originating from Box 16, Perry and Bethune streets, brought out firemen in the middle of the night, at 12.39 a.m. Sunday.

WENT TO COLLEGIATE.

The new chairman attended Peterborough Collegiate while his father was minister here.

Milkweed Down In Preservers Saves Lives Of Allied Fighters

Airmen's jackets and life preservers, chiefly for the campaign against the Japs in the Pacific, are hanging on the fences of farm yards and rural schools all the way across Eastern Ontario for collection about the middle of October.

That is a figurative and realistic expression relating to the harvesting of milkweed pods for which thousands of bags have already been distributed among the rural school children of the district between Peterborough and Ottawa, part of the garnering that is being carried on as an emergency contribution to the winding up of the war by the children generally across the country.

To say that hundreds of them have already filled bags with milkweed pods, and hung them on fences to dry, is the literal account of what has already been accomplished.

But, children are little romancers. Their imaginations roam far and wide and with shining deeds in their make-believe worlds. Milkweed pods are commonplace things to which they have been long accustomed, especially when the seeds are ripe with buoyant down to float them on the breezes. Collecting these pods is likely to seem to them just another job, even at 20 cents a bag, but tell them that each bag of pods contains the lining for an airman's jacket or his life preserver to keep him afloat in the chance of mishap of falling helplessly with broken wings into the sea, and the youngsters are going to realize that they are actually engaged in a highly important enterprise of this stage of the war.

Seized By Japs

The Japs have been in possession of the resources of kapok since their first easy overrunning of the islands of the Pacific. The down of the milkweed is being used as a satisfactory substitute, and the Government of Canada is appealing to the nation's school children to take on this job of gathering this month the filling pods.

Thousands of bags have already been distributed in this county and in Victoria-Haliburton.

Some of them are already filled. Rural fathers are taking an interest to the extent of encouraging the juniors of their families by telling them that this is their opportunity to take a slap at the Japs and help even the score of Hong Kong.

Major L. I. Johnson is in charge of the eastern Ontario campaign. He was heading off this morning with fifty bags which Dan Whetung of Curve Lake will pass around among his little neighbors as a challenge to their industry and patriotic spirit.

Ennismore's Aim

Two thousand bags have gone into Ennismore, and Rev. Father Gillogly told Major Johnson he would be disappointed if the children of that township failed to fill them all; and two thousand are a heap of bags.

F. D. Smitheram, Public School Inspector, has been filling his car with the empties and taking them to various schools of his area. F. C. Paterson has passed out a lot, but Major Johnson says that some sections have not yet become aroused to this appeal and its importance.

All these sack of milkweed are destined for the United States, and the school children should also know that they are engaged in a big "little effort" of great importance.

Every Last Pod

"It is just like this,—every unpicked milkweed pod after the bags are dried and gone is going to be a sign of some person's neglect or oversight; and that some person might be a boy or girl of that neighborhood." Major Johnson said this morning.

"On the way to Peterborough Saturday I saw many farm fences with milkweed pods decorating them. At South March rural school near Ottawa there were fifty bags that have been filled by the children. They are being left on the school fence for the drying period of the next three weeks, and that is the best proof the young folks can give of their desire to help save the lives of Allied airmen, possibly some of our own."

Must Be Done Now

The government is allowing for some financial encouragement, twenty cents a bag. They should be filled by the end of this month. The harvesting of the milkweed pods is a September job. After that the bags are left out in the weather to dry until about the middle of October.

Major Johnston said he was hoping that the city school children would be encouraged to find time to clean up every last milkweed pod within their suburban areas or even farther afield.

Draw On Doily Brings $27 To Robot Victims

In a world that has become accustomed to articles of all types being made in a hurry by mass production methods in combination with the most modern machinery, there is still a love and possibly more of a preference for those things that require the skill of the individual, their worth as such finding more favour with people who are discriminating in such matters.

There is a love of the beautiful, which also requires much patient effort by those who can use nimble fingers to work or crocket articles for the adornment of any home and the utilizing of such as a means of raising money to assist people in distress adds considerably to the value of the effort as a whole.

Having recently with the painstaking care necessary in such cases crocheted a good sized doily or table centrepiece, Mrs. R. Ford then set about the task of sponsoring the sale of tickets for a draw on it, in which she had the assistance of Mrs Kay Warren, and Helen Goodfellow and Barbara Hall, the entire proceeds of which were to aid the victims of robot bombs in Britain, through the local and district fund operating for that purpose.

The draw was made on Friday by the secretary of this fund, and resulted in the prize going to Marie Thomas of the Meter Dept. in the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd., with ticket No. 411. This raised the splendid sum of $27.65, which is credited in to-day's receipts, and must surely give much satisfaction to the sponsor whose early days were spent in and around one of the worst blitzed spots in the motherland.

First School Since Recess.

Throughout the years that the fund has been in operation, quite a good amount of support has been given it by the various schools in the city and district, among which May's School has on a number of occasions taken its place.

They happened to be among those who were represented thus in the early summer just prior to the past summer recess, at which time they would be included among those from the district surrounding the city.

Since that time their status has changed and they are now numbered among the schools of this city, and it would seem almost noteworthy in this instance that they should be the first school to give a helping hand since the schools resumed business as usual.

Last Thursday, two booths were erected on the lawn of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Collins, and a sale of hot dogs, chocolate milk, and pie by Barnet Collins and Brenda Pellow took place from one of them, while Francis Carpenter, a former pupil and Esther Jane Robinson sold homemade candy, tarts and cake from the other.

An attractive feature which added much pleasure was afforded through the part that gaily decorated Betsy, the pony played in taking the children for a ride, under the charge of W. Collins, jr., and Paul Evans, and the total sum of their endeavors amounted to $10 of which the fund receives $7.00 and the balance was given to the School Junior Red Cross. Donations to make this effort possible are gratefully acknowledged as coming from Mesdames A Spinks, H. Wildman, J. Miller, Evans, H. May, W. Collins, S. Pellow, M. Bullick, W. McNaughton, S. Carpenter, S. Thexton, N. Langton, and G. Robinson, Miss E. Thexton and Messrs. L. May and M. Tolton.

Sailor On Leave Rescued From Bay Of Biscay

Floating in icy water for nine hours, after his landing craft had been sunk in the Bay of Biscay, last November during a 70 mile-per-hour gale, is only one of the experiences Leading Stoker (Mechanic) Alfred Ted Marshal, R. C. N. V. R., has gone through, since he left Canada in May, 1943, for overseas service with the landing craft section of the Combined Operations system.

Now at home on a 50-day leave, LMS Marshal, who is the son of Mrs. Annie Marshal, 501 Bethune street, told the Examiner this morning that while it is all right to look back on those black hours now, out there in the water that night was a very grim time for everyone. He was the only Canadian in the group, the rest being Englishmen. Wrapped up in seven life jackets, he had drifted and been blown more than 80 miles from where the sinking took place, until a tug picked them from the water, and returned them to England. At that time, France had not been invaded, and every inch of the French coast was hostile. Tossing about on the waves as they did, the men were anxious about drifting, and they drew ever closer to France during the night.

"Everybody was saved though," he reflects, "and when we got back to England, we all enjoyed 14 days 'survivors' leave.".

The young sailor left a job at Research Eenterprises in Toronto, to enlist in Canada's naval forces, even though he had been formally exempted from service in the forces, because of the importance of his work. Since he enlisted in July in 1942, and trained in various parts of this country and the United States, he has taken part in three major allied invasions, and in his travels with the Navy, has seen and visited many of the prominent cities and countries of the Mediterranean area.

And as if being a survivor of a shipwreck wasn't enough, he was brought down by an attack of malaria and spent 13 weeks in an African hospital, recuperating from the dreaded tropical scourge. When asked if malaria strikes swiftly, he replied that he had been on duty at sea, when suddenly, he passed out. The next thing he knew, he was being flown to a hospital.

As for LSM Marshal's work, most of the details must be necessarily silent. A comparatively new branch of the forces, landing craft work is important, and exacting, but it can be said that much of the time, he was engaged in bringing men from various ports, depositing them on the beachheads of France or Italy, then returning for more men. During the French landings opposition he said was light, both from the air, and sea. Crossing the channel is always an exciting job, and he said everybody gets frightened when it is realized a German gun is on the opposite side, waiting to blast at the craft.

Of all the places along the Mediterranean that he has visited, Algiers is the dirtiest, and filthiest, he stated. There is a great odor sent up from the city, from the open gutters, and lack of sanitation of all descriptions. Although the Casbah, Algiers' criminal hide-out, is strictly out of bounds for the forces, he happened into the settlement one evening, but upon finding he was alone on a deserted street, with tough-looking Arabs sneaking here and there, he quickly retraced his steps, and left. "The toughest spot in the world," is the sailor's idea of it!

Fond are the memories he has of Scotland, which he likes better than most other places except Canada! He said the people were more hospitable there than any other place he has been, and they can never do too much for a Canadian serviceman.

May Lift Ban Soon

TORONTO, Sept. 18 — (CP). — Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman and chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, said last night reallocation of power in industry will require at least six months after the war ends. He added the commission was "anxious" to permit street and store lighting to be resumed as soon as the power controller at Ottawa lifts the wartime ban.

Missing Soldier Safe In Hospital

Pte. Bruce Fairfield, who was reported missing July 28, is now officially reported safe and wounded, in a hospital in the United Kingdom, according to word received by his sister, Mrs. E. Berry, 285 Romaine street. His wounds are listed as a compound fracture of the left elbow.

The young soldier is the son of Walter Fairfield and the late Mrs. Fairfield of Omemee. He enlisted in June, 1941, and went overseas in October, 1942, and at the time he was reported missing was with the Royal Highland Light Infantry in France.

James M. Grady On Convoy Duty

Leading Stoker James M. Grady, veteran of twelve months' service in corvettes of the British Navy in the North and South Atlantic and the Mediterranean, arrived in Peterborough last week to send a 45-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Grady, 520 Lock street. Enlisting nearly two and a half years ago, he has been overseas for 21 months, and in addition to three convoy trips across the Atlantic to this side, has been to Gibraltar on his ship and to several ports in Africa.

The 21-year-old sailor is one of three brothers serving in Canadian armed forces. Thomas J. Grady is in the Army, and William J. Grady is a member of the R.C.A.F.

Leading Stoker Grady returned home with high admiration for the qualities of British sailors, saying that they couldn't be beat. He allowed, however, that the rations served in the Royal Navy did not measure up to the high standard of food which he found in the Canadian Navy. He was in the same convoy group as the St. Croix, when that Canadian ship was destroyed.

Studying at a school near London in order to qualify for his present grade in the service, the Peterborough sailor did not take part in the landing operations of the invasion. He received his promotion from first class stoker just before coming back to Canada.

Memorial Centre Drive Gets Underway

The campaign of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre began its two-week drive to raise $300,000 for the building of an arena and community sports and recreation centre this morning, with team captains of canvassing groups organizing their fellow workers and starting out to make the first rounds. Before the end of the month the entire population will have been approached by solicitors in the interests of this far-reaching project, one of the most comprehensive schemes for civic betterment which has been envisioned for Peterborough.

Upwards of 200 persons are actively associated with the drive, which had its beginnings in the public-spirited consciousness of a number of Peterborough citizens. In addition to numerous committee heads and members who have worked long and hard to get the project developed to the point where it could properly be presented for the approval of the people in the form of direct contributions, there are over 150 interested citizens who have volunteered to give their time and effort to the very large task of soliciting the public in a house-to-house campaign. Service club members, members of the Canadian Legion and ladies of the city's various women's organizations are all participating in the drive.

"Peterborough is the first city in Canada to put such a plan in writing," it was said last week by Major Ian Eisenhardt, noted athletic director, who spoke with enthusiasm of the Community Centre project here. It was, in his opinion, a post-war project anticipating action of any other Dominion community, and as such would serve simultaneously the two noble aims of providing a worthy memorial to a realistic approach to the problem of maintaining and improving young people's health.

Daily reports of the progress of the drive will be turned in to the Community Centre's campaign office by the team captains each day; and it is expected that an initial picture of how the drive is proceeding will be available for the public's information Tuesday.

Blue Air Mail Forms Require Same Postage

The reduction in postage rate from 10 cents to five cents for airgraph letters sent overseas to civilians which was announced last night does not apply to the blue air letter form, Postmaster Charles Lacheur stated this morning. He said that confusion prevailed on this point, with the public erroneously inferring that the reduction was applicable to the blue form as well as the airgraph; and that the Post Office was receiving numerous calls from persons in doubt as to the proper rates.

The postage required on the standard form air letter, both for military and civilian correspondence is fixed at 10 cents, Mr. Lacheur stated; while it is the airgraph alone, which is photographed on microfilm and sent overseas in this form, that now costs only five cents, both to civilians and servicemen. The letter writer who does not use either of the standard forms of overseas airmail, but uses his own stationery, must pay postage at the rate of 30 cents for each half ounce, Mr. Lacheur added.

Pte. William Marois Killed In France

BUCKHORN, Sept. 18.—(ENS). —Mr. and Mrs. Marois of Buckhorn, were notified at the week-end that their son, Private William H. Marois, had been killed in action in France.

He enlisted in January 1943, and trained in British Columbia. Pte. Marois spent six months in Kiska and went overseas in May this year. He would have been twenty-one years of age next Thursday.

Besides his parents he leaves to mourn his loss three sisters and six brothers, one of whom, Walter, is serving in Italy.

Over Half Voters Are Favoring Site For New City Hall Opposite Confederation Square

More than fifty per cent of those ratepayers and tenants who cast their ballots in the Examiner's poll on a site for the new city hall favored the George, Murray Water and McDonnel street block. The poll was answered by 1,178 homes in the city.

Conducted to find out where the people of Peterborough would like the new city hall built the Examiner carrier boys and girls picked up the ballots on Friday evening. The ballot had previously appeared in Thursday paper. Four sites were proposed, number one was the George, Murray, Water and McDonnel street block with an assessment of $53,500; number two was the Louis, Charlotte, Aylmer and King street block with an assessment of $85,090; number three was the Hunter, Water, Simcoe, Queen street block with an assessment of $101,080, and number four was the northeast corner of George and Charlotte streets with an assessment of $80,650.

With site number one getting 51.8 per cent of the votes, site number two came second with 25 per cent, site number four was third with 15.5 per cent and number three was fourth with 6.7 per cent.

The ballot also showed that 64.3 per cent of those voting were property owners; 29.0 per cent non-property owners and 6.7 per cent did not state whether they were property owners or not.

As was to be expected the north ward was over ninety per cent for number one site, but number one site also led in the west, centre and east wards. It was only in the south ward that number two site had a small margin over number one. The centre ward also gave a good vote for number two site while number two site was also second in the west ward. The east ward put number three site, or the one nearest that section of the city, in second place.

There is no doubt but that the ballot as pretty well discussed in every household that vote for there were many remarks enclosed. One man said, "Site number one is favored by one member of the household, but another favors three, the reason being given that it would help modernize a part of the downtown in Peterborough. Site number 1 would be an ideal location but it does seem a shame to destroy some of the lovely homes on Water street whereas in number 3 some buildings would be as well torn down."

Another voter while supporting site number one said he preferred the block between St. Andrew's and St. Peter's churches. Another said number one was the only common sense site of the four and a fourth suggested the site on George Street where the old opera house formerly stood.

While voting for Number three one of Peterborough's largest ratepayers said he was of the opinion a better choice would be the south-east corner of King and Aylmer Streets to the creek and bounded on the south by Sherbrooke street. "It is central, there would be plenty of parking space and at the back would be the new post office. The site has a nice elevation, it is near the two stations and also the main streets, and as the city is growing south it would be near the centre of population."

SAILOR BACK HOME—Leading Stoker James M. Grady, Peterborough sailor and son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Grady, 520 Lock street, is home on leave after months of service overseas. He spent nearly a year in convoy duty aboard British corvettes.

Youth 18 Arrested Asleep On Porch

Gerald Lalonde, 18, of Waterford street, who was arrested early this morning sleeping on a veranda, pleaded guilty in police court today to a vagrancy charge.

Lalonde told the court that he had a job in Toronto to go to but would have to have the consent of the Selective Service office here. He produced a letter to show that a position was open to him.

L. Grant of the Selective Service office said that the accused would not be granted a transfer out of the Peterborough district. "There is plenty of work here," he told the court. Mr. Grant said that Selective Service would guarantee to find a job for Lalonde here.

The accused was remanded until tomorrow, the magistrate intimating that suspended sentence might be granted if Lalonde would promise to go to work.

George Calvert and Charles Allen, Rockcroft, who entered written pleas of guilty were fined $15 and $2.50 costs for illegal consumption of liquor. The charges laid by Provincial Constable Price Morris followed a recent dance at Buckhorn. Dave Bennett, Peterborough, similarly charged, secured a week's adjournment.

James Neary, charged as a second offender, pleaded not guilty to a drunk charge and was given an adjournment for one week.

Andrew Sinclair was fined $10 and $2.50 costs for driving an automobile without a license. He entered a written plea of guilty to the charge which was laid by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure.

Denis Plumpton, charged with non-support, was remanded for a week.

McMillan-Harris Nuptials Solemnized at St. Paul's

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, banked with gladioli and fern, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Saturday, when Ruth Elizabeth Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harris, Stewart street, became the bride of Thomas Paton McMillan, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. McMillan, Rubidge street. Rev. Mr. Newton officiated. Martin B. Chenhall was at the organ, and Miss Orma Lacheur sang "My World" and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white faconne, on princess lines, with flared skirt falling into train. The fitted bodice was made with a sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves, with a frill on the cuffs. Her long veil of French veiling fell from a Juliet cap, and she carried a shower bouquet of Bettertime roses and bouvardia. She also wore a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

She was attended by Mrs. J. Grierson as matron of honor, and Mrs. R. Dy[illegible] as bridesmaid, who were frocked alike in floor-length turquoise silk jersey, on princess lines, with a Sweetheart neckline. Each wore a sweetheart hat of plum-colored velvet, matching gloves, and carried a ring bouquet of bronze 'mums.

Cpl. A. Goodman, R.C.A.F., was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. J. Grierson and R. Dyer.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. for about 75 guests. The bride's mother, receiving the guests, was gowned in a dusty blue faconne ensemble, with black hat and accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. The bride's table, centred with her cake, was tastefully arranged with flowers.

For a trip to Toronto and Buffalo, the bride donned a brick wool dress in a two-piece effect, and brown accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. McMillan will live on Douglas avenue.

School Children See Travel Film

As an experiment recently two geography classes from Queen Alexandra school and two classes from Central school were shown a colored travelogue, as a forty-five minute modern study period in the Y.M.C.A. The film, entitled "From Coast to Coast," covered a trip across Canada, stopping at points of interest along the way. The showing, which was designed to make geography classes a little more interesting to the children, proved successful from the standpoint of educational value as well as enjoyment.

Teachers of the schools, in co-operation with the Y.M.C.A., instituted this plan, and the Y.M.C.A. has agreed to show other educational films from time to time, for the benefit of the public schools.

Elgin Red Cross Begins Fall Work

NORWOOD, Sept. 16.—(ENS).—After being closed during the summer months of July and August, the Elgin Red Cross group has begun work for the fall and winter seasons.

During the summer, a travelling apron was sent around, and at an afternoon tea held recently at the home of Mrs. Max Scott, more than $20 was raised as a result of the tea and apron. At the meeting, an interesting and profitable address by Miss Pauline Weir, told the members of the origins of the Red Cross Society, and the work being done for the prisoners-of-war. During the afternoon, two small quilts were pieced, and also the blocks for a Dresden plate quilt.

Another meeting was held this week at the home of Mrs. W. Preston, a former member of the club. A large quilt, two smaller ones, and the blocks for a butterfly quilt were quilted. Mrs. Preston served lunch to the 25 mebers present.

R. Charlton Weds Doreen Northey

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 18 —(ENS)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Northey, Smith township was the scene of a lovely autumn wedding on Saturday, when Doreen Vine, only daughter of Sherman Northey and the late Mrs. Northey was united in marriage to Roger Braden Charlton, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Charlton, R.R. No. 4, Peterborough. Rev. Wm. W. Patterson of Queensboro officiated assisted by the Rev. George Kelly. The wedding music was played by Miss Nettie Nelson, cousin of the bride. During the signing of the register Miss Jean Millar sang "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a marqua sheer over satin frock, floor-length, sweetheart neckline, long torso, shirred bodice, with covered buttons to the waistline in front. Her net veil was in cup shape caught with lily of the valley. She carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. She wore the pendant used by her mother on her wedding day.

Doreen Hawthorne was charming as bridesmaid in a pale blue sheer, over satin gown fashioned on lines similar to that of the bride. She wore a blue veil and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Alvin Northey was the best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. Mrs. Northey received in a gown of French blue crepe, with navy hat and bouquet of roses, assisted by the groom's mother in a black crepe frock with black hat and bouquet of roses.

Girl friends of the bride who assisted at the reception were Frayn Johns, Lillian Calberry, Peggy Holmes, Hazel Northey, Elda Bulmer, Mildred Bulmer, Shirley McKee, Phyllis McKee and Hilda Northey.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip for western Ontario. For travelling the bride chose a beige dress and hat, brown tweed coat and brown accessories. On their return they will live on the groom's farm in Smith township.

Dorothy Leeson Wed At St. James

Rev. F. W. Craik officiated at the ceremony in St. James' United Church Saturday afternoon when Dorothy Bernice Leeson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Leeson, became the bride of Orville William Stenton Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith, Park street. The church was decorated with asters and gladioli, and Cecil E. Lapp was at the organ.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. George Leeson, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk jersey with square neckline, long sleeves coming to a point over either wrist, and a full skirt. Her fingertip veil of white net was caught to a matching halo with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. J. Huggins and Miss Jean Lawson were her attendants. Mrs Huggins was frocked in pink sheer with square neckline and full skirt, matching net halo and shoulder-length veil. Miss Lawson wore floor-length turquoise net with matching halo and shoulder-length veil. Each carried a ring bouquet of pink gladioli.

Harold Leeson was best man, and ushers were Richard Hocking and M. Didero.

At the reception held at the home of the groom's parents, Park street, the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. G. Leeson, received, in a black crepe gown, matching accessories, and a corsage of pink and white gladioli. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of navy sheer, with matching accessories, and a corsage of red roses and cornflowers. The rooms were decorated in pink and white, and fall flowers. Friends of the bride, Mrs. Charles Foster and Mrs. M. Didero, assisted in serving a buffet luncheon to about 50 guests. The bride's table, set with a white cloth was centred with her wedding cake, flanked with pink tapers.

After the reception, the couple left on a wedding trip to Toronto and other points, the bride travelling in a navy blue tailored suit, with black accessories, and a corsage of red roses. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will live at 584 Park street.

Iris Fitzgerald Wed At Home

The home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Walter Fitzgerald, London street, was tastefully arranged with asters, gladioli and 'mums Saturday afternoon, for the wedding of their daughter, Iris Katherine Fitzgerald, to Pte. H. G. Shaw, R. C. A. S. C. of Camp Borden, son of Dr. G. E. Shaw and Mrs Shaw, of Windsor Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated, against a background of fall flowers. Miss Mildred McIntyre played the wedding music, and Miss Margaret Hooper sang "O Perect Love." Little Carol Ann Parnall, in Heavenly blue silk jersey, with pink accessories and pink flower bandeau, was at the door.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length white Duchess satin on simple lines, with Sweetheart neckline, long sleeves coming to points of her wrists, and falling into a train. Her floor-length veil of white net was caught to a matching halo with orange blossoms, and she wore a strand of pearls, and carried a flower fan of roses and orchids.

Miss Joan Melton was her only attendant, in floor-length Spray blue crepe with Sweetheart neckline, and three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a Calot cap of matching shirred crepe, an heirloom diamond and pearl pendant, and carried Talisman roses. Orlo Shaw, brother of the groom was best man.

After the ceremony, the bride's mother received the guests at the reception in a two-piece lilac crepe ensemble, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore a pin stripe navy blue tailored suit, with matching accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

For a wedding trip to Locust Lodge, Bobcaygeon, and Windsor, the bride donned a two-piece crepe suit, with brown accessories, and a corsage of roses. On their return, Pte. Shaw will resume his duites at Camp Borden, and Mrs. Shaw will live with her parents.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly, wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday
by Martha Logan

Beef Pot Roast

Tender and juicy, a pot roast brings you all the goodness of meat and vegetables

More than once in these weekly notes, I have put forward the view that many delicious dishes are less popular than they should be just because they are inexpensive.

People seem to think that what costs less can't be as good. Well, say I, it all depends on how clever a cook you are! Beef rump or chuck cost less—and are often easier to get—than some other cuts; but properly cooked as described in the panel they are as delectable, as tender and as juicy, as any hungry family could desire. Try a Pot Roast next week-end.

Martha Logan

TO COOK A POT ROAST

4 lb. beef rump or chuck
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 tbsp. Silverleaf Lard
1 cup well-seasoned stock or bouillon
6 onions, peeled
8 carrots, scraped

Rub the meat with dry mustard and brown on all sides in hot lard. Season. Place on rack in heavy pot, add stock, cover closely, simmer — never boil — for 3 hours. Add vegetables, allowing just enough time to make them tender.

DOROTHY DIX

BLUNT TALKERS REAP HATE

Dumbness, Lack of Delicacy, Spite or Envy, May Be Cause of Such Remarks.

DEAR MISS DIX—Will you give me your blunt opinion of "blunt" people. I mean the people who pride themselves on always telling you home truths, and never pulling the punches, as they say. They rip and blast and tear everything and everybody to shreds, scoff at anyone who shows decent and honorable consideration of others, and call idealists "nuts." Yet even while they are rolling over your sensibilities like an army tank, they will tell you what sensitive souls they are and expect you to handle them with gloves.

How do you deal with them?

A READER.

ANSWER: Being myself one of those who love their fellow creatures and being short of venom, I realize that I am unfit to deal with the plain-spoken, so I don't attempt it. I just walk high, wide and handsome around them and avoid them as I would a cobra or any other reptile.

I confess I have never been able to understand people who go out of their way to gratuitously hurt those who have in no way offended them. I cannot understand how anyone can be cruel enough to get pleasure out of robbing a fellow creature of the happiness that does not profit them, but that leaves their victim poor, indeed. God knows that none of us has any joy in life to spare.

Yet there are many people who have this sadistic spirit. Have you a frail child? They comment on how delicate it is and how they fear you will never rear it. Have you a gay husband? They never fail to tell you that So-and-So saw him lunching with a blonde. Have you a new hat? They tell you it is too young for you. Always the stab in a vital spot.

Why do such people do it? Perhaps it is dumbness. Perhaps it is a total lack of all delicacy of perception. Maybe it is spite and envy. Maybe they don't realize how they make everyone hate them. Only the Creator who, as old Omar Khayyam wrote, "along with Eden did devise the snake," really knows.

DEAR MISS DIX—My friend is 29 and her fiance 49. He is a bachelor lawyer, amply able to support a wife. He says he loves her and wants to marry her and she is much in love with him. But, although the wedding date has been set a number of times, every time it approaches he puts off the marriage. What would you say this man's intentions are likely to be?

S. M. P.

Poor Matrimonial Prospect for Girl

ANSWER—Certainly they are not matrimonial. Evidently for some reason he does not desire to marry the girl and she is very foolish if she wastes any more time on him. Of course, in the end, she may possibly drag him to the altar, but if she does it will be against his will and he will not make a desirable husband.

As this man is 49 and still a bachelor he may be one of the men who are celibate by nature. He may love his freedom better than he does any woman and prefers to spend his money on himself rather than on a family. Or he may be involved with some woman who threatens to make a scandal if he gets married. Or it may be a question of his health.

DEAR MISS DIX—Not long ago we lost our only child, who died suddenly from polio. We cannot have any more children and our house seems so desolate and lonely that we are thinking of adopting a child. If we do, which would you advise us to take, a boy or a girl?

MR. AND MRS. F. G.

ANSWER—I think a baby's hands can come nearer to working the miracle of filling the emptiness that the loss of a child makes than anything else. Just the incessant calls upon your care and attention that a baby will make will take your mind off of your grief, and the sound of the patter of little feet will kill the awful silence that breaks your heart and wears upon your nerves. You won't always be listening for the sound that never comes.

Whether you should pick out a boy or a girl is something you must decide for yourself.

"IMPERIAL LIFE" PROTECTION

● The military strength of the Nation is pooled in Canada's Army, Navy and Airforce.

The protective financial strength of an ever-increasing number of Canadians is pooled in Imperial Life.

Since 1897, thousands of widows have escaped hardship; a host of children have been educated and given a good start in life; an army of men have been enabled to live a self-respecting, self-pensioned old-age—through the ownership of Imperial Life insurance.

Every day, more men adopt this "all for one" principle embodied in life insurance. Alone, a man cannot make financial provision for his family against the possibility of premature death. Together with others, he can through life insurance guarantee that his plans for his family and himself will be carried through to completion whether he dies too soon or lives too long.

THE TIP-TILTED HIGH HAT—In all the pother about more-hat millinery lines, it behooves us to reassure those women who like the marquise type hat best, who feel most chic in something tip-tilted and fragile, that they too have been remembered fashionably. Here we have a classic of this sort, for 1945, for these customers.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

If you shop for value, and everyone does these days, you will frequently buy the cheaper cuts of meat. Their food value is just as high as that of the more expensive cuts and they really have more flavor. In slow cooking, in moist heat, and seasoning, lie the secret of many savory dishes that can be made from the less expensive cuts of meat. Below are some examples.

Spicy Riblets

2 lbs. lamb riblets, front or flank, cut in two-inch pieces, 2 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons thick spicy meat sauce, 2 teaspoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons prepared horse radish, 3 cups boiling water, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Brown meat well on all sides. Drain off excess fat. Add remaining ingredients, cover and simmer until meat is tender, about one hour. Add additional water while cooking if necessary, keeping the quantity of sauce up to one cup.

Ground Meat Pot Roast

2 lbs. ground beef, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 1 cup dry bread crumbs, ¾ cup finely chopped onion, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup tomato juice, seasoned, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1 teaspoon mustard, salt and pepper, 6 medium carrots, 6 medium potatoes, 6 medium onions. Beat egg, add milk, meat, crumbs, onion and seasoning. Mix well and shape into a loaf, with a depression in the centre. Place in a roasting pan and bake, uncovered for 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Pour off any excess fat. Pour the seasoned tomato juice into the depression in the meat loaf. Place carrots, potatoes, and onions around the lo[af]. Cover and return to the oven. Cook at 350 degrees for one hour longer.

Beef Ragout.

1½ lbs. beef, cut in small pieces, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon fat, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, ½ cup chopped celery, 1 teaspoon paprika, 2½ cups boiling water. Dredge meat with flour, brown well in hot fat and add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer until meat is tender, adding extra water if necessary.

We are today going to have some recipes for vegetable loaf. Some have a little meat added to them and some are strictly vegetable. These dishes are so nice because they can be prepared in the morning and are all ready for dinner at 6 p.m.

Celery, Nut and Potato Loaf

2 large stalks celery, ¾ cup chopped nuts, 3 cups of mashed potatoes, 3 tablespoons fat, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 2 teaspoons grated onion. Wash, cut in small pieces and cook celery until tender in a small amount of salted water. Drain off liquid (this may be used for soup stock later). Then add the other ingredients to the celery in the order in which they are given. Combine them carefully, pack in a loaf in a greased bread pan and bake in a moderate oven. Milk or cheese should accompany this dish in the menu.

Peanut Scrapple

1 cup hot milk, 1 quart boiling water, 1 cup yellow corn meal, ¾ cup hominy grits, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, 1½ cups chopped peanuts, ¼ to ½ cup grated cheese. Combine hot milk and boiling water, bring to the boiling point and add corn meal, hominy grits and seasoning. Stir constantly until the liquid is thickened by the cereal. Place in a double boiler and cook one hour. Ten minutes before taking off heat, add peanuts and cheese. Place in a deep rectangular bread pan and allow it to cool. When ready to use, cut in small slices, roll in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat until brown. Sprinkle with grated cheese mixed with bread crumbs. This makes an excellent luncheon or supper dish.

Peanut and Carrot Loaf

1 cup chopped carrots, 1 cup of coarse ground peanuts, 1 cup strained tomatoes, 1 cup crumbs, 1½ tablespoons fat, 4 eggs slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, salt. Chop separately the carrots and peanuts or put them through the food chopper, using the coarse knife. Add the other ingredients and form in a loaf. Place in a greased pan and bake 1¼ hours in a moderate oven.

Corned Beef Hash

2 cups chopped corned beef, 2 cups chopped cooked potatoes, salt and pepper, ½ cup milk or water, 2 tablespoons butter. Mix beef and potatoes together lightly and season. Pour the milk into frying pan with half the fat and, when this is warm, turn in the hash, spreading it evenly, and placing the rest of the fat on top. Cover the pan and place it where the hash will cook slowly for half an hour. There should then be a rich, thick crust on the bottom. Do not stir the hash. Fold it as an omelet is folded, and place on a warm platter. This slow process of heating the hash gives it a delicious flavor.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 19

A DAY OF sudden, unexpected and unpredictable happenings, with a surprising turn of events which may bring many exciting and thrilling adventures, upheavals and war reaching events, on which the future, its fortunes and destiny are to be decided. The progressive and prosperous outcome depends much upon the manner and wisdom on which these radical departures may be handled at the beginning. With shrewd possibly drastic action there may be dramatic denouement, with much change adventure and happiness affecting both business and personal relations.

Those whose birthday it is find themselves confronted by a year of unlooked for change or uprooting, with many surprising and unpredictable events reaching far into the future and its destiny. With discretion, shrewdness, and wise decisions at the beginning, and not emotionalism or impetuosity, there might be dramatic experiences, happy adventures and much unlooked for progress.

A child born on this day may possess much originality, independence, creative skill and ingenuity, and should have a thrilling and adventurous career.

Charlie Low Captures Kawartha Title

By "HAP" WILGAR

Charlie Low, twice winner in three years, took the championship of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club from Fraser Dunfield over a 36 hole route. He defeated Dunfield 6 up and 4 to go, after a match that was as entertaining as any we have seen. Both golfers were brilliant at times. Low played steady golf all the way around and was seldom in trouble. Dunfield also played good golf and except for a temporary lapse during the morning round on the 14th, 17th and 18th holes, when he soared to two over par on each hole, his golf was as sound as Low's. It was on these holes that Low actually wrapped up the game because Dunfield was never able to get those 3 holes back.

Dunfield had a birdie 2 on the par 3 ninth in the morning round while Low had a birdie 4 on the 495 yard 13th to match Fraser's birdie. During the afternoon, Charlie twice sank chip shots for birdies. The first came at the seventh when his second ended to the right of the green, pin high. He chipped on and the ball was in the can all the way. Not content with that he repeated the performance for the benefit of a very respectable sized gallery on the par 4 14th, to win the hole against Fraser's par 4 and also win the match. Twice, lovely shots by Dunfield were nullified by his opponent laying stymies. On the 10th in the afternoon, Fraser made a perfect recovery shot after a short drive to put one of the longest spoon shots seen in a long time on the green about three feet from the pin and a possible win because Charlie was well back on the green past the pin. Low putted and the ball stopped directly in Dunfield's line and Fraser had to be content with a par four and a half on the hole instead of a birdie. Both lads played well off the tee except on a couple of occasions and there wasn't much to choose between their game through the fairway. Fraser was putting well in the morning until the late holes when he seemed to lose some of his touch. Low was steady on the green all through the match. Low played his chip shots very well, but Fraser was not as good in this department as he usually is and there you have the story of the win and loss.

Story of Match

The first two holes were halved in par figures, both contestants playing safe on the second in spite of drives which carried 275 yards. Fraser won the third when he sank a 25 foot putt, after approaching short over a trap from the right of the green. Charlie was in the trap to the left of the green on his tee shot, chipped out short and took 2 putts for a four.

On the fourth, Low played a beautiful long 4 iron for his second which ended up about six feet from the pin and he was down for an easy four. Dunfield was past the pin and over the green on his second and had to be content with a 5, which squared the match.

On the fifth, Dunfield's putt for a birdie was inches short of the cup and he was down in par 5. Low missed his second shot on this hole but was on pin high, with his third and was [illegible] down in a par 5.

On the sixth, Dunfield was short of the green in front of his tee shot, chipped past the pin and needed 2 putts for a 4, while Low played a nice approach shot over the trap to stop about 20 feet from the cup. He ran down the putt for a par 3 and went 1 up.

Both boys needed 5's on the 7th, neither being on with their seconds. Their approaches were both short and they two putted.

Close to Cup

On the 8th, Charlie's tee shot left him with a high shot over a tree on the right of the fairway to hit the green. He played a beautiful 9 iron well over the tree and ended up 8 feet from the cup. His putt for a birdie being on the lip of the cup but he was down in 4. Fraser's second was in the trap at the left. He chipped out too far past the pin and two putted for a five and was two down.

Both hit the 9th green over the pond with their tee shots. Charlie's putt was short but Fraser ran down a beautiful 20 foot curling putt for a birdie 2 and was one down at the turn.

Dunfield squared the match on the tenth, with a screaming drive, perfect 6 iron to the green and 2 putts for a par 4, while Low required a 250 yard drive, a 7 iron, which was short, an approach which hit the side of the green and stopped just on, and 2 putts.

They halved the 11th and 12th in par 4's. On the 495 yard 13th Low was a yard over the green with two long smashes chipped on and sunk the putt for a birdie, while Fraser was taking an orthodox par 5. Low was now 1 up.

He went two up on the 14th, when Fraser used up 6 strokes getting over the 430 yards between tee and cup, while Low had a par 4.

They halved the 15th in par 3's and the 16th in one over par 6's. On the short 150 yard 17th, Low hit the green and was down in three, while Fraser was in the trap at the right and took 3 more to get out. This put Charlie 3 up.

On the 18th, Fraser lost another hole, missing a short one foot putt to take 6 against Charlie's 5 and the first eighteen ended with Low 4 up.

Starting off the afternoon round, Low went 5 up at the 19th, taking a 4 against Fraser's 5. They halved the twentieth with par 5's and Dunfield got one back when he had a par 3 on the 21st against Low's 4. They played the 22nd in par 4's and Fraser won the 23rd when Charlie experienced his only bad hole of the day and ended up with a 7 against Fraser's 5. They halved the 24th with 4's and seemed about to halve the 25th with par 4's when Charlie chose this moment to throw in his approach sinking act and took the hole with a birdie 3, to get 4 up again. Fraser lost a chance to get one back on the 26th when his chip shot was flubbed and he took 5 instead of a 4 to halve the hole. Low had a par 3 on the 27th and Fraser a 4 and Low was 5 up at the turn.

On the 28th, Fraser seemed to be in a favourable position to birdie the hole after a screaming second that carried him to the green about 3 feet from the pin. However, Low laid him a stymie and they halved the hole in 4's. Low won the 29th with a par four against Dunfield's 5 and they halved the 30th and Dunfield was dormie 6.

Low hooked his tee shot into the woods off the 31st tee and was finally down in 6, while Fraser played two booming shots to the green and a birdie 4, to remain dormie 5.

On the 32nd, Dunfield was on the green with two good golf shots while Low was short with his second. He chose this moment to play the second of his approach sinking acts and ran the ball perfectly into the cup for a birdie 3. Fraser tried hard to match the birdie but missed by inches and Charlie Low was the new champion.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Although it is now past the middle of September and we must admit that the summer is on the way out, we believe there will be plenty of bowling yet. At least let us hope so. We have many loose ends to gather up in order to complete the season's schedule.

For to-night and to-morrow night the games were published in this column on Saturday.

We have a special announcement to make, especially to those who have been attending the Saturday evening tournaments. Remember the grand time they had about two weeks ago? Well, there is going to be, this coming Saturday night another such event. We have i[t] from "usually reliable source[s]" that it is going to be tops. Kee[p] Saturday evening open.

The last open tournament of th[e] season to be sponsored by our clu[b] was held on Saturday afternoo[n] and evening. There was a nice re[-]sponse, and with entries from Po[rt] Hope, Belleville and our own clu[b] the entry list was much larger tha[n] last year. The boys played thr[ee] 15-end games right through, with[-]out supper, and were all over [by] 8:30 p.m. The winners were:

First—Peterborough— B. Jeffri[es], G. Snowden, M. Heath, skip.

Second— Peterborough— A. Ma[-]der, G. Coleman, Sr., G. Colem[an,] Jr., skip.

Third—Port Hope — R. Hodge[,] C. Churchley, V. Highfield, skip.

Fourth — Peterborough — [illegible] Hamilton, R. Brown, L. Turn[er,] skip.

Bor's troops. [illegible] "the Germans are also leav[ing] which contained arsenic [illegible] tions which they are fo[rced to] abandon."

Canadian Birds

By G. H. RICHARDSON

During migration birds are apt to wander almost anywhere, following their general course, and so it is a fairly common occurrence to find strange birds in one's garden. One or two trees and some shrubbery will suffice to attract warblers, thrushes, and finches. Several species of the latter are now on the move, and close observation of the ones which pop up before you will likely result in the acquaintance of new species.

The lincoln's sparrow commonly travels in company with the white-crowned sparrow, and the sight of white-crowns put you on the qui-vive for the shyer and less conspicuous bird. The Lincoln's looks in general like a song sparrow with a buff band across the breast and along the sides, in which are fine dark streaks. The song sparrow lacks this buffy undertone across the breast and the streaks are much heavier.

Swamp Sparrow Similar.

The immature swamp sparrow has a similar breast marking to the Lincoln's, but its head is patterned in different shades of grey-brown, while in the Lincoln's there is a contrast between the blue-grey general tone and the dark reddish brown markings.

Then, too, the metallic "chink" call note of the song sparrow is different from the dry "chip" of the swamp, or the sharp "tsst" of the Lincolns. The greater contrast of color in the latter makes it appear as a cleaner bird than those whose pattern is of more similar shades. This bird was first described from Canadian Labrador by the famous naturalist, John James Audobon, and named by him for a young friend who was sharing his travels at the time.

Of the warblers, a common migrant is the Nashville warbler, a tiny bird, soft green on the back, bright yellow below, the upper half of the head slaty blue with a white eye-ring. The Nashville is one of the few warblers in which the plumages of male and female in spring and fall, and immature, are so alike as to be indistinguishable in the field. This species winters from Southern and Central Texas through Mexico to Guatemala.

Vireos Fairly Common.

Red-eyed and blue-headed vireos are two birds likely to be met with among little bands of mixed species. The red-eyed is much the commoner bird. Its young resemble their parents except that their eyes are brown.

The blue-headed or solitary vireo is greenish on the back, while underneath, and yellow on the flanks. Like the Nashville warbler, the top of its head is slaty blue, with a white eye-ring and line from it to the base of the bill. It shows the usual stolid character of the vireos, in its slow and deliberate movements.

This wandering from the normal habitat is not confined to the small land birds, for such birds as rails, gallinules, and bitterns have been discovered in gardens, and grebes have come down on sleety streets, evidently mistaking the reflections of lights on slippery pavement for water. Grebes are unable to take off from land and so are helpless unless some one catches them and returns them to their natural element.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PROJECTING A SQUEEZE

SUCCESS WITH a squeeze play, even a double squeeze, frequently does not at all depend on keeping exact track of every card played by your opponents. In a great many cases, all that is necessary is to figure out what are the last few cards you wish to retain and then play out your series of consecutive winners, watching only to see whether one of the key cards of the opponents get thrown off. If it is, you are home; if not, then you play the last few cards a pre-determined way.

	North
	♠ K 6 5 4 ♥ 9 8 7 4 3 2 ♦ None ♣ A 4 2
West ♠ A (?)	N / W E / S	East ♥ A (?)
	♠ None ♥ K ♦ A K Q J 10 9 8 7 6 3 2 ♣ 3

Carlton Russell, of St. Petersburg, Fla., a great student of the game, devotee of the big duplicates there, and enthusiast about squeeze plays, gives those North and South holdings as an example of his double squeeze technique, which he has used on the defense as well as on the offense. In this case, South is declarer at 5-Diamonds, and West leads a diamond.

After a bit of study, the declarer can safely announce that, if West has the spade A and East the heart A, he claims all thirteen tricks by means of a double squeeze through running his diamonds.

In case the opponents fail to comprehend or dispute his claim, the play goes forward. Ten successive diamonds are run, and unless in the meantime the K of one major suit becomes a winner, the last diamond is led to trick eleven. At that time the dummy retains the spade K and the club A-4; the spade K is discarded on that trick unless it becomes a winner through discard of the A by West. For trick twelve, the club 3 is led unless the heart K has become a winning card through discard of the A by East on the preceding trick.

To follow this method, which in principle is employed by every great card player, you first figure out what cards you wish to leave at the end, and mentally reserve them. This obviates any necessity of remembering all the cards played.

Cardinal Plans To Visit Troops

MONTREAL, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Cardinal Villeneuve, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Quebec, has arrived in Britain after a non-stop flight from Montreal, en route to visit the Pope.

The R.A.F. Transport Command announced that the Cardinal had travelled in a British-built converted Lancaster bomber of Trans-Canada Air Lines. It was his first airplane trip.

After visiting the Pope, on a regular five-yearly report to the head of the church, Cardinal Villeneuve will pay visits to Canadian soldiers in Europe. Whether he would visit those in Northern Europe in addition to Canadians fighting in Italy was not known.

He was accompanied on the ocean-spanning flight by Air Commodore Rt. Rev. J. E. A. Charest, director of the Roman Catholic Chaplain Service of the R.C.A.F., and his secretary, Rev. Paul Nichol.

MENZIES BROTHERS OVERSEAS—In Italy since April, L.-Cpl. Auxiliary Drops Amalgamation

HAVELOCK, Sept. 18 —(ENS)— FO. T. W. Sparks, R.C.A.F., Trenton, liaison officer for the local cadets, met with the Civilian committee and the Women's Auxiliary of the 149th Squadron, Havelock Air Cadets, Thursday in order to meet the new officers, High School Principal A. C. Reed and Public School Principal W. M. Patterson, who are taking over the instruction of the squadron.

Last month at a joint meeting of the two organizations a vote resulted in favor of amalgamating the two societies at the September meeting, but on reconsidering the matter the Women's Auxiliary expressed the wish to remain a separate unit and co-operate as previously with the Civilian committee in all undertakings relating to the squadron.

Owing to the illness of the treasurer of the Women's Auxiliary, Mrs. Gordon Young, the financial report was given by Mrs. C. Taylor as follows: Proceeds from street dance, $745.70; expenses, $315.68; bank balance to date $611.57. A donation of $50 was made for war work, $25 to the local Red Cross Society and $25 to the Eastern Star Patriotic Association.

The Women's Auxiliary decided to meet the first Monday evening of each month, the October meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Cecil Anderson.

Ships got Nickel Alloy lungs

WHEN THE C.P.S. LINER "Duchess of Bedford" slid down the ways in 1928, a new era opened in the design of power plants for ships at sea. This liner was the first to use high pressure steam necessitating the use of highly corrosion-resistant condenser tubes.

The condensers are the lungs of the ship's power plant. They condense the steam so that the fresh water in the boilers can be used over and over again.

The "Duchess of Bedford" provided the final proof that Cupro-Nickel condenser tubes (70% Copper, 30% Nickel) could resist the severe corrosion and give much longer life than previously used metals and so cut down repairs and costly tie-ups.

The Canadian Nickel industry, depressed through the loss of its wartime markets, was quick to take advantage of this new market. Definite improvements in the quality and finish of this Nickel alloy were made. Soon Cupro-Nickel condenser tubes were being used in practically all new ships.

Today Canadian Nickel is again diverted to war purposes, and again the industry looks to the future with confidence. Plans are ready to develop and expand old and new peacetime markets, so that the Nickel industry may continue through its own initiative and enterprise, to make still greater contributions to Canada's welfare.

Soviets Take Tight Grip Along Baltic

Coastal Corridor Narrows Daily Menace 20 Divisions

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 — (AP). — Grinding down German armored reserves at the rate of nearly one panzer division a day, the Red Army has tightened a strangling grip on the enemy's mid-Baltic communications in Latvia in a gigantic five-day battle which may be another fulfillment of Premier Stalin's classic strategy of "surround and destroy."

Front reports to-day indicated there still is no pause in the ferocious engagement begun on Friday west of Jelgava, where the main Baltic roads and railways meet.

The Russians claim to have knocked out 449 tanks and 365 planes on the eastern front in the last four days. Most of this punishment probably has been inflicted in the Baltic sector.

Fate Uncertain.

The fate of the German northern army group, still estimated at more than 20 divisions, may be decided in the next few hours or days if the Nazis fail to keep open the lifeline from East Prussia through the Jelgava area to the forces in Eastern Latvia and Estonia.

A coastal corridor little more than 200 miles wide now connects the Germans north of Riga with those holding Western Latvia and Western Lithuania. The Russians once snapped this lifeline by plunging to the sea, but the Germans re-established it in heavy fighting.

(By German accounts the Russians were making their greatest effort to split the German Baltic forces 87 miles northeast of Riga, instead of in the Jelgava area. Berlin said Red Army units in that area had outflanked Valga by crossing the little Embajogi river, but the Russians said nothing of fighting there.

(Berlin declared that three Soviet armies totalling more than 500,000 men had been hurled against the German Baltic positions and one commentator predicted an imminent onslaught by a fourth in the Narva sector of Estonia's northeastern coast.

Allies Scoring New Gains On Gothic Line

ROME, Sept. 19.—(AP).—Breaking through formidable Nazi fortifications and scoring what was officially termed a "great success," Allied 5th Army troops yesterday captured 3,300-foot Monte Partone, Monte Altuzzo and Monte Celli in the Gothic Line 20 miles northeast of Florence.

Meanwhile British and Canadian troops of the British 8th Army widened their bridgehead over the Marano river in the Adriatic sector and captured the villages of Cerasolo and Feetano.

The M.A.A.F. flew about 2,000 sorties, attacking targets in Yugoslavia and Central Hungary as well as hitting shipping and battlezone objectives.

American troops of the 5th Army took the heights northeast of Florence after one of the fiercest days of fighting in the entire Italian campaign, official field dispatches said.

British and Indian troops of the 5th Army contributed materially to the American success by executing flanking movements.

Fire 2,000 Shells.

The Germans opposed the attack with extreme concentrations of artillery fire — in one barrage 2,000 shells were fired — and also made "maximum use of mortars and small arms," Headquarters said.

Meanwhile British troops of the 8th Army, beating back heavy enemy opposition, drove into the little republic of San Marino near the Adriatic coast.

San Marinos frontier was crossed at the town of Faetano, where the Marano River intersects the border. A bridgehead was established there and British units advanced one mile toward the city of San Marino itself.

Describing the bitter action for the mountain positions, an official report said:

"In addition to most determined resistance by the veteran German troops equipped with small arms and supporting weapons the 5th Army force had to negotiate rugged mountain passes. Even the crests were fortified with dug-in positions and concrete pillboxes. Emplacements with tank turret tops also were encountered."

The entire area was interlaced with wire entanglements.

The successful attack brought the

Finns Sign Armistice With Allies

Terms Of Agreement Not Revealed Reported Severe

LONDON, Sept. 19 —(CP)—The Moscow radio announced today that Finland had signed an armistice with Russia and Britain.

The first brief announcement, broadcast by the Soviet information office and recorded here by the Soviet Monitor, did not give the terms. They will be disclosed later.

The official statement, however, listed the names of those participating in the negotiations which were in progress from Sept. 14 until today, when the agreement was signed.

Britain and Russia signed the terms as representatives of the United Nations.

A dispatch from Stockholm said it was reliably reported there that the armistice terms were formally approved by the Finnish parliament in an early-morning session.

A Finnish news agency dispatch to Stockholm from Helsinki said the deputies assembled in a closed meeting at 6:15 a.m., at which time the government presented "a document." Shortly afterward the parliament passed to the order of the day which, under Finnish parliamentary procedure, constitutes a vote of confidence.

Finnish sources said they expected the terms would be published officially later today, the Stockholm dispatch said.

There still was no reliable advance picture of the details of the armistice, but the Swedish press generally, on the basis of fragmentary reports, characterized them as "hard."

The stipulation causing the Finns most anxiety was said to be a Russian demand for a 50-year lease of the Porkkala naval base on the Finnish Gulf. Stockholm reported that one well-informed Finnish source said this demand embraced use of territory stretching inland from Porkkala to a point only eight miles from Helsinki.

This same source said Finnish troops already had begun operations against the Germans in Northern Finland, but it was unknown whether actual fighting had developed. In some areas the Germans were said to be retiring.

The broadcast Moscow statement announcing the peace said:

"During the period September 14 to September 19 negotiations took place in Moscow between representatives of the Soviet Union and Great Britain, acting on behalf of all the United Nations at war with Finland on the one hand, and a delegation of the Finnish Government on the other on the question of concluding an armistice with Finland.

"The following took part in negotiations on the Soviet side:

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Sept. 19—(CP Cable).—Ontario infantry today were fighting their way across to the western side of Boulogne after occupying most of the larger eastern section of the great Channel port.

Canadian shock troops were encircling the western section of the town and remnants of strong perimeter hill defences to the north and northeast and had taken 2,000 prisoners.

German forces in western Boulogne and its southern fortifications were still resisting stubbornly and keeping roads leading into the town under a hail of shellfire, but clearing weather promised a renewal of a blitz on these positions by the R.A.F.'s tactical air force.

Ontario infantrymen who swept down on eastern Boulogne and the heavily-bombed dock area yesterday now have gained a foothold across the port and the River Liane which flows from it to the southeast.

Heavy Bombing.

The enemy is holding the western section of the town in strength and have good observation points from their remaining hill positions, behind which are concrete defences.

From their captured high points such as Mont Lambert, however, the Canadians are able to observe nearly all the positions from which the Germans are still fighting and can bring down the full weight on their tremendous artillery concentrations and also direct attacks by aircraft.

Canadian assault forces which overcame German positions running northeast of Mont Lambert, today were clearing up enemy pockets along the coast and at Cap Gris Nez.

British Join Paratroopers Take Eindhoven In Holland

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 19 — (AP). — A powerful, growing army of Allied sky troops which vaulted across the Rhine in Holland battled forward today, threatening to break through into northern German around the flank of the Siegfried Line.

The lower Rhine was knocked out as a German defence line. The British 2nd Army in a ground push linked with other airborne forces landed farther south in Holland, and a front dispatch said it had seized Eindhoven, seventh largest Netherlands city, 10 miles north of the Belgian border.

The airborne army descended in the area of Nijmegen and Arnhem, near the Reich and astride the two lower branches of the Rhine, as well as near Eindhoven, Supreme Headquarters disclosed.

British ground forces were reported already 12 miles north of Eindhoven, or halfway to Nijmegen and Arnhem. The northern forces near those towns had blocked out Nazi reserves, virtually cut off Rotterdam, The Hague, and Amsterdam, and more than held their own in a fight for key roads and bridges on both sides of the Rhine.

Arnhem on the Neder Ryn (Rhine) is 10 miles north of Nijmegen, which is 15 miles northwest of Cleve, believed to be the upper anchor of the Siegfried Line.

Berlin indicated the new airborne landings above the Rhine delta, in the area near Rotterdam, Amsterdam and The Hague. This would put the battlefront in the heart of Holland, and across the last great Netherlands water barrier.

Three American armies meanwhile were battering slowly toward the Rhine in Germany, cutting through defences before that river which guards Cologne, Strasbourg, and Mulhouse.

Eindhoven, a big communications centre, and Geldrop seven miles to the east, were swept up by the British 2nd Army plunge from Belgium. They lie about 10 miles from the Belgian border. British units already had struck on farther north, Coming to aid of Allied sky soldiers ousting the Germans from village after village, and seizing strategic bridges and crossroads.

Berlin, which yesterday declared the airborne troops had been wiped out, today detailed the areas where Lt.-Gen. Brereton's plane-ferried men were fighting.

Front reports said the Germans rushed in heavy artillery in a desperate attempt to halt the forward shove of the airborne army.

Berlin declared more troops had landed from planes and gliders for

Canucks Take San Martino Driven Out 5 Times By Huns

By BILL BOSS—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Sept. 19—(CP Cable).—The battle for Rimini went on last night with fury unabated. San Martino, a hill town two miles south of the key Adriatic port, remained in German hands after Canadian formations five times had entered it and five times been driven out again.

French - speaking forces, after a stiff battle from the Marano River 2½ miles northwest to Martino Hill—a battle in which companies like that led by Maj. Frehcmont Trudeau of Rimouski, Que., attacked four solid days without rest—have handed over the task to Western battalions.

One of these was thrown out of San Martino once Sunday and twice Sunday night. Another, a Prairie battalion, was repulsed twice yesterday in stabs into the town.

A Bitter Battle.

On the Canadians' right flank, Rimini airport has been largely cleared. Greek forces of the 8th Army advanced beyond it along the coast. Ontario, Quebec and Maritime infantry regiments with Ontario Highlanders are pushing forward northwest of the airfield, striking toward Rimini.

In this sector the fighting is most bitter and at closest quarters. North of the airport are a series of canals and deep irrigation ditches, now dry, and the fight goes on from ditch to ditch. With grenades, sticky bombs, bayonets and hand-to-hand combat the battle rages.

Planes Cover Paratroop Attack Area

700 Bombers Hit Hamm, Soest Behind Siegfried Line

LONDON, Sept. 19 — (AP) — Around 700 United States heavy bombers attacked German railyards at Hamm and Soest to-day while other hundreds of Allied planes reinforced and supplied the airborne army invading Holland.

Hamm is on teh main Berlin-Cologne trunk, just behind the pierced Siegfried Line. Soest is in the same general Rhenish Prussian area, 28 miles east of Dortmund.

During the night, R. A. F. heavy bombers rained 420,000 fire bombs on the German port of Bremerhaven, lighting it from end to end. R. A. F. Mosquitos attacked Berlin for the 179th time, using two-ton bombs.

(The United States Federal communications Commission said the Budapest radio broadcast an air raid warning this morning, suggesting the Mediterranean Air Force also was out).

The attack upon Bremerhaven, at the mouth of the Weber River 34 miles northwest of Bremen, was made by a powerful force of heavy bombers.

"Visibility was good and the bombing was well concentrated," the Air Ministry declared.

Bremerhaven would be a logical debarkation point for German troops in the event of a withdrawal from Norway.

The attack upon Berlin, executed by Mosquitos carrying two-ton blockbusters, was the sixth raid on the German capital in a week. R.A.F. night fighters and intruder aircraft supported the bombers and shot up German airfields.

The Air Ministry listed total losses in the overnight operations as four planes.

Japanese Flee Dead Unburied

KANDY, Ceylon, Sept. 19 (CP)—The British 14th Army again caught up with the retreating Japanese 33rd Division today in the Burma border area and pressed the attack with artillery support.

Artillery was brought up despite terrain conditions after Indian troops developed their crossings of Manipur River. Advancing Allied forces also had air support, indicating a strong effort at covering the remaining 20 miles to Tiddim.

The Japanese were falling back without taking time to bury their dead. More than 200 bodies were found unburied during a 12-day period.

Allied planes again were aloft throughout Burma attacking encampments and rivercraft in Arakan and similar targets on the Tiddim road and in Chindwin. Medium bombers left large fires at Bhamo while other aircraft scored hits on the west and east approaches of Okshitpin, 10 miles east of Prome.

In the battle for the Burma Road Monsoon rains restricted both air and ground activity, a dispatch from Chungking said. Chinese forces were reported to have made slight gains in their attack on the northern and eastern outskirts of Lungling proper from the recently-captured "old" town just north of the Burma Road base.

Robot Bombs Kill Thirteen

LONDON, Sept. 19 (CP)—Robot bombs apparently launched from planes over the North Sea crashed on London and southern England early today, killing a number of women and children. Some of the victims had ignored government appeals to remain at evacuation centres.

The attack was brief but at least 13 were killed, nine at one place and four at another.

Government officials repeated warnings that it was idiotic for women and children to return.

Of one family named Chumley, only blond five-year-old Margaret remained alive today after a buzz-bomb landed in a garden. The bodies of her two sisters, an infant brother, mother and father were dug from the wreckage of the house. The sisters had just returned from evacuation.

Shortly before noon, big guns on the British Channel coast started throwing shells across the Strait of Dover. Warnings were sounded in Dover after 30 hours of freedom from German shelling.

Where the Germans are now launching the robots has not been learned. The fact that the recent attacks have included only a few bombs suggests they may have been loosed from aircraft. Some coastal areas still are held by the Germans, however, and there is said to be a possibility that the range of the robots may have been stepped up so that launching sites well inland could be used.

EXTRA!

LONDON (CP)—The German radio declared Allied parachute troops made new landings today in the Netherlands Provinces of Utrecht and Gelderland, and said "fighting is now taking place north of the great rivers."

Fall Of Brest To Come Soon

LONDON, Sept. 19— (CP) —The great French port of Brest was "only smoking runs" to-day and the surviving German garrison has retreated to the Le Crozon Peninsula just south of the harbour roadstead for a last-ditch stand, the German high command communique said today.

The last days of elements of three German divisions under Lt.-Gen. Hermann Ramcke, beseiged since August 6, appeared at hand.

Position of Brest, France's fourth greatest port, in Hitler's Atlantic wall was rendered untenable when American 3rd Army troops severed the Brittany Peninsula in the break-through from Normandy. A tank column entered the city on Aug. 6, but was forced out. In recent weeks, the siege force has been built up.

Brest lies 389 rail miles west of Paris and has excellent communications with other parts of France. It has one of the finest naval station in Europe, a mile of deep water quays and splendid deep water anchorages.

Danish Buildings Occupied By Nazis

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 19 —(AP)—Copenhagen dispatches said that the Germans had occupied all government buildings in the Danish capital and all police stations throughout Denmark in a lightning move shortly before noon today.

The report said the Germans staged a false air alarm over Denmark and, while citizens took shelter, the Nazis moved into the buildings.

The Free Danish press service said the occupation order was issued at Gestapo headquarters in Copenhagen three days ago.

Gliders Carry Heavy Artillery

WITH THE ALLIED 1ST AIRBORNE ARMY IN HOLLAND, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Germans are bringing up heavy artillery today in an attempt to destroy a strategic canal which American troops seized intact in the southern sector.

Throughout the night artillery roared on the perimeter of this "airborne" island as the Nazis lobbed shells at a river crossing, without which the British armored push through Holland would be seriously delayed.

Gliders carrying American parachute troops were reinforced yesterday by hundreds of gliders carrying artillery.

Today troops were eliminating artillery resistance and paving the path for armor. Suicidal German gunners were sticking to their 88s and mortars until the Americans were within pistol range.

This policy was proving fatal—the 88s are "suckers" for bazookas.

American troops captured the first important industrial city in Holland yesterday, opening the way for British armor from the south.

Some veterans who saw Paris freed said the Netherlanders even in the tiniest villages were outdoing the French in hysterical welcome.

Prisoners are dribbling in in groups of 10 to 20, most of them poor specimens, and most of them 18. Unarmed Dutch men, women and children are pouncing on them and holding them for the Americans.

Insanity, Suicides Reduce Number Of War Criminals

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(AP).—Persons looking forward to spectacular post-war trials of war criminals are likely to be disappointed. There may not be any "war criminals" left to try.

The possibility of such an outcome emerged as the United Nations War Crimes Commission confessed after nine months' labor that its task of bringing criminals to justice is proving extremely complicated and to some extent slipping out of its hands.

The Commission's headquarters in the London Law Courts has gathered voluminous files of evidence of Axis atrocities and the chairman, Sir Cecil Hurst, said a partial list of offenders recommended for trial has been compiled. He declined, however, to say who or how many are on it.

The plain fact is that the Commission cannot do more than the United Nations governments authorized it to do. It is up to the individual countries to decide how to handle the cases of war criminals in their own hands. The Soviet Union is not participating in the work of the Crimes Commission.

The Russians began conducting their own trials of war criminals last December when the commission was still busy with details of organization. Russia has condemned and executed a number of them.

Battle casualties, including guerilla actions, assassinations, suicides, air raids and insanity almost certainly will remove many war criminals from the jurisdiction of the Crimes Commission.

Offenders clearly insane could be killed by summary action, but not punished in the legal sense. (Britain's most prominent Nazi prisoner, Rudolf Hess, is understood to be a mental case now.)

The status of tens of thousands of ordinary German, Italian or puppet soldiers who executed hostages or committed other atrocities under direct commands of superiors is somewhat doubtful.

The French Forces of the Interior and Belgium Patriots have been dealing with many collaborationists. This exuberant wave of popular justice is likely to engulf all Europe before the last shot is fired.

Inside Germany the situation may be complicated by the disillusioned Germans inflicting vengeance on the thousands of Nazi officials and the Gestapo now browbeating them into a last-ditch defence. The Germas might even surprise the world by killing Hitler before the post-war argument over what to do with him could start.

MONTREAL, Sept. 19 —(CP) — Close to 500 official delegates, alternates and advisors rpresenting 44 United and Associated Nations settled down to work to-day on the second meeting of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration, the world agency devoted to succoring some 100,000,00 war victims.

The meeting was launched formally yesterday with an address of welcome by Prime Minister Mackenzie King who declared mutual aid had defeated the common enemies of democracy and its principles if properly applied, would bring about the desired order.

Many important subjects of organization and planning face the council at this first meeting since the organization was set up at Atlantic

Canuck Misses Prison Camp

Takes Over Defence Of Paris Hotel

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

PARIS, Sept. 19 — (CP). — A young company commander of the Fusiliers Mont Royal played a part in the fighting within this scarred French capital just before the city's liberation.

He is Major Fernand Mousseau of Hull, Que., who had been captured by the Germans south of Caen about a month before the liberation. When the Germans tried to take him prisoner, he threw grenades at them and they shot him in the arm to subdue him.

He was in a Paris hospital when the Battle of Paris started and he took over the defence of the Hotel de Ville Prefecture and the Palais de Justice. He was in a dozen skirmishes.

"We started with almost nothing," he said. "Then we acquired all sorts of weapons and at the end we had enough explosives to blow up Paris."

The young officer said he missed being sent to a German camp with other injured Canadian prisoners by two hours.

In good spirits, Major Mousseau said he expected to rejoin his unit soon.

Riots Flare In Denmark

Hun Marines Fire On Royal Guards

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(CP Reuter).—The German-controlled Danish radio said at 4 p.m. to-day that fighting has occurred on the square outside the royal palace at Amalienborg, where King Christian recently took up residence.

Fighting broke out between a detachment of German marines and Danish Royal Guards with losses on both sides, it was said.

The report of fighting at Amalienborg followed swiftly another Danish radio announcement that the Germans had dissolved all Danish police forces and taken over the task of maintaining order throughout the country.

"Anyone found in possession of firearms will be shot. All use of motor cars in the country districts has been prohibited until Sept. 21 when special German permits have to be obtained," the announcement said.

The statement charged the Danish police with having assisted "murderers and saboteurs" and announced the Germans have declared "a state of police emergency" throughout Denmark.

Large Cities Too Greedy Council Feels

"It used to be that I never paid any attention to the designation of Toronto as "Hog Town," but I am beginning to think there is something in it," said Alderman Glover Monday night as the city council discussed several resolutions from Windsor.

The border city wanted the Ontario Government to make some definite announcement of the assistance it was going to provide municipalities in their housing and slum clearing programs.

"Both these cities get into controversies with each other," Mayor Hamilton said. "They spend money on campaigns to get new industries and they get them, too.

With the new industries they naturally get a demand for housing, and immediately they turn to the Dominion and Ontario governments demanding that they do something about these Toronto and Windsor housing problems."

Grab Everything

Mayor Hamilton remarked that these two Ontario cities have their hands out for everything they can reach.

"They get the benefit of new industries, but they then begin looking to the Ottawa and Ontario Governments for housing help. I think it is about time both Toronto and Windsor began to assume their own housing responsibility."

"Surely they ought to be facing their own housing problems," Mayor Hamilton added.

The council refused to act as a rubber stamp of approval to the Windsor importunity of the Government of Ontario in that matter. Alderman Dutton said he did not think the province would do anything anyway until there was some definite arrangement with the Dominion Government.

"Thank goodness we have no slums here," Alderman Dutton said.

"Well, what are you going to do with this Windsor letter," Mayor Hamilton asked. "Received"—Alderman Bradburn moved and Alderman Ovens seconded the motion.

Who'll Get It?

Another Windsor resolution urged the Governments, national and provincial, to do everything possible to facilitate the culmination of the family allowances bill.

"How will we be sure that the children for whom this assistance is intended, will get it?" Alderman Dutton asked.

"That's the $64 question," Alderman Bradburn commented.

"There is always that chance and uncertainty," said Alderman Glover. "It applies to the employee's pay cheque; and we had the same experience during the period when there had to be relief. It is one of those human chances that we have to take as society."

Alderman Bradburn said the proposed aid was already in the books for next July 1, an Alderman Sullivan added: "Don't let's get into politics by endorsing it."

The Windsor resolution drew a blank Monday night in their Peterborough pause along the the municipal round of the province.

Marines Hold Half Of Island

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 19 (AP)—American Marines have occupied Asias, principal town on Peleliu Island on the Palau group east of the Philippines, and have captured Ngarmoked Island, off the southern tip of Peleliu, United States Pacific Fleet headquarters announced today.

The 81st American Army Division, which landed Saturday (North American time) on Angaur Island, six miles south of Peleliu, now controls the northern half of the island, it was announced.

Heavy fighting continued on Peleliu, where 5,495 Japanese had been killed through Sunday, at least half of the defending force.

Enemy dead on Angaur, where light resistance had been encountered, totalled 48. Several enemy counter-attacks there had been repulsed.

The marines occupied Asias Sunday after repulsing a counter-attack the previous night on their western flank. Mopping-up operations were progressing in the southern sector of the island, which is 600 miles east of Davao, principal city of the Southern Philippines.

Omaok and Ngarekeuki, villages on Peleliu, also were captured. Progress was chiefly along the western side, where the going is steep and difficult.

The invasions of these two islands and the landing on Morotai in the Moluccas, 560 miles to the southwest, posed a triple threat to the Philippines.

REPORTED MISSING — FO. Clare Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brooks, Young's Point, has been reported missing while serving with the R.C.A.F. overseas.

OBITUARIES

MRS. LIZA JANE MURRAY.

One of the largest funerals that has taken place in the township of Ennismore in many years was that of the late Mrs. Liza Jane Murray, which was held from the home of her son, Patrick, this morning to St. Martin's Church, where High Mass was offered for the repose of her soul by her pastor, Rev. V. J. Gillogly, who also conducted the burial services in St. Martin's Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Murray was Ennismore's grand old lady, being the oldest in the township. She was born Liza Jane Perdue, eighty-seven years ago, and had been a resident of that township during her entire life. She had a charming disposition which endeared her to old and young, evidenced by the extraordinary large number of spiritual offerings left at her late residence by neighbors and friends from far and near.

The deceased was an exemplary citizen, an inspiration to all who had the pleasure of knowing her; a pious, faithful and lifelong member of St. Martin's Church, and was deeply interested in all its activities.

Casket bearers were three grandsons, Messrs. Frank, Patrick and Thomas Murray, and three nephews, Frank McCormick, Leonard McAuliffe and Norman Gannon.

JEREMIAH FITZGERALD.

The funeral of Jeremiah Fitzgerald life long resident of Otonabee who passed away at the family residence on the Keene Road took place on Saturday morning to the Sacred Heart Church and was one of the largest gathering of relatives, friends and neighbours in attendance at a funeral service for some time.

Solemn Requiem Mass was offered by the pastor, Right Rev. Monsignor J. J. O'Brien as celebrant. Rev. Capt. F. M. Grant deacon and Rev. John Couglin sub-deacon.

Spiritual and floral tokens presented at his late residence to the family gave testimony of the esteem and friendship enjoyed by deceased in the community where he exemplified a kind husband and father and a neighbour always ready and willing to lend a helping hand to those in need. Mr. Fitzgerald had been in failing health for some time, due to advanced years.

Interment was made in St. Peter's Cemetery. Rev. Dr. Grant conducting the services at the graveside.

Pallbearers were his six sons, James, John, Thomas, Frank, Leo, and Fred Fitzgerald.

Deceased had been a faithful member of the Church of the Sacred Heart even since it was built.

Man Not Guilty In Dog Killing

Finding as a fact that Thomas E. Curvin's dogs had been running a deer on the June day in which one was shot and killed and the other wounded, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C., in police court Monday afternoon found Vincent Dunford, Douro Township, not guilty on a charge of having illegally shot one of the dogs.

His Worship said that under the law any one might shoot at sight a dog running deer and that therefore Dunford, who admitted the shooting but claimed justification had a legal right to kill the dog. Magistrate Langley also pointed out that it was an offence to allow dogs to run at large in country frequented by deer and he held that the section of Douro township in which Curvin's dog had been killed was deer country within the meaning of the act.

Hearing of the case took most of day. The crown's theory was that the dogs had been digging at a ground hog's hole when they were shot but Dunford swore that he heard the dogs baying, saw a deer run through the bush and had secured his rifle and shot at the pair of dogs, killing the large animal and wounding the small dog in the ear.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K. C., prosecuted the case while Dunford was defended by John A. Bradshaw.

On the intimation that Selective Service officials would find a place for the boy in the Merchant Marine, Gerald Lalonde, 13, who pleaded guilty in police court Monday to a charge of vagrancy was allowed to go when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning.

Americans within 27 miles of Bologna, important communications and industrial centre in the Po Valley. Most of the intervening terrain, however, is rough and well fortified.

The entire 5th Army moved forward in pace with the attack.

Brazilians near the west coast drove on northward, but the exact rate of their advance or the opposition they encountered was not specified.

Embittered fighting without substantial changes in the situation continued near the Adriatic south of Rimini. West of San Martino, Canadians advanced to the Ausa River at a point about three airline miles southwest of Romini in a heavy battle with enemy tanks and infantry.

Greeks Gain

See-saw fighting continued for San Martino itself. The Germans were making lavish use of tanks, mortars and other weapons. Greek troops reached the northern edge of Rimini airfield, two miles from the edge of the city.

R.A.F. fighter-bombers paved the way for the Greek advance by pinpoint bombing of pillboxes surmounted by Panther tank turrets.

Before crossing San Martino's frontiers, the British captured Monte Olivo and a wide ridge commanding the Ausa valley.

The latest 8th Army attacks toward the major Allied goal — a break-through into the Po valley—were accompanied by one of the heaviest day-and-night aerial offensives ever made on enemy defences in Italy.

Ten separate striking forces of medium bombers made a six-hour attack on a heavily-fortified area immediately northwest of Rimini yesterday. R.A.F. medium and heavy bombers followed up last night, dropping 300 tons of bombs within five minutes on a zone three miles long and one mile wide.

(Broadcasts from Germany said Red Army units had made "deep penetration" northwest of Tartu in the direction of Tallinn, Estonian capital.)

Official silence screened details of the Soviet-Polish operations in the Warsaw area, but German strong points in the capital continued under heavy Russian artillery fire.

In the Carpathian highlands of Southern Galicia, Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukrainian Army pressed on from the captured communications network centred in Ustriki-Dolnie, but the enemy retained a strong bulge of positions on the approaches to the Czechoslovak frontier.

Petrov's difficulties of terrain equalled or surpassed those of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky in northern Transylvania where the Russian-Romanian advance was slowed down sharply.

For nearly 48 hours there has been no news of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's progress in Bulgaria west or south of Sofia, but he is believed continuing to fan out at the rear of the German garrisons remaining in the Southern Balkans.

Canucks Take

For the German paratroopers it is a struggle to the death to hold the Gothic Line. For the Canadian forces it is the toughest fight they have engaged in so far in Italy. Little by little the Hun is being forced back—at a price.

To the left of San Martino, a New Brunswick Regiment, having established advantageous positions near the Rimini-San Marino railway, now is working toward San Fortunato, a stubbornly-defended height about two miles southwest of Rimini.

Fortunato has been battered from the air and by artillery as part of the general softening-up job but to reach it the Canadians must brave a storm of shell and mortar fire such as they have never faced before. Elements of 12 enemy divisions oppose them, an enormous buildup from the three in this area when the attack opened.

Heroic Attacks.

In rear-guard operations the German has fought brilliantly, while in the advance against challenging conditions the British 8th Army—and it possible to say this without boasting, especially of the Canadians—has fought heroically.

To the left of the Canadians, British troops are reported forcing the Germans back on the Fortunato pivot point, swinging in a large arc through the tiny independent state of San Marino.

(The 8th Army command earlier made known that the attack could be diverted around the little state whose capital is 11 miles southwest of Rimini, because the German forces had overrun it and set up defence positions there.)

Eighth Army forces are reported to have penetrated the borders of San Marino in four places, deeply in two of them.

The Canadians were supported yesterday by 486 air sorties, the most yet. Panther tank turrets set up on Rimini airport were neutralized Sunday by excellent air bombing, when a 1,000-pound bomb dropped less than 400 yards from the Canadian positions scored a direct hit.

17 in Ambulance

Pte. Eddie Harrison, of Toronto, driver of a jeep ambulance, evacuated from the front under heavy shell and mortar fire most of the 175 casualties cleared from the regimental aid post operated by Capt. Gerald W. W. Cantelon, of Windsor, Ont.

This is one of many aid posts operating at full speed during the attack. On one load alone Harrison carried 17 passengers, 13 wounded men and four stretcher-bearers.

A field dressing station run by Maj. George Wood, of Montreal, on Saturday cleared 350 Canadians, not counting British tankmen, Greek infantrymen, Italian civilians or German prisoners of war.

the third successive day, and hinted some had descended north of the Rhine delta, in the area where Rotterdam, Amsterdam and The Hague lie.

Evacuated Brest.

Evacuation of the Brittany port of Brest also was acknowledged by German broadcasts.

While the flanking sweep developed in the Netherlands, the main weight of the Allied land assault was battering through the Rhineland on the last 20 or 25 miles to Cologne. Other U.S. columns were hitting through the Lorraine Gap in new gains beyond Nancy, and closing steadily upon Belfort farther south, gateway to Southwestern Germany.

The Germans hurled in reserves from the Russian front, risked some of their remaining planes and fired their biggest artillery barrages since the Normandy fighting. But despite their stiffened stand, Americans captured four more border towns, and reached three others.

Today's communique said 1st Canadian Army troops driving into the great channel port of Boulogne had made further progress but did not indicate how soon the fall of that supply-funnel might be expected.

Last night front reports said Canadian infantry were cutting Boulogne's garrison of an estimated 4,000 into isolated pockets, and taking hundreds of prisoners.

A hundred miles northeast of Boulogne, Polish units under Lt.-Gen. Crerar's command restored their bridgehead across the Hudst Canal about 20 miles west of Antwerp. Canadian tanks and infantry moved up in strength to the eastern branch of the Leopold Canal after crossing the western branch of the tough, 270-foot water barrier.

The air vault into Holland—in the greatest airborne operation of history—carried the gravest immediate menace to the stubborn German defence of the homeland.

The German-reported landings north of the Rhine delta, plus landings they said were made earlier at Nijmegen and Arnhemon and north of the Rhine near the German frontier, would seal off every main east-west road from Germany to Rotterdam, The Hague and Amsterdam through the dike-guarded lowlands south of the Netherlands inland sea.

Last War Barrier.

By this account, the Allied 1st Airborne Army had leaped the last and greatest Netherlands water barrier, and put the fighting in the rich heart of the Netherlands.

Allied armor would need only to smash 35 to 40 miles north of Eindhoven to complete the link-up, and turn the Germans' Rhine defences.

Airborne reinforcements were thrown in steadily by the Allies.

West of Antwerp, in Belgium, Allied troops crossed northward into the Netherlands.

In Germany a bitter fight raged toward a climax in the important city of Aachen.

Regina Sailor Describes Narrow Escape

Only Peterborough sailor aboard the corvette Regina when she sank off Land's End on August 8, Able Seaman William Oliver (Jim) Hawley, 18, says he owes his life to the fact that he was on the port side of the ship at the instant disaster struck. "The men below decks and the fellows on the starboard side are all listed as either killed or missing," he said this morning.

H.M.C.S. Regina, which was escorting a convoy leaving England for the French coast, went down in 28 seconds after being struck in an unexplained manner. "None of us really knew what happened," Seaman Hawley told The Examiner, "not even 'the old man.' We don't know whether it was a mine, a torpedo or what."

The sailor, home since Sunday on a combined survivors' leave and foreign service leave, is staying with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hawley, 125 Hilliard street. He has a 60 days' furlough. Hospitalized for two weeks after his rescue from the oil-covered waters where the Regina went down, Hawley returned to this country on the same ship that brought Prime Minister Churchill to Canada to attend the Quebec conference.

Saw Churchill

"I saw him a couple of times," Seaman Hawley recollected, "and he looked pretty good. A detachment of Royal Marines made up his personal escort, but several of us Navy boys stood hall-guard along the corridors and in front of the rooms where he met with his ministers."

The sinking of the Regina has been this sailor's one close call in his eight months of duty overseas both on convettes and destroyers; and the grin with which he answered query leaves no doubt in a questioner's mind that he is quite satisfied to consider the single experience enough.

"It's hard to see how it could have been a mine that we hit," Jim Hawley said. "We were standing off a Liberty ship which was going down after striking a mine. Our captain was directing the rescue of the crippled vessel's crew from the bridge. I was on the bridge myself, standing watch for the gun-crew on the port side.

Sank In Seconds.

"Suddenly there was an explosion, sheets of flame and our ship immediately listed heavily to port. In a matter of seconds I found myself on a level with the water. I jumped and swam away from the ship as the other fellows were doing and reached a danbuoy, a type of buoy which we use for measuring depths. There the "old man" and five or six lads joined me. When I had my hand on the buoy I glanced over my shoulder to see what had become of the ship. The forecastle swayed back and forth and disappeared from sight as the Regina slid under the oily waters. It all took about 28 seconds.

So fast did the ship go under, Seaman Hawley stated, that there was no danger from suction. He says that the sailors stationed below decks never had a chance; and that those on deck to starboard appeared to have been killed by the explosion "Our sinking was quite a contrast to that of the Liberty ship," re related. "It didn't go under for 60 minutes, every man aboard was taken off alive, and most of their gear was rescued as well."

The young Peterborough tar, who enlisted in the Navy a year and a half ago, clung to the buoy in the oil-covered water for nearly 20 minutes before he and his comrades were picked up. A trawler sent out a seaboat to bring them aboard, and later they were transferred to a LCT and returned to the English shore.

Seaman Hawley made numerous trips on invasion operations before the last, ill-fated voyage of Regina; but in those few agonizing moments, though remaining unhurt himself, he cost several good pals.

Close comradeship, he says, is the rule on a small ship the size of a corvette: and he liked the life that was his lot aboard the ship that now is no more.

Peterboro Girl In Train Wreck

Leaving the Chateau Frontenac, where she was working with the Wartime Information Board in connection with the Churchill-Roosevelt conference, Mrs. H. R. Dawson, 760 Stewart street, was on the C.P.R. 14-coach train that was derailed ten miles east of Three Rivers, Quebec, Monday afternoon. Although the train was wrecked, miraculously, no one was injured.

Mrs. Dawson went to Ottawa for work with the W.I.B. in July, 1943, after her husband, Harold Dawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dawson, 571 Water street, enlisted in the R.C.A.F.

Mrs. Dawson telephoned F. H. Dawson, her father-in-law, who was in Ottawa at the time, that she was uninjured, and the good news was quickly relayed to her husband, stationed at Mountain View, and the rest of the family here.

A former Peterborough boy, H. R. Armstrong, Ottawa correspondent for the Toronto Daily Star, was also aboard the train.

The freak accident took place at 3.30 in the afternoon.

Two Men In Court As Result Of Fight

As the result of a fight near the South Beach Hotel, Monday night, two young men, Royal Clark, Peterborough and Donald A. Pearson, Toronto, faced two charges in police court this morning.

Clark who said that he had been discharged from the Army only last week, pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor and also to assaulting Rodney McNaughton, beverage room waiter at the South Beach Hotel, accassioning actual bodily harm. Pearson also entered a plea of guilty to the liquor charge but pleaded not guilty to assault.

As the crown witnesses were not available when the cases were called hearing of evidence in the charges was deferred until this afternoon's session.

This morning, George Sharp, who pleaded not guilty to attempted abortion, was tried in camera and the case had not been completed when court adjourned for luncheon.

City last November but probably the most contentious will be the question of carrying relief to the needy peoples of enemy countries.

No specific provision was made at oringinal meeting for work among these people and a move to do so is expected to meet with strong resistance from delegates representing people who have felt the more cruel aspects of Axis aggression.

However, the feeling among observers here is that a formula will be worked out under which the humanitarian provisions of the administration will be available to all the suffering victims of the war.

For Wednesday, September 20.

A MODERATELY successful and busy day is read from predominant planetary aspects, both lunar and mutual. Employers, influential persons, especially in political, diplomatic, community and corporation affiliations should move to satisfactory agreements which should be made with care and consideration, and with a degree of precaution against speculative investments and other dubious alliances. In personal relations there may be happy readjustments with elders or relatives.

If It Is Your Bithday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of moderate success and happiness, with some sort of public or group recognition and cooperation. Employers, elders, and those in influential posts many be approached for support and favors with confidence, a friendly condition also to be found in connection wtih social, domestic or literary affiliations. Public relations and travel are encouraged.

A child born on this day should be possessed of versatility and talents fitting it for progress and a place in literary, business or domestic and social prestige and success, with elders cooperative.

Miss G. Clark Returns Home

Arriving in Toronto Monday morning from China, by way of Bombay and Los Angeles, Miss Greta Clark, missionary in China for the last six years, and previously since 1919, is expected to visit her relatives and friends in the Peterborough district within the next few days.

Miss Clark was met at the Union Station Monday morning, by her sisters, Mrs. Frank Webster of Norwood, Mrs. Ernie Oke, Cochrane, Ontario, Mrs. Stanley Lowes, and family, from Omemee, and Mrs. Frank Huffman, of Toronto, and her brothers, Milton A. Clark and Howard Clark, who were accompanied by their wives. Canon J. D. Paterson and his son, Rev. J. Douglas and Mrs. Paterson were also present.

It was understood that Miss Clark made her way out of China by airplane, but the details were not mentioned for the present.

"We were all very pleased at her appearance, considering what she has gone through," said Mrs. Milton Clark this afternoon.

Miss Clark was first commissioned to the China field by the Anglican Missionary Board of Toronto in 1919.

Tea, Coffee Rationing Lifted At Last

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP).—Tea and coffee drinkers are free from ration worries for the first time since the spring of 1942.

The Prices Board announced last night that tea and coffee had been removed from Canada's list of rationed goods at midnight.

The announcement also contained some heartening news for those who do their tea and coffee drinking in restaurants. The Board has cancelled regulations limiting hotels, restaurants, institutions and other quota users to serving only one cup of coffee or one pot of tea at a sitting.

Now it's up to hotels and restaurants to decide whether they will return to thier former practice of serving additional tea or coffee. The question of charging for any extra serving also is left to them but if a charge is made pricing regulations remain and it must not be more than the regular a la carte charge.

However, the Board said that because of the tight sugar and cream situation, no extra sugar or cream may be provided with the additional servings of tea and coffee. Milk may be provided for the additional servings or for all servings.

These "minor" regulations are all that is left of the tea and coffee rationing policy first initiated on an "honor" basis May 26, 1942. Coupon rationing began Aug. 3, 1942.

The supply situation continued to improve as the war situation improved, and the Board decided that tea and coffee stocks were sufficiently good to lift the rationing regulations.

The Board said that Ration Book No. 5, scheduled for distribution between Oct. 14 and Oct. 21, already has been printed and consequently will contain coupons intended for tea and coffee. Retailers, wholesalers and quota users have been advised by the ration administration that all tea and coffee ration documents and forms in their possession may be consigned to the paper salvage authorities.

Sports Ministry Quebec Suggestion

MONTREAL, Sept. 19 — (CP). — Hon. J. H. Delisle, Minister without Portfolio in the Quebec Cabinet said here last night that he would recommend the establishment of a "Ministry of Sports" at the next session of the Quebec Legislature. He was speaking at a meeting of the Canadian Bicycle and Sport Goods Dealers Association.

The present government is interested in promoting such activities as sports which would be of benefit to the youth of the province, he added.

BUDGET YOUR SPENDING FOR VICTORY

Here's a plan to help you — Send for The Budget Calendar — Then join the Budgeteers

HOW you spend your next pay cheque means a lot to your country as well as to you! Your dollars—everyone's dollars—have a big job to do these days. It's up to all of us on the home front to make the best possible use of our incomes.

What your dollars must do

Out of your pay cheques must first come dollars to back up our fighters—dollars you give or lend in war savings, taxes and contributions. The dollars that are left are your home front dollars—funds to feed and clothe and house your family. To meet your war obligations, pay all your living expenses, stay out of avoidable debt is probably a real task—a task that The Budget Calendar can make easier for you.

A new budget method

The Budget Calendar is a new and different way to budget your spending. The method grew out of our long experience with family money problems and was first published as a service to Household customers. But users told their friends about it and demand for the Calendar steadily grew. Because it has been helpful to so many families with wartime money problems we have decided to send the Calendar free to everyone who requests a copy.

Salvage Paper Collection Starts Thursday

In order to keep the paper mills throughout Canada operating, turning out new paper for the country's war effort, 20,000 tons of waste and scrap paper are needed monthly. There is only one way this vast amount of waste material can be gotten, and that is by the efforts of every man, woman and child, in collecting it, and turning it in to the waste paper drives held regularly in most communities.

In Peterborough, where waste paper drives have always, in the past, met with a large degree of success, there will be a mommoth one day paper drive Thursday, September 21, with an objective of 150 tons for the city alone. This paper will be collected throughout the city, by 20 trucks, and 75 men, starting at 6 o'clock in the evening.

People living in and around Lakefield, Hastings, Omemee, Norwood, Havelock, Millbrook and other points are requested to place their waste paper on the streets, securely tied in bundles, before 8 o'clock in the morning for collection. Ten pounds of paper from every individual will be needed to make this drive a success.

What kinds of paper are wanted? Every scrap of paper that is not gummed or waxed, can play a vital role in the jobs of war. Newspapers, letters, paper board, cereal boxes, posters, tickets, envelopes, wrapping paper; in brief, every bit of paper lingering unnecessarily in homes, offices, schools and other buildings are wanted. Old magazines and books are an excellent source of waste paper, but unless they are long outdated or badly ripped and soiled, they can go to work for Canada entertaining servicemen in barracks and on boats.

Why does the paper have to be tied in bundles? Speed in wartime is the essential factor, and the sooner the waste paper can be sent to the paper mills, the sooner it can be made into cartons, and other battle necessities.

Now, more than ever before, the importance of waste paper in the work it can do at the front, makes it necessary to keep a large supply of it going through the mills. The citizens are reminded that paper in drawers, thrown into garbage cans, burnt, or destroyed, is of no value to a soldier. But paper turned in to the big Peterborough One Day Emergency Drive, can do much to shorten the war.

Port Hope Boy Wins DFC For Fine Piloting

Pilot Officer R. B. McCullough, son of James McCullough, Dorset street east, Port Hope, is one of 14 airmen to be awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, it was announced by the R. C. A. F. to-day.

The R. C. A. F. citation explains the reason for the award: "This officer has completed many operations. He is a skilful and resolute pilot and has at all times displayed the highest degree of courage and devotion to duty. On two occasions his aircraft has been attacked and damaged by enemy fighters. Nevertheless by skilful airmanship he evaded the enemy and piloted his aircraft back to base. His good work and gallantry merit the highest praise."

FO. Clare Brooks On Missing List

YOUNG'S POINT, Sept. 19. — (ENS). — Flying Officer Clare Brooks, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brooks, Young's Point, has been reported missing following air operations with the R.C.A.F. overseas.

Prior to enlisting two years ago, FO. Brooks was employed at the DeHaviland plant in Toronto. After graduating as a pilot, he went overseas a year ago, and has been engaged on operational work for some time.

His wife is living in Norland, and a brother, Staff Sgt. Oswald Brooks, is in France with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

Council Votes $1,500 For Boxes

City council's appreciation of the industry and the devotion in time and affection of the planning of the three women's service auxiliaries for Christmas gifts for the men and women in the active forces was manifested again last night by two special grants, one of $500 to the Women's Naval Auxiliary and $1,000 to the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary.

Mrs. Frank Merrett and Mrs. J. G. M. Wilson, representing the Women's Naval Auxiliary, visited the council Monday night, displayed the standard box they are making up for Christmas gifts, and asked for some financial assistance.

"We received $900 from tag day and $1,700 from the proceeds of Labor Day and we had $350 in the bank," Mrs. Merrett said. "But we have to make up between 1150 and 1200 boxes for the boys and girls of the naval service. We have nearly enough money as it is to meet the expenditure that is involved, but there may be some late additions to our list. Besides, we have work to be done every month and certain expenses, and by the time we have sent off all our Christmas presents we are likely to have nothing left. If the council would assure us of some funds as we need them, our Auxiliary would be grateful."

Alderman Ovens, deputed by the council to obtain information of Yule needs from all three branches," told the council that the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary had informed him that they would need $1,000. They have the largest number of men and women to remember with gifts, and for that reason, Alderman Ovens said, their requisition is higher.

Alderman Sullivan moved, seconded by Alderman Glover that the $1,000 be granted to the Active Army Auxiliary and that payments be made to the Naval Auxiliary up to $500 as they need the money.

Alderman Sands suggested that the $500 be made an immediate gift to the Naval Ladies, and Alderman Bradburn seconded the amendment.

"I'll be glad to make it an outright gift," Alderman Sullivan said. "I was simply moving what the ladies had asked for."

The amendment was withdrawn and the motion broadened to give the Women's Naval Auxiliary $500 for unforeseen expenses in connection with their Christmas givings and also to have a little money left in their bank account.

The Women's R.C.A.F. Auxiliary told Alderman Ovens that they would not need any help from the council.

Opinion On The City Hall Site

The straw vote which the Examiner took last week in order to test public opinion on the subject of a site for the new City Hall has shown that more than half the voters favour the site opposite Central Park; the other three suggested sites appealed to minorities of voters..

We think that this gives a fair indication of the opinion of the citizens of Peterborough. As only one ballot was printed in the paper it was not possible for every member of a household to register a vote; we believe, however, that most of the votes represented the opinion of two or more citizens. A majority of those who voted indicated that they were property owners. In the light of this expression of opinion we are sure that the City Council will give the most favourable consideration to the site which has received more votes than the other three put together; this is an expression of the will of the people, and as the new City Hall will be the people's property the wishes of the people must be respected.

Some of the ballots which were received carried written expressions of opinion with them. One point of view which was put forward many times was this: the new City Hall is the gift to Peterborough of the late George Morrow; it is understood that the site of the Hall will be, in a very real sense, the city's tribute to the memory of this respected citizen: is it not desirable and fitting, therefore, that the site chosen should have a fine outlook, and be capable itself of beautification? The other sites chosen have no spacious outlook, and if the site were chosen which is occupied by the present City Hall the city would have chosen to commemorate the late Mr. Morrow at no expense to itself—an action which might be misunderstood. Let us not forget that Peterborough has been given a very large sum — close to half a million dollars—to build this City Hall: the least we can do is to choose a fine site for it. Apparently a great number of citizens know which site they want, and they will not like it if their views are ignored.

Marriage As a Career

A great many people seem to be exercising themselves over the problem of what the women who are now engaged in industry will do after the war, when there is no longer any work for them to do. A great many of them, of course, will resume domestic life with their husbands, who are now at war, or will find husbands among the men who return from the war. Someone in the U.S.A. has estimated that that country will have seven million spinsters who will have no chance of marrying after the war, and they will create a problem, as Britain's million spinsters did during the years between the wars. But undoubtedly many women who are now working will marry, and we hope that they will find marriage a career worthy of the best that is in them.

There has been some suggestion that many women who marry after the war will keep their industrial jobs, if they can. We hope that this will not be a common practise. In households where both husband and wife work, children are often avoided for economic reasons, or the birth and upbringing of children is postponed until both parties are too old to be good parents; for reasons of health and temperament, it is better to raise a family when young. Nor would we be happy to see many homes with children in which both parents worked, for in such homes children rarely get enough parental supervision and enough affection.

We are sorry to see an attitude on the part of certain prominent women which suggests that being a wife and mother is a humble occupation, suitable perhaps for women who cannot do other jobs, but not on the same level as industrial or office work. This is sheer perverse nonsense, and now is the time to label it as such. The job of homemaker, wife and mother needs all the energy, ingenuity, strength and finesse which most women are capable of bringing to it. There are exceptional women to whom a career is more important than domestic life, but they are rare, and no one grudges them anything that they can get from life. But for most women the tasks of wife and mother are the most honourable to which they can aspire. If they find domesticity dull as compared with office or factory work, the fault may lie in themselves. It is far easier to be a good machinist than it is to be a good wife.

What To Read

We were interested to read the other day of some advice which a Federal Judge in the United States gave to a group of 107 men and women whom he had just inducted into full citizenship of the republic. He urged them to put a jealous guard upon their right to free speech and a free press, and then he said this: "When you take your newspaper in hand do not turn at once to the sporting pages or comic strips. Discipline yourself to read the editorial pages of our press. This will teach you to think about your new country, what trends are disappearing, what trends are forming".

Most of a newspaper's space is devoted to the presentation of news, and as a usual thing the greatest care is taken to write the news in an objective manner; expression of opinion in news columns, or the presentation of news in such a way as to influence the judgement of the reader, is painstakingly avoided. A newspaper expresses its opinions on its editorial page. It does not do so with the hope of converting large groups of its readers to those opinions. It seeks, instead, to present an opinion which will provide a train of thought, perhaps in a direction entirely contrary to that taken by the editorial writer. The desire of the writer of editorials is not necessarily to make converts, but to provoke thought; if he does so, he has achieved his object, even though he may bring severe criticism upon himself.

To read the news is not enough in itself. It is necessary to form opinions about it. In this task the editorial page is often decidedly helpful.

Ottawa And The Arts

The Ottawa Citizen draws attention to the fact that a distinguished production of Shakespeare's Othello is to be seen in Montreal this week, and will be seen in Toronto next week, but will not be seen in Ottawa at all. It continues thus:

> "The fact that 'Othello' is not coming to Ottawa underlines again the way in which the residents of the capital suffer from the lack of a suitable theatre. It is to be hoped that the government will undertake the erection of a national theatre as one of its early post-war projects. The capital of a great country should not be so barren of facilities for the exercise and display of the arts".

We have drawn attention before to the fact that the absence of adequate theatres has cut off all but two cities in Eastern Canada from one of the most enlivening and civilizing of the arts. It is not as though good plays and good players were lacking for theatres where they exist. In recent years the best companies in the U.S.A. have taken to the road, playing one-night stands in every town where an old theatre, or an adequate hall could be found; these ventures were all enthusiastically greeted, and were successes both artistically and financially.

We have also pointed out that cities like Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville and Brockville, which used to be excellent two and three night stands for travelling theatrical companies, now have no theatres at all. Booking a financially sound tour for a theatrical company in Canada is now an impossibility, and no companies come here except those which make brief sorties from the U.S.A. to Toronto and Montreal. Even the nation's capital has no accommodation for them.

If the theatre is ever revived in Canada, it will be through adequate community halls which can be used for plays, concerts and meetings. A city which has an opportunity to build such a hall, but neglects it, has failed to do its duty in fostering the cultural growth of our country.

Is there something about exceptional ability as a flyer which makes men talk too much and think too little? First Lindbergh—now Buzz Beurling. Someone should suggest to the latter that for a hero who wishes to remain a hero, silence is golden.

MARITAL JEALOUSY AT PEAK

Wives see Potential Husband-stealers In Girls Working With Men at Factories.

JUST now, when so many married men are working for the first time side by side with women, wifely jealousy is at its all time high. Green eyes are practically epidemic, and thousands of wives are more afraid of their Joes being captured by their cute little helpers than they are of them being nabbed by the Japs and the Nazis.

Formerly the common, or garden variety of wife, whose husband was not exposed to danger from glamor

Try this 30-DAY TEST!

1. If you're really ill—see your doctor! But if you're all too often just feeling tired and washed out, chances are you are suffering from incomplete elimination. Particularly if you're over 35! Yet there's no need to let your work be spoiled—or your fun! Just take this simple precaution:

2. Start now to eat Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning! To keep fit you don't have to take unpleasant doses ... or harsh cathartics which actually may be harmful. Instead, get plenty of needed "bulk" in your diet by eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes with Other Parts of Wheat. Gently laxative, they help keep food wastes moving promptly ... supply valuable minerals and proteins too.

3. Just thirty days, and you'll prove it for yourself! Thirty days, away from the medicine cupboard, and you should know how grand it is to feel alert, have extra energy to do the extra things you want to do! And it's no chore to keep fit the Kellogg's way, because Kellogg's Bran Flakes are so downright delicious, you'll want to eat them every morning!

LOOK FOR the name "Kellogg's" on the distinctive golden-yellow package at your grocer's. Regular or economical family size. Made at London, Canada by the makers of the famous Kellogg's Corn Flakes.

Salvage Paper Collection Starts Thursday

In order to keep the paper mills throughout Canada operating, turning out new paper for the country's war effort, 20,000 tons of waste and scrap paper are needed monthly. There is only one way this vast amount of waste material can be gotten, and that is by the efforts of every man, woman and child, in collecting it, and turning it in to the waste paper drives held regularly in most communities.

In Peterborough, where waste paper drives have always, in the past, met with a large degree of success, there will be a mommoth one day paper drive Thursday, September 21, with an objective of 150 tons for the city alone. This paper will be collected throughout the city, by 20 trucks, and 75 men, starting at 6 o'clock in the evening.

People living in and around Lakefield, Hastings, Omemee, Norwood, Havelock, Millbrook and other points are requested to place their waste paper on the streets, securely tied in bundles, before 8 o'clock in the morning for collection. Ten pounds of paper from every individual will be needed to make this drive a success.

What kinds of paper are wanted? Every scrap of paper that is not gummed or waxed, can play a vital role in the jobs of war. Newspapers, letters, paper board, cereal boxes, posters, tickets, envelopes, wrapping paper; in brief, every bit of paper lingering unnecessarily in homes, offices, schools and other buildings are wanted. Old magazines and books are an excellent source of waste paper, but unless they are long outdated or badly ripped and soiled, they can go to work for Canada entertaining servicemen in barracks and on boats.

Why does the paper have to be tied in bundles? Speed in wartime is the essential factor, and the sooner the waste paper can be sent to the paper mills, the sooner it can be made into cartons, and other battle necessities.

Now, more than ever before, the importance of waste paper in the work it can do at the front, makes it necessary to keep a large supply of it going through the mills. The citizens are reminded that paper in drawers, thrown into garbage cans, burnt, or destroyed, is of no value to a soldier. But paper turned in to the big Peterborough One Day Emergency Drive, can do much to shorten the war.

Port Hope Boy Wins DFC For Fine Piloting

Pilot Officer R. B. McCullough, son of James McCullough, Dorset street east, Port Hope, is one of 14 airmen to be awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, it was announced by the R. C. A. F. to-day.

The R. C. A. F. citation explains the reason for the award: "This officer has completed many operations. He is a skilful and resolute pilot and has at all times displayed the highest degree of courage and devotion to duty. On two occasions his aircraft has been attacked and damaged by enemy fighters. Nevertheless by skilful airmanship he evaded the enemy and piloted his aircraft back to base. His good work and gallantry merit the highest praise."

FO. Clare Brooks On Missing List

YOUNG'S POINT, Sept. 19. — (ENS). — Flying Officer Clare Brooks, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brooks, Young's Point, has been reported missing following air operations with the R.C.A.F. overseas.

Prior to enlisting two years ago, FO. Brooks was employed at the DeHaviland plant in Toronto. After graduating as a pilot, he went overseas a year ago, and has been engaged on operational work for some time.

His wife is living in Norland, and a brother, Staff Sgt. Oswald Brooks, is in France with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

Council Votes $1,500 For Boxes

City council's appreciation of the industry and the devotion in time and affection of the planning of the three women's service auxiliaries for Christmas gifts for the men and women in the active forces was manifested again last night by two special grants, one of $500 to the Women's Naval Auxiliary and $1,000 to the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary.

Mrs. Frank Merrett and Mrs. J. G. M. Wilson, representing the Women's Naval Auxiliary, visited the council Monday night, displayed the standard box they are making up for Christmas gifts, and asked for some financial assistance.

"We received $900 from tag day and $1,700 from the proceeds of Labor Day and we had $350 in the bank," Mrs. Merrett said. "But we have to make up between 1150 and 1200 boxes for the boys and girls of the naval service. We have nearly enough money as it is to meet the expenditure that is involved, but there may be some late additions to our list. Besides, we have work to be done every month and certain expenses, and by the time we have sent off all our Christmas presents we are likely to have nothing left. If the council would assure us of some funds as we need them, our Auxiliary would be grateful."

Alderman Ovens, deputed by the council to obtain information of Yule needs from all three branches," told the council that the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary had informed him that they would need $1,000. They have the largest number of men and women to remember with gifts, and for that reason, Alderman Ovens said, their requisition is higher.

Alderman Sullivan moved, seconded by Alderman Glover that the $1,000 be granted to the Active Army Auxiliary and that payments be made to the Naval Auxiliary up to $500 as they need the money.

Alderman Sands suggested that the $500 be made an immediate gift to the Naval Ladies, and Alderman Bradburn seconded the amendment.

"I'll be glad to make it an outright gift," Alderman Sullivan said. "I was simply moving what the ladies had asked for."

The amendment was withdrawn and the motion broadened to give the Women's Naval Auxiliary $500 for unforeseen expenses in connection with their Christmas givings and also to have a little money left in their bank account.

The Women's R.C.A.F. Auxiliary told Alderman Ovens that they would not need any help from the council.

Undersize Lots Annoy City Council

More than 600 lots vary in frontage from 24 feet to 35 feet in the suburban section of North Monaghan which will be annexed to the city at the turn of the year, and within the city's present boundaries twenty-one lots are of less than 40 feet frontage.

This information was received by the council last night from W. J. Henry, assessor, as a factual basis of revision of frontages to a minimum of forty feet.

A motion by Alderman Bradburn, seconded by Alderman Sands, directed Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Swanston, chairman of the property committee, to interview members of the Municipal Board in Toronto for permission to undertake revision to the ideal of forty foot frontages. The motion also asked City Solicitor Huycke to prepare a bylaw prohibiting the erection of houses on lots less than forty feet.

Mr. Huycke read the sections of the Municipal Act pertaining to this proposal, and remarked that the council had "lots of scope in this matter of the Monaghan subdivisions."

The report from Mr. Henry stated that nine of the twenty-one lots in the city of from 32 to 37 feet frontage lacked adjoining space that would provdie for their extension to the required forty feet, but the twelve others could be altered from contiguous properties.

Looking forward to the North Monaghan sections coming into the city, the council has been looking into the future of that part of the city and of the impossibility of building up desirable housing conditions and areas on lots of only thirty feet frontage, as reported of most of them, and generally under forty feet. It is being proposed that steps be taken to effect a re-subdividing of such properties to anticipate sales of the present lots of only thirty feet in width. This elimination of undesirable lots is approached as the basic step to the preventing of actual building of houses that would be crowded together, unsatisfactory to owners and to the larger community of Peterborough.

Mayor Voices Alarm At House Shortage

"There is no question of our need of a lot more houses," Mayor Hamilton told the council last night, expressing concern and considerable worry about appeals which "are being made to me every week, some of them by wives of men on active service."

"Some of these people seem desperate about what they are going to do, and I want the council to know just about what the situation is," His Worship said. "What can I do when they come to me. I am told that the administrator of Wartime Housing has about two hundred names on his waiting list."

The council appointed four of its members to draft a questionnaire to be published as a means of obtaining more definite information as to what is the local housing need. They were Alderman Bradburn, Swanston, Glover and Dutton and as evidence of the immediate effect on Mayor Hamilton's statement, the committee met after the council's adjournment and prepared the questions to be set forth in the city's advertisement.

Alderman Glover commented that sufficient labor would be one factor affecting the building of new houses, and that larger projects, including the proposed city hall and Memorial Centre, together with the cheering announcement of the Canadian General Electric Company of their further expansion, would absorb a large number of the men available for such work whenever it was begun.

Mayor Hamilton mentioned the Council's expressed objection to applying to Wartime Housing for more of thier temporary houses. This possible resource of additional housing accommodation until peace returns and normal conditions are restored was referred to only in passing as the council named its enquiry committee. Presumably the questionnaire is intended to permit suggestions from house seekers as to whether they would be in favor of the city asking Wartime Housing to erect some additional houses generally similar to the Crown company's wartime investment here.

Rectal Soreness and

QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once

Gun Missing

LONDON, Sept. 19 — (CP) —Ontario Provincial Police last night reported no new developments in their search for a .303 rifle believed to be the weapon used to murder Mrs. Austin Smith of Detroit in her summer cottage at Port Franks, Ont., last week-end. Officers have been searching in the Trenton, Ont., and London area. They were accompanied here by Pte. Irwin Stata, 18-year-old Chesterville, Ont., soldier who is charged with the murder.

After BACKACHE ... What a difference!

For six weeks this woman endured the misery of backache. It was probably lumbago and was wearing her out. Then she began to take Kruschen, and in three weeks, what a difference there was! But let her tell the story herself:—

"About six weeks ago, I started having awful pains in my back. Sometimes I could not straighten myself, and I got depressed and worn out. I could scarcely carry on with my household duties, and everything was getting neglected. It was then I saw a Kruschen advertisement, and I decided to give Kruschen Salts a trial. I started with a small teaspoonful in hot water every morning, and in three weeks, my word, what a difference! The pains gradually disappeared. To-day at 46, I feel ten years younger."—(Mrs.) H. M.

Backache is often traced to poisons in the blood — poisonous waste products which are not being filtered out of your system. The mineral salts in Kruschen help your kidneys and other channels of elimination back to healthy, normal action, so that poisonous waste matter is properly expelled. In this way many people get joyous relief from those old dragging pains. Try Kruschen yourself.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable of all Drug Stores. 25c and 75c.

Year-Round Activities Are Planned

FOR THE

Peterborough Memorial Community Centre

—but first we must raise the money — $300,000

The campaign is now on and ends September 30th

Make no mistake about it, just as soon as the present Committees' job of raising the money is done and the Health Centre erected, then the properly appointed Commission of responsible citizens, named by the City Council, takes over to administer this great project. The job of this commission will be to employ a qualified full time manager, a man who knows thoroughly the sports and entertainment world and whose job it will be to properly supervise not only the building but all the varied year-round activities.

The commission will have to pass on all activities, therefore it is not the duty of the present committee to lay out a program — but the outdoor activities will certainly include rugby, lacrosse, swimming in the outdoor pool, baseball, soft and hard ball and tennis. Indoor sports will include senior and junior hockey, for industrial, school and church leagues, boxing, finals of basketball matches, skating to bands, figure skating, figure skating lessons, ice carnivals, roller skating, dancing and the plans even include great doors in the end of the arena which will allow a travelling circus or an exhibition to be set up inside.

Additional seats may be placed on the floor of the building for features such as, band concerts, pagents, symphony orchestra programs, conventions, lectures, also plays which could not be held in the proposed auditorium of the new city hall.

The seating capacity of the Centre will be 3,500 with standing room for an additional 700. When seats are placed on the floor it will provide accommodation for any gatherings which we are liable to have in Peterborough.

A proper public address system and acoustical materials will be installed in the building.

For the convenience of contending teams there will be suitable dressing rooms with locker and shower facilities. Adequate lavatory facilities for the entire building will be provided.

One of the most important features of the building is the fact that it will be heated for the comfort of spectators.

Your committee has been informed that Peterborough is the first city in Canada that has planned such a project and it is hoped that every person in Peterborough and district will back it, talk about it, promote it, and give to the utmost.

An accredited canvasser will be calling on you within the next few days. Please be ready for him with your donation. Do not keep him waiting or ask him to come back as he is a business man who has volunteered his services in the interests of this community.

Opinion On The City Hall Site

The straw vote which the Examiner took last week in order to test public opinion on the subject of a site for the new City Hall has shown that more than half the voters favour the site opposite Central Park; the other three suggested sites appealed to minorities of voters..

We think that this gives a fair indication of the opinion of the citizens of Peterborough. As only one ballot was printed in the paper it was not possible for every member of a household to register a vote; we believe, however, that most of the votes represented the opinion of two or more citizens. A majority of those who voted indicated that they were property owners. In the light of this expression of opinion we are sure that the City Council will give the most favourable consideration to the site which has received more votes than the other three put together; this is an expression of the will of the people, and as the new City Hall will be the people's property the wishes of the people must be respected.

Some of the ballots which were received carried written expressions of opinion with them. One point of view which was put forward many times was this: the new City Hall is the gift to Peterborough of the late George Morrow; it is understood that the site of the Hall will be, in a very real sense, the city's tribute to the memory of this respected citizen: is it not desirable and fitting, therefore, that the site chosen should have a fine outlook, and be capable itself of beautification? The other sites chosen have no spacious outlook, and if the site were chosen which is occupied by the present City Hall the city would have chosen to commemorate the late Mr. Morrow at no expense to itself—an action which might be misunderstood. Let us not forget that Peterborough has been given a very large sum—close to half a million dollars—to build this City Hall: the least we can do is to choose a fine site for it. Apparently a great number of citizens know which site they want, and they will not like it if their views are ignored.

Marriage As a Career

A great many people seem to be exercising themselves over the problem of what the women who are now engaged in industry will do after the war, when there is no longer any work for them to do. A great many of them, of course, will resume domestic life with their husbands, who are now at war, or will find husbands among the men who return from the war. Someone in the U.S.A. has estimated that that country will have seven million spinsters who will have no chance of marrying after the war, and they will create a problem, as Britain's million spinsters did during the years between the wars. But undoubtedly many women who are now working will marry, and we hope that they will find marriage a career worthy of the best that is in them.

There has been some suggestion that many women who marry after the war will keep their industrial jobs, if they can. We hope that this will not be a common practise. In households where both husband and wife work, children are often avoided for economic reasons, or the birth and upbringing of children is postponed until both parties are too old to be good parents; for reasons of health and temperament, it is better to raise a family when young. Nor would we be happy to see many homes with children in which both parents worked, for in such homes children rarely get enough parental supervision and enough affection.

We are sorry to see an attitude on the part of certain prominent women which suggests that being a wife and mother is a humble occupation, suitable perhaps for women who cannot do other jobs, but not on the same level as industrial or office work. This is sheer perverse nonsense, and now is the time to label it as such. The job of homemaker, wife and mother needs all the energy, ingenuity, strength and finesse which most women are capable of bringing to it. There are exceptional women to whom a career is more important than domestic life, but they are rare, and no one grudges them anything that they can get from life. But for most women the tasks of wife and mother are the most honourable to which they can aspire. If they find domesticity dull as compared with office or factory work, the fault may lie in themselves. It is far easier to be a good machinist than it is to be a good wife.

What To Read

We were interested to read the other day of some advice which a Federal Judge in the United States gave to a group of 107 men and women whom he had just inducted into full citizenship of the republic. He urged them to put a jealous guard upon their right to free speech and a free press, and then he said this: "When you take your newspaper in hand do not turn at once to the sporting pages or comic strips. Discipline yourself to read the editorial pages of our press. This will teach you to think about your new country, what trends are disappearing, what trends are forming".

Most of a newspaper's space is devoted to the presentation of news, and as a usual thing the greatest care is taken to write the news in an objective manner; expression of opinion in news columns, or the presentation of news in such a way as to influence the judgement of the reader, is painstakingly avoided. A newspaper expresses its opinions on its editorial page. It does not do so with the hope of converting large groups of its readers to those opinions. It seeks, instead, to present an opinion which will provide a train of thought, perhaps in a direction entirely contrary to that taken by the editorial writer. The desire of the writer of editorials is not necessarily to make converts, but to provoke thought; if he does so, he has achieved his object, even though he may bring severe criticism upon himself.

To read the news is not enough in itself. It is necessary to form opinions about it. In this task the editorial page is often decidedly helpful.

Ottawa And The Arts

The Ottawa Citizen draws attention to the fact that a distinguished production of Shakespeare's Othello is to be seen in Montreal this week, and will be seen in Toronto next week, but will not be seen in Ottawa at all. It continues thus:

"The fact that 'Othello' is not coming to Ottawa underlines again the way in which the residents of the capital suffer from the lack of a suitable theatre. It is to be hoped that the government will undertake the erection of a national theatre as one of its early post-war projects. The capital of a great country should not be so barren of facilities for the exercise and display of the arts".

We have drawn attention before to the fact that the absence of adequate theatres has cut off all but two cities in Eastern Canada from one of the most enlivening and civilizing of the arts. It is not as though good plays and good players were lacking for theatres where they exist. In recent years the best companies in the U.S.A. have taken to the road, playing one-night stands in every town where an old theatre, or an adequate hall could be found; these ventures were all enthusiastically greeted, and were successes both artistically and financially.

We have also pointed out that cities like Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville and Brockville, which used to be excellent two and three night stands for travelling theatrical companies, now have no theatres at all. Booking a financially sound tour for a theatrical company in Canada is now an impossibility, and no companies come here except those which make brief sorties from the U.S.A. to Toronto and Montreal. Even the nation's capital has no accommodation for them.

If the theatre is ever revived in Canada, it will be through adequate community halls which can be used for plays, concerts and meetings. A city which has an opportunity to build such a hall, but neglects it, has failed to do its duty in fostering the cultural growth of our country.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mr. Churchill says that all nice babies look like him. But not all tough babies can talk like him!

A six-months-old pullet in Blenheim has hatched out twelve chickens. The precosity of the younger generation knows no bounds.

Is there something about exceptional ability as a flyer which makes men talk too much and think too little? First Lindbergh—now Buzz Beurling. Someone should suggest to the latter that for a hero who wishes to remain a hero, silence is golden.

Report From Quebec

(By B. T RICHARDSON)

THE Quebec Conference of 1944 is really three conferences. It is, of course, an Anglo-American military conference at which high staff officers of United States forces and British forces, with joint staffs which have been created during this war, have considered war-plans. Precisely what phases of a war that has almost as many aspects as the globe itself, have been discussed, is the main news of the conference and it is news that will only be known in part until the history of our times is written.

Then there is the Anglo-Canadian military conference. This is a side-show, as far as almost everyone but the Canadians are concerned. Consultations between British and Canadian military staffs have been going on, in one form or another, since the war started; because the military forces of Canada are co-ordinated more closely with United Kingdom forces than those of any other country. The Anglo-Canadian conference at Quebec in 1944 is concerned with the transfer of military forces from the European theatres of war to Pacific theatres. It will be a joint problem, and it has been settled in Quebec.

THE third conference at Quebec this month, like the others is unique in world affairs. It is the eighth or ninth—depending on whether meetings last year in Cairo and Teheran are considered as one or two conferences—meeting of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill. By this I mean, an occasion in which the leaders of Great Britain and America live under the same roof or near to each other, for several days and talk about the state of the world. This has been going on intermittently since the meeting on a cruiser in a Newfoundland harbor in 1941.

No historian will be able to adequately assess the history of this war without knowing something about the personal meetings between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill. The record will likely be fragmentary unless either of them has put down on paper some of the actual dialogue from time to time, some details of what was in their minds, and how they got along together. The war has been the grand climax to an era of world crisis, and it is strange how much we have come to take for granted that Roosevelt and Churchill should talk it over from time to time.

THE third figure in this third secret Quebec Conference is Mr. Mackenzie King. On the evening of Sept. 12, 1944, for instance, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill spent the whole time together until long after 11 o'clock at the Citadel in Quebec, and they included Mr. King in their discussions. It is going to be difficult for the historian to truly appraise the role of Mr. King, who has figured in four Roosevelt-Churchill meetings. I think the historian will find evidence to support a theory I have formed, that Mr. King serves the purpose of a third party, that both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill have found it useful to have a keen, wise veteran in public affairs to sit with them and to act as a test audience for their ideas. When you come to think of it, Mr. King has every qualification for that role. His experience bridges the Atlantic Ocean, it has roots in the British Commonwealth on the one hand and in the American system on the other. He happens to represent the Canadian way of life, which is a modern evolution and which has been shaped profoundly by influences emanating from both centres of world power which lie behind Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill.

NO one can tell whether the close personal relations of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill will be perpetuated in Anglo-American relations in the world of tomorrow. Has it been a fluke of history? One needs only recall the situation in 1940 to understand how recent a device in the personal meeting of the heads of the British and American governments. Britain was at bay—but not alone, for Canadians and others were there. But not Americans. It will be a long time before many of us accept and understand how narrow was the margin by which Great Britain escaped the fate of France. Yet it was not the misfortune of Europe, but the Japanese attack upon Pearl Harbor that finally crystallized the American mind to the danger that lay all around it in the world. Before that event, Mr. Roosevelt had already held on meeting with Mr. Churchill. His government had begun to swing the economic resources of the United States against the Axis. Almost immediately after the United States entered the war, the pattern of Roosevelt-Churchill meetings was fixed swiftly.

The historian will probe into this pattern. He will find two great men, two contrasting personalties, finding that the best way to co-ordinate war efforts of two great nations is to talk it over together. The last parapets of American isolationism began to crumble when Mr. Roosevelt, defying all tradition, travelled outside the United States to meet an ally. Yet will a future president of the United States do the same? Will a future prime minister of Great Britain fly oceans for regular meetings with other world leaders. Whether they do or not may be the test of future Anglo-American relations.

The "Why" Of It

The Minister of Finance has increased the objective for Canada's Seventh Victory Loan. This had been anticipated, but some people may ask why the increase was necessary, particularly considering the excellent progress being made against the enemy on the battle fronts.

The answer or explanation is simple. In the first place, it will be recalled that the Finance Minister, at the time of the last Federal budget, removed the compulsory savings feature from the income tax. This naturally deprived the Federal Treasury of a large sum of money, the equivalent of which will have to be made up by other means. The Victory Loan is one of the means. But there is far more to it than that.

If Germany were to surrender tomorrow, there still would remain an expensive and probably hard war with Japan. Moreover, when the "Cease fire" sounds in Europe, Canadian soldiers will still remain on the nation's payroll, so to speak, for many months to come. And the stopping of the fighting will not mean the stopping of dependents' allowances. Consider again, the matter of the costs of war materials. Even if, due to sudden enemy collapse, there should be no actual use for such armaments, they will have to be paid for just the same.

To these substantial items add the cost of maintaining Canada's share of an army of occupation in Germany, Canada's share of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation, Canada's share of the contribution necessary to prevent the economic collapse of Europe, and so forth.

And the story does not end with that. The Dominion will have financial obligations to demobilized members of the fighting forces—and will have to pay for bringing them home, of course. Their re-establishment will cost money. So will various postwar projects associated with the re-establishment process.

From even this brief summary, the need for the increased Victory Loan objective should be clear. And one more important thing: Despite great and heartening successes, this war is not over yet!

SCENE OF NEXT BIG CONFERENCE —By Goldberg

The Man's A Fool

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

THE Hitler of David Low is well known to readers of this newspaper. He appears in Low's inimitable cartoons as a flabby pinhead. Even when Hitler seemed to bestride the world like a Colossus he never impressed Low, who continued to draw him in a state of comic confusion.

Now Low writes in the New York Times that long before the war he said to himself, "The man's a fool," and he sees no reason to change this opinion, for as a leader:

"Hitler has been a washout. The only wreath he will get from history will be of raspberries, for his complete failure ever to read the minds of Britain and the United States, for his fatal error in attempting to crush Russia before he had finished Britain, and for his ruinous plague at Stalingrad.... Of the leader principle, it would seem amply demonstrated once more that unless the leader be infallible his cost is too high and his unity is unity in suicide.

"Future historians surveying the present passage of events down the perspective of time will wonder why half the world had to be blown up to prove that the ideas of this vicious nincompoop were wrong. The man was so obviously a fool, they will say, what was the matter with his intended victims? Why did they let him nearly get away with it all? Not a very pleasing comment on our generation, I'm afraid."

As they study the events of our time the historians will find many pictures of Hitler dressed up to look heroic. But they had better study Low's cartoons from 1933 onwards, many of which have appeared in the Free Press, and they will find the man behind the uniform. Low is like the child in the old fairy tale who, among the courtiers who praised the king's superbly delicate raiment, observed that, in fact, the king was walking about naked. Low, better than any man of his time, has stripped the legend from Hitler and revealed the greatest fool in history.

The Art of Ploughing

DITCHLING Gooseberry Fair is a summer festival, but the outstanding rural event of the autumn is the Ploughing Match which takes place first in one Sussex village and then in another all over the country. They are occasions which should not be missed by anyone who cares for old and fundamental things. Here one sees the real stuff of the countryside walking about in rough coats and leggings—old men with thin faces and sweet peaceful expressions and fringes of white hair under their chins; young men with determined clean-cut features, looking as though farming was a very serious business—as indeed it is. And the ploughmen and the plough...and the plough horses, brown or grey. Here is the oldest agricultural art of all—and an art it is, as even the female onlooker may perceive. The depth and straightness of the furrow varies greatly. Also the management of the horses and their grooming and decking with coloured braids and straw-plaiting, and shining horse-brasses, and immense square collars of leather, like Elizabethan ruffs....

On a day of sunny autumn weather such a Ploughing Match as we had one October at Albourne, not far from Hurstpierpoint, is not to be forgotten. The three large fields in which it took place were divided with grass baulks, as the Domesday fields were divided in the days of the old communal agriculture. In one field were two-horse ploughs, in another three-horse ploughs, while in the third were squat motor-ploughs chugging away, with round metal disks instead of ploughshare and coulter. These motor-ploughs are able to plough two or three furrows at once. But few of the spectators, save an occasional farmer who might be thinking of buying one, watched their performances. They were the mechanics, not the poetry, of agriculture. All eyes were on the horses, who set their feathered feet so neatly in the furrows, and on the men, lean or burly, young or middle-aged, who guided the stilts behind them. Back and forth the plough teams moved, with a slow rhythm which is that of agriculture itself. It was easy enough to imagine the open unhedged communal fields of thirteenth-century Sussex, and the oxen which ploughed there, and the hinds who used that short Saxon speech which still exists in Sussex, particularly for the tools and the things that pertain to the soil.

But, perhaps, when the day of the Ploughing Match is wet one sees the thing at its best. Nobody cares for the rain or the mud, the flanks of the great horses and the faces of the ploughmen shine with wet as if varnished, the brims of the farmers' hats drip little waterspouts, but the keen eyes underneath lose nothing of their good temper. The slow rhythm of rural toil is slowed down still further by the large portions of Sussex that are lifted with every step by each equine hoof and human foot that follows the furrow. In a lovely phrase I once saw and have always remembered, though the name of its author has vanished, "Ceres is a great goddess, and her boots are very heavy." — From "Sussex Cottage", by Esther Meynell.

TALENT NEEDED

The editors of Fortune magazine having visited Ottawa and talked to top-ranking officials, declare that "no member of the United Nations has a corps of civil servants better qualified to administer the problems of peace, when it comes, than Canada." There is every indication, moreover, that all their talents will be required to surmount those problems.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

WHEAT FOR GREECE

Argentina is sending 50,000 tons of wheat to Greece, with which it contributes to ease the situation created in that country by the lack of foodstuffs.

Other shipments will be despatched as soon as shipping facilities are obtained.

It is the aspiration of the Argentine people that this wheat will be the noble and generous seed which will give life to a new era of peace and happiness to all the peoples of Europe. — Argentine.

GREENWICH TIME

All the world has a great respect for Greenwich Time, even those parts of it where the citizens now keep their own chronometers two hours ahead of the famous Greenwich standard. Our respect should be further increased by reports that the Astronomer Royal is beginning to change the chronometers of Greenwich from the pendulum type what is described as "the quartz crystal clock." The most finished specimen of a pendulum clock, it seems, could keep time to a hundredth of a second a day; the "clock" which has abandoned the swing of the pendulum for the incredibly rapid vibrations of a quartz crystal reacting to an electrical stimulus is even now accurate to within a thousandth of a second a day and it is thought that its margin of error may yet be reduced to one ten-thousandth part of a second.—Manchester Guardian.

NO HAVEN IN SWEDEN

As spokesman for the Swedish Government, Gustav Moller, Minister of Social Welfare, announced on Sept. 5, in Stockholm, that the country will not become a haven for war criminals, and that if any such should succeed in crossing its borders they will be extradited. He added that Sweden has always granted the right of asylum to political refugees and has pursued a broad-minded policy during this war.

He emphasized, however, that this open border policy does not mean that Sweden is prepared to grant asylum to those who by their actions have defied the conscience of the civilized world or betrayed their own countries.

"It can therefore be taken for granted," Mr. Moller added, "that Sweden will close her borders to such 'political refugees, or, if they succeed in coming across, will send them back." He gave the present number of refugees in Sweden as 61,000, which does not include 7,000 resident aliens nor 40,000 Finnish children.—Overseas News Agency.

AT DANGER POINTS

The efficiency of safety equipment on our automobiles has deteriorated tremendously, tires are thin, sidewalls are weakened.

Increasing reports of accidents because of poor tires, poor steering, poor brakes, and poor lights reflects the fact that worn-out automative equipment is becoming a large factor in traffic injuries and deaths.—A.A.A. News Bulletin.

HERE'S SERVICE

Not only will the Detroit USO give you a free cheque-cashing service, but now they'll even marry you, with all the trimmings.

A bulletin states they'll make all wedding arrangements, including chapel, minister of whatever faith is desired, flowers, music, wedding cake and wedding presents. All this without charge.

All you do is supply the other party. And if you're both willing to take the plunge, contact the USO, Cass at Lafayette, Detroit, Mich.—Rockcliffe Crosswinds.

A Bible Message

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.... All things were made by him: and without him was not any thing made that was made. (John 1: 1, 3.)

I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth that which is past. (Eccl. 3: 14, 15.)

Thou, O Lord, remainest for ever; thy throne from generation to generation. (Lam. 5: 19.)

O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! for who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor?

Or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen. (Rom. 11: 33-36.)

The Fox — England's Household God

As a foil to the constant volume of war despatches, British newspaper writers and some American correspondents turn, in their lighter moments, to comments on fox-hunting in England. The Americans poke gentle fun at this artistocratic pastime, and the British papers alternately lament the decline of the fox in sporting items, and view with alarm the increasing damages caused by foxes—termed "vermin"—in their agricultural notes.

Except for songs, excerpts from novels and a few verses on the subject, we know nothing about fox-hunting. In fact, if we hadn't seen photographs of it in the Sketch and other papers we would find it hard to believe that men and women go racing around the country in red coats, riding through the crops and risking their necks to follow and kill a fox that in turn is followed by a huge pack of dogs. A bullet or a trap would do the job so much more quickly and cheaply!

The whole business seems as unreal as The Three Musketeers, Roderick Dhu, or the lama-worshippers of Tibet. The Quorn, hte Pytchley, Melton Mowbray must be real places and people associated with them real people. But to the average Canadian it is sheer Pickwick.

We have asked Englishmen in Canada about fox-hunting in the Old Country and most of them have been vague about it. One of our acquaintance admitted that he had been "cubbing," and another of radical outlook raved at the expense, the stupidity, the cruelty and the special privilege of the whole business.

It we read our British papers correctly, there will be a highly socialized condition of affairs there in post-war years. But despite this we would give odds of seven to five that fox-hunting will continue and flourish despite all opposition. It's practically part of the British constitution.—Ottawa Journal.

TIRED FEELING ADDS YEARS TO YOUR LOOKS

Tired people often have an overworked digestive system. Clogged with food waste and fatigue fluids, because liver fails to supply 1 to 2 pints bile every day.

Take the warning and get after your liver—purifier of blood, storehouse of energy. If liver carries off impurities, you enjoy lots of pep. The gentle way to increase liver's daily flow of bile is with BILE BEANS. These small laxative pills tone up the digestive system—liver bile, stomach, kidneys. Made of 10 pure vegetable extracts, Bile Beans act so gently, yet effectively, they are called "The Medicine That Wakes Up Nature".

Shake that "tired feeling"—and get some fun out of life! Try BILE BEANS tonight—they work while you sleep. Over 7 million boxes used last year, convincing evidence of how greatly they are helping others. 40

Balanced Program

Speaker at the Monday night meeting of the Baptist Young People's Union of Murray Street Church was Ken Gillespie, who chose as his topic, "Balance and Perspective in Young People's Work". He said that the aim of the year's work was to have an even balance of society, study, religion and physical training, pointing out that concentration on any one of the four divisions, instead of an even mixture of all, would be doomed to failure. The Devotional Commission, under the direction of Miss Jessie Haddow, was in charge of the meeting and Miss Joan Stenton read the Scripture lesson.

Sharpe—Yeo

A wedding of interest took place recently at the home of Mrs. S. D. Yeo, of Orono, when her daughter, Annie Isabella Yeo, was united in marriage to Stanley Heaslip Sharpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sharpe, of Ida. Rev. S. Littlewood of Ida officiated.

For the ceremony, the bride chose an afternoon frock of pink sheer, small white hat with matching shoulder-length veil, and white accessories, and she carried a handbouquet of pale pink gladioli with forget-me-not and gypsophelia. She was attended by her sister, Miss Patricia Yeo, who wore a cerise flowered silk frock, small white hat and shoulder-length veil, white accessories, and carried roses and white gladioli. Henry Sharpe, of Peterborough, assisted his brother as best man.

At the reception, the bride's mother received the guests in black printed silk with a corsage of bronze roses and fern. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore black crepe with sequin trim, and a corsage of pink roses and fern. Serving the wedding luncheon were friends of the bride, Mrs. Frank Parker, Mrs. Norman Yellowlees and Miss Bertha Cain.

Following the luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe left for a wedding trip to visit friends in Toronto and Niagara Falls. On their return, they will take up residence at The Pines, Ida.

Corona Hanbidge Married At Home

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hanbidge, Otonabee, was decorated with gladioli, ferns and asters, recently, for the marriage of their daughter, Corona Edna Hanbidge, to Kenneth Lavergne Savigny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Savigny of Otonabee. Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street United Church, officiated and Miss Helen Savigny played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a conventional wedding gown of heavy white satin and floor-length veil of Bridal net, caught to a matching Sweetheart crown with orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of Bettertime roses and bouvardia. Miss Betty Beer, as bridesmaid, was frocked in floor-length orchid taffeta, with matching cap and shoulder-length veil, and matching gloves. She carried a cascade bouquet of Sunbeam roses. Miss Rosemarie McCall, as junior bridesmaid, wore yellow taffeta with green trim, yellow gloves, and yellow bandeau, caught with daisies. She carried a nosegay of mauve gladioli and Sunbeam roses.

Receiving the guests at the reception were the bride's mother, in lilac daytime crepe, and a corsage of Talisman roses, and the groom's mother, in black crepe with sequin trim, and a corsage of Premier roses. The dining room was decorated with fall flowers for the buffet luncheon, served by friends of the bride. Centring the bride's table was her three-tier wedding cake, flanked with candelabra set with pink and white tapers, and bouquet of pink and white larkspur. Serving were Misses Myrtle Sargent, Glen Hutchison, Pauline O'Donnel, Elaine Savigny and Laura Whittington, and Mesdames S. Dawson and J. Lee.

Later the couple left for a wedding trip, the bride travelling in a black wool needle point ensemble with black faille trim, and black faille accessories.

OVERSEAS NUPTIALS—Pictured above are Flying Officer J. E. Thompson, R.C.A.F., and his bride, the former Dorothy Stephenson of Vancouver, B.C., who were married overseas, where both are stationed with the R.C.A.F. FO. Thompson is the son of Mrs. C. S. Thompson, 50 McDonnel street.

Hastings Boy Wed In Quebec

HASTINGS, Sept. 19 —(ENS) — A double wedding took place recently at the Church of St. Francis Xavier in Riviere du Loup, Quebec. Rev. Father Victor Savaria solemnized the nuptial mass when Gilberte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Appallinaiere Ouellet became the bride of Fernand D'Amour, son of Mr. and Mrs. D'Amour of Riviere du Loup, Quebec. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a rose suit with black accessories and a corsage of bronze pink roses. Mr. A. D'Amour attended the groom.

At the same time, Yvette Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ouellet became the bride of Sergeant James Patrick Dunlay of the Canadian Army Dental Corp. and son of Mrs. William Dunlay and the late Mr. Dunlay of Hastings, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her eldest brother Gerard Ouellet, the bride wore a teal blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Sergeant John Paltras C. A. D. C. attended the groom.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Charles Eugene Albert. The children of Mary choir sang. The newly married couple left for Montreal and Niagara Falls. Sergeant Dunlay and his bride visited at Hastings.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fournier of Nicolet. Rev. Father Savaria of Montreal. Mrs. William Dunlay and Miss Rita Smith of Hastings, Ontario.

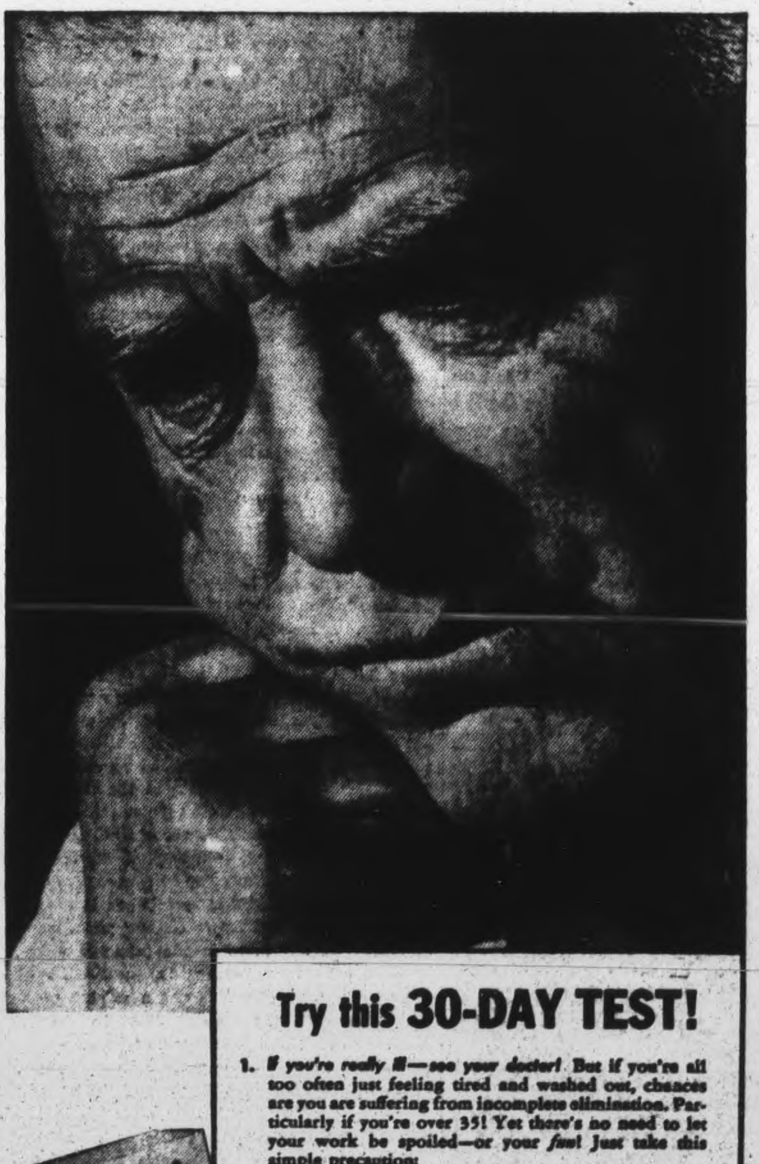
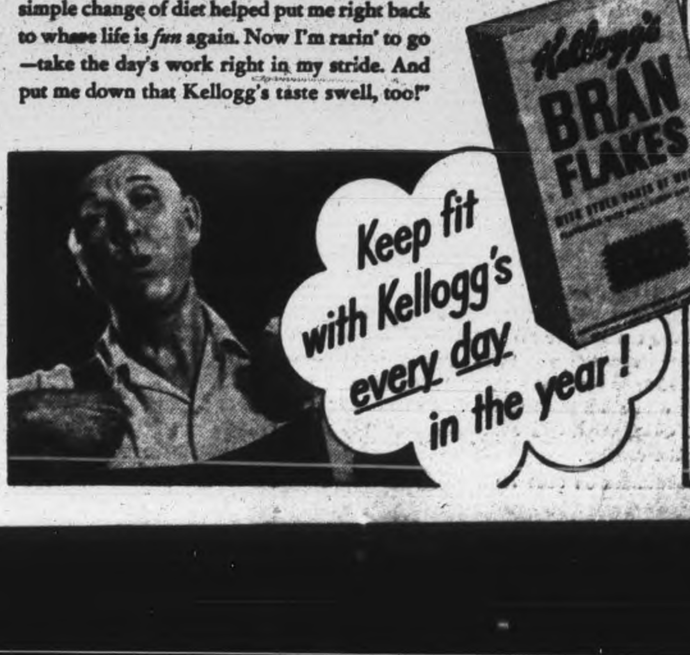
"Cross as a bear... MY JOB WAS GETTING ME DOWN!"



"EIGHT HOURS at a lathe shouldn't tucker a fellow completely out—but that was what was happening to me! I'd get home from work exhausted—all I wanted to do was tumble into bed.

"Then I tried Kellogg's 30-day test! That one simple change of diet helped put me right back to where life is fun again. Now I'm rarin' to go—take the day's work right in my stride. And put me down that Kellogg's taste swell, too!"



Try this 30-DAY TEST!

1. If you're really ill—see your doctor! But if you're all too often just feeling tired and washed out, chances are you are suffering from incomplete elimination. Particularly if you're over 35! Yet there's no need to let your work be spoiled—or your fun! Just take this simple precaution:

2. Start now to eat Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning! To keep fit you don't have to take unpleasant doses ... or harsh cathartics which actually may be harmful. Instead, get plenty of needed "bulk" in your diet by eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes with Other Parts of Wheat. Gently laxative, they help keep food wastes moving promptly ... supply valuable minerals and proteins too.

3. Just thirty days, and you'll prove it for yourself! Thirty days, away from the medicine cupboard, and you should know how grand it is to feel alert, have extra energy to do the extra things you want to do! And it's no chore to keep fit the Kellogg's way, because Kellogg's Bran Flakes are so downright delicious, you'll want to eat them every morning!

Westclox 2nds Win Junior Softball Title

Following in the footsteps of their older sisters, the Westclox seconds became junior champions at Ashburnham Bowl Monday evening, when they knocked the Quaker Oats team out of the race, taking the second and last tilt of the two-out-of-three series 5 to 4.

Monday's night's tussle followed the pattern of the first game, in that the Baby Bens came out from behind to win. With the Quakers leading by the scanty score of 2 to 1 at the end of the fifth inning, Westclox pushed 3 markers across during the seventh, to build up a two-run edge at that time, enough to take the game, as the Quakers could only muster another run to gain them four all told.

With the dusky twilight already forecasting a stop to softball action, the girls went into the seventh on even terms, 2 runs each.

Quakers were off to a feeble start, with the first two batters down to short stop and first base. Then, Frances O'Heron was issued one more walk, (being walked three times in three trips to the plate), and Phyllis Thackeray let loose with a hot shot into left. June McGregor followed this up with another powerful drive into centre, and although the ball was retrieved in time to keep the batter at first, the ensuing confusion allowed O'Heron to score. That was all for the seventh for Quakers. They had broken the tie, and were now one point ahead of the rivals.

In the Westclox half of the frame Florence Hanwell walked. Mina Dunford was out to June McGregor, and Dot Johnson whammed one into right field. Millie Miller was safe on an error, scoring Flo. Hanwell. Rita O'Heron was out when she grounded to Frances, her sister on first base for the Quakers, to make the second run, and Millie Miller followed her down the last lap when Dorothy Starr drove one through third base out into left field. It was the end of the seventh, with the Westclockers leading by 5 to 3.

Umpire Herb Payne decided upon another frame, and the Quaker girls went to bat, beginning with Gertie Masters, who was out to first base. A single into right field took Carlotta Laing to one base, followed by a grounder to Alice McIvor by Marie Williams, that put her out.

Velma Crane contributed a single to score C. Laing, and Margaret Duvall popped to Rita O'Heron, to end the innings.

The game was called then on account of darkness, with the Baby Bens coming out on top, over the Quakers, although until the seventh, it was anybody's game.

Hurling an effective slow ball, Gertie Masters was on the mound for Quaker Oats. With two walked, the opposition was held to nine blows, and one player struck-out.

Westclox sent Alice McIvor in against the Quakers, fanning 4, walking three, (Frances O'Heron drew all of pitcher McIvor's walks), and allowing 8 hits.

Stratford Kroehlers and the local Westclox team will meet at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon in the first game of the final series for the P.W.S.U. intermediate championship. Kroehlers eliminated the Big Bens last season by winning two straight games from the Peterborough representatives, although the breaks in both battles might easily have gone the other way. Stratford won the first game at home 4 to 2 with Hazel Baynton pitching against Isobel Bullock. The latter had a shaky start, allowing three runs in the opening frame and Betty Appel laced a homer in the third for Kroehlers' last run of the game. The Big Bens' twirler blanked the opposition for the rest of the tussle but the damage was done for Westclockers couldn't come through with hits off the delivery of Hazel Baynton when runners were on the bases. Stratford outhit the Big Bens 8 to 5 in that game. Kroehlers cleaned up the second game, played at Riverside Park 5 to 3 with Westclox getting 12 blows off the service of Greta Harmer but failing to cash in on their opportunities. The Stratford ace Hazel Baynton had to be called in in the ninth to save the game for the Peterborough girls had runners on second and third with nobody out in the ninth. She put out the fire by retiring the next three batters.

* * * * * *

It is interesting to note that of the Stratford team of last year the crack battery of Hazel Baynton and Jean Aiken are gone, lured to Montreal to play senior ball and that Betty Appel who played short for the 1943 Kroehlers is also an absentee. Isobel Bullock will probably list the latter item under the heading of good news for the Appel girl gave the Westclox ace plenty of trouble at the plate. In the first inning of the first game she drove in two runs with a single and she homered in the third frame while in the battle here she supplied transportation for two more Stratford markers. In other words Betty Appel drove in five of the nine Stratford runs in the series Westclox lineup will also be changed. At first base instead of Jean Castle will be Nona Whetung. Viola McLean has shifted over from second to short, a position filled in the Stratford series by Marg Watson. Verna Patterson is now playing second, so that Marg Hawthorne at third will be the only Westclox infielder covering the same post as a year ago. Two of the Big Bens outfield will be the same, Aggie Anderson in centre and Barbara Rome in left. In place of Doris Walker who played right field in 1943 will be either Jean Castle or Joyce Withers. The Bullock-Dobbin battery will be the same as a year ago.

Colts Lose Barker

Peterborough softball fans will be interested in learning that Oshawa Colts, Senior B contenders, have lost the services of their star first baseman, Bill "Wart" Barker who has played a lot of good ball for them and hit consistently. Barker who was one of the stars of the Oshawa junior A hockey squad last winter and won the "most popular player" award among the Generals' was called into the Navy at H.M.C.S. York the other day. Barker had been sworn in as a member of the R.C.N.V.R. several months ago and had been awaiting his induction call. The Colts applied to the O.A.S.A. for permission to bring Frank McGarry up from the intermediate ranks as a military replacement for Barker and the authorities put their O.K. on the move. Plazas have reason to remember McGarry. It was Main Office's second baseman who won the first game of the series with Plazas with a home run and it was also McGarry who came through with a devastating double at the wrong moment in the big inning of the third game when Oshawa came from far behind to win out with an eight-run rully. The hitting of the former hardball pitcher should make him a big help to the Colts in their battle for Ontario Senior B honors.

And now bouquets are in order to Westclox Seconds, commonly known as the Baby Bens upon their capture of the Girls' Softball League junior championship which they won last night by beating the Quakers 5 to 4, thus taking the final round in two straight games. This was the first occasion on which the junior title has been played for so that the junior Westclox have the honor of being the initial winners of a championship in their first year in organized ball. The three junior teams, Westclox Seconds, Peterborough Lock, who were beaten by Quakers in the semi-finals and Quakers all made their debut this season and they have staged some interesting games and have developed a promising crop of young players who will be heard from again in future campaigns. All the new teams deserve credit for their freshman year performance. With the windup of the junior division the Girls' League has completed its season with Westclox Seniors winning the senior title, Brintons the intermediate honors and Westclox Seconds the junior championship. All in all the loop has enjoyed a fine season, with three new teams and a flock of new players and President Bill Bennett and the other officers deserve all kinds of credit for the time and energy they have devoted to promoting the league's affairs and for the success they have attained.

In Praise of Steve

We always knew that Steve O'Neill, pilot of the Detroit Tigers had at least two staunch supporters in Canada in the persons of Nagle Phelan and his son Basil who have always headed the O'Neill Marching and Voting Club. But there is one more anyway in Doug Vaughan, sports commentator of the Windsor Star and we are quoting from his column to prove it thusly: "Frankly, any criticism of O'Neill riles us. The rotund, straight-speaking Irishman deserves as much credit for the unbelievable showing the Tigers are making as any member, or group of members of the club—and that takes in Trout, Hal Newhouser, Dick Wakefield, Roger Cramer or any of the other fellows who have been receiving all the headlines. Honestly, now, did you, at the conclusion of the first month of the season or even as late as the middle of July, think that the Tigers today would even have a chance of winning the pennant? Of course, you didn't. From the start of the season Trout and Newhouser have pitched phenomenal ball. The return of Dick Wakefield proved the needed spark to help the team get going again when it appeared ready to fold in midseason. The veteran Roger Cramer and Pinky Higgins have proved of immeasurable assistance in the past few weeks. But behind all these headliners there has always been—and still is—Steve O'Neill. He is doing a magnificent job of making a red-hot pennant threat out of a club that at the start of the season didn't look as if it would have been able to set the Essex County League on fire. It must be remembered that with the exception of Wakefield, there hasn't been a single notable addition to the Detroit club since the start of the season."

* * * * * *

Softball fans who want to see a lively battle should not miss the exhibition tilt at Riverside Park at 6.15 o'clock this evening between Westclox and Aircraft, the first of a two game series arranged to ready the Big Bens for their clash with Stratford Kroehlers in the Ontario finals. The second game will be played on Thursday evening. The Aircraft girls have given Westclox a real tussle every time the two have met this season and the struggles between the two rivals have provided some of the best ball of the season. These exhibition games this week will be of the same calibre and while there is nothing at stake should prove decidedly interesting. Norma Strickland will likely do the tossing for the Aircraft in tonight's fixture.

At a meeting of the Public School Athletic Association to discuss soccer rules much useful information was furnished by Stroyan Leith who led the discussion and he was thanked for his assistance on motion of R. A. Scrutton. The association decided to play three games at night in the junior league, with the schedule to start next week. At the suggestion of C. D. Munro distinguishing sashes will be obtained for the players of each team. May's School and Queen Alexandra announced that they would not enter teams in the junior division.

Lindsay Fair Attracts Fast Horses

A fast track and fine September weather combined to make an exciting program of horse racing at the Lindsay Fair recently and thousands of people were on hand to enjoy the events. Keen competition made for thrills, and a large array of sleek horses entered into the races.

A fair prospect appeared in the 2.29 pace in the bay gelding, Sonny Boy, a four-year-old that M. Storey, Peterboro, started for the first time. Sonny Boy's manners are perfect and he displayed a lot of sped, considering it was his first time in a race.

Stewart Grattan, the black gelding that Hugh Stewart, Peterboro, has been racing, was the best in the 2.19 pace, winning in straight heats, with the best mile 1.15. In this event there was Robert Waldwin, Danny Barsac and Doreen Harvester.

Audrey Scott accounted for her second victory of the meeting when she took the 2.24 class pacers into camp by winning the first two heats in 2.16 and 2.17. This race provided plenty of competition, as in all three heats different horses showed in front.

T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, British Challenger for the America's Cup, won her second successive victory over Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow at Newport, R.I., seven years ago today. But the American boat won the next three races and held the prized trophy. Sopwith protested the fourth race, alleging two fouls, but his complaints were rejected.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

With the fall coming on, some of our bowlers are beginning to wonder how much longer we will have bowling and when did we close last season. To the first question we have no answer but to the second one—the last bowling of 1943 was on Thanksgiving Day, Monday 11th. There were 14 mixed rinks out and the winning rinks were skipped J. Cullen, R. Burns, B. Chesler and G. Coleman jr. It was a lovely afternoon.

Tomorrow we are having a men's doubles tournament. Choose your own partner. $1.00 per pair, with all the money being returned to the lucky winners. Play starts at 1.30 p.m. with three 15-end games and play will be continuous — no stopping for supper — This will make it better bowling.

It was unfortunate that so many games went by the default route, last night.

To Mrs. R. Dyer's rink goes the honor of being the champion rink of the ladies section for 1944 and with this honor goes the Rollie Denne Trophy.

This rink won first place in Group No. one and Mrs. W. Hepburn's rink won first place in Group No. two.

So the two rinks came together Monday evening and played for the championship.

The personnel of the rinks are:

Mrs. A. Jackson	Mrs. C. Wasson
Mrs. H. Darling	Mrs. W. Downer
Mrs. W. Petrie	Mrs. R. Payne
Mrs. R. Dyer	Mrs. W. Hepburn

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

The Vancouver Neons moved up to the fourth round of the International Softball Tournament at Cleveland, O., last night by tossing a 3-1 defeat to the American Yarns girls team from North Carolina with Myers holding the southerners to two hits. Earlier, the Western Canadian girls had received a 3-2 loss from Stamford, Conn., Nutmegs but were not eliminated. The Nutmegs defeated Toronto Sunday School Morning Class 2-0 to gain a record of three straight victories. In the men's division, Toronto Tip Tops eliminated Baltimore, winning 1-0 in nine innings.

The purchase of centreman Max Kaminsky of Niagara Falls from Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League was announced last night by Pittsburgh Hornets who had previously bought wingers Max Bennett and Dede Klein from Buffalo. Kaminsky served part of last season with Boston N. H. L. Bruins.

Turns Down Offer.

Clark D. Shaughnessy, football coach of University of Pittsburgh, turned down a $125,000 contract to direct the Washington Redskins in the pro grid loop for five years ,it was stated last night by G. P. Marshall, owner of the Redskins.

General Manager Herb Pennock announced at Philadelphia yesterday Fred Fitzsimmons had signed a contract to manage the Phillies again in 1945, thus setting rumors at rest that the former pitcher would be displaced by either Harry Leibold of Louisville or Stanley (Bucky) Harris of the Buffalo Bisons. Harris had been Phillies' manager before the breakup with ex-president Bill Cox in July, 1943.

A reported reason for the roughshod manner in which Philadelphia Athletics knocked New York Yankees out of first place in the American League standing last week-end is that Connie Mack's boys went after them with a vengeance because President Ed Barrow of the Yanks had registered a protest against the renting of Shibe Park for football games before the close of the ball season.

The $5,000 Scioto 2:04 Bar Pace, feature of yesterday's Grand Circuit Card at Delaware, O., was won in straight heats by Prince Yakima, owned by R. H. Hahlinger of Dearborn, Mich., and driven by Warren Dennis. The 2:20 trot went to David Spencer, owned by C. W. Phellis of Greenwich, Conn., President of the Grand Circuit.

Mimico Wins

MIMICO, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP) — Mimico Mountaineers defeated the Hamilton Juveniles 8-7 last night to tie up their Ontario Junior Lacrosse play-off. Hamilton won the first game 13-12 Saturday.

Yankees, Tigers Clash In Vital Series

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Detroit's Tigers, the hottest club in baseball not excluding the St. Louis Cards, head into their most important series to-day with a half-game lead in the American League, a complete at-home schedule for the rest of the season and both Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout primed to shoot the works against the still dangerous Yankees.

Since Aug. 1, Steve O'Neill's Tigers have won 30 and lost 12 for a percentage of .714 and only 11 were played at Briggs Stadium.

Despite three successive beatings by the Athletics that dumped them out of the lead and down the ladder to third, two games behind the Tigers, New York Yankees are still in the race. Joe McCarthy has his pitching planned for the Detroit series, leading off with Hank Borowy and Mel Queen ready for the second day, knowing full well he has to sweep all three to stay close.

Nels Potter, Denny Galhouse and Jack Kramer have been keeping St. Louis Browns in the race, a half game back of the leaders, with a big chance to regain lost ground this week if they can trip the lowly Washington Senators and half Philadelphia's revival.

Yesterday's only big league game Brooklyn in 10 innings in a single was a 6-5 victory for Boston over Brooklyn in 10 innings in a single by Butch Nieman. The loss sent the Dodgers tumbling back into the National League cellar as the Braves squeezed into sixth place.

St. Louis Cards can clinch the flag to-day beyond a mathematical doubt if Pittsburgh should lose to Brooklyn.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 19 — (CP). — Among the most open feuding which sports writers are wont to carry on has been that of Dan Parker of the New York Mirror and Andy O'Brien of the Montreal Standard.

But when Andy's dad, a hockey trainer, died, Dan came right to bat with his glowing tribute:

"Bill O'Brien, the trainer who died in Montreal, did more to elevate his profession than anyone else I know of in the field of sports.

"All too many 'trainers' are mere gymnasium hangers-on whose talent begins and ends with their ability to give a good rub. Bill O'Brien made a study of anatomy, and, although he never made any pretence of being a doctor, he could and often did act as one in emergencies until a medical man could be located.

"Besides being intelligent and well-equipped to minister to the human body, Bill was a high-class gentleman with the appearance and dignity of a professional man."

"Wherever he went he left a train of friends. For years he handled the Montreal Maroons Hockey Club and later, Les Canadiens. He also was trainer for the Montreal Royals Baseball Club. Bill's two sons, Andy and Larry, who are sports writers in Montreal, lose as fine a father as a lad ever had in Bill's untimely death."

Woe-is-me Department:

About a month ago Jim Coleman, columnist for the Toronto Globe and Mail, permitted his horse Broom Time, a nifty three-year-old, to be claimed by J. E. Frost. Last Saturday the steed won the Breeders Stakes at Woodbine earning $3,350 for his owner. Wagerers also collected $56.10 for $2.

Football:

The football locker room at the University of Pennsylvania could not produce a pair of shoes big enough for George Savitsky, 19-yead-old former marine, so George sent home for the "scows" he wore as captain of the Camden, N.Y., High School team. The 250-pound tackler wears a 14½. The largest brogans unearthed at Penn were 13½s.

Deferred play:

Bill Tobin, coach of the Chicago Black Hawks N.H.L. entry, assures the Chicago News that Doug Bentley of Delisle, Sask., will don his skates with the Hawks machine this season. Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle quotes Tobin as saying: "Bentley is a bona-fide farmer and it is officially recognized that you can't farm in Canada in the winter time. So it's okay for him to play in the farming off-season." Guess the new ruling of the N.H.L. governors doesn't apply here?

Gus Mell Retains Boxing Title

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Sept. 19 (CP) —Gus Mell, Montreal, easily retained his Canadian featherweight championship last night, gaining a technical knockout over Roy Hunter, Toronto, in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round title bout. Mell weighed 125 and Hunter 126. After losing the first round on a foul, the speedy champion took every other round and controlled the situation at all times.

Newark Scores 3rd Win Over Toronto

By The Associated Press

Two hitting pitchers opposed each other last night and Newark's Elmer Singleton came out on top as the Bears notched their third straight International League play-off victory over Toronto 5-4.

Joe Page started for the Bears against the Maple Leafs' Woody Crowson before 13,000 fans. Page was knocked out in the second inning, when Singleton came on in relief. He finished the game, allowing the Leafs only five hits and doubling home the tying run in the fourth inning.

Both Crowson and Singleton got two hits, but Singleton had more on the ball in the clutch as both teams rallied in the ninth. With the bases loaded in the top of the ninth Steve Kuk singled home two runs for the Bears and the Leafs came up for the last time two runs behind.

The Leafs made their bid when Tony Castano singled Tom Astbury in from third with two out. However Castano was nailed a moment later trying to steal and Newark was within one game of sweeping their semi-final series.

Page met his downfall in the second when he walked two and allowed two successive hits with none out. Singleton retired the side without further scoring and pitched shutout ball until the ninth. He struck out four and walked only one.

Should the Bears win to-night they will have to wait until Baltimore and Buffalo conclude their series. The Bisons and Orioles have played only one game so far. The Bears lead the Leafs 3-0 while Buffalo holds a 1-0 edge on the flock.

The weatherman got another decision over Baltimore and Buffalo in their play-off series when rain forced a postponement of last night's second game, and resulted in a decision to move on to Buffalo for a three-game series beginning to-morrow night.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP). — When Jimmy Conzelman, assistant to President Don Barnes of the Browns, was in the throes of composing that rousing football ditty, "It's in the Cards to win," he stopped to point out: "You notice I don't say we WILL win."....Now it begins to look as if Jimmy's Chicago Cardinals' song could be transferred to the St. Loo bunch without changing either the title or the comment...If the world series were starting to-day, we'd pick the Tigers in a walkover....With unaccustomed frankness and brevity, Jimmy Johnston concludes a 300-word letter about "the mighty Menichelli," his new South American heavyweight, with this statement: "I don't know any more about him than I have written—so no use in going any further."

Touch Picking.

When the managers of the Central Pacific Service Baseball League picked an all-star team at the end of the season, they refused to consider Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Mize because they hadn't played enough games in Hawaii but created a utility post for Tom Ferrick because the former Cleveland flinger had done some mighty hitting besides taking a regular turn on the hill....The team they picked: Pitchers, Vern Olsen, Don Schmidt and Hugh Casey; catcher, Vince Smith; infielders, Ferris Fain, Joe Gordon, Bob Dillinger and Peewee Reese; outfielders, Mike McCormick, Barney McCoskey and Walt Judnich....Maybe it's just as well for the big leaguers that it's just an Army-Navy world series starting there Friday.

In the main battle the fiery Karl Krippler Davis will try to tear the underpinning off the bewhiskered bear-hugging Mad Russian, Ivan Rasputin and that should be a riot. Irish Jack Kennedy, an instantaneous favor with Canadian fans will try to keep Strangler Bob Wagner busy in the semi-final and in the opening bought two tough grapplers Vernon Baxter and Don Evans tangle. There should be few dull moments.

Brampton Beats St. Kitts' Team

TORONTO, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors escaped elimination from the Senior Ontario Lacrosse play-offs last night by defeating St. Catharines Athletics 15-11 at Brampton. It was the third game in a best-of-five semi-final series, St. Catharines having won the first two.

St. Catharines had the edge in the early part of the game, leading 4-2 quarter and 7-4 at the halfway mark. In the third period however Brampton rifled in eight goals to only one for the Athletics.

Joe Shertzwell, chunky Brampton defenceman, was the star of the game, playing his first year in organized lacrosse. He and Bill Brunskill each had four goals and Carl Madgett scored three. Bobby Thorpe led scorers for the losers with three goals.

The fourth game will be played at St. Catharines Wednesday night.

D-Day Bravery Told In 23 Citations

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Glimpses of Canadian bravery in the tough D-Day fighting on the Normandy beaches were given today with release by Defence Headquarters of citation covering 23 gallantry awards to members of the army.

The list, announced previously, included the award of a Distinguished Service Order to an infantry corps major, a bar to the Military Cross of a captain, a Distinguished Conduct Medal to an infantry corporal, seven Military Crosses and 13 Military Medals.

Here are some of the heroes:

Maj. Lockhart Ross Fulton, 27, Birtle, Man., won the D.S.O. for cool daring displayed when he company was the only one in the battalion to hold its position intact throughout D-Day.

Capt. William H. V. Matthews, 29, West Vancouver, won the Bar to his Military Cross for his action in cooly walking in front of a group of firing tanks to gain their attention and then direct their fire on enemy guns pinning down his company.

Capt. Rev. Graham Moffatt Jamieson, 35, Toronto, won the M.C., for disregarding his own safety in tending to wounded and dead under heavy fire.

Cpl. Edward Jobes, 25, Bevan, B.C., won the D.C.M., for thwarting an enemy flanking movement by leaping to the top of his slit trench and pouring the withering fire of his Bren gun at advancing German infantry. The citation continued: "Inspired by his example, many others braved the fire and despite casualties forced the enemy to retire, thus saving the situation until friendly armor could be brought up."

Csm. Basil A. Currie, 27, Renfrew, Ont., won the H.M., for grabbing a Piat gun and waiting until he saw the white of enemy tank gunners' eyes before opening fire, putting out two tanks and saving his battalion headquarters. He was so close to the enemy he was wounded by the blast of the exploding tanks.

BROTHERS IN THREE SERVICES—Mr. and Mrs. James McFarlane of Otonabee have three boys, one in each of Canada's armed services. Gnr. William McFarlane (Left) is driving a truck with the R.C.A. in France. He enlisted in 1940 and went overseas in August, 1941. Gordon McFarlane (Centre) is 19 years old and is stationed at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis. Prior to enlisting last November, he was working on a steamship line running out of Sarnia. The third brother, Sgt. Hugh McFarlane (Right), is with the R.C.A.F. at Three Rivers, Que. He left the C.G.E. about a year ago to enlist and has trained at a bombing and gunnery school.

Vimy Guardian Starts Work On Memorial

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

VIMY RIDGE, France, Sept. 19 (CP) — With George Stubbs, the guardian of Canada's War Memorial on the Vimy Ridge, I went to inspect the Canadian trenches and the Grange tunnel built in 1917 by Canadian tunnellers.

The entrance to the tunnel was blown to bits three months ago and Mr. Stubbs, who was recently freed from the St. Denis internment camp near Paris, said that French forces of the interior told him the Germans had used a V-1 flying bomb as an explosive to test its power.

Stubbs, who hails from Winnipeg and was a gunner in the 17th Battery in the First Great War, was in internment for four years, away from the gleaming stone monument to which he has devoted his life to keeping the noblest memorial in France.

He returned to find the lawn around the memorial neglected but was pleased to see the monument itself intact except for minor and easily repairable damage.

Among recent Allied visitors to the Memorial was Field Marshal Montgomery, who stopped briefly on his way to the Belgian front.

Blew Up Tunnel

Stubbs said the Germans had blown up the tunnel because they suspected the French Underground was using it to store weapons and ammunition.

Stubbs said that during his internment in Paris, his wife, a Belgian, had lived in their bungalow near the monument. All during the occupation, he went on, Germans came to admire the giant memorial and buy postcards.

Still worried about reports of Germans nearby, Stubbs borrowed a machine-gun from a British soldier as a precaution. Just that morning, he said, he was awakened by a knock on the door but did not answer because "I didn't have my machine-gun then."

Work of cleaning up and restoring the setting around the memorial has started. Stubbs has begun hiring French labor at 100 francs a day. Without funds, he doesn't know where the money will come from but with the Canadian Army now in France, he feels sure it'll work out all right.

German People To Witness Nations Defeat

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(Substituting for Dewitt Mackenzie)
Associated Press War Analyst

Reports from the western front that the Allies expect a street-by-street defence of German cities and widespread guerilla warfare serve to highlight a situation which has been in the wind all the while and which is not entirely displeasing.

Every hope of any sort of lasting peace demands that Germany be thoroughly whipped on the field of battle, and that it shall be done under the very eyes of her people—all her people. Bombing is too impersonal. But millions of Britons, Frenchmen, Americans, Canadians, Poles, Russians, Czechs, Greeks, Italians, Norwegians, some Japanese—men from every race, marching through Germany, wiping out her army, burning the nests of snipers, hanging war criminals, may impress enough Germans to do some good. It is a lesson they have been needing for 100 years—that their habit of following any grandiose-talking warrior can lead them only to destruction.

That the war in Europe soon will be reduced to just this sort of rat-hole cleaning-out seems obvious. If it seems heartless to favor such, as against an immediate German surrender which would save many lives, you need only the answers of the men who must do the job—that they feel that their sons must go through had rather pay the price now than to what they have gon through.

The landing of a great airborne army behind the Germans in Holland emphasizes the pressure against the Reich from all sides. Where a few months ago she was losing men by the hundreds, she now loses them by the tens of thousands. If this is to take place beofre the eyes of all the Herrenvolk, so much the better.

Soldiers Demand Wide Range Of Practical Christmas Gifts

By HELEN BANNERMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Service men and women know what they want to find in their stockings this Christmas — clothing, cigaret cases, cosmetics and Christmas cake.

A survey by The Canadian Press showed that sailors serving at sea put a water-proof wrist-watch as first choice followed by small portable radios, flannel pyjamas, bedroom slippers, comb-and-brush sets, monogrammed writing paper and pen-and-pencil sets.

The shore-based seaman adds to this list white broadcloth shirts, hard collars and black ties, books, and toilet articles. Both want underwear, identification bracelets and phonograpth records — provided they arrive in one piece.

Army men overseas ask particularly that gifts be wrapped in Christmas paper and tinsel to bring a breath of homelike, yuletide spirit. They appreciate toilet articles such as razor blades, toilet and bath soap and shaving cream, and chocolates, cigarets, Christmas cake and cookies and canned meats.

Airmen overseas want cigarets, tobacco, pipes and pipe cleaners, lighters and flints, films, flashlights, handkerchiefs, pen-and-pencil sets, chocolate bars, sweaters, socks, slippers, pyjamas and soap.

Servicewomen hope especially to find small cosmetic kits that will fit into their pochettes when they open their parcels. Sports clothes to wear off duty, notepapers and stamps and hand-knit sleeveless sweaters are favorites with them.

Want Jewelry

Wrens will appreciate gold "Canada" flashes and hooks supplies by jewelers, black silk stockings and broadcloth shirts, black ties, white silk scarfs, bath mats and soap.

Members of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) and the Canadian Women's Army Corps both urge pretty feminine lingerie with plenty of lace and frills, but Wrens have little use for them since the type of underwear they wear is controlled by navy regulations.

W.D.'s want pyjamas and flannel dressing gowns, regulation silk stockings, books, theatre tickets and clothes lines with pins.

C.W.A.C.'s would like fleece-lined gloves, cameras, alarm clocks (if you can find them), sewing kits, writing kits and fountain pens, books, cameras and bedroom slippers.

Nursing sisters stationed in North Africa and India would be pleased with gay swim suits, light-weight sports clothes, housecoats, lingerie, sun glasses, skirt hangers, zippers and sheer stockings. Nursing sisters stationed in other parts of the world would appreciate the same sort of presents as members of the other women's services.

Marquis Killed

LONDON, Sept. 19—(CP). — The Marquis of Hartington, 26, heir to the Duchy of Devonshire, was killed in action in France September 10, it was announced today. He was a captain in the Coldstream Guards. The Marquis was married last spring to Kathleen Kennedy, daughter of Joseph Kennedy, former United States Ambassador to London.

Government To Pay Freight

TORONTO, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario announced the province will co-operate with Dominion Department of Agriculture and the Railway Companies in paying a portion of the freight charges on ground limestone being shipped to farmers.

The announcement said that where shipment is made by rail the railway companies will reduce freight charges by 25 per cent and the province will pay 50 per cent of the balance, not to exceed $1 a ton in southern Ontario and $1.50 a ton in northern Ontario.

In the case of truck transportation, the Department will assist in paying charges at the rate of three cents per ton per mile with the maximum $1 a ton.

The assistance will be available to individual farmers, two or more farmers buying collectively and to any organization purchasing on behalf of farmers. The Dominion Government will reimburse the Ontario Government to the extent of half its expenditure, not to exceed 75 cents a ton.

Robombs Cause Blood Shortage

TORONTO, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Need for Canadian blood serum now is greater than at any previous period in the war, Dr. John T. Phair, chairman of the National Blood Donor committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society, said to-day. Drastic depletion of overseas stocks due to their emergency use for robot bombing victims was given as the reason.

Dr. Phair said the time now has come for Canadians to "give every ounce they can spare" of their blood.

The Red Cross is shipping all available blood serum not being used by Canadian forces for use in the treatment of members of the British Forces and British civilian bombing casualties. This was requested by the British Research Council which stores and distributes all blood and blood derivatives in England.

Large reserves of serum also are needed for the Far East, said Dr. Phair.

Church Delgates In Closed Session

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. Sept. 19 — (CP) — More than 100 clerical and lay delegates met in closed sessions in this college town near Montreal to-day to inaugurate the annual meetings of the departments and committees of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada.

The day's meetings include the regular quarterly meeting of the Pension Board; the executive committee of the Missionary Society; the Committee on Faith and Order and Life and Work; the basic clerical Stipend Committee; the executive Council; and a joint session of the Executive Council and the Board of Management of the Missionary Society.

Want Drew To Act

TORONTO, Sept. 19 — (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor, at a one day convention here yesterday, endorsed a resolution asking Premier Drew's government to "implement its pledges or make way for a govenment that will take progressive action."

Hard to Get!

Find KLEENEX Tissues hard to get? Don't give up! Your dealer will have some shortly. The Government has standardized Kleenex in a new, War-time Economy Size, so that there will be more tissues to satisfy the growing demand.Anew size but the same Kleenex quality.

TELL ME ANOTHER AND WIN $5.00—SAYS KLEENEX

Blows in the night!

When you reach for KLEENEX tissue, during colds, there's no fumbling in the dark! Unlike other brands, Kleenex has that handy box that serves up "just one" double tissue at a time.

(from a letter by G.J.S.)

NEW WAR-TIME ECONOMY PACKAGE! LASTS HALF AS LONG AGAIN —

50% more tissues in the new War-time Economy Package will serve you half as long again, if you use the same number of applications as formerly. You pay the same low price for 300 tissues (150 pulls) as for the old 200 tissue package (100 pulls). And the new War-time Economy Package makes more Kleenex available for everybody.

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH? By Ti-Jos No. 53

THEIR FUTURE IS IN OUR HANDS

So far we're winning the fight against inflation. That's because the great majority of Canadians have backed the price-control policy. As long as we continue to do so the ceiling will hold. For the sake of the boys overseas and of our children, this is the least we can do.

LATER VOTING.

With the advanced date of municipal elections this year, from January 1 to the first Monday in December, the council Monday night passed a by-law specifying the time for voting, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. instead of the customary 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

PARTRIDGE SEASON.

It will be legal to shoot partridge in this district from October 7 to October 14, both days inclusive, and the season will also be open from Nov. 8 to Nov. 11, both days inclusive. No person shall take more than 5 birds per day, nor more than 25 for the entire period of both open seasons.

SPIRIT MOVED THEM.

A young boy and girl made quite a picture on Charlotte street Monday evening, when they suddenly upped and went jitterbugging down the sidewalk. Right down to Aylmer street the dance continued, at which place, it ended abruptly, and the two continued walking like normal people.

CARS DAMAGED.

Cars belonging to Melville Carroll, Haliburton, and H. W. Fair, Ida, were damaged Monday in a collision at Charlotte and Aylmer streets. Carroll, driving west on Charlotte street was making a left hand turn into Aylmer when his car came into contact with Fair's automobile travelling east on Charlotte street.

MASS PRODUCTION.

Mrs. Joseph Dunkerley reports a case of mass production involving hen fruit. When she opened a pullet's egg this morning she discovered that it contained no fewer than three yolks, something decidedly unusual in the egg line. The three-yolked specimen had been purchased from Mrs. Jack Collins, Otonabee.

PASS MEDICAL EXAMS.

Three district men were among the 105 candidates successful in passing examinations conducted by the Medical Council of Canada. They include: Roy S. Irwin, Whitby; Jack B. Jewell, Fenelon Falls; and Donald G. McMullen, Trenton. They are all eligible to practice in any province without further examination after fulfilling provincial requirements.

BADLY NEEDED.

The Department of Highways rates a bouquet for the new guard rail built between the bridges at Lakefield, thus preventing an out-of-control car from zooming over the precipice into the river. Formerly a wooden rail was all the protection that existed at this danger point, but the new barricade is well built and will probably justify its erection before very long.

BLOOD DONORS.

Blood donors at the Clinic Monday totalled 61, with 18 employees of the C.G.E.-Genelco on hand and workers also from the Westclox, Quaker Oats, B. F. Ackerman's, Brinton Carpet Co., Canada Packers and J. J. Turner's. Rural contributors came in town from Lakehurst, Young's Point and Lakefield. An 11th donation was made by Donald T. Moore of the C.G.E.

A northend family was out for a walk on Sunday night, and while walking along Benson avenue they noticed a small water spaniel dog pick up something from the side of the sidewalk. On examination the dog was found to have an American dollar bill in its mouth.

Farmers Asked To Donate To Memorial

Donations of $800 by the Peterborough Rotary Club and of $500 by Canadian Legion Branch No. 52 were voted Monday for the projected Memorial Community Centre at meetings of the two service organizations. The office of the Centre's financial campaign had not by noon to-day had sufficient time to tabulate early returns on the general canvass and the special names and plant canvasses; and release of such information as is available by then will be made to-morrow.

Advertising and publicity committee members are working overtime formulating plans aimed at putting the drive over in a big way; and the staff on hand at the Water street office is very busy martialling the detailed business of the drive now that it is in full swing.

John E. Keyes, finance committee chairman, said to-day that figures of the larger manufacturing companies' gifts to the Fund will not be made public before all the industries have individually determined on the amount of money they will put up for the cause. Thus no industry whose decision is not already made will be influenced one way or the other by announcement of the contribution of some other firm, he said. Mr. Keyes and Ian McRae of the Canadian General Electric are in charge of the manufacturers' canvass.

Letters with pledge cards and an invitation to give to the Centre's fund are being mailed out to-day to all rural householders, since no personal canvass is being conducted in areas surrounding the city.

"While it was stated originally" a member of the Publicity committee remarked this morning, "that a gift of $10 from each citizen of Peterborough would put the drive over the top, this does not mean that smaller contributions are not necessary or acceptable. We know there are people who simply cannot afford to give that much money to the project, but we wish to assure them that anything they can give, no matter how small, is very urgently needed."

The Rotary Club donation was made public at its regular Monday luncheon, and was followed by the favorable action of the Legion at their monthly meeting in the evening. J. A. Jebson, Foundation committee chairman of the Memorail Centre, addressed the gathering of Legionnaires and described the purposes and plan of operation under which the Centre would function when once brought into existence.

"This is a challenge to everyone," Mr. Jebson declared. "Every community project of important social significance in this city started heretofore has been the gift of individuals who had wealth and wished to see some of it used in the improvement of local conditions, but here is the opportunity for each and every one of us to do his own share to better the city he lives in."

TWO CROPS OF POTATOES

Jim Hutchinson, 360 Dobbin avenue, reports growing two crops of potatoes on his plot in the wartime housing area on the Hatton property. The first was planted on May 24, and they were ready for the table on July 1. The second crop was planted July 20, and on Sunday the first feed was had. They were all good sized potatoes. Asked what kind of potatoes they were, Mr. Hutchinson said, "Just potatoes." He also reported two good crops of beets this year from the same garden.

Legion Asked To Support Hospital Plan

Support for the erection of adequate hospital facilities in the city of Peterborough, when and if the plans decided on by the City Council come to a public vote, was urged of members of the Canadian Legion, Peterborough branch, by Dr. M. H. Yelland, chairman of the Nicholls Hospital Trust, who presented a brief review of the situation at the Canadian Legion Hall Monday night.

The impossibility of continuing on the current basis with a rapidly mounting deficit and an increased population beyond the means of Nicholls Hospital to cope with was stressed by Dr. Yelland as he bespoke the earnest consideration of the legionnaires and their support of the projected hospital when and if it comes before the people to decide the issue.

"Deficits have been mounting rapidly in recent years," the speaker said. "When I became a member of the Board the deficit was only $2,400; now it is $30,000 annually. Under these conditions the Nicholls Trust finds it impossible to supply adequate hospitalization facilities.

30 Refused in One Week

"We have only 115 beds now, and there have been several occasions when we have been forced to refuse admittance to as many as 30 people in a single week," Dr. Yelland stated.

"Therefore," he said, "reviewing these facts, the council has arrived at the conclusion that building of a new hospital is an imperative measure; and it has proceeded to ask the Protestant churches of the city, which are represented on the board by provision of Mrs. Nicholls' will, whether they would be willing to submerge their interests in the present hospital if the trust were terminated and a new corporation drawn up and chartered by the Province. Eleven out of 12 have already expressed their consent, and I do not doubt that the other will also agree."

The plan calls for the Nicholls Hospital Trust to turn over its entire assets, its endowment fund amounting to nearly $250,000, the hospital building, site and equipment to the new corporation, thus, Dr. Yelland declared, "legislating the Trust out of existence." Funds for construction of a new hospital with 250 beds, and for maintenance would be provided by taxation of all property owners in the city; and under provisions of the law the corporation created by dissolution of the Trust which has operated for 60 years would be empowered to take up options on land at a fair value by expropriation whenever extension of existing facilities appeared necessary.

The meeting of Canadian Legion Branch No. 52, at which J. A. Jebson also spoke in the interests of the Memorial Community Centre, and which voted $500 to be donated to that cause, was presided over by Branch President George Gimble.

Alfred John Burton Dies From Accident

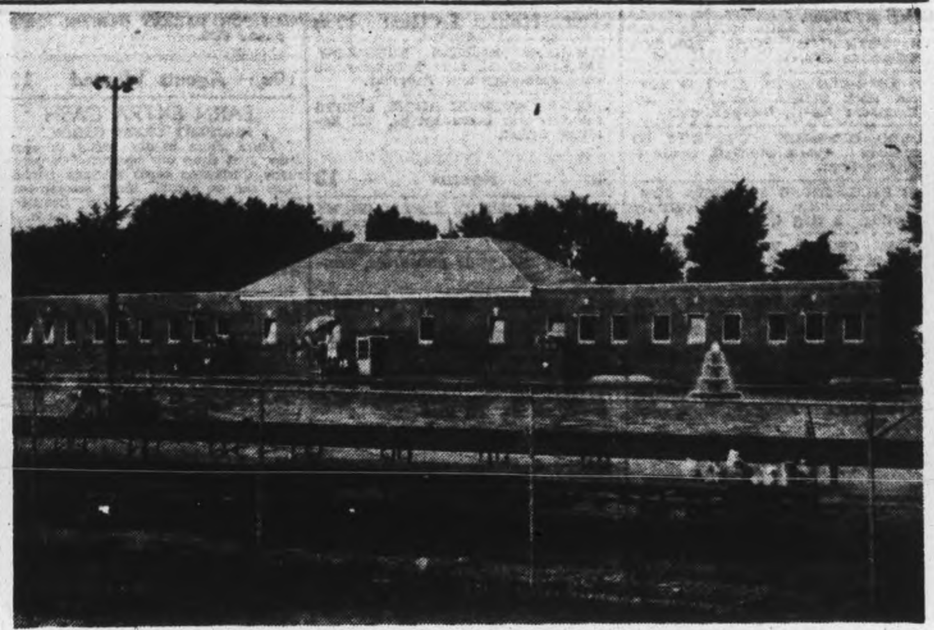
As the result of an accident sustained while at work in the DeLaval plant last Friday, Alfred John Burton, 171 Prince street, passed away in Nichols Hospital this morning. He was in his 72nd year.

An employee of the firm for 27 years, Mr. Burton held the position of foreman in the grinding room. He had been previously been employed by the street railways here for a number of years. He came to Peterborough from England in 1907.

Born in Tenterdon, Kent, England, he was the son of the late John Burton and Elizabeth Crouch. He leaves his wife, the former Margaret Hayward, two sons, Alfred D. of Flint, Michigan and Philip of Belleville; and two grandchildren, Betty and Frank of Belleville. Mr. Burton was a member of St. James United Church

The funeral will be held on Thursday at 2 p.m. from the Belleghem Funeral Home, 190 Hunter street, with services conducted by Rev. F. W. Craik. Interment will be made in Little Lake cemetery.

NOW OVERSEAS—Gnr. Kenneth Drury, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Drury, 359 Dobbin avenue, is now serving overseas, according to word received recently by his parents. Before enlisting, Gnr. Drury was employed as an inspector in the Wire Department of the C.G.E.



OUTDOOR SWIMMING POOL—One of the features of the proposed Memorial and Community Centre will be an outdoor swimming pool. Shown above is the type of which the Peterborough one will follow. This outdoor pool is at Three Rivers, Quebec, and is reported to be one of the biggest attractions of that city.

Pte. Page In Britain After Year As Prisoner

Pte. Francis Richard Maurice Page, who worked in the district before joining the army, is one of 41 Canadian prisoners of war who have arrived in Britain on the repatriation ship, Gripsholm.

Prior to enlisting the soldier worked on the farms of Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Middleton, of Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Cockburn. In March of 1940 he joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment overseas and went with that unit in the invasion of Sicily. During the fighting there he suffered severe arm and back injuries and was captured by the Germans. He has been a prisoner for more than a year.

Since he has no immediate family, Mrs. Middleton and Mrs. Cockburn have been sending next-of-kin prisoner of war parcels.

First $100 Donation Winter Gift To Centre

Louis Yeotes reminds the sports fraternity that his cheque for $100 was the first contribution to the Memorial and Athletic Centre fund. It was at the Kinsmen dinner when Art Lewis and his associates were hosts to a group of citizens, and Ace Bailey was down from Toronto, and the whole project was discussed as a primary need of the community. Mr. Yeotes said he was so keen about seeing Peterborough develop its athletic and health facilities that he wished to send along his cheque for $100. He mentioned to-day that the cheque has remained in the hands of somebody and has now been used to the credit of the Fund.

It was reported last week that Bishop MacDonald's contribution of $200 was the first. It was announced by Paige Rowell of the Recreation and Memorial committee. Bishop MacDonald was leaving on his first visit to all the parishes in the outer fringe of the diocese of Peterborough, but he wished to be represented in the support to the Health Centre project.

"With all due respect to the Bishop," said Mr. Yeotes, "and I know he won't mind it, I would like to mention it that my cheque for $100 was the very first; and we all hope that everybody is going to give something or other, the more the better, and let's make a genuine success of everything for Peterborough, and get the young people playing in parks, and baseball like I used to have a team myself years ago."

Former Peterboro Boy Normandy Casualty

Lieut. William Ford, a former Peterborough boy, who enlisted with the Prince of Wales Rangers, was wounded in the left lung by shrapnel while leading his men on patrol in Normandy.

A graduate of the Collegiate, Lieut. Ford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ford, Toronto, the former having been the branch manager for Purity Bread in Peterborough. He was also a member of the Peterborough Art Club.

The young soldier enlisted with the Rangers as a private in April 1942 and rose to the rank of second lieutenant. After receiving his commission he went to the Officers Training Centre at Calgary where he graduated in February as a First Lieutenant.

Lieut. Ford, 27, was born in Milton, but was educated here. Prior to his enlistment, he was an accountant for Silverwood's Dairy at Sudbury.

Typhoon Club Gives Aid To Robot Victims

Great deeds for the common good always evoke the admiration of all classes of people, and in young virile boys who have visions of what they may accomplish in the future, this usually leads to a form of hero worship, in which with all sincerity they endeavour to emulate the deeds of their heroes.

This too may apply in the case of any particular object that has been of ultra assistance in the allied cause since the war began, and thus it is that a group of young boys in the north-end of the city have grouped themselves together under the name of Typhoon Club, (after the Typhoon fighter plane) which they admiringly designated as one of Britain's most outstanding fighters heavily armed with cannon, machine guns and aerial rockets.

Choosing such a name as this, one would naturally expect that they too had some ambitions to be of outstanding service in the Allied cause, for there isn't much use in choosing a name of this description unless they had some intention in some way or other to live up to the reputation of their choice.

For them this has found expression in their holding a bazaar and collection to assist the victims of robot bombs in Britain through the local and district fund operating for that purpose, and to-day sees a nice donation of $15.00 that has reached the fund from this source.

Scanning the list of members composed of Ken Gallagher, Delbert Davis, Ted Doughty, Jack Christmas, Bill Deyell, George Bedford, Norm. Hayward, Gerald Will, Ernest Barnhart of Hamilton, John Frise and Trevor Davis, one can note the names of some who have helped in giving assistance to the fund on former occasions, and it may be that this leaven was responsible for the group as a whole doing something to help this worthy cause along.

At any event, it si a really fine thing to see boys doing such a fine work for such a worthy cause, for to themselves it means a hundredfold benefit as against ganging up to get into mischief of one sort or another.

Another very nice gift is also listed in to-day's receipts, the result of a collection taken from among spcetators at a sports event held recently between two teams from the Peterborough Training Centre, which gives a substantial lift towards completion of the next donation.

Personals List Next Friday.

For some time past, a list of purely personal gifts have been appearing at frequent intervals, another of which is now in the making, and will appear in this column next Friday. Further support for this has come in since the previous notation about such was made, and all similar gifts received up to next Thursday evening will be included at that time.

Proceeds of Collection taken at sports event between two teams from the Peterborough Training Centre	38.11

Total to date	$80,238.75

Cpl. G. F. Gahagan Back From Overseas

Four Peterborough and district men have arrived at Kingston aboard a hospital ship, according to information received from Canadian Military Headquarters overseas. They are: Cpl. P. F. Gahagan, son of Mrs. G. Gahagan, 494 Sherbrooke street, Pte. F. G. Whitmore, son of Mrs. M. Whitmore, R.R. 2, Lakefield, Sgt. W. G. Wellman, whose wife lives at Hastings, Pte. H. W. Rogers, whose wife lives on Clyde street, Cobourg.

Cpl. P. F. Gahagan was hit in the legs by an "8" when his infantry unit stormed a hill overlooking Ponte Corvo, Italy. The Italians, he said, were friendly to the Canadians, but there was a scarcity of many kinds of food.

Former Peterboro Boy Said Killed In Italy

Frederick Henry of Lakefield, who works at the C.G.E., has received word that his brother, Sapper Claire Henry, a former resident of Peterborough, is reported missing, believed killed in action in Italy August 25.

Spr. Henry was serving with an Engineers unit from Toronto and his wife and children live in Port Credit. A sister, Mrs. Ralph Davis, also lives in Peterborough, at 1 Rose avenue.

Two Roseneath Boys Suffer Slight Wounds

ROSENEATH, Sept. 19 —(ENS)— Mr. and Mrs. Robert Linton, Roseneath, have received a letter from their son, Vernal, who is in hospital in England to say he is doing fine. Vernal was wounded in France on August 24, a fractured leg and foot injuries. He enlisted in March 1941 and went overseas in October of the same year. He has a wife and year old daughter in England.

Blame Parents For Growth In Delinquency

"Tolstoi, the great Russian philosopher once said that the root of all crime lies in the childhood neglect by the parents, and this forms the basis of nearly all child delinquecy" declared Fred Malone, Assistant Crown Attorney for York County, who was the guest speaker at a large gathering of the Lions' Club, held in the Kawartha Club Monday evening.

"The wave of delinquency has never waned or ebbed; instead, it has climbed higher and higher as witness the courts of today", he asserted.

Mr. Malone pointed out that in Toronto, there are often as many as 212 cases in court every day, not counting drunks, vagrancy charges and other minor charges. Most of these people in court, he said, are from the ages of 16 and 18.

"This situation has existed before the war, and since the beginning of the war, it has increased, seemingly because of the lack of parental supervision due to an absence of fathers overseas, or the parents both being away on war jobs. There is then no one to guide and discipline the children. What is being done to stop this? To prevent crime? It must have special treatment, and it must start in the early years of childhood. In cases of where there is no parental guidance, the youth soon loses all trace of any conscience he may have had heretofore", Mr. Malone stated.

"Hard punishment does not stop it. The system of parole, in some cases, does, but it is a method that has been abused. Delinquents must be handled carefully, and if this is done properly, he will snap out of it. Probably he will pick up more by being with hardened criminals, and if he does, sooner or later, back to jail he goes."

Makes Matters Worse

He said that if the magistrate who handles a child delinquent case does not know how the other half of the world lives, and has not the ability to handle these minor cases with the proper perspective, then he can unwittingly be the cause of further delinquency on the part of the prisoner. The magistrate is a key man, and should be selected very carefully.

The Lions' Club, the Kinsmen, and the Big Brotherhood Movement, among others, are helping to curb this menace, and may credit be handed to those clubs, he said.

Ted Weir, on behalf of the Club, expressed his thanks to Mr. Malone for addressing them. Among the other guests at the meeting, were Jim Buchan, the lifeguard at the Lions' Wading Pool during the summer, Dr. Mylks, who is transferring from Niagara Falls, and Dr. Nichols, an American who has been vacationing for 25 years, staying five months out of the year.

Dr. Nichols, of Geneva, Ohio, and California, was introduced by Stan Darling, and it was learned that the doctor is a doctor of music, and for some time, has been connected with Hollywood film studios. Dr. Nichols whistles and in the past has performed with such artists as Schumann-Heink, and Kreisler. He has filled in whistling effects for Disney movies, including Snow White and Bambi.

Together with giving several selections of whistling to the music by a phonograph, Dr. Nichols demonstrated many bird calls. In a brief address he told the Lions that if Canadians, instead of having to go to the United tSates to make their talents known, would stay here, great opportunities would be their's.

KILLED OVERSEAS—Pte. William Marois, who was serving in France with the Queen's Own Camerons, was killed August 29, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Marois, Buckhorn. He was home on furlough from Kiska in January and has a brother, Walter, in Italy.

Meeting Friday Night To Plan Victory Day

A planned celebration of Victory Day will be discussed at a meeting at the city hall Friday night. Alderman Dutton suggested that if it was the council's wish to assume leadership in this direction it might be wise to begin at once. His motion, seconded by Alderman Swanston, instructed City Clerk Outram to write the Board of Education acknowledging their letter of desire to co-operate with the council in preparing for Victory Day.

Mayor Hamilton's invitation will be sent to as complete a list as possible of local organizations requesting them to send representatives to this meeting which will be at 7.30 p.m.

PROCLAMATION

PAPER SALVAGE DAY

THURSDAY, SEPT. 21, 1944

WHEREAS we are fast approaching the gravest hour of this year when we shall administer the blow to end savagery and brutal tyranny—

AND WHEREAS a grave shortage of salvage paper impedes our efforts in transporting food, water, medicines, blood plasma and other vital supplies from Canadian laboratories and factories to our men holding the invasion beach-heads—

AND WHEREAS the Department of National War Services has requested the City of Peterborough to immediately increase its collection of waste paper to meet this emergency.

BE IT HEREBY PROCLAIMED that Thursday, September 21st, 1944, be emergency Paper Salvage Day in Peterborough, when all citizens shall enlist to make that day a success.

Fathers and Mothers, Boys and Girls are asked to assist in making available every ounce of salvage paper — newspapers, magazines and periodicals, cardboard cartons and wrapping papers—

Special Committees composed of public-spirited citizens will unite to clear stores, offices and factories of every last piece of salvage paper, including records of no permanent value.

We appeal for a united effort in this emergency.

Let each of us — every boy and girl, every man and every woman — do his part in this essential service . . . SALVAGING PAPER!

GOD SAVE THE KING

Signed

James Hamilton

MAYOR.

girls, felt that her wedding ring was reasonably safe, but the war has changed all that. Friend Husband doesn't work now in the safe company of men only. He is surrounded by platoons and battalions of women of every known variety of the species, and the Little Woman sees in every one of them a potential enemy who is about to snatch him from her.

Undoubtedly there are many she-wolves on the prowl, seeking whom they may devour, and many love thieves and home-wreckers. Also, it is true that no other man is so vulnerable to women's wiles as the man who has just reached the age of indiscretion. He has settled down into being just Pop who pays the bills and practically any woman who will tell him how young and handsome and fascinating he is can have him for the taking.

Man Can Show Off to Helpers

Furthermore, for a man to have a woman assistant, gives him a chance to strut his stuff, which he seldom gets at home, for few husbands get any hero worship from their wives. So it is not unpleasant for the man who is hungry for a little appreciation to have a starry-eyed cutie sit at his feet and tell him how marvelous he is and how wonderful that he can operate that great big machine.

Now, of course, as long as men are men, and women are women, there is always going to be a certain amount of philandering and, such being the case, it is the part of prudence for a wife to keep a weather eye on her husband and his goings on. But it isn't necessary for her to go completely haywire over the girl who works next to him and make herself miserable by imagining situations that probably don't exist. For there are just as many men who are Darbys as there are Don Juans, and just shoals of them who are so allergic to romance that they got married to be done with the necessity for love-making, and wild horses couldn't drag them into a courtship again.

As a matter of fact, wives' jealousy often precipitates the catastrophe they dread, for, as the homely old saying goes, it puts notions in their husbands' heads. Many a man who has no more thought of himself as being a great lover and a devil that no femme could resist than he has of picturing himself as a great general or opera singer begins to wonder if he hasn't powers of fascination he has never suspected if his wife believes that every woman he meets falls for him at sight, and begins to do a little experimental sidestepping.

And many a man who knows his wife is going to be jealous, anyway, thinks that if he is going to have the name he might as well have the game, and begins frolicking around with the little lambs.

Jealousy pays no dividends except in tears, and it is a sad thing that so much of it is going around in the world just now.

N. J. Clark Weds Hastings Nurse

Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, Hastings, was the scene of a pretty wedding this morning, when Catherine Anne Walsh, Reg. N., daughter of Mr. Frank Walsh and the late Mrs. Walsh of Hastings, became the bride of Neil John Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clark of Peterborough. Rev. J. J. Garvey officiated. The church was decorated with 'mums and asters, and the music played by Mrs. T. E. Petticrew. During the signing of the register, Mrs. T. A. Walsh, aunt of the bride, sang "Panis Angelicus."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore floor-length gown of white taffeta with scalloped bodice and full skirt. Her finger-tip veil of silk net was caught to her head with pearls, and she carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses. Her only ornament was a Cameo brooch, the gift of the groom.

Miss Mary Walsh attended her sister as bridesmaid, in floor-length Aqua crepe with matching hat. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses. Gerald Walsh was best man, and the ushers were Joseph Walsh and Emmett Fitzgerald.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's father, where the bride's aunt, Mrs. T. A. Walsh, received the guests, wearing a gown of rose chiffon, with black accessories, and a corsage of white roses.

For a wedding trip to Haliburton, the bride wore a turquoise wool suit with black accessories, and carried a black chesterfield coat. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Clark will live in Peterborough.

Miss L. Hurley Named To C.W.L. Council

The appointment of Miss Lillian Hurley of Peterborough and Miss M. Baker of Lindsay to the Provincial Council of the Catholic Women's League was confirmed at the quarterly meeting of the Diocesan executive, C.W.L., at the home of the president, Mrs. F. J. Lynch, 420 London street. A special guest was His Excellency, Bishop John R. MacDonald, who spoke of the honor conferred upon Rt. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, D.P., and members recommended that a letter of congratulations be sent to Monsignor O'Brien.

It was decided to hold the Diocesan convention in Lindsay on September 27, and the president urged all sub-divisions to be represented, and to send in resolutions. Almost every sub-division was represented at this meeting, and the group heard Mrs. Lynch give a report of the National Convention of the C.W.L. held in London. The meeting was adjourned with a prayer for the crusade of prayers, and with the memorare for chaplains, sailors, soldiers and airmen in the service.

Representatives present included: Miss M. Baker and Miss T. Fox, of Lindsay; Mrs. F. Delladone of Lakefield; Miss M. O'Connor of Ennismore; Mrs. R. Sheehan and Mrs. G. Torpey of Douro; Miss G. Costello of the Catholic Junior League; Miss L. Hurley of St. Peter's; Mrs. H. Connelly and Mrs. F. McCarthy of Sacred Heart; and Miss L. Boland of Immaculate Conception.

Mahood-Lillico Vows Pledged

Trinity United church banked with gladioli and ferns, was the setting for a pretty wedding recently, when Merton Elizabeth Lillico, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Lillico, Port Hope Highway, became the bride of Leonard Everett Mahood, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Mahood, 175 Stewart street, Rev. William McDonald officiating. Miss Mabel Clarry was at the organ and Miss Doreen Groombridge sang "O Perfect Love" and "Because."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Richard W. Lillico, was charming in a floor-length gown and train of white brocaded satin along Princess lines. Her double veil of bridal net with long full train, fell softly over a coronet headdress, and she carried a shower bouquet of Bettertime roses and bouvardia.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Mary J. Petrie, as matron of honor, in a floor-length gown of Dauboni velvet with matching hat and veil. Her bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Mahood and Miss Jessie Lillico, frocked alike in floor-length blue and pink flowered organza. The attendants carried bouquets of gladioli. Betty Gibson, small niece of the bride, as flower girl, wore a pretty frock of white flowered organza, and carried a single Bettertime rose.

Norman Lillico acted as best man and the ushers were Roy Mullen and Courtland Gibson.

After the ceremony the bride's mother received the guests at her home in mauve faconne crepe with matching hat, and corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother also receiving, wore dusty blue Chantilly lace with black accessories and Talisman roses.

For a wedding trip to Toronto and Montreal, the bride donned a navy blue pin-stripe tailored suit and black accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Mahood will reside at 332 George street.

Yvonne Draper Becomes Bride

Gladioli, asters and ferns formed a floral setting for a pretty wedding in St. James' United church recently, when Yvonne Emily Draper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm P. Draper, 263 Lake street, became the bride of Harold Thomas Donaldson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Donaldson, of Otonabee. Rev. F. W. Craik officiated, with C. E. Lapp at the organ. During the signing of the register, Billy Tambly sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of lily of the valley brocaded satin, with a long tulle illusion veil falling from a Sweetheart halo. She carried a cascade bouquet of deep red roses. Miss Margaret Thompson of Keene, was her cousin's maid of honor, in a floor-length gown with blue velvet bodice and full double net over taffeta skirt. She carried a Colonial nosegay of roses and gladioli.

Misses Eleanor Draper and Blanche Draper attended their sister as bridesmaids, in pink satin with double net, and blue double net over taffeta. Each carried a Colonial nosegay of roses and gladioli. Misses Maxine Draper, sister of the bride, and June Smith, were dainty flower girls in floor-length dresses of blue and pink taffeta, with matching poke bonnets tied with blue ribbon, and carrying Colonial nosegays of tiny pink and blue forget-me-nots.

Tommy Weir was best man, and the ushers were Jack Murray and Clarence Campion.

About 50 guests were present at the reception, at Wesley Hall, where the bride's mother received, wearing a rose crepe dress with black accessories and a rose corsage. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore navy blue crepe, with black accessories, and a corsage of roses. Rev. F. W. Craik was toastmaster.

Later the happy couple left for Toronto and Niagara, the bride travelling in a mauve two-piece dress with brown accessories.

The groom's gift to the bride was a silver tea service. The maid of honor received a gold cameo bracelet; the bridesmaids received a gold beaded bracelet and a stirling silver signet ring; an the flower girls received gold lockets. The groom's gift to the best man was a gold tie set, to the ushers, leather wallets, and to the soloist, a leather wallet.

Rebuild World On Principles Of Golden Rule

The application of the Golden Rule in industry and business and furthermore the dominance of its spirit in people's minds and a general acceptance of the idea that it applied not only to men but to nations was recommended as a policy that would bring prosperity in the post-war world by R. J. Deachman, Ottawa consulting economist, in an address before the Peterborough Rotary Club at Monday's luncheon.

Mr. Deachman, speaking on the subject, "Tomorrow and Its Needs," discounted the widely held idea that after the war the world was going to move into a period of great abundance and full employment. The speaker held that all the evidence pointed to the contrary, unless the world was rebuilt on the principle of the Golden Rule.

Mr. Deachman began by pointing out that the world in the past century had made more material progress than in any previous 100 years in history.

The first industrial census in the United States in 1849 showed that production per man amounted to $1,060—in 1939 it was $7,200. In Canada the first industrial census taken in 1870 revealed a production of $1,180 per man, while in 1939 it was $5,080 per man.

"I am not inclined," said the speaker, "to accept off-hand the general assumption that after the war we shall move at once into a world of great abundance and perfect happiness." There was no doubt that it would be a poorer world because the war was destroying enormous wealth and leaving scars that would take generations to heal.

High Prices Unlikely.

We were being told that after the war the world would be hungry and there would be the job of supplying the necessary food. Mr. Deachman warned, however, that if people expected to get war prices for their goods in times of peace that condition was not likely to happen unless there was a period of inflation in which all prices would go up and the cost of living still higher.

Britain, he pointed out, would be Canada's best market. But Britain, the speaker said, had sacrificed her enormous investments abroad and would, as the world's largest purchaser of raw materials, be in a position to insist on lower prices for the things she bought after the war.

Speaking of the floor under the prices of farm products, Mr. Deachman said that if prices fell there would only be two courses, to dump surplus products at the world price and sell at high prices at home or store farm products and bonus the farmers. Neither plan, he said, in the long run would work to the satisfaction of producers or consumers.

"The goal I seek," said the speaker, "is the highest possible total wage and salary payments consistent with full employment. Rates above this level reduce employment and lower total wage payments. When there is full employment the national income will be high and when the national income is high the total payments to labor and to all other producers and all other factors will be high and I include in this not only labor and capital but the basic producer, the business and professional man and all the people of the nation."

The Supreme Problem.

The supreme problem before the people of Canada is the problem of full employment.

We were asked why if full employment were possible in war why not in peace, but the speaker pointed out that the conditions were quite different.

Mr. Deachman declared that unless there was a decided change in price policy he saw no reason to expect in Canada an increase in industrial employment. "The trouble is," he said, "that we seek dearness and avoid cheapness and this means restricted production."

As a means of increased employment the speaker advocated a lowering of prices to the consumer which would inevitably result in increased buying power, thus providing more jobs.

Mr. Deachman gave an example of a shoe industryy that was able by new methods to cut down the number of employees. The saving effected, he said, might go to the landlord or to the owner of the capital employed or to the labor involved in production. If it went to any one of those three factors there would be no decrease in the price of the commodity.

There was a fourth alternative and that was to pass on the gains to the consumer in a lower price for the product produced. Labor would gain, then, in price reductions. A decline in living costs was equivalent to an increase in wages but as all other people get the benefit there was an increase in employment and consequently greater production.

In conclusion Mr. Deachman urged the adoption of the Golden Rule as the way to a better and more prosperous world after the war.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian James Dutton, and the vote of thanks was proposed by Rotarian James Juby.

Nazi Seeks Refuge

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 —(CP) — Robert Ley, Nazi Labor front leader, has purchased secretly a large farm near Bahia Blanca, Argentina, as a post-war refuge, the Free German National Committee said yesterday in a Moscow broadcast, quoting a report in an Argentine newspaper it identified as Diario De La Plata. The broadcast was reported by U. S. government monitors.

UNRRA Needs Huge Amount Of Supplies

MONTREAL, Sept. 19 —(CP) — The immense sale of supplies purchase proposed by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration to aid the people of liberated lands in Europe was set forth Monday by Herbert H. Lehman, director general of UNRRA in a report to the council meeting here.

With few exceptions, supplies available are expected to be short of requirements.

The estimated requirements for the six months after UNRRA takes over from the military authorities in Albania, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Greece, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Poland and Yugoslavia as follows:

Woollen textiles: 182,000,000 yards Of this total, Canada is being asked to provide 2,250,000 yards for 1,630,000 garments.

Cotton textiles: 560,000,000 yards

Rayon and Rayon blend fabrics: 18,000,000 yards.

Footwear, leather and hides: Equal to 78,500,000 pairs of shoes and repair material for 48,000,000 pairs.

Collect Used Clothing

Used clothing will be collected in the United States for UNRRA needs. From 300,000 to 500,00 army salvage garments will be sought in Canada with part of this order already being filled.

Grain: 3,178,00 tons. Wheat and rye supplies are ample but barley and rice are short.

Animal proteins: 864,000 tons of meat, fish, cheese and eggs. The provision of 7,700 tons of canned fish by Canada is sought.

Edible fats and oils: 292,000 tons.

Soap: 200,000 tons. Canada plans to produce 17,500 ton for delivery in the next 12 months.

Beans, peas and similar foods: 182,000 tons.

Milk: 776,000 tons (liquid basis).

Sugar: 438,000 tons. The over all 1945 supply of sugar is expected to be short.

Vitamins: 800,000 gallons of cod liver oil.

Farm machinery: 186,000 tons. Canada has been asked to provide 24,000 tons.

Lindsay Flier Gets DFM Award

The Distinguished Flying Medal has been awarded to Srgt N. E. Ranson, R. C. A. F., son of Mrs. M. Ranson, 29 Logie street, Lindsay, for his fine performance in guiding his plane back to base, after the navigator had been killed.

The citation reads: "As air bomber, Sgt. Ranson has participated in many successful sorties. On his first mission he was a member of a crew detailed to attack Stuttgart. When over the target, the aircraft was struck by shrapnel which wounded the pilot and killed the navigator. On the return flight, Sgt. Ranson assumed the duties of the navigator and guided his pilot to this country with much skill. His coolness and resource in a trying situation were most commendable."

W. W. Bateson Weds Margaret McCullough

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 19 — (ENS). — A wedding of interest was solemnized Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCullough, West Seymour, when their only daughter, Margaret Catherine, was united in marriage to William Walter, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bateson, Campbellford. Rev. J. O. Ralston officiated and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Alex McKenzie, sister of groom. Preceding the ceremony Miss Mary Robson, Reg. N. of Peterborough sang, "The Voice That Breathes O'er Eden" and during the signing of the register, "I Love You Truly"

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white faconne crepe over satin and wore a finger tip veil with Queen Anne headdress held in place by pink roses. She carried a white testament with streamers of pink rosebuds.

Miss Shirley Beer, Reg. N. of Peterborough as bridesmaid, wore a gown of heaven blue point d'esprit over taffeta, torso style with sweetheart neckline fashioned after the gown of the bride. Miss Joan McCullough, niece of the bride gowned in pink point d'esprit over taffeta was flower girl. They both wore chapel veils held in place by pink and blue flowers and carried nosegays of pink roses, asters and gladioli petals. Mr. George Oliver of Warkworth was groomsman.

At the reception the guests were received by the bridal party, assisted by the bride's mother, in medium blue crepe with corsage of pink gladioli. The groom's mother wore a two-piece dress of deep purple with corsage of yellow gladioli. Also receiving was the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Walter Bateson in black sheer.

For travelling the bride wore a dark grey suit with black accessories and silver fox fur. After a wedding trip to points east, the young couple will reside near Campbellford.

WEAK BID OVER DOUBLE

THERE IS never any necessity of bidding at once over an opponent's informatory double of your partner's suit bid, if you have a hand ranging from fair in strength to quite strong. If the former, you can afford to pass and then bid later; if the latter, you can redouble. Only when you are weak in high cards is there a need to butt in at once, to try to interfere with the opposition. And, of course, you can afford to do that only with appreciable distribution, in the form of a fit with your partner's suit or length in another, or a combination of them.

North: ♠ J 9 6 5 3 2 ♥ 4 ♦ J 8 7 3 ♣ 7 4

West: ♠ A ♥ J 9 8 5 ♦ A Q 6 4 ♣ K J 10 3

South: ♠ K Q 10 7 ♥ A K Q 3 ♦ K 10 9 2 ♣ A

Dbl	3 ♥
2. 1 ♦	Dbl	1 ♠	Pass

Many kinds of bidding came on this deal in a duplicate which brought together players of two different schools of thought on the question of bidding over an intervening double. At Table 1, the North-South pair was following the practice of bidding exactly the same as if the double had not been made. North in this case reckoned that he would have passed 1-Diamond if there had been no double —though many would have much preferred 1-Spade or 2-Diamonds —and so he passed just as if the double had not been made.

At Table 2, North and South were treating an immediate bid over a double as showing weakness in high cards combined with distribution.

Notice the contrast in results. At the first table, the one theory caused the side to be shut out of the bidding. East-West [illegible] 3-Hearts with the loss of [illegible] tricks in trumps and one in clubs. At the other table, North's bid of 1-Spade enabled his side to do the shutting out, and a nice spade game resulted, with the loss of one trick in trumps and two in diamonds.

R.C.N. RATINGS TRY ON GERMAN SUB "MAE WESTS"—For the second time in her career, the Canadian destroyer, H.M.C.S. St. Laurent, rescued Germans from the sea recently when a plane of the R.A.F. Coastal Command sank a U-boat. The large number of prisoners brought on board indicate that the U-boat was an unusually large one. The German version of the "Mae West" life belt is tried on by a group of seamen from the St. Laurent. Left to Right, in the front row, are Able Seaman Lloyd Raymonte, of Chatham, Ont.; Able Seaman Joseph Turteon, of Quebec City, Que.; Able Seaman Ronald Damon, Saint John, New Brunswick, and Leading Stoker Frank Fekete, Hamilton, Ont. In the back row are, Left to Right, Able Seaman John Farden, New Westminster, B.C., and Able Seaman John Cunningham, Guelph.

HMCS St. Laurent Rescues Nazi U-Boat Crew

A UNITED KINGDOM PORT, Sept. 19 — The Canadian destroyer H.M.C.S. St. Laurent has picked up a large number of survivors from a U-boat which was sunk by a plane of the R.A.F. Coastal Command. It was the second time in her fighting career that the veteran destroyer has had Germans aboard as "guests". On the first occasion, she, with the Canadian frigate Swansea and the Royal Navy destroyer Forester share in the sinking of a U-boat in the North Atlantic. At that time 45 Germans of the submarines crew made their last seagoing trip for the duration aboard St. Laurent after they had been fished out of the water.

Very early one morning, the U-boat was spotted on the surface firing at a plane which was attacking with depth charges. The German craft was five or six miles off the destroyer's bow and was firing tracer shells at its tormentor.

St. Laurent went full ahead. When she reached the area where the sea-air battle had been fought the aircraft signalled that it had attacked a U-boat with depth charges. The aircraft then dropped illumination flares which clearfly outlined the submarine. It sank almost immediately.

Many Survivors

"It looked like a big one and it must have been", says Lieut. Cdr. A. G. Boulton, R.C.N.V.R., of Russell, Manitoba, "because we took a large number of survivors off it, including the Captain. I thought they were never going to stop coming aboard."

The survivors were picked up in three bunches. All of them were on rubber life rafts or were clinging to them. St. Laurent put scramble nets over the side to pick them up. Each time the destroyer came alongside a group of survivors, the Germans were asked; "Where is your boat"? Each time the answer came; "Aw, she sunk".

Other survivors yelled: "You take us off"? "You take us off"?

During the rescue operations, H.M.C.S. Ottawa screened St. Laurent. Overhead the aircraft circled. "That plane certainly did a fine job of work", says Lieut. Cdr. Boulton. "She put the U-boat away in jig time."

Surprised at News

The U-boat's crew were only average physical specimens. One officer professed to have lived in Vancouver for several years and spoke English well. All were completely out of touch with the news. They made immediately for marked maps and expressed amazement to see that the Russians were in Warsaw and that nearly all France had been overrun by Allied armies. As nearly as could be ascertained, there were only two or three casualties in the submarine. Two of the men dragged aboard the destroyer suffered from slight injuries; one had a dislocated shoulder and the other was badly scraped.

Picking up German survivors was just another incident for the officers and men of St. Laurent. Since D-Day, she has been on patrol looking for trouble. She has been fired on by shore batteries, "just missed" by glider bombs, and has had several brushes with E-boats. She is still looking for trouble.

She also has a tip right from the horse's mouth on the probable duration of the war. When the survivors were taken aboard, one of the destroyer's officers remarked to a German officer; "Well, the war's over for you."

"But not for you", replied the Nazi. "You have to go on for another three months yet."

Reporter Says Quebec Just A Paradox

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 19 — (CP Cable). — Don Whittington, who recently toured Canada with other Australian newspapermen, in an article in the Sydney Daily Telegraph to-day refers to the selection of Quebec for the Churchill-Roosevelt talks as "an apparent paradox" and says:

"Quebec has no great affection for the English, little time for the Americans, and is almost indifferent to the Pacific an1 the war against Japan."

The article is headed: "Quebec French rancor still runs deep."

After describing the history of the "special outlook of the Quebec people," Whitington says: "They would fight to the last man to defend Canada, but see little reason why they should fight Japan. One reason for their rabid isolationism is probably their failure to merge with the British and Americans.

"Their leaders discourage intermarriage, encourage retention of the French language insist on separate education, are adamant against conscription for service outside American waters and bitterly opposed to trade unionism. But the war has broken down many of these prejudices. French-Canadians may not be particularly fond of Britons, but wouldn't support any move for the severance of Empire ties. Whether French Canada is prepared to go beyond that to the extent of sending her men to help Australia in the Pacific is another matter."

Toad Takes Release From Prison Calmly

APSLEY, Sept. 19 — (ENS). — While Henry Edwards was digging a well in the basement for his new residence, he made an unusual discovery. Having dug down about nine feet the last four feet of which was through a hard sand formation known as "Hard pan" he came upon a live toad bedded in the hard pan.

When first unearthed it had no "warts" on it but after being exposed to the air for a short time, the warts appeared and the toad became quite active and calmly hopped away. This all happened where there were no rocks or stones for the toad to work its way down around and the earth had never been disturbed in that particular place.

There Goes that TELEPHONE!

COPPER, rubber and other telephone materials continue to flow overseas in military communications equipment as well as in the form of ammunition, weapons, aircraft . . .

During one brief air battle, for example, this fighter plane's guns may spit enough copper to build several miles of telephone line.

War needs both at home and abroad must come first. Extensions to present telephone equipment are strictly limited. Fullest possible use must be made of existing equipment.

To those applicants who have been unable to obtain telephone service, we offer our regrets—and our thanks for their ready understanding of why their requests have had to be denied.

FOR a long time now, John Bull, Uncle Sam and Johnnie Canuck have been doing business together. Today, more than ever, we are united in a common purpose.

Side by side, Canadians, Americans and Englishmen march along the road that leads to final victory. On the hot sands of North Africa, on the slopes of Sicily and Italy, our men have fought well together . . . given strength one to the other. Now, we look forward to the peace . . . and the ways in which we can preserve it.

Future world security rests to a large extent upon continued co-operation between the British Commonwealth and the United States. Of all nations, Canada is best situated to assure such co-operation. For we, of Canada . . . a major member of the British Commonwealth, have long been a close friend and neighbour of the United States. We know and like them both so well, we are the common meeting-ground for mutual understanding. Thus will Canada help the world to Win the Peace!
